NEW YORK GOES DRY

FOR THE FIRST TIME SALOONS ARE CLOSED TIGHT ON SUNDAYS.

Commissioner Roosevelt Says a Politica "Pull" Works, but in an Opposite Direction Than That Intended. Third Avenue and the Bowery Dry.

"Two years and eight months are left to me on this Board, and that is time enough to make matters very unpleasant for policemen who shirk their duty. Moreover, those who rely on any political pull, high or low, will discover before they are through what sort of a Board they have to reckon with."

Thus said President Roosevelt of the police commissioners, and for the first time in the life of the Metropolis it is now practically impossible to buy a drink on Sunday.

The drought that settles on the town at midnight extends from the southern boundary of Harlem to Battery Park and there are no open signs of excise violation within this territory. Park row, which is a haven for the thirsty because of the great depth of its beer glasses, looks like a street in the "Deserted Village," and the Bowery is no more lively.

In Delancey, Rivington and Houston streets there are great crowds as usual and the embargo placed upon beer is particularly irksome in the afternoon when the heat is intense. An occasional growler can be seen, but the greater portion of the crowd goes dry. Along lower Second avenue the cafes and restaurants with their miniature gardens in front are crowded, but at none of them can a stranger get a drink. Weiss beer and "soft stuff" are retailed in great quantities.

At 3 o'clock on a recent Sunday afternoon a small boy, bareheaded and barefooted, who carried a huge bundle under his arm, crossed from the south to the north side of East Fourth street, about midway in the block between Second avenue and the Bowery. The bundle was done up in newspaper and was open at both ends, so that when he passed the big growler which it contained could be plainly seen. He tried the door of one saloon without avail.

"Try the next door," said a man who sat at a window on the third floor of a house across the way.

The boy did as he was directed, and he was instantly admitted. A minute later the door opened again and the boy shot across the street like a ball from a cannon, spilling the beer as he ran.

The police have warned all the saloon keepers to close their places, and those that refuse have a hard time of it. Policemen in uniform are stationed outside the doors with orders not to move until they were sure that the places are closed.

In several cases this plan works like a charm, as the saloon could do no business with a policeman in sight. An old woman in a calico wrapper with her sleeves rolled up walked down Macdougal street last Sunday carrying a covered basket in her hand. She approached the watcher of a saloon near the corner of West Houston street and asked:

"Kin I get me can filled?"

"Madam," said the watcher, "your face is strangely familiar, but dose feet puzzle me. I don't know you, and besides dis is one of our off days."

"Don't know me!" cried the old woman; "why, I have lived in this neighborhood for forty years!"

"I can't help it, my dear lady," said the watcher, "we fills no growlers today."

A CONGRESSMAN'S HELPMEET.

While Her Husband Helps to Run the Nation She Runs the Farm.

Congressman Johnson, of North Dakota, has a wife who is a helpmeet of the proper sort to him without being a canvasser of votes, a lobbyist, a reviser of his speeches, or even one of those women who are described as taking the keenest interest in their husband's careers.

Mrs. Johnson, to be sure, may have the virtues of all these classes, but she has won fame chiefly from the remarkably clever way in which she superintended the work on a farm of 1,000 acres, while her husband was attending the legislative affairs of the nation.

In the spring of 1883, Mr. Johnson invested heavily in hay lands. Before the hay was ready to cut he was called to Washington by an extra session of Congress.

He tried to find a man who would attend to his hay for him during his absence, and, failing, allowed his wife to assume charge of the big hay farm. The harvest came on, and Mrs. Johnson was in the field bright and early in her top buggy, looking after the men and teams and, when one field was cut, selecting another, and then another.

All of the hay on the Johnson farm was mown, and then Mrs. Johnson leased hay tracts in the vicinity of Petersburg, until the total cut amounted to almost 300 tons. Mr. Johnson himself says that he never had a crop looked after in a more business like way than the hay crop of 1893. His only regret is that the promised high prices did not materialize.

There was a larger crop than usual, and prices went down instead of going up, but no money was lost by the operation, and the last of the 300 tons was sold the next spring to a neighboring farmer whose supplies had run out.

The Chicago Idea.

Mrs. Waldo—Don't you think your divorce laws should be changed?

Mrs. Lakeside—I most decidedly do. It's a shame that a woman can't get alimony from more than one husband at a time.—Judge.

Felt Lost.

Mrs. Hicks—I believe I'll go and return a few calls this afternoon.

Hicks—I wish you would; our subscription to the paper has expired, and I feel lost without the neighborhood gossip.

SENATOR'S BRICE'S EARLY DAYS.

Time Was When He Could Make a Star as Easily as $2,000.

It was in Governor Foster's time as Chief Magistrate of Ohio when Senator Brice, a poor, hard up lawyer, managed to get into Foster's debt to the extent of about $2,000. One day Brice came to Foster and told him the law business did not pay, and asked to be appointed to a position where he might earn a living.

"Can't," said Foster. "You're a Democrat."

"But you'll never get your $2,000," said Brice. "You might as well ask me to make a star as to make that $2,000 with my law practice."

"I'll tell you what I'll do," said Foster, "I am all tangled up with Hocking Valley on the New York Stock Exchange, and I want somebody to go there and look after things. I'll send you if you'll go."

Brice jumped at the chance. Foster gave him $600 and a lot of directions, and impressed upon him solemnly the necessity of doing just what he was told. Now, Brice will not do what he is told, and never would. If Brice had been a waiter he would have taken your order and then brought you anything he liked. He would have used his judgment. That's what he did with Foster's Hocking Valley deal, but he made $40,000 profit, whereas if he had done as Foster told him he would have lost all. Foster was delighted, and, like the good old man in the story book, he gave the young hero $20,000. Then Brice went back to Wall street and plunged.

Brice's greatest play was building the Nickel Plate. He put in every dollar he could get, and from any source. Then came a time, too, when, to save himself from utter ruin, if not something worse, he had to sell. He went to Vanderbilt, whose road the Nickel Plate paralleled. Vanderbilt wouldn't buy the Nickel Plate. He said he could afford to wait the first mortgage foreclosure and buy it from a sheriff.

"If you don't buy it, Jay Gould will," said Brice.

"'Oh, no, he won't,' said Vanderbilt.

"Brice then went to Gould. He knew that he didn't want the Nickel Plate, but he had a beautiful scheme to propose. He knew Vanderbilt would buy the road before he would allow Gould to get it. Here came Brice's strategy. He told Gould that if he would sit silent and not contradict, neither affirm nor deny, any newspaper articles to the effect that he was going to buy the Nickel Plate, and after his clamlike silence had continued for a week, if he would then ride slowly over the Nickel Plate in an observation car, Vanderbilt would buy the road, and he would then give Gould $500,000.

"Gould didn't care for the money, but he was a jocose speculator, and it struck him that the whole thing would be a majestic joke on Vanderbilt. The papers said that Gould was going to buy the Nickel Plate. Gould, when questioned, looked wise. At the end of a week he meandered, snaillike, over the Nickel Plate in the rear end of an observation car, and had all the air of a man who was looking at a piece of property.

"Stories were wired about Gould's trip from every water tank and way station along the line, and before Gould had reached Chicago, Vanderbilt, in a fit of hysterics, wired Brice that he would take the Nickel Plate. Vanderbilt took the Nickel Plate and Brice was saved."

THESE FISH CARRIED LANTERNS

Dr. Borstleman's Surprise: Discovery and the Simple Explanation of It.

Dr. Borstleman was at Lake Denmark, N. J., a few days ago studying the fauna and flora of that wild and beautiful section of Morris county. While strolling around the shallow shore of the lake on Sunday evening he discovered a marvelous thing which made his blood tingle with the hope that he was about to add to the ichthyological knowledge of the country.

He saw in the clear water near the shore some bright objects flashing with phosphorescent fire. The doctor knew of phosphorescent fish in salt water, and was aware also that nothing of the kind had ever been noted as inhabiting fresh water. Consequently he believed that he had discovered a new species, and he made haste to get his minnow net and capture one of the lively little creatures. It was no easy matter to do this, but after trying for an hour he succeeded in catching two of the fish in one scoop of the net.

He dissected one of the fish carefully, and then removed the lamp from the room. There was the phosphorescent glow upon the card where he had placed the viscera of the little fish; moreover, they seemed to be imbued with life. Sticking a pin through the center of the glowing sac he brought the light back, and opening the sac disclosed four or five of the large fire-flies which abound at the mountain laks. Two of them were still alive.

The doctor's disappointment was keen, but he could not refrain from laughing at the simplicity of the solution of the matter. The glowing insects had been taken in by the lively little fish as they struggled upon the surface of the water, and their strong incandescence shone through the translucent sides of their captors.

Candid.

Mix—Does your wife ever play jokes on you?

Rix—She only played one and that nearly bankrupted me.

Mix—What was that?

Rix—She married me.

"I guess that young man who called to see you had a rather rough time of it in camp," said Ethel's mother.

"Yes," was the reply. "I'm sure he had. He hasn't had a chance to get shaved for over a week."—Washington Star.

THE PROFESSOR'S DAUGHTER.

BY H. LYNDE.

(Copyright, 1895, by Irving Bacheller.)

Hilgerd found the note upon his table upon his return from the Century Club. Picking it carelessly up, he read as follows:

"My Dear Paul: I have not forgotten my promise. Am just finishing up a case that I think will suit you exactly. I will confess that, in many respects, it is the most singular of any in my experience. You know what this means. Are you free? If so, meet me at Central depot tomorrow morning at 8, sharp. Sincerely,

"WHARTON."

Hilgerd's face wore a satisfied smile as he threw off his coat. "Phil is just in the nick of time, as usual," he said to himself. "I have not heard from him since the affair of the 'Left-handed Nun,' and Mr. Crane was after me today for another sketch. Wonder what's up now." He sat down before the fire and gave way to memories which the familar writing awakened. Wharton was the most remarkable man in all his acquaintance. He had known him for ten years, but was still unable to definitely classify him. His individuality was striking. Over six feet in height, he possessed the strength of a giant. His accomplishments always impressed Hilgerd as phenomenal, and he measured him only by the highest standards.

Chopin he interpreted with the finished touch and delicate sympathy of the artist, and his treatment of the violin showed great power and a rare quality of tone. On the evening of the day that he figured as a mining expert in an important case, he delivered a profound address on the "Physical Basis of Mind," before the graduating class of the Cosmic School of Philosophy, which was afterward widely quoted. In some of the sciences his knowledge was that of a specialist.

An expert mathematician, he was also a practical man of affairs, at one time serving as bank examiner in the State of New York. His intellectual energy was marvelous, and there was no self-consciousness. It all seemed merely a play of unrestrained force. At one time he drifted Westward, and there came vague rumors of episodes in which his peculiar aptitude for accommodating men with wild eyes and huge revolvers figured prominently. In his singular fondness for metaphysics Hilgerd discovered a weakness, for he had no conception of the universal truths which constitute true philosophy. He was a walking cyclopedia of details, lacking the power of higher deduction.

It was not a surprise to his friends when he turned his attention exclusively to the profession of his choice. The explanation was clear. In it he found a field for the exercise of all his wonderful faculties and the employment of his varied, practical knowledge. Here he would bring his bold experiments in chemistry to the solution of a perplexing problem, and at another time his clear insight into the intricate affairs of a defaulting accountant would be called into play.

It was after his remarkable and successful investigation of the Sanford Hypnotic Case that the public first gave him fame. His brilliant work since then in many other cases, notably that of the Anchortown Balloon Mystery, justified this high recognition and confirmed the general opinion that he was the foremost man of the day in his line.

As city editor of a large daily, Hilgerd frequently came in contact with Wharton, and the acquaintance soon developed into a warm friendship. He had made public a few of his most striking successes and, when chance offered, he followed him in his work with absorbed interest. It was just two months ago, he remembered, when Wharton promised him the next unusual case, and he felt glad that the time was at hand.

The next morning found them flying through the crisp September air on the C. M. & R. limited, and between his glances out at the red and brown landscape Hilgerd blew little clouds of smoke up into the lazy interior of the car. Wharton lay back in his seat with half-closed eyes. They were deep, black eyes, covering depths that few presumed to penetrate. His face was thin, with straight nose, the chin showing great firmness and decision. Hilgerd thirsted for information. Commonplace exchanges had been made, but not a hint had his friend dropped relating to the subject uppermost in his mind. He grew restless and twisted in his seat. He never liked to question Wharton, but he could stand it no longer.

"Could you give me a short synopsis of—of your—of this case?" he ventured, hesitatingly. Wharton smiled in his peculiar indefinite way. "Of course I could, Paul, but is it best? Isn't it always the unforeseen, the unexpected, that interests the most? If I anticipate will it not detract from your artistic appreciation? I would prefer to render the explanation after the fact, as in the case of the nun, with your kind consent." He laughed again, and Hilgerd looked ruefully out of the window.

"It's uncomfortable—this feeling in the dark," said the latter, "but it certainly allows the imagination full swing. What a good stage manager you'd make, Phil."

"You are flattering," said Wharton, lighting a fresh cigar and extinguishing the flame in a burst of smoke. "Did you know Jack Newell?" he asked.

"Only by reputation," answered Hilgerd. "Wasn't he one of those brave, trusted?" Wharton nodded.

"The best man in Munn's agency. We have worked together and I know him. I may tell you this much—he has either lost his life or his liberty in this affair, I am not sure which." Hilgerd looked shocked. "Is it so serious, then?" he asked. "It is likely to be," answered the other gravely. Hilgerd thoughtfully thumped the ashes from his cigar.

"Where do we get off?" he finally asked. Again Wharton smiled meaningly. "We don't get off," he said. Hilgerd stared at him incredulously. "Do you mean to say that there is somebody on this——"

"Not yet," said Wharton. Then he rose abruptly and handed Hilgerd a paper. "Paul, I must have some sleep. Try and amuse yourself. Remember, the curtain rises at 7:30," and he laughingly retreated.

It was dark when he came in again. He motioned with his head, and Hilgerd, following, found himself in the heavily built express car. He looked around curiously, but noticed nothing unusual. The messenger was at his desk in the corner, apparently too busy to notice them. His eye fell upon the only other occupant of the car, within whose reach rested a deadly riot gun, and he knew it was the guard. The latter glanced up as they entered, and then resumed his reading, with no change of position.

"They must be carrying a large shipment," said Hilgerd. Wharton nodded. "He sometimes goes along to keep the agent company. Has a reassuring look, hasn't it?"

At this moment a door opened from a small closet which had been partitioned off in one corner, and a short, keen-eyed man stepped suddenly and swiftly out. Hilgerd could not suppress a start. Wharton reached and shook hands with the little man.

"Glad to see you, Jim," he said. "You have followed my suggestions pretty closely. This is Mr. Wade, Paul, the superintendent of this division. You have probably heard of him."

"I believe everything is in good shape, Wharton," said the official, and the two looked over the closet closely.

"Come in here, Paul," cried Wharton. "I want your opinion of my latest invention."

Hilgerd followed him into the little apartment and the door was closed. It was intensely dark and the air was hot and stifling. They breathed with difficulty. Wharton opened a little window in the side of the car, and the fresh air, rushing in, seemed delicious. Hilgerd stepped toward him, reaching out his hand to avoid stumbling. It touched an article that caused him to start back with an exclamation of terror. It was the face of a man, and it was cold and clammy.

"For Heaven's sake," Wharton, strike a light and tell me what you've got shut up in this infernal crematory." Hilgerd heard him laugh softly as he lighted the lamp on the little shelf.

"Don't be frightened, Paul. I will acknowledge it is a little peculiar, but it is all in the play, as you will soon discover." Hilgerd was looking toward the window. There in a chair, bending over his hands crossed upon his chest, sat the man who had so startled him. His face could not be seen, but the attitude indicated great pain.

"What is this man imprisoned for?" asked Hilgerd, with much concern. "Is he sick? It seems to me he needs some fresh air badly." He glanced at his friend. He was leaning against the wall shaking with merriment. Hilgerd looked annoyed, but waited in silence. Finally Wharton said:

"That is Bentley; didn't you recognize him?"

"Bentley; who in the world is he?"

"He's the messenger we saw as we came in."

There was a curtained window in front of the partition. This Hilgerd threw aside and looked out. There was the same man at his desk that he saw on entering. He looked again at the figure in the closet, and now saw a strong resemblance. Wharton eyed him in silent enjoyment.

"Is this one of your practical jokes?" asked Hilgerd; "if so, I——"

"No, Paul; we are very much in earnest. To be more accurate, this is Bentley's double, or ghost. Look here!" He lifted the man up. His hands lay limp in his lap, but his head was set with an unnatural stiffness. The eyes stared straight with a fixed look, the face a ghastly yellow, with an artificial flush on each cheek. Hilgerd, looked hard at the immovable features, and then the light began to dawn.

"It's one on me, Phil," he said. "But may I ask whether this dime museum, wax figure business has anything to do with the case in hand?"

"It has everything to do with it, and it will be clear to you shortly." He looked at his watch. "Not much time to lose," he continued. He blew out the light, fumbled a moment in the dark, and then stepped out with the lifeless double of Bentley dangling in a grotesque fashion from his arms. He laid the figure on the floor beside the table. The big safe stood at the opposite side of the car. From it the messenger took several packages and sacks and placed them with others on the table. The former he took into the closet.

Wharton and the superintendent picked up the wax figure and placed it in the chair lately occupied by its living model, bending it slightly forward in the position for writing. They then placed a pen in the stiff fingers and spread some papers out on the desk. They fastened some wires around its waist, carried them down through staples in the floor and thence to the little room, where they wrapped the ends around a projection. In another part of the car lay a long bundle which they unwrapped, disclosing a figure similar to the first. They placed it in the chair belonging to the guard, put a book in its hands, bent down its head and laid a rusty-looking weapon across its lap. Then they stood back to inspect. The effect was lifelike and the resemblance perfect. There were the messenger and the guard in every particular; it would have deceived anyone.

"It's most time we were whistling for the crossing, isn't it, Wade?" Wharton asked.

Hilgerd felt that something unusual was about to occur; possibly a tragedy, and he could but wonder at the unconcerned, business-like manner of the men. Presently there came to them above the incessant rumble of the train the long, mournful cry of the whistle.

"That's Benton," said Wade.

The four stood in earnest consultation a moment, and then all went into the little compartment except Wharton, who took a candle off the shelf, lighted it and went to the south window of the car, which was next the double track. Here he moved it back and forth until the panes were half smoked. The large lamps on each side of the car still burned brightly, and from the dark space where Hilgerd stood everything was distinctly visible. Wharton stopped a moment for a final look, then joined the others.

"The candle was an afterthought," he said. "It will render our tableaux a little indistinct, and we want every advantage on our side."

He closed the door and the darkness was intense. Hilgerd was wrought up to the highest tension, and he jumped when a hand touched his arm.

"Watch the side of the car next the stove," said his friend's voice. Hilgerd looked through the curtain. Nothing had been changed. There sat the mute figures as still as death. He gazed intently at the part of the car indicated. Nothing met his eye but the plain, painted boards. At them he stared as if fascinated, and until his eyes burned from the strain. He was about to turn away and rest them upon something else when his whole attention was suddenly riveted to a single spot.

About half a foot from the floor and a little to the left of the stove there appeared a white gleam, as though from a brilliant stone. Gradually it grew larger, intillating in the rays of the two lamps. Now it is the size of a silver coin, and shines like burnished steel. His eyes are fixed upon it in helpless awe, and he breathes heavily like one in a spell. What possible relation can that insinuating gleam have to those uncanny figures that seem so oblivious to all, and why should it have caused all these careful, mysterious preparations?

He rubs his eyes and looks again. The spot is gone and the white boards give forth no sign. He glances at the silent dummies and then at the lamps which flicker back at him brightly. What is that bluish haze hovering in the air, now giving the red flames a ghastly color? Suddenly, he is conscious of a sickening, penetrating odor. Without warning he is quickly choked. His brain reels, and he finds himself gasping for breath. Above the buzzing noise in his ears he recognizes a distinct click. Some one had opened the outer window, and the incoming air never seemed so sweet. Now there is a grating, metallic sound, and he knows that Wharton is working the wires. He looks through the curtain and sees the doubles tilt in their chairs. Their limbs move spasmodically; then each tumbles to the floor an inert mass of wax and woolen fabric. Groaning and rolling the train speeds through the night. Hilgerd feels himself drawn gently back and Wharton's shadow passes before him.

To Hilgerd, staring out in the lighted space, the whole thing seems unreal, and of the nature of a play. Buoyed up by strong excitement, he is ready for anything, yet knowing not what is to come. Idly he conjectures up fantastic forms hovering over the prostrate bodies, and fancies he hears them moan. One—two minutes pass in painful suspense, then an unusual noise comes from the platform outside, and the back door is quickly opened with a bang. A heavy step is heard close by the partition, and a new actor appeared on the scene in the shape of a tall, powerfully built man. He stopped right in front of Hilgerd, and looked sharply around. His glances swept the floor, then rested on the open safe. With a few swift strides he was before it. He was heavily bearded, and around his waist hung a leather belt supporting holsters, from the tops of which loomed up threateningly the handles of a pair of deadly Colts. His motions were cat-like, swift and graceful. With soft fingers he transferred the money packages from the safe to a huge pocket in the side of his coat.

Again the nauseous odor came to Hilgerd as a large panel slid down in the south side of the partition. Beside Hilgerd Wharton crouched like a panther ready to spring. The robber had emptied the safe and was casting a last furtive, triumphant glance around. Quickly he stepped towards them. Now he was almost within reach, and another step brought him opposite the open panel. For one fleeting instant Hilgerd saw him turn as in surprise. Swiftly as the lightning's stroke Wharton's arm shot out. The robber's head crashed against the opposite side of the car and down he dropped, a helpless mass of quivering flesh. The door was thrown open and the guard rushed out. Hilgerd started to follow, but was motioned back.

"Not yet, Paul," said Wharton. The man was quickly handcuffed, then half carried, half dragged into the already close air of the closet. "Is he done for, Phil?" asked Wade. "No, but it would be simple justice if he was," answered Wharton, removing the insensible captive's coat and hat. These he donned and stepped around to the back door of the car. Hilgerd heard a peculiar whistle, and the panel and door were again closed. Wharton stopped and took a kneeling position in front of the safe. Bang! went the door again with a suddenness that was startling. Wharton motioned with his arm, keeping his face to the front. A shadow passed the curtain and Hilgerd saw the newcomer closely. He was not so tall as his companion, and moved with a gliding, shuffling step. His shoulders were slightly bent, but their breadth indicated enormous strength. As he stepped into the full glare of the lamps something glistened in his right hand, and Hilgerd could scarcely repress a cry of warning. Wharton worked industriously at something in the safe. The man took another step or two then, as if satisfied there was no occasion for its immediate use, transferred the weapon to the other hand. As if by magic the scene changed, and they saw Wharton gazing into the eyes of the other, as he lay helpless on his back. It was a terrific spring, and the robber was down and his revolver wrenched from his grasp before he could utter a word or make a move. The second lay in sullen silence, the light of hatred in his deep-set, beady-looking eyes. Wade slipped back into the smoker and returned with three determined-looking men.

"There they are Sanders," he said, briefly; "two of the worst desperadoes in this part of the country. You have Mr. Wharton here to thank for the job, which, I must confess, was a neat one."

The sheriff gave some directions to his deputies, occasionally gazing with admiration at Wharton. The latter was packing his own coat and vest into his satchel, still wearing the coat and hat of the robber.

"We will take Mr. Sanders with us, Jim," he said, shortly. "I hope to be able to finish the work by morning. Good night." He picked up a lantern and Hilgerd followed him out onto the platform.

"We will now change cars, Phil," said Wharton. "I know it is not customary to perform this feat while flying through space, yet the sensation must be novel." They were whirling along at a clipping pace, the swinging motion of the car making it difficult to stand erect. The rails of the other track slipped past like silver threads. A board led out from the lower step and down this Wharton crawled fearlessly. He stopped, turned, and his lantern revealed the outlines of an ordinary-looking hand-car moving along with the train.

"I forgot my satchel. Please get it," he shouted. Hilgerd went back into the car, picked it up and threw the strap over his shoulder. It seemed to him like courting death to step from the train onto that flimsy-looking bridge, but he shut his jaws firmly, dropped on all fours and moved slowly out. The slight wooden connection rattled and swung viciously. He could not see, and nothing could he hear above the clanging roar of the noisy cars. The wind cut past him wildly; smoke rushed into his nose, and a burning spark stung him sharply on the cheek. Inch by inch he made his way, then a strong arm swung him safely over. He looked up and saw the sheriff's burly form pawing along so like a great bear that, in spite of the strangeness of it all, he could not repress a smile. Wharton swung the bridge back into its place, and quickly they dropped behind. The express car shot away, then the lights from the coaches danced by, the sleepy occupants all unconscious of the unseen drama of the night. With a final roar the heavy sleepers whizzed out of sight, and the adventurous trio sat speechless in a silence as deep as the tomb.

Hilgerd rubbed his eyes. "Phil," said he, "this tight rope business is dreadfully trying to a man out of training. Is there any more of that ahead of us?"

"It was difficult, and you behaved nobly, Phil," replied Wharton, laughing; "but we have some harder work before us. Let me first speak of this car," he continued. "It is the handiwork of the gifted professor, and will easily run forty miles an hour."

"I beg pardon, but who and what is the professor?" asked Hilgerd.

"He's the devil's own, and the accomplished leader of the worst gang of train robbers in the country. He is well up in chemistry and mechanics, and the scheme we so successfully foiled to-night is his latest and most daring experiment. The band has a rendezvous back here in the black swamp. These two men waited for the train just this side of Benton's, and, running along with it they made fast to the lower brace irons. Boring a hole in the car, they inserted a tube on this metal reservoir here, and a deadly gas, a secret production of the Professor's, instantaneously pervaded the car. Then they moved the bridge back to the step, came in, and you know the rest. They looked through the window to see that their devilish plans worked successfully, hence the figures. It was the only way to outwit them and to get them into the car, and that was what we wished to accomplish. Our possession of this car is the key to the situation, and the only thing that will enable us to capture the Professor himself."

"Why, didn't we——" began Hilgerd.

"No, indeed!" exclaimed Wharton; "You don't catch the old gentleman risking his precious hide in the execution of his little scheme. You can wager he is safe at home, and that is where we will look for him." They moved rapidly for some time in silence. The car stopped at the first trestle over the river, and Wharton jumped out and walked toward the deep shadows at the edge of the thick timber. In a few minutes they saw him coming back.

"I have telegraphed the Professor over his private line to send all his men to Number One on important business" he said, "and I sincerely hope we shall find him alone." They removed the car from the track, climbed into a boat Wharton had concealed, and were soon threading the maze-like channels of the great swamp. Sanders rowed while Wharton steered.

"Paul," he said, presently, "you have never heard of the Professor's daughter?" Hilgerd shook his head slowly.

"Of course not," said the other, thoughtfully, "and if you knew her you would not believe that such a charming, refined person could possibly be so related. She was educated in a notable convent, and is extremely intelligent. In some diabolic manner he lured her away, and now keeps her imprisoned in the center of this beastly swamp, with no companions but these brutal cut-throats. Of course she is dying by inches, and it's a burning shame. It was here where Newell came in discharge of his duties, and I am almost convinced that he was caught attempting to rescue her and was either killed outright or is suffering a confinement worse than death. I have utterly failed to discover the slightest trace of either of them, but I am determined not to give up until I learn something definite." They conversed in low tones until the boat, passing through a narrow channel, crunched upon a sandy shore. They climbed noiselessly out. Some distance through the thick undergrowth, Hilgerd caught the first glimmer of a light. Towards this Wharton slipped off silently, while the others remained, sitting on the side of the boat. The minutes passed with painful slowness, and Hilgerd was becoming restless, when the sharp crack of a breaking twig caused their blood to surge. Wharton's voice, speaking softly through the gloom, reassured them. His manner indicated an excitement that with him was unusual. He came quite close before speaking.

"Boys, the game is in our hands. He's in the cabin and alone. Make no noise, and keep close to me." In single file they crept stealthily toward the light, which soon grew more distinct, and Hilgerd saw, through a little opening, the window from which the rays came. They moved forward cautiously. The door was partly open, and through it could be seen the figure of a man seated at a table. His head rested upon his hands, and before him lay an open book.

"Hatching up some new species of devilitry, I suppose," Hilgerd whispered. A dozen steps and the threshold was reached. With a sweep of his arm Wharton flung back the door and stepped inside. The man turned with a startled face toward them, and sprung swiftly to his feet, his hand instinctively seeking his side.

"Be careful, Professor. Just raise your hands above your head, please." Wharton's voice was calm and soft, but in it was the menace of the adder. The Professor hesitated, glancing from Wharton's steady eye to the frowning muzzle of the big 45-Colt, then back again. There was no mistaking the signs; a chance was out of the question, and up went his hands.

"Thank you," said Wharton, sweetly. "Paul will kindly relieve the gentleman of those ugly-looking guns, and Mr. Sanders will attend to the ornaments." Hilgerd took a good look at the man as he sat in a chair against the wall. He had a smooth face, with high forehead and piercing blue eyes, and there was much in his appearance to suggest the criminal. He had not fully recovered from his surprise, and was looking wonderingly, though defiantly, at the others.

The cabin had a board floor, and there was a cheerful wood fire burning upon the hearth. A rough table, four chairs, some bunks in a corner, a looking-glass, and some shelves completed the furnishings. Without losing any time Wharton stepped to the back part of the room, felt carefully over the logs, and threw back a small panel, disclosing an opening from which he drew forth a rusty tin box.

"Do you remember the Coopertown bank robbery?" he asked Hilgerd, who was standing near. Hilgerd nodded. "Well," continued Wharton, "here is the result of that night's work." The Professor moved uneasily in his chair, eyeing them murderously beneath his drooping lids. Wharton then opened the door of a little closet, and in it they saw a woman's hat, cloak, and some dresses. He glanced significantly at Hilgerd, and examined them closely.

"It is as I feared," he said, whispering. "They have not been worn for some time." Then he pointed to some dark red stains on the garment, shaking his head slowly.

Hilgerd had taken a cigar from his case, and was approaching Sanders to borrow a match when the latter uttered a startled grunt and half rose to his feet, staring in dumb surprise over his shoulder. Hilgerd turned swiftly. The door was still standing open as they had left it, and right in the center, framed in the deep black of the outer night, stood the burly form of a man. Over his shoulder the light fell upon the delicate face of a woman, whose large blue eyes opened wide in astonishment.

In the few seconds that passed it was impressed upon Hilgerd that the man was roughly dressed, and that his head was covered with a black felt hat. But it was the evil face that stamped its image most clearly. Astonishment was depicted in every feature. Beneath unkempt hair glared loweringly a pair of treacherous eyes. For a brief second he stood like a statue. Then Hilgerd caught the gleam of a light on a long blue barrel as his arm swung swiftly upwards. There was a deafening crash—another, and yet another, almost blending in a continuous roar. The smoke hung thickly, but through it we saw Wharton's lithe shape bounding towards the door, and two more reports rung out in quick succession.

Sanders was standing up uninjured, the same bewildered look upon his face. Clearly, the pace was too swift for his sluggish nature. It was all over in a moment, and then Wharton came in, stifling an exclamation of disgust.

"Reddy Simms," he exclaimed, "a bad man, but a worse shot. The gang probably forgot something and he came back for it, hence the little surprise. I need not ask if you were hurt, for there is one bullet in that log and the other, with which I had a passing acquaintance, you will find about three feet to the right, just grazing that nail."

"But the other shot, Phil," Hilgerd cried. "Surely I heard three. And what is that bright red streak doing on your hand?"

"The second was mine," answered Wharton, briefly. "It's a pity it went wild. He is badly winged at any rate, for he dropped his gun just outside the door, and it bears evidence of a disabled owner. I heard him leap on his horse, but could see nothing. Was that your daughter, Professor?" turning suddenly upon him.

"It was, and she'll fix you for this, too," came the answer, with a positive nod and a glance of deep cunning. Wharton looked at Hilgerd and they stepped out of the door.

"Paul," he said, "this is beyond me, and I cannot understand it. He is either lying or I have been greatly deceived. I am entirely at sea about Newell. Come, we must secure the boat, as it is our only way out of this rat hole, and the gang will be here now in short order."

As they rushed down to the landing, the sound of splashing oars struck dismay to their hearts. Dashing through the thick brushes they arrived just in time to see their boat moving rapidly away. A woman's form was swaying with the oars with [illegible] ingly back across the space.

A flash, a sharp report, and Hilgerd felt the blood trickling down his arm which the bullet grazed.

"We are in for it now, Paul," cried Wharton. "There is only one way out of this trap by land, and that is along the trail those devils took; come!" He darted swiftly toward the cabin and Hilgerd followed, stumbling blindly along the uneven path.

Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared, and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. Marlow. M. D., Tamaroa, Ill. Chamberlain's is the best of all. Vincent S. Barkl, of Danbury, Iowa, has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy whenever in need of a medicine for coughs and colds, for the past five years and says: "It always helps me out. If anyone asks me what kind of cough medicine I use, I reply, Chamberlain's, that is the best of all. 25 and 50c. bottles for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy. Park and North Avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freemyer House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for any kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

It May Do as Much For You.

Mr. Fred Miller of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a Severe Kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called Kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure all Kidney and Liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c for large bottle, at L. W. INCREASE OF VALUATIONS.

BOARD OF ASSESSORS MEET TO FIX STATE AND SCHOOL TAXES.

Plainfield's Total Increase Almost as Large as Elizabeth—Benefits of County Roads Evident.

The County Board of Assessors met at Elizabeth yesterday morning to make up the valuation and to fix the State and school tax, says the Journal. The meeting was held in the court room and all the wards and townships were represented.

William Eckerson of the Ninth ward of Elizabeth was chosen chairman, and John J. McGrath of the Comptroller's office, was elected secretary. J. A. Hubbard, the Plainfield assessor, who has attended the meetings of the board for many years, was absent owing to illness, and that city was represented by his son.

Among others who were present were County Collector Wood, County Attorney Coddington, Director Hubbard and Comptroller Carlton. The committee who examined the books were John M. C. Marsh of Westfield, John McGrath of Elizabeth, and J. B. Evarts of Rahway.

The valuations reported show considerable increase over last year. Elizabeth reported an increase of $254,000. Large increases were reported from Plainfield, Westfield, Summit and other sections of the county. The Westfield increased valuation is nearly equal to Elizabeth's, a total of $225,000.

These increases are attributed to the county road system. Plainfield's total increase is almost as large as Elizabeth. The largest increase of valuation is reported by Major Hicks, the new assessor in Summit. He advances Summit valuations over $400,000.

The total increase in the county is about one and a quarter million. This will make the county tax, it is estimated, nearly one per cent. lower than last year. There is $6,000 more school tax to levy, and only about $3,000 more county tax. The assessors also reported the census enumerations. The total population of the county is 85,831, an increase over the census of 1890 of 13,364.

The population in each of the townships and cities was reported as follows:

Clark, 384; Cranford, 2,145; Elizabeth, 43,765; Fanwood, 1,600; Linden, 1,061; New Providence, 934; Plainfield, 13,629; Rahway, 7,948; Roselle, 1,367; Springfield, 930; Summit, 4,819; Union, 3,412; Westfield, 3,713.

The assessors reported the real estate and personal valuations, liabilities and number of polls from the wards and townships as follows:

Clark—Real estate, $229,800; personal, $25,100; no liabilities; total, $254,900; polls, 114.

Cranford—Real estate, $781,650; personal, $74,550; liabilities, $13,000; total, $843,000; polls, 424.

Elizabeth—First ward—Real estate, $1,307,300; personal, $331,900; liabilities, $25,100; total, $1,614,300; polls, 1,132.

Second ward—Real estate, $724,900; personal, $86,100; liabilities, $50,200; total, $780,800; polls, 696.

Third ward—Real estate, $794,350; personal, $33,800; liabilities, $24,950; total, $803,700; polls, 882.

Fourth ward—Real estate, $855,500; personal, $81,800; liabilities, $28,000; total, $909,300; polls, 663.

Fifth ward—Real estate, $657,000; personal, $21,600; liabilities, $18,800; total, $669,800; polls, 800.

Sixth ward—Real estate, $1,255,200; personal, $146,000; liabilities, $28,800; total, $1,372,800; polls, 562.

Seventh ward—Real estate, $669,300; personal, $25,050; liabilities, $23,650; total, $671,200; polls, 694.

AUCTION OF A RAILROAD.

A Section of the Rockaway Valley Railroad Brings $30,000.

A section of the Rockaway Valley Railroad was sold at auction yesterday for $30,000 to John F. and James R. Pidcock. The sale was by order of the United States Circuit Court to satisfy a judgment on a mortgage of $200,000 held by the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, of New York. The sale was poorly attended. J. Nelson Pidcock, the father of the buyers, first projected the road. It is thought the sale will freeze out the stockholders. The section sold runs from Whitehouse to Peapack.

Rumpus Among Educators.

The Board of Education committee of Newark having charge of the purchase of supplies is not inclined to follow the instructions of the City Counsel in relation to the purchase of coal. The Counsel said that every purchase to cost more than $500 must be advertised and bids received therefore, and the contract given to the lowest bidder. Heretofore the committeee has distributed the orders for coal for the schools among twenty or twenty-five dealers.

A Winning Combination.

The best lock can be unfastened if the combination is understood, and the combination that unlocks the doors of Plainfield and sends its multitudes to the seashore is the excursion of the Congregational, First Presbyterian and Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-schools, that leaves Plainfield for Asbury Park, on next Thursday morning. The train starts from the North avenue station at eight. Don't miss this chance of going to see old Ocean.

Death of Mrs. Smalley.

Mrs. Maria D. Smalley, of 33 Manning avenue, wife of David D. Smalley, died this morning at ten minutes after three of cancer of the stomach. Mrs. Smalley was the daughter of the late David French. She leaves three daughters and one son to mourn her loss. The attending physician, Dr. Carman, had in consultation Dr. Hedges. She was aged seventy-one years. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at two o'clock from the house.

Fish Galore.

Marshals Lines and Doud, went fishing in the Passaic river yesterday. On their return the wagon broke down with the weight of the fish, and they used Charles Sebring's telephone wire to Bound Brook, asking the latter to send word to Thomas Doud, the contractor, to come up with his truck. They succeeded in reaching home with the fish and for the next few days there will be a surplus of meat in the various shops.

Not the New York Way.

People driving along the Union County road complained that men in all stages of intoxication were to be seen along the road in the vicinity of Garwood, and that they shouted the most insulting language at people passing by, without regard to the presence of ladies. It was evident that beer was being openly sold at some of the road houses.

Plainfield Performers.

Thomas Schafer left yesterday for New York where he has a two weeks engagement with Bentley's old-fashioned one-ring circus at Ninety-ninth street. After that he will go to Asbury Park for the remainder of the season. Robert Whitaker, of this city, is doing his bareback riding act with the circus.

Operation for Appendicitis.

Elsie Smith, of Westervelt avenue, who has been very ill with appendicitis, was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday where an operation was performed. It was very successful and the patient is improving nicely.

Installation Postponed.

The officers-elect in the Patriotic Order Sons of America were not installed last night as the installing officer was unable to be present. The ceremonies will probably take place Monday evening, August 5th.

A Great Place to Go.

The second annual excursion of the International Machinists, of this city, will be run to Rockaway Beach on Saturday, August 24th.

Anniversary Exercises.

Minerva Temple, Rathbone Sisters, will hold their anniversary exercises next Tuesday evening.

ANOTHER SEWER CONTRACT.

JOHN SIDDALL WILL PUT IN THE HOUSE CONNECTIONS.

Adjourned Meeting of Common Council—Petition For Enforcement of Sunday Ordinances—Minor Matters.

All the members of the City Council were present except Councilmen Erickson, Fisk and Bird at the adjourned meeting last evening.

After the minutes were read and approved Clerk MacMurray read a letter from Mrs. DeForest, of West Second street, stating that the memorial drinking fountain she desired to erect on New near Second streets, was 150 feet from the sewer line. The matter was referred to the street committee.

William Stillman, in a communication, asked that Council introduce an ordinance compelling all theatrical companies showing in Music Hall to pay the license fee instead of the owner of the hall. It was referred to the license committee.

A petition was read, signed by Barbers Decker, Kreitling, Maynard, Randolph, Laine, Fiering, Bamberger and others, asking that the Sunday closing law be enforced. It was referred to the laws and ordinances committee.

Clerk E. L. Hand, of Fanwood Township, communicated with the Council and stated that the township had adopted the ordinance in regard to placing four-inch tires on wagons carrying 1,500 pounds or over, and asked Council to assist them in its enforcement as far as possible.

Charles Herman applied for a peddler's license, and on Councilman Moore's motion it was granted.

Mr. Frost presented a resolution that John Siddall, of Trenton, be given the contract for making the house connections with the main sewer pipes, and that ten days be given him to file a bond and sureties for the faithful performance of the work. On Mr. Ginna's motion it was adopted.

Mr. Frost moved that as soon as the contract was signed, the checks held belonging to the other bidders be returned.

Council then adjourned.

A New Church Organized.

Another denomination has established a church in Plainfield in the formation of the Swedish Lutherian church. Last evening eighteen of that denomination met in the German Lutherian church, on Grove street, and under the leadership of Rev. E. F. Pihlblad, of Paterson, formed a congregation.

Meetings will be held every Monday evening in the future at the same place, and next Monday night the church will be regularly organized. As soon as the church is in working order, steps will be taken to form a ladies society.

Lost Their Drilling Ground.

The North Plainfield Cadets, who turned out so well at the Fourth of July parade, will drill no longer in the public school yard or basement as they have hitherto. A number of the neighbors complained that they made too much noise and so the school trustees took away the desired permission. The drill is now held in the streets or in vacant lots.

The Greased Pig Contest After All.

The Crescent Wheelmen have decided to have the athletic meet, which was to be held on July Fourth, after all. The events will be the same as before except that the tug-of-war contest will be opened to the different shops in and about Plainfield. The date decided upon for the games is Saturday, August 3.

Are You Looking for Pleasure.

People who are looking out for an afternoon and evening of pleasure and fun should not forget that tomorrow the street railway employes have their annual picnic in Vail's grove at the end of the trolley line.

Protected the Plants.

During Saturday's hail storm a resident of Franklin place stood out in the storm and held an umbrella over the vase on the front lawn to protect the plants in it from the hail.

Who Are They?

It is reported on good authority that every clear afternoon a number of young women in the West End meet at different places and play base ball.

LAST TOUCHING TRIBUTE.

OBSEQUIES HELD OVER THE REMAINS OF THE LATE DR. FIELD.

Dr. Rodman Preaches the Funeral Sermon and Speaks Words of Testimony for a Life of Devotion and Sacrifice.

A more valuable testimonial could not have been shown any man than the one given the late Dr. C. M. Field yesterday afternoon at the funeral services held at the home of his uncle, Isaac N. Field, 244 East Ninth street, when a large assemblage of people, high and low, rich and poor, in this world's goods, gathered to look for the last time on the face of one who had been their friend.

Dr. Rodman, pastor of Grace P. E. church, officiated and gave rich testimony in memory of the departed. In part he said as follows:

The value in surgery of him who has passed away will never be known. His worth as a physician was incalculable. He was not only devoted to his profession, but to humanity. The poorest person received as much as the richest, his only thought and ambition being to alleviate pain. He reminded me a great deal of philanthropist Howard, who when asked if he ever gave any attention to religious subjects, replied: "Well, really, I am so busy, I cannot say that I have," and yet his whole life was filled with good deeds, and his answer was a veritable contradiction.

And so with our friend just gone. I know if he was living his desire would be that nothing be said, but I cannot permit this opportunity to pass without telling something of my friend. To poor suffering humanity he gave his life as a sacrifice. Hard study and work, no doubt, hastened his life on to the close, and it made no difference what the call was he would always respond, and cheerfully render the aid and assistance that it was in his power to give.

When those present for the last time looked on the face of their friend it was indeed touching.

There was a profusion of choice flowers, cut roses, wreaths, broken columns, and among the many was a beautiful wreath from Chauncey Field, Runyon, given in loving memory to the one who had saved his life.

Many present were heard to remark that "it was Dr. Field who saved my life."

The bearers of the casket were: T. S. Armstrong, Francis Wood, Major Miller, Col. Sterling, William Brown, and Herbert B. Brooks.

Interment was in the family plot in the Bound Brook cemetery, where a large number of people were gathered to witness the burial.

Dr. Rodman conducted a short service at the grave.

Sudden Death of a Chinaman.

Mar Foo Chong, the only Chinese laundryman in Roselle, and the second one to die in Union County, dropped dead of heart disease Sunday, at Roselle. He war thirty-four years old, and is said to have been related to a prominent family in China, and had two sisters living there and a brother in British Columbia. Undertaker Ogden, of Elizabeth, says deceased was the finest specimen of perfect physical development he ever handled. The body was shipped to the head of the Chinese colony in New York, who will take charge of the funeral.

Wind, Hail, and Mud.

"Teddy" Overton, Fred Overton, "Pete" Waring, "Fat" Peck, and a number of their friends went to Feltville, on their wheels Saturday afternoon, to take a swim in the mill pond there. The hail storm came up and the party started for home. The heavy wind and the beating of the hail almost upset some of the riders and when they at last reached Plainfield, they could not be recognized so covered were they with mud.

On to Rockaway Beach.

A lovely day's outing is a proper description of the trip that those who go on the excursion to Rockaway Beach tomorrow will enjoy. The train will leave the North avenue station at 9:32 a. m., arriving at Jersey City at 10:30. All will then pile on to the mrgnificent steamer, Gen'l Slocum and enjoy a two hours ocean sail to the Beach. There are a multitude of attractions at the Beach and the four hours spent there will be one of great fun.

For a Dry Sunday in Rahway.

E. C. Chapin, of the Law Enforcement League of Rahway, yesterday swore out a complaint against eleven saloon-keepers on charges of violating the Sunday Liquor law. That the Enforcement League had again started business was a surprise to the saloon keepers.

ENDED WITH BROKEN LIMBS.

RETURNING FROM A DAY'S PLEASURE TWO PERSONS BADLY HURT.

Augustus M. Frazee and Miss Conrady Thrown Down an Embankment By a Frightened Horse.

A sad ending to a pleasure trip occurred yesterday afternoon about half past three at Port Richmond, when Miss Conrady, of Blue Point, N. Y., and Augustus M. Frazee, of this city, sustained severe injuries.

Miss Conrady is visiting friends in this city, and she and Mr. Frazee left town yesterday morning with a horse and buggy, from Hoff's livery, for Boynton Beach. They arrived safely, and enjoyed themselves at the beach.

The accident happened while they were returning. They were driving through Port Richmond, and nearing a crossing the horse was frightened at a passing train. The animal did not run but the wagon upset, throwing its occupants down an embankment.

Miss Conrady went first and probably would have escaped had not Mr. Frazee been thrown with much force against her.

As it happened her left arm was fractured at the elbow and Mr. Frazee's left leg was fractured below the knee.

They were picked up by a man named Campbell, living nearby, and taken to a house. Dr. Harned, of Woodbridge, was sent for and took excellent care of the two patients. The fractures were bandaged and in a little while they were able to stand the ride to Plainfield. Mr. Campbell, assisted by a friend, brought them home in a large spring wagon, arriving here about nine o'clock.

Miss Conrady was able to walk, but it was found necessary to use a couch in transferring Mr. Frazee from the wagon to the house.

Doctors Jenkins and Hallock were called and set the fractured leg. It was found unnecessary to treat Miss Courody on her arrival here as her injuries had been taken care of at the scene of the accident.

It was thought best by the physician to remove Mr. Frazee to the hospital, which was done this afternoon, as his injuries require the attention of a trained nurse. It was found today that the fracture of Miss Conrady's arm was much swollen, and Dr. Hallock gave it proper treatment.

It was the intention of the Plainfield Cornet Band to serenade the couple on their return, and a sumptuous repast had been ordered for the boys.

Trolley Road Troubles.

Work on the trolley road from New Brunswick to Milltown was continued all Saturday night and Sunday. When the North Brunswick Commissioners granted the trolley company the right of way on Saturday afternoon, the 200 men who were at work in the borough of Milltown were transferred to Bending's corner and the road was continued towards Milltown. The traction company has been hastening the work because it was feared that Samuel Gordon, a wealthy property owner, would get an injunction against it. The company will not be able to enter New Brunsick until the writ of certiorari which has been granted against it is vacated. Horse cars will be run on the road until the power-house is finished.

The Bank Removal.

It is expected that the First National Bank will remove to the old postoffice building today or tomorrow. Everything is about ready for them to take possession.

Two large safes from the Remington & Sherman Company will be used during the reconstruction of the building.

The work of reconstructing the new building was commenced today by Contractor J. P. Emmons.

In a New Location.

Mr. L. Adams, the milliner, is now thoroughly set to rights in her new store on East Front street, next to the City bank, and hopes to receive the patronage of her friends and the public generally. She is selling off her remaining stock of millinery at less than cost, in order to place on sale a full line of fall goods.

A Painful Fracture.

John Motley, of North Plainfield, who received a fracture of the left ankle yesterday at the Walter Scott Printing Machine Works, by the base of a web press falling on his leg, is today doing as well as can be expected, though his leg is very painful.

To Make Paving Blocks of Clay.

A new industry will shortly be started in Middlesex county, the buildings and plant for which are almost completed. The company will manufacture paving blocks from clay which abounds in this vicinity.

WHOLESALE MURDERER

Holmes Probably Guilty of Many Crimes.

The Finding of the Pietzel Girls' Bodies May Lead to Other Murders Committed by Him—Two Chicago Girls' Mysterious Absence—Believed Pietzel Was Killed.

Philadelphia, July 16.—With the finding of the bodies of Alice and Nellie Peitzel, in Toronto, a chapter in the history of one of the most sensational criminal cases in the annals of this country is closed, and the net of the law is being drawn more closely about one of the boldest scoundrels that has ever been arraigned at the bar of justice.

The Guilty Man.

Herman Mudgett, alias, H. H. Holmes, is lying in the county prison here awaiting sentence to the confessed charge of conspiracy in defrauding the Fidelity Mutual Life association, of Philadelphia, out of $10,000 by palming off upon it a bogus body as that of Benjamin F. Pietzel, a policy-holder of the company.

Pietzel's Life Insured.

In July, 1894, the Fidelity association issued a policy for $10,000 upon the life of Benjamin F. Pietzel. Shortly after this time a man giving the name of B. S. Perry rented a house at 1219 Callowhill street, this city. In September of the same year a fire, supposed to have been caused by an explosion, occurred at the house, and the charred body of Perry was found.

The Body Identified.

A short time after, a St. Louis lawyer appeared with Alice, a 13-year-old daughter of Pietzel, and claimed the money, the girl positively identifying the remains as that of her father.

Mrs. Pietzel's Part in the Plot.

The money was paid to the lawyer and the party returned to St. Louis. Mrs. Pietzel was in St. Louis at this time, and she was given $500, having previously agreed to assist in the plot, having been led to believe that a corpse from New York had been secured to be palmed off as that of her husband.

Arrests Made.

The insurance company became suspicious, and setting detectives upon Holmes track, built up a case against him, and in November of last year Holmes was arrested in Boston. A few days after the arrest of Holmes Mrs. Pietzel was arrested in the same city and Howe, the lawyer, was taken into custody in St. Louis. After Holmes was brought to this city he told so many conflicting stories that he speedily showed himself to be a liar of the greatest magnitude.

Took Three of the Children.

At the time that Holmes had given the money to Mrs. Pietzel in St. Louis he offered to relieve her of the burden of three of her five children. The oldest and the youngest child remained with Mrs. Pietzel and Holmes took the other three, Alice, Nellie and Howard.

Probably a Wholesale Murderer.

After parting with her children, Mrs. Pietzel has never been able to obtain from Holmes any definite knowledge of their whereabouts. Holmes, however, assertated after his arrest that the children were alive, as was also Pietzel. Now, however, that the bodies of the Pietzel children have been found, two more crimes may be fastened upon him.

Williams Girls Missing.

He admits to having lived in Chicago with a young girl named Minnie Williams, and her sister. Holmes says the girls quarrelled and that Minnie killed her sister, and that to shield Minnie from the law he threw the dead girl's body in the lake. That Holmes' connection with the Williams sisters was not an entire fabrication is known positively; and, as both girls have vanished from view it is possible that the scoundrel murdered them.

May Have Murdered Pietzel.

As nothing has ever been heard of Pietzel since he came to this city in company with Holmes, it is probable that the corpse found in the house on Callowhill street was his, and that Holmes killed him.

MAY SOON BE NEIGHBORS.

The President and Family To Spend a Month Near Gen. Harrison.

Old Forge, N. Y., July 16.—President Cleveland and his rival in two presidential campaigns, Benjamin Harrison, will be on the Fulton chain of lakes for at least a month this summer. Capt. Sweet, of the steamer Stowell, has received a letter stating that the president and Mrs. Cleveland, together with thier children, would arrive here between July 15 and Aug. 4.

May Occupy Nichols' Cottage.

Dr. Nichols, of St. Louis, has a cottage in First lake, directly opposite Dodds' camp, where Gen. Harrison is, and, as he will not be here until Aug. 1, it is believed the president will occupy it. Preparations for his stay are now being made. The cottage is one of the best appointed on the lakes, and every convenience the president may wish for will be made.

Expect Them To Hunt Deer.

The Adirondack League club expects General Harrison and the president to hunt deer in their park. It became known yesterday that during General Harrison's stay here there is a likelihood of some big political talks being indulged in by some of the leading lights in the republican party.

Averse To Talking Politics.

Gen. Harrison is averse to talking on politics now, but when the leaders in his party in this state come here, which they are expected to do, he may change his mind. Mrs. McKee telegraphed her father to-day from Saratoga that she will not be able to start for this place on Wednesday. No date has yet been fixed for her arrival.

Money Coined for Equador.

Washington, July 16.—During the last fiscal year the United States mint coined for the government of Equador, South America, 4,500,000 twenty cent pieces.

Woman Factory Inspector.

Albany, July 16.—State Factory Inspector Connolly has appointed Kate L. Kane, of Rochester, as a deputy factory inspector.

TO BE RETIRED.

Chief Engineer Main, U. S. N., Ordered To Appear for Examination.

Washington, July 16.—Chief Engineer Hershell Main, U. S. N., has been ordered before the retiring board for examination. Much regret is expressed among his brother officers that a man of so much ability, who is just in the prime of life, should be relegated so early to the inactive list.

Saved the Saginaw's Crew.

Mr. Main's principal achievement in the navy occurred while he was on the Saginaw when that vessel was wrecked on Midway island. All the navigating instruments were lost and there appeared to be no way of sending a boat to Honolulu, the nearest available port, with any surety that she would reach there, when Mr. Main conceived the ingenius idea of constructing a sextant out of the face of a steam gauge and the top of a shaving box, which was successfully carried out, with the result that the trip to Honolulu was made successfully and the officers and men were saved.

In the Samoan Hurricane.

Mr. Main was also on the Trenton when she was lost in the Samoan hurricane. His last sea duty was as chief engineer of the dynamite cruiser Vesuvius, and he has recently been employed in inspecting the three new gunboats building at Newport News, Va. Chief Engineeer Edward A. Magee has been examined by a board of survey at the New York navy yard and will be ordered before a retiring board.

FOR MRS. MAYBRICK'S RELEASE

Efforts May Be Renewed Under the New British Ministry.

Washington, July 16.—Nothing has been received at the state department, officially or otherwise to indicate the reported resumption of the efforts made in this country to secure pardon for Mrs. Maybrick, now serving sentence for the poisoning of her husband, in whose case "Gail Hamilton" took so strong an interest.

May Renew the Efforts.

It is suggested, however, the recent change in the British ministry may cause Mrs. Maybrick's friends in America to renew their efforts with the home secretary, who has charge of such cases, with better prospects of sucess. The last communication on the subject was received at the state department about a year ago.

One Discouraging Feature.

A discouraging feature of the situation is that both a tory and a liberal ministry have refused to recommend pardon for Mrs. Maybrick, during the terms of office as home secretary of Messrs. Matthews and Asquith.

BIG NAIL COMBINATION.

Prices Have Gone Up and Will Be Boosted Still Higher.

New York, July 16.—Inquiry in the nail trade in this city to-day showed that there had been an advance in the price of nails in the par sixty days of nearly 100 per cent. This is said to be due to a strong agreement, which includes all the manufacturers in the country. It was also learned that there is a strong probability that the prices will go from 30 to 50 cents a hundred pounds on the average higher than they are at the present moment.

$5,000 TO BE CABLED.

New York Irishmen Aid the Irish Parliamentary Election Fund.

New York, July 16.—At a meeting of the trustees of the Irish national federation of America held yesterday afternoon, the treasurer, John D. Crimmins, was instructed to cable at once $5,000 in aid of the election fund of the Irish parliamentary party.

Failure of the Hay Crop.

Binghamton, N. Y., July 16.—The failure of the hay crop is the leading topic among agriculturists in this vicinity. All through this section of the state the fields are withered by the drought and hot weather, while for three weeks they have been flooded with grasshoppers, which are doing as much damage as the drought.

Sullivan Successful at Halifax.

Halifax, July 16.—John L. Sullivan's new show last evening drew a crowd of about 6,000. John L. received a grand ovation when he made his appearance on the stage and announced that he would challenge the winner of the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight.

Spent All Day Fishing.

Buzzards Bay, Mass., July 16.—The president spent all the day down the bay fishing. Dr. Bryant accompanied him, and they returned soon after 6 o'clock. The Oneida returned to New York last night.

Knocked Out in Two Rounds.

Boston, July 16.—Jim Barry, of Chicago, knocked out Dave Ross in two rounds last night.

DEED OF ASSASSINS

Stambuloff Shot and Stabbed in a Street in Sofia.

The ex-Premier Believed To Be Mortally Wounded — Both His Hands Had To Be Amputated—M. Petkoff, His Companion, Also Injured—One Assassin Caught.

Sofia, July 16.—While ex-Prime Minister Stambuloff, accompanied by M. Petkoff, was walking home last evening from the Union club, he was attacked by four unknown men. Two of them shot with revolvers, while the other two stabbed him.

Mortally Wounded.

M. Stambuloff fell to the ground groaning. He was removed to his residence, and physicians were summoned. After an examination of the wounds the doctors announced that there was little hope of M. Stambuloff's recovery.

Great Excitement Caused.

The assassins escaped, and there is no clue to their identity. The news of the assassination has caused the greatest excitement throughout the city, and the authorities have taken the most extreme precautions against trouble.

Both Hands Amputated.

M. Stambuloff was wounded in more than twenty places. He raised his hands to guard his head, and his wrists were nearly severed. Both hands had to be amputated.

One of the Assassins Caught.

M. Petkoff was slightly wounded. The first report that all four of the assassins escaped were erroneous. One of them was arrested.

THE CHILIAN CURRENCY.

Satisfactory Conditions Under the Gold Standard.

Washington, July 16.—J. M. Serrano of Valparaiso, Chili, manager of the International railroad connecting Chili and Bolivia, is in Washington. Concerning Chilian affairs Mr. Serrano said: "The greatest interest in Chili just now is in the currency conversion law, resulting in a gold basis, which went into operation on June 1. It has proved very satisfactory in operation and gives promise of changing the rate of exchange so that the balance of trade will turn towards Chili. Both gold and silver are coined, and the old paper money continues to be used by many who prefer it on account of conveniency, but the government stands ready to redeem the paper in gold, so that there is an actual backing for all our money."

MORE CUBAN VICTORIES.

Government Troops Compelled To Retire Before Their Attacks.

Havana, July 16.—A dispatch from Santa Clara says: "Gen. Luque reports that a detachment of insurgents under command of Zayas, Legon and Toledo made an attack upon Major Arminaus's column on the estate of Vista Hermosa in the Sancti Spiritus district, and after an engagement lasting an hour and a half the government troops were compelled to retire.

Government Lost Two Killed.

The government lost two killed and two wounded. The loss of the insurgents is not known, but it is reported that among their wounded was Legon, the leader of one of the bands.

Burned a Village.

Another insurgent detachment is reported to have attacked government troops at Provincia, dispersing them and setting fire to the village, which was destroyed. The troops were compelled to take refuge in the woods, where the insurgents pursued them.

STATE BALL AT BUCKINGHAM.

Ambassador and Mrs. Bayard and Officers of the Columbia Present.

London, July 16.—A state ball was given last night at Buckingham palace. Among those present were the Prince and Princess of Wales, and other members of the royal family, several foreign royalties, Ambassador and Mrs. Bayard, Capt. Sumner, Lieut. Lowry, Lieutenant of Marines Moses, Surgeon Farwell and Passed Assistant Engineer Bevington, of the American cruiser Columbia; Admiral Accinni, and several other officers of the Italian squadron now in English waters. Invitations had been sent to several officers of the American warship New York, but her sailing prevented them from attending.

SHOT HIS SISTER.

An Eight-Year-Old Boy's "Play" May Cost a Life.

Egg Harbor City, N. J., July 16.—Pauline Ade, 14 years old, was accidentally shot in the back by her 8-year-old brother yesterday. The boy in play pointed a pistol at her and snapped the trigger. The weapon exploded and the bullet imbedded itself between the girl's shoulder blades, and it is feared has penetrated the lungs. If such is the case it will make the wound a grave one. The boy, after learning that his sister was probably fatally shot, left home and cannot be found.

Requisition for Fielding.

Albany, July 16.—Officer Andrew Houghton, of Boston, bearing a requisition for David H. Fielding, who is detained in New York, called at the executive chamber in company with local Detective Nolan, and having his papers certified left for New York. Fielding is wanted in Boston for an alleged forgery of paper to the amount of $1,000.

Not Fighting Conductors' Union.

Philadelphia, July 16.—Pennsylvania railroad officials deny the truth of a dispatch from Indianapolis to the effect that the company is making a systematic warefare against members of the order of railway conductors.

Evangelist O'Brien Accused.

Bath, Me., July 16.—The clergymen of Bath are out in published statements charging evangelist E. W. O'Brien, of this city, with adultery and untruth.

Mrs. Stevenson Still Improving.

Bloomington, Ill., July 16.—Mrs. Vice-President Stevenson is improving greatly, and it is believed she will be fully recovered in a few days.

THE BRITISH ELECTIONS

Results of the Voting Thus Far Received.

Including Yesterday's Voting, the Return of 151 Conservatives, 21 Unionists, 23 Liberals, 4 Parnellites, 4 McCarthyites and 4 Anti-Parnellites Indicated.

London, July 16.—The returns thus far received, including yesterday's elections, show the election of 151 conservatives, 21 unionists, 23 liberals, 4 Parnellites, 4 McCarthyites and 4 anti-Parnellites. Pollings took place yesterday for sixty-six seats. In the parliament just prorogued twenty-eight of these seats were held by liberals and thirty-eight by conservatives. They include boroughs of every kind and are in all parts of the country.

The following is a result of the elections of yesterday so far as received:

Yesterday's Elections.

Hereford—C. W. Radcliffe Cooke, conservative, elected by 313 majority. Boston—William Garfit, unionist, elected by 396 majority. Warrington—Robert Pierpont, conservative, elected by 685 majority. Wigan—Sir Frances Powell, conservative, elected by 874 majority. King's Lynn—T. Gibson Bowles, conservative, elected by 69 majority. Bury, Lancashire—James Kenyon, unionist, elected by 675 majority.

Stanley's Campaign.

Henry M. Stanley, the African explorer, made an active canvass of Lambeth, for which seat he was the unionist candidate. It was thought, however, that C. P. Trevelyan, the liberal candidate, would returned for this division. Mr. Stanley pulled through, however, by a slim majority. John Burns, the labor leader and present member of parliament, was re-elected in the Battersea division of London.

SIGNS OF THE GOOD TIMES.

Woolen Mills Starting Up—Wages Increased.

Putnam, Conn., July 16.—Putnam woolen mills, which have been idle for four weeks, started up yesterday with a full force of employes. The mills at Bayville, near here, which have also been idle, will resume in a few days.

Wages Advanced.

Ishpeming, Mich., July 16.—The Cleveland Cliffs Iron company has raised the wages of its employes from 10 to 25 cents per day, according to former wages paid. This is the first voluntary increase of the season, and is given because of the improved condition in the ore market.

1,500 Men Made Happy.

Birmingham, Ala., July 16.—The Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad company has announced an advance of 10 per cent. in wages to 1,500 tipplemen, drivers and outside mine laborers, in response to a request made by them.

Resumed After Two Years.

Hollidaysburg, Pa., July 16.—The puddlers employed at Euncansville rolling mill, and also those at the Elanor Iron works, of this place, have been granted an advance of 25 cents per ton. About 500 men are affected. The nail department of the Hollidaysburg Iron and Nail company has resumed after two years' idleness.

Big Potteries Resume.

East Liverpool, O., July 16.—The Knowles company's big potteries, the largest in the United States and the works of Cartwright brothers, Burford Brothers, Wallace and Chetwind, the Sebring Pottery company, the East Liverpool and the Standard company all resumed operations yesterday.

NEWARK STONE BOYCOTTED.

Action Said To Have Been Taken by New York Stone Cutters.

Newark, N.J., July 16.—A boycott, it is reported, has been declared upon stone that is cut in Newark by the board of walking delegates of the amalgamated union of building trades of New York. A notice has, it is claimed, been sent to all architects in New York, as a pratical warning to them not to award any more contracts to Newark stone cutters. The reason given to this motion is that the wages paid in Newark are lower than those paid in New York, but this is denied by the Newark firms. Some five hundred stone cutters in this city will probably be thrown out of work for some time as a result of the action of the New Yorkers.

O'DONNELL-MAHER MATCHED.

To Fight to a Finish in Texas for $5,000.

New York, July 16.—The Florida Athletic club has matched Steve O'Donnell, Corbett's sparring partner, and Peter Maher to fight to a finish at Dallas, Texas, on the afternoon of November 1. They will fight for a purse of $5,000. The Dixon-Plimmer fight will take place the same afternoon two hours before the O'Donnell-Maher fight.

Harcourt Still in the Ring.

London, July 16.—The Daily News to-day publishes prominently a telegram from Sir William Vernon Harcourt stating that he has no intention whatever of retiring from public life. He declares that he will persevere so long as he is able in the service of the liberal cause.

Death of an Old Doctor.

Plattsburg, N. Y., July 16.—Dr. William S. Honsinger died at his home in Chazy yesterday, aged 74 years. Dr. Honsinger had accumulated a fortune and retired. Dr. W. T. Honsinger was a member of assembly from Clinton county last winter.

League Games Yesterday.

At Louisville—Louisville, 0; Brooklyn, 5. At Cincinnati—Cincinnati, 9; Boston, 12. At St. Louis—St. Louis, 7; New York, 13. At Chicago—Chicago, 16; Philadelphia, 8. Cleveland and Baltimore game postponed on account of rain.

Cassat Sentenced.

Keokuk, Iowa, July 16.—In the federal court Judge Wilson sentenced ex-state senator T. B. Cassat, the Pella bank wrecker, to nine years in the Anamoas penitentiary.

MAY SAIL TO-DAY.

Much Interest in the Coming Trip of the Columbia.

Washington, July 16.—No further advices in regard to the straining of the cruiser Columbia have been received by the navy department, and there is therefore every reason to believe that the reports published concerning the injuries received by the cruiser at Southampton were sensational exaggerations. If the accident had been at all serious the Columbia would undoubtedly have been detained at Southampton for repairs instead of being ordered to go ahead in making the necessary preparations for her race against time across the Atlantic.

May Sail To-day.

Cable messages have been received at the department from Captain Sumner since the Columbia was taken out of dock, but none of these make any further mention of the strain. They merely relate to the preparations for departure and indicate that the Columbia will probably start for New York to-day. The orders remain as originally given, and under them the Columbia is to be brought home under natural draught excepting during the last twenty-four hours, when forced draught is to be used.

Much Interest in the Trip.

Naval officers are much interested in the coming trip of the Columbia, which is looked on as a fair test of her abilities. Predictions have been made that she will make more than an average speed of nineteen knots per hour, but conservative estimates are that she will not make more than seventeen.

MURDER IN FIRST DEGREE.

Maria Barberi Convicted in New York Last Night.

New York, July 16.—The trial of Maria Barberi, in the court of general sessions before Recorder Goff, for the murder of her lover Domenico Cataldo was concluded last night, the jury bringing in a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. The prisoner was remanded until Thursday for sentence.

Electric Chair Her Doom.

Marie Barberi is the first woman in this state condemned to death since the passage of the law making electrocution the death penalty. As the case now stands Maria is adjudged by the jury a subject of the electric chair. The sentence of the court, of course, has not yet been pronounced, but there is but one sentence for murder in the first degree.

Will Probably Not Be Killed.

Few believe, however, that Maria will ever sit in the death chair. The case, it was reported this morning, would be taken to the court of appeals, and if that court did not order a new trial, the governor would be appealed to to commute the death sentence to imprisonment.

SHOOTING AT BISLEY.

Some Good Work Done by the Canadian Team.

London, July 16.—The Canadians are doing some very good shooting at Bisley. In the first stage of the contest for the queen's prize, 200 yards, Bent, the Russells and Skedding each scored 31; Rolston, Armstrong, Spearing, Skedding, Chamberlain, Hayhurst, Nutting and Tink 30 each; Meadows, Wynne and Mercer 29 each; White, Boville, Morris and Mitchell 28 each; Anderson, 27; Broadhurst and Simpson 22 each. In the Scurry contest, seven shots each at 200 yards, Meadows, Spearing, Rolston and Simpson won money prizes.

TOOK TEN DOSES AND DIED.

His Father Promised To Give Him a Cent for Every Dose.

Wichita, Kan., July 1.—Near Clearwater, Daniel Smith, a 9-year-old boy, was in ill-health and his father got a patent medicine to recuperate him. The boy had an aversion to medicine, and as an inducement his father promised to give him a cent for every dose he would take. The boy took ten teaspoonfuls of it in order to get a dime. He died before medical attendance could be secured.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT IN THE ALPS.

Fate of a Party Ascending Mt. Ortler Without a Guide.

London, July 16.—A party of five Englishmen, while trying to ascend Mt. Ortler without a guide, the loftiest mountain of the Tyrol and of the Austrian empire, situated in the Rhaetian Alps, fell over a precipice and were seriously injured. One of the party is dying.

Four Children at a Birth.

Pittsburg, July 16—Mrs. Elizabeth Rankin, wife of Hugh Rankin, gave birth to four children, three male and one female, Saturday evening. One of the male children died fourteen hours after birth. The other three are doing well. The aggregate weight of the four was twenty pounds.

To Investigate Lumber Stealing.

Albany, July 16.—The special committee appointed by the last assembly to investigate the stealing of timber off of state lands in the Adirondack region met here and organized. The committee decided to commence its work the last week of July.

Col. Dowd Not To Resign.

State Camp, Peekskill, N. Y., July 16.—Col. Heman Dowd of the 12th regiment denies the rumor that he is going to resign when the week is finished. The rumor stated that he would give his resignation to Gen. McAlpin just before leaving for home.

Great Quantities of Wreckage.

Father Point, July 16.—The Beaver line steamer Lake Superior, from Liverpool, reports great quantities of wreckage fifty miles east of Belle Isle, including cattle, bales of hay, etc. It is thought to be wreckage from the steamer City of Mexico, lost on the coast of Belle Isle.

Bomb Thrower Arrested.

Columbus, O., July 16.—The man who threw bombs at the residence of Jerry Bliss, director of public improvements a week ago, was arrested last night, and confessed.

Movements of Our War Vessels.

Washington, July 16.—The cruiser Newark sailed from Montevideo for Rio de Janeiro yesterday. The cruiser New York also sailed from Gravesend for New York.

Corporate Existence Extended.

Washington, July 16.—The corporate existence of the City National bank of Gloucester, Mass., has been extended to July 15, 1915.

AT HISTORIC PLACES

Endeavorers Visit Points of Interest in Boston.

Exercises at Washington Elm, Bunker Hill and in Old South and North Churches—Interesting and Appropriate Addresses—Closing of the Great Convention Last Night.

Boston, July 16.—Last night the fourteenth International Christian Endeavor convention came to an end. Since last Wednesday more than 500 meetings have been held, and 50,000 delegates have visited this city from other parts of the land and from foreign countries. President Clark presided last night at Mechanics' hall. Dr. A. B. Grove presented the following resolutions:

An Appeal for Armenians.

"We, the members of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, representing a constituency of nearly 3,000,000, assembled in Boston, Mass., in our fourteenth international annual convention, 50,000 strong, most respectfully address and petition her majesty the queen of England, urging upon her attention the terrible condition of the Christian subjects of Turkey, and praying her in the name of a common faith and an outraged Christ and conscience, to use her great influence and authority to help those who are perishing and to give to that country a safe and just government."

Annual Convention Sermon.

The resolution was carried with a mighty shout from the multitude amid a tumultuous upheaval of a great sea of multi-colored flags and snowy handkerchiefs. Dr. Grove announced that the same petition would be presented to President Cleveland. The annual convention sermon was delivered by the Rev. H. M. Wharton, D. D., of Baltimore. His subject was "Consecration."

No Services in the Afternoon.

No services were held by the Endeavors in the tents on hall yesterday afternoon, but five pilgrimages were made by as many groups of delegates to places of historic interest in Boston and vicinity. These were the first of a series which will be extended further from the city during the remaining days of the week.

At Washington Elm.

Perhaps the most important and interesting of these trips was that to the Washington elm, near Harvard square, in Cambridge, where the first president took command of the continental army. Nearly a thousand people had gathered around this tree when the commemorative exercises commenced. Rev. D. N. Beach, D. D., of Cambridge, presided. He said in part:

Not To Glorify Historical Spots.

"The design of these pilgrimages is not to glorify the United States or these historical spots, but to stir the hearts of all people in admiration and love for courage." He called attention to the neighboring homes of Holmes, Longfellow and Lowell and the noted educators now living, and concluded: "Here under this tree let us consecrate ourselves to civic righteousness, holiest aspiration and noblest living."

Christian Patriotism.

He then introduced Rev. S. F. Rose, D. D., of Montreal, Canada, who said the victory of Washington was the victory of common liberty. We meet here to illustrate Christian patriotism. Our international sympathies should be of the same sort as our inter-denominational sympathies. You have been born in this country as Christians who work for all nations and the kingdom of God, which is bigger than us all.

At Bunker Hill.

City Forester Doherty distributed among the visitors from distant places souvenirs of wood from the elm, and the company then visited the Longfellow house. Three thousand attended the exercises at Bunker Hill, which opened with the singing of "America." Rev. C. R. Brown, of the Winthrop Congregational church, Charleston, Mass., called the gathering to order and acted as presiding officer. Hon. Charles Carleton Coffin was then introduced, and gave a graphic descrpition of the battle of Bunker Hill.

"God Save the Queen."

"God Save the Queen" was sung, and then Prof. W. W. Andrews, of Mount Allison university, Lockville, N. B., made the address. He dwelt upon the peace which now exists between the people of the United States and Great Britain and expressed the hope that the war would never come again between the two nations, and that Canada might serve as a mediator to prevent it and to keep up the good feeling which now prevails.

Canada Better Off As She Is.

Canada, he said, was well satisfied to remain allied to the great British nation, and better off as a part of that empire than were she annexed to the American union. Prof. Andrews closed his address with the pretty ceremony of joining together the ends of the American and British flags "in the name of Christian Endeavor, love and fellowship," and the exercises closed with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

Ireland and America.

At the old South church Rev. Henry Montgomery, of Belfast, Ireland, was introduced as a man peculiarly fitted as representing the liberty-loving Irish race to speak in a temple of liberty. In Ireland, he said, people had come to look upon America as part of themselves. He was glad of the movements started here in America for good citizenship, and spoke of the struggle being made for unsectarian schools and for breaking the power of the liquor traffic. God bless this great city of Boston, which has opened its arms to us. Irishmen can never forget America, for the dust of our loved ones lies all over American soil.

Old North Church Chimes Rung.

At the old North church Rev. Dr. Arthur Little presided. The old chimes were rung from 2 to 2.30 at the expense of the Ohio delegation. Rev. Dr. William Patterson, of Toronto, Canada, spoke of patriotism, and urged all to be loyal to the country in which they were born and lived, speaking in strong terms of disapproval of those who came as foreigners to a country and who attacked its institutions.

Persons leaving the city for the summer can have The Daily Press mailed to their address for ten cents per week. The address will be changed as often as desired.

The old serpent has grown an inch since he crept into the Garden of Eden.—Ram's Horn.

Despatches from Madrid say that the Spanish Foreign and Colonial Ministers have agreed to the immediate payment of the long-pending Mora indemnity.

New York people are always doing funny things. Now a married woman is sueing the city for $10,000 for the loss of her beauty. But if she is a widow it is all right.

Newark is troubled with a quarreling Board of Education, Elizabeth with a Board of Health and New Brunswick with a Board of Aldermen. And Plainfield—well she is all right.

When an organization like the Christian Endeavor grows in a few years to the magnitude represented in the National convention just closed it proves that the world is not as bad as some would have us think.

John Montgomery Ward, the former captain of the New York ball team, is now a fullfledged lawyer. As an arguer he has had sufficient experience to promise for him an eminent success in his new field of endeavor.

The debate between Messrs. Horr and Harvey on the money question will be a battle royal of two great intellects, and inasmuch as the former is a resident of this city, Plainfielders will look on with especial interest.

Chief of Police Murphy, of Jersey City, has directed a communication to the Justices of the upper courts asking them to impose more severe penalties upon prisoners convicted of highway robbery where it is accompanied by violence.

The Daily Press desires to make a correction in justice to the Courier-News editor. It is $3.50 instead of $3 a week that he pays his compositors, less the holidays and lost time for funerals and sickness. The compositors on the Daily Press are paid from $13 to $20 a week. There is no need of other comparisons, though plenty of them are at hand.

The seventy-ninth annual report of the American Bible Society, which covers the work of that organization in printing and circulating the Scriptures during the last year, has just been published. The society has distributed more volumes in China during the year than any preceding year since it began its operations in the Celestial Empire.

The increase of valuation in Union county, and particularly in Plainfield, as shown by the reports of assessors, published elsewhere, is very gratifying to those who take a pride in their home. And more than all it is pleasant to know that the taxpayers will have $3,000 less to raise for county purposes, owing to the carefulness with which county affairs have been administered by the Board of Freeholders.

Badly Burned by a Live Wire.

Carl Eggy, aged seven years, of Lambertville, was frightfully burned Sunday by a live wire. The wire, which could be reached from the sidewalk, had been used as a fire alarm circuit and had become crossed with an electric light wire. Livingstone Hunt, who heard Eggy's cries, ran to the boy's assistance. He also grabbed the wire and was unable to loose his hold for some time.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Judson Giles, of East Sixth street, is the proud owner of a new Columbia.

J. VanEps and B. R. Force are planning a grand ride to Asbury Park for next week.

In repairing a punctured tire the rubber tube should be perfectly clean, as the coating of sulphur which gathers on all manufactured rubber will prevent cement from taking hold.

Mr. Enander, the Park avenue plumber, has just received a new Dayton wheel, purchased from E. Frank Vail. The Dayton has the red enamel of the Czar, but large tubing like the Cleveland.

The Bicycle Club of the Young Men's Christian Association of New Brunswick will tender a reception to the same club of Plainfield on Friday evening next. The Plainfield Club will give a return reception.

In lieu of rubber patches and cement, a punctured tire can often be mended with court plaster. When the rider has neither of the above articles, rags or paper can be substituted for plugs for temporary relief.

Thomas Jackson, of St. Louis, Elsworth Cuff, Frank Whiting, and Captain Israel Jones, of the Victor Wheel, took a run to Rahway, Elizabeth and New Brunswick, Sunday. Jackson calls Plainfield the "Wheelmen's Heaven."

Adam Neuman, one of the members of the firm of Neuman Brothers, just escaped serious injury yesterday afternoon. He was riding his new wheel on Park avenue when he was crowded in toward the sidewalk by a passing carriage. The delivery wagon of Fred W. Dunn, the grocer, was standing in front of the store, and Mr. Neuman struck the rear wheel with considerable force. Luckily, both he and the wheel escaped injury.

An exchange says: California is a decided victim of the bicycle craze. It is estimated that wheels to the value of $2,000,000 have been imported into the Golden State from the East during the present season. There are no bicycle manufactories yet established in the Pacific coast States, but this estimate will certainly prove that there is enough demand for the wheel in the far west to warrant the establishment of factories in that section.

Plainfield did not get left at the national cycling meet at Asbury Park after all. William M. McCutchen, of Rockview Terrace, started from the thirty-five yard mark in the Class A half-mile handicap Saturday, and finished a close second. The time of the winner was one minute, three and two-third seconds. Considering the fact that all the best Class A riders in the United States were at Asbury Park, such a performance by a lad only fifteen years old may be looked upon as phenominal. McCutchen has been doing some very fast riding, and before the season closes, he will add many more victories to his already long list.

The Buchanan Execution in Wax.

A strikingly weird group has just been placed on exhibition in the Chamber of Horrors at Eden Musee. It represents the death chamber at Sing Sing prison and the execution of Dr. Buchanan, the wife murderer, who was electrocuted last Monday. Every detail has been reproduced with accuracy. In the chair sits Dr. Buchanan and the electrodes are in position. By his side ready to give the signal for the deadly current stands Warden Sage. The keepers, guards, physicians and reporters are all there waiting for the execution. In an adjoining recess can be seen the switchboard with its lights, and the electrician is just about to close the switch which will send 1700 volts of electricity through the condemned man. In the distance can be heard the whirr of the dynamo and the whole effect of the group is weird but it teaches a great moral lesson.

At Keith's this Week.

The middle of July finds no diminuation in the quality or quantity of the continuous performance vaudeville at Mr. Keith's charming theatre, the New Union Square. The casual visitor frequently expresses amazement at the size of the audiences, but the fact remains that the house is always filled to its capacity, and that fact can hardly be wondered at in view of the excellent and careful entertainment that is constantly offered. A noted comedy star in the portly person of George W. Monroe, whose untious impersonation of "My Aunt Bridget" has won him hosts of friends everywhere.

Dunellen.

Harry Read, of New York, is visiting friends in town.

Miss Gertrude Badum is enjoying her vacation at Warrenville.

Miss May Apgar returned home after spending several days with her sister, Mrs. J. S. Cooley, at Flemington.

Mrs. J. G. Lindzen is entertaining Mrs. Kelton, of Camden.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Theile, of Brooklyn, is at the home of Mrs. Elias Milliken.

John Kane has left Dunellen for Elizabeth where he has secured a position.

Miss Josie Parshold, of Brooklyn, is the guest of Mrs. W. H. Terry.

Miss Bessie Smith, of Pottersville, is visiting her father, Phillip Smith, of North avenue.

C. K. Hills returned yesterday from Elizabeth where he has been visiting friends.

Miss Sallie Gray has returned from Irvington where she has been visiting her cousin, Miss Ethel Gray.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Sproul have returned to their home in Jersey City after a pleasant stay with Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Randolph, of Washington avenue.

Mrs. Vanderveer returned today from Chester, where she has been visiting Mrs. E. H. Skellenger.

Miss Mamie M. Teel is visiting her aunt, Mrs. M. Pittenger, at Buttsville.

William Shively returned from Bloomsbury where he has been visiting friends.

Scotch Plains.

Fred Clark, who has been cutting hay in Mr. Young's fields, was caught in the storm with the last load, and the results were that he nearly upset the whole load.

Mr. Smith and Mr. Buckley are engaged in fixing the grounds about the new church yard.

W. Force, of Fanwood, has a fine new surrey purchased at Newark.

Will Dunn, of New York, is visiting Mr. Davie, of Park avenue.

Mr. Quereau, of Park avenue, has sold his horse and carriage to Mr. Bliss, of Fanwood.

At Proctor's This Week.

Everybody may not be able to seek summer recreation at mountain and seaside, but anybody can secure merry entertainment—combined with solid comfort—at Proctor's the ideal cool and cosy playhouse. The performances are just as novel, high class, and admirable in July as they are at Christmas time. This week's bill is full of merry and melodious features. An attraction must possess exceptional strength to be retained at Proctor's more than one week, where the policy is to keep the vaudeville kaleidoscope revolving.

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the diseases for which it is intended and he knows it. It is for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

RAILROAD IS AHEAD.

Lays Tracks in West Orange Despite the Committee.

The West Orange Township Committee and the South Orange and Maplewood Street Railway Company had an encounter yesterday and the railroad company came out ahead. Some time ago the company applied for a franchise to cross Tremont avenue, Union and Nassau streets, and an ordinance granting the permission was to have been introduced at the next meeting of the Township Committee.

The Township Committee has postponed introducing this ordinance until ordinanances accepting Tremont avenue and Nassau street as public thoroughfares could be introduced and passed. Until the passage of these ordinances the streets were private property.

Yesterday morning the work of laying tracks at Tremont avenue was started, and the entire width of the street was laid before the police knew anything about it. The tracks were spiked to the ties and the excavation all filled in. Even if the company proves its right to cross Tremont avenue it may not reach its next street, Union street, and the franchise may now be denied.

JERSEY INDICTMENTS STAND.

Severe Language from the Bench on the Printing Conspiracy.

Judge Conover, in Mercer Court yesterday morning, at Trenton, refused to quash the indictments against John L. Kuser, Otto Heinz, Emil Kreutler and Charles A. Robinson, charged with various offenses in connection with the printing of the State reports in German.

The Judge was severe in his language about the conspiracy. The trials of all were set for Sept. 24th.

New Jersey's State Camp.

The second day's routine work of the Fourth Regiment at the New Jersey State camp, at Sea Girt, was begun this morning. The weather was wet and dreary, and the men hurried through the motning drills. Rigid discipline is being maintained in the camp. A new United States ambulance has been mustered into service for the use of the brigade hospital. The field hospital is in charge of Col Meyers, brigade surgeon, and he has twenty men from Gen. McGill's ambulance corps. The health of the camp continues good. Lieut. Melvin W. Roswell, of the U. S. army, is there as an instructor in guard duty and military courtesy.

Cranford's Annual Carnival.

The eighth annual carnival will take place on the Rahway river at Cranford on Saturday evening, August 3d, and extensive arrarrangements are progressing for the grand event. All roads will lead to Cranford on that occasion, and everybody and his cousin, as in previous years, will be welcome. More boats are expected to appear in line than on any previous occasion. and there will be more illuminations and more fireworks.

Summer School of Methods.

The second session of the Summer School of Primary Methods began in Library Hall, Asbury Park, yesterday morning and will continue until Saturday noon, July 20th. There will be no fees or charges for admission or instruction, and all persons interested, especially primary and intermediate teachers, are invited and urged to make their summer plans so as to be with us.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness, caused by catarrh, that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE EDUCATION OF PLANTS.

More than a hundred years ago a Jesuit missionary found a certain bark (now called calisaya or cinchona) in use among the tribes of Peru as a cure for fever. This led to the discovery of quinine—its alkaloid and active principle. Originally containing but a very small percentage of the active principle, the bark of this tree, under careful cultivation, now yields several times the amount.

By the same method the Shakers of Mt. Lebanon, N. Y., have developed, both as to quantity and quality, the medicinal principles of the herbs from which the Shaker Digestive Cordial, their well-known remedy for indigestion and dyspepsia, is now made. They have persuaded nature to do for suffering humanity vasty more than she at first intended. As quinine is without a rival in its own field so this preparation of the Shakers is destined to become, for a ll the ailments of the digestive tract—now grouped under the general head of dyspepsia.

Some of the symptoms calling for its use are as follows: Distress after eating; sickness and nausea; pains in the head, chest, sides and back; foul taste in the mouth and the rising of an offensive gas from the stomach; costiveness and irregular action of the bowels; variable appetite; sick headache; ringing in the ears; palpitation and heartburn; loss of sleep; the "fidgets"; a tired and weary feeling; sore muscles; mental depression, etc.

To relieve and cure this universal disease (the source of most others) the Shaker Digestive Cordial is expressly adapted. Like quinine it is a specialty, a specific. Its good effects are felt at once. Unlike quinine it is pleasant to the palate, always effective, never harmful. For this the Shaker pledge their reputation as herbalists. And its success thus far bears them out.

THE PROFESSOR'S DAUGHTER.

BY H. LYNDE.

(Copyright, 1895, by Irving Bacheller.)

Sanders looked up inquiringly as they dashed into the cabin. Wharton stepped to the closet and took from there two repeating rifles, one of which he handed to Hilgerd. Opening his sachel, he placed in it the tin box, the Professor following his movements with furtive looks. He examined his weapons carefully and then spoke quickly.

"Boys, we must either find one of their boats or fight it out. Sanders, you will follow the prisoner and Hilgerd can bring up the rear." He threw some water on the fire, blew out the lights and they filed silently out into the night. Wharton headed for the shore of the lake below, where they had left the boat. The damp grass and weeds clung to their limbs, wetting their clothing through. Across the lonely wastes of the swamp came the mournful hoot of an owl. They pushed desperately forward through the tangled mass of the rank growths bordering the lake. It seemed an age to Hilgerd before he heard Wharton utter an exclamation of satisfaction, and saw him, stooping down, shove a long black object into the open water. It was the boat and they breathed more freely.

"Listen," said Wharton, warningly. "Do you hear that? We are none too soon." From the direction of the trail came distinctly the thud of rapid hoof beats. Gradually they grew plainer, then suddenly ceased. "Pull gently, boys, until we get into the main channel, and then, if the moon favors us, I think we can make it."

Noiselessly they glided from the bushy shore and in a few minutes struck the main current, down which they moved with increasing spead. Soon they entered one of the little lakes which dotted the swamp. Wharton stood up and looked back. "It is as I thought," he said. "There is the light. They have traced us to the shore and will be after us now in no time."

Over to the right of their course there was an opening in the woods, and through this, back and forth, danced the lanterns in the hands of the Professor's men. One flitted toward the cabin, then back again, and now they cross and recross each other like fireflies. After an interval they were all bunched together, and then, one by one they went out.

"They're coming now," said Wharton, quietly.

Little islands, grassy marshes and jutting points of land glided by in the gloom, the tall trees in places standing in dim relief against the murky sky like sentries at their posts. Mile after mile was traversed without a word, the creak of the row-locks the only break in the black stillness. They entered another lake, larger than the others, and when but a short distance from the line of trees that fringed the bayou, Wharton's hand was raised with a warning motion. Without relaxing his stroke, Hilgerd looked back. A rift in the scurrying clouds let a soft glow rest upon the choppy waves, and in this he caught the loom of a moving black object in their wake.

"It is just a mile across this lake," he heard Wharton's voice saying, calmly, "and if we can lead them a hundred yards at the entrance to Murphy's creek, we can bid them a final good-night. There is a hiding place near its head which I hardly think they know of. If they do, we must have it out on first principles, and if not, you and Sanders may rest peacefully on your oars. No doubt you——"

Zip—and a glancing bullet splashed the water in their faces, humming spitefully as it sped on its way. A jet of flame leaped from the black object in the rear, followed by the reverberating crack of a rifle. Wharton's mouth closed like a trap.

"Engagement opened by the enemy," exclaimed Hilgerd, breathing hard.

"Yes, they are trying our range, and fell a little short. We will give them another trial before showing our hand." They had not long to wait. Another flash—and the leaden missile whistled so close overhead that Hilgerd and the sheriff involuntarily ducked together. Wharton never stirred.

"They're improving some," said he, grimly. "Turn about is fair play." He swung the 38-caliber Winchester to his shoulder with the easy grace of a born rifleman. A master of the weapon, he poised it lightly, his attitude an artistic study. As they rose on a little swell, he fired. Clink! clink! went the lever, and the second report seemed but an echo of the first. The pungent fumes of the burnt powder hung closely about in the moisture laden air. No sound came from the pursuers to indicate the effect of the shots, but the distance between them gradually widened.

"We probably disabled one of her propellers," said Wharton, throwing in another shell. "The mouth of the creek is right over there, and we ought to beat them easily into it." Hilgerd's hands were blistered from the unusual work and the pain in his back was excruciating, but the burly shoulders of the sheriff never seemed to tire, and the stroke was still strong. They are near the mouth of the creek, and with a few more strokes will be out of sight. Hilgerd is conscious of a stinging pain in his right hand and his oar is dashed out of it in splinters as another whip-like report echoes over the water.

"Are you hurt, Paul?" Wharton asks, quickly.

"Not much. Just bruised a little. Four inches further to the right and it would have counted."

"Pull in your oar, Mr. Hilgerd," said the sheriff. "It will run easier. I think I can manage for a while. Much further."

"No," answered Wharton, pointing ahead. "A few more strong pulls, Sanders, and you will have saved the day." They were heading for an impenetrable thicket, barricaded by a mass of fallen, water-soaked logs. They were almost upon the largest of these, and Hilgerd braced himself for the shock. It never came, for the boat, as if moved by human impulse, swerved swiftly to the left, and grazing some low, overhanging vines, glided through a narrow channel into a hidden pool.

"Not a word, now, for your life," said Wharton, impressively. He drew his revolver and cocked it.

"Now, Professor, it rests with you who will go first. You understand?"

The prisoner silently bowed his head. Several minutes passed in a silence that almost made itself felt. Then came the slight splash of an oar.

"What shall we do, Jake?" asked a low voice. "Keep on or turn in to the right branch?"

"D——d if I know," came the gruff reply, and then followed a string of startling expletives touching upon bad luck in general, and their own in particular.

"Reddy said they'd take the main bayou," said another voice, in a hoarse drawl.

"What in h—l does Reddy know 'bout it, anyway?" snapped the gentleman first addressed. "If Reddy hadn't acted like a blame mud-sticker, and done as he ought to hev did, we a' had those blame chumps dead to rights. Reddy be d—d! You keep straight ahead there, Smoky, and——" An intervening clump of bushes charitably smothered Jake's further remarks, and the voices became a confused murmur, gradually dying away into the night. Five minutes passed. Wharton broke the spell with a laugh.

"Professor, I am afraid your proteges are not in the habit of frequenting your valuable library to any great extent. Jake has talent, rhetorically speaking. Why neglect him?"

The Professor disdained more than a grunt in reply, and Wharton directed Sanders to row across the pool. They pulled the boat upon a sort of island, dryer than the surrounding parts and built a fire. Hilgerd started to bring something from the boat and Wharton followed him down to where it was pulled up on the sand. He came close and spoke in Hilgerd's ear.

"Paul, things have taken an unexpected and disappointing turn.

"There is but one way I can see now to discover any trace of poor Newell, and that is through him," nodding his head towards the still manacled captive. "I must talk to him and if Newell is still alive, I will promise him all possible leniency if he will tell us where to find him. It is the only way and there is no time to lose. The gang must, of course, get out of their present quarters, and they will not trouble themselves to take Newell; do you understand?"

"Perfectly," answered Hilgerd. They returned to the fire and Wharton said something in a low tone to the Professor, who arose sullenly and followed him off to one side. They sat on a log just inside the circle of light which threw weird, waving shadows off into the dismal recesses of the swamp. Wharton bent forward speaking earnestly, occasionally raising his hands with expressive gestures. The Professor sat erect with the mien of an Indian chief, staring back with set visage at the glowing embers where Hilgerd sat with the collar of his coat thrown up. The damp air was penetrating. It was long before the council ended and Hilgerd awoke from his doze with a start as Wharton's hand fell on his shoulder. He got up without a word and followed him down to the boat, leaving the sleepy sheriff to stand guard. Wharton's face was serious and Hilgerd expected the worst. The gray light of an early morning threw a ghostly mantle over the odd shapes of the stunted trees, and the influence of the scene was felt by both.

"The Professor has told me all," said Wharton, slowly. "Newell is still alive, but whether he will be to-morrow night depends upon our action. An hour's floating down the little creek over there to the left will bring us to Briggs' station on the line of the E., N. & W. R. R. There you will take the 7:40 train east, and get your breakfast at Reedsville. After you may read these directions I wrote while you slept. They will fully instruct you what to do after arriving at Cedar Junction, and also contain certain explanations which I have so far not had an opportunity to make. Am I right in assuming that you wish to stay with me to the end?"

"Perfectly," replied Hilgerd. "I wouldn't miss the rest for the world."

"I appreciate your friendship, Paul," said the other, turning away.

Hilgerd carefully placed the letter in his pocket, and then bathed his face in the cold water of the pool. With some difficulty they pushed the boat over the portage to Mud Creek, whose swift current was soon hurrying them along through the fog of the early morning. A fallen tree caused some delay, and just as they reached the bank below the track they heard the distant whistle of the 7:40 train.

"Just in time to get your ticket!" exclaimed Wharton. He left Sanders with the Professor and dashed after Hilgerd up the steep sandy embankment. He followed him into the car and whispered a few final instructions Hilgerd saw him turn for another friendly glance, as he reached the door, and then he disappeared from view.

Number 26, for the east, left Reedsville on time at 8:29. Hilgerd, with a good cigar between his lips, lay back lazily on the cushioned seat. He was feling very comfortable after his hearty breakfast, though a trifle drowsy. The morning sun shone brightly on the circling fields, with their curious crooked fences, and Hilgerd thought that it was good to be alive.

It was twenty miles to the junction and he was wishing for a morning paper to while away the time. His hand fumbling mechanically in his coat pocket, touched Wharton's letter. He drew it forth with a silent laugh. He had forgotten all about it. Tearing open the envelope with an indifferent yawn he read as follows:

"Muskrat Pool, Sept. 25, 4 a. m.

"Dear Paul—It is with regret that I inform you that our last adventure is at an end for the reason that I have found Newell. That is to say, we found him—for he was the gentleman we held up so artistically in the cabin. Newell is a born actor. Do you recall how beautifully he played the part of the surprised bandit? Of course this is not the first time we have supported each other, and practice is making him perfect. Probably I am not so bad myself when it comes to the heavy parts, but his talent is pronounced. It would amuse you to know how Newell hoodwinked the gang and gained the confidence of that merciless devil, the Professor. You see there was a real Professor. He was the stoop-shouldered man—the second one we trapped. Newell rubbed for him during the second and third act. There was over half a million in that safe last night which my dear Wade is no doubt wildly searching for at this very moment. Of course he does not suspect that it is snugly stored away in my satchel together with the princely sum that the gang had hoarded up in the tin box. As you will remember, you carried this money to me yourself across the little bridge. This was the safest plan. If they had immediately discovered the trick you can see how easy it would have been for me to have quickly withdrawn from the scene, leaving you burdened with the necessity of making some very embarrassing explanations. Luckily we were not discovered. We both desire to thank you heartily for the invaluable aid you so nobly, though unconsciously, rendered. That infernal Simms came near turning out the lights on us.

"Did you get a good look at the Professor's daughter? That was Curly Dick, a successful masquerader in female costume, and a much better shot than his partner, as you can testify. It occurred to me that we might run across some of his attire, and my dramatic, though probably Satanic sense of humor suggested the daughter business to help out the play, but when Curly himself suddenly loomed up in full costume I confess I was somewhat staggered at the realistic presentation of the plot.

"The stupid sheriff we will accidentally drop on one of these numerous islands. We have nothing but kindly feeling toward him on account of his heroic work at the oars. We have probably made enough in this deal to place us beyond immediate want. It is difficult to say just where we will operate next, but rest assured I will drop you a line in which you may find material for future work. Of course I would expect no reply. Trusting that your confidence in humanity has not received too severe a shock, I remain with well wishes,

"PHILIP WHARTON."

Several minutes later the car door opened and closed with a bang.

"C-e-d-a-r J-u-n-c-t-i-o-n!" bawled the business-like brakeman, with the turned-up nose and prominent triangular ears. He paused and gazed curiously at the man in the third seat from the front, on the left. A bunch of paper was tightly clenched in his hand, while the other fumbled at his throat. His face was white and he looked helplessly and without meaning at the flitting trees. He did not look up at the brakeman's touch, and the latter passed on in hesitating wonderment.

On and on, with it's monotonous roar plunged the flying train. Then night came softly down, and Hilgerd fell into fitful slumber

DELIGHT THE EYE.

THE FASHIONS NEVER PRETTIER THAN THIS SEASON.

Glory of the Summer Girl. Her Reward Secured After Weeks of Weariness and Vexation. The Latest Productions of Fashion Distinguished for Simplicity.

The demand for variety in dress is greater at this season than at any other time during the year, and fashions blossom out rapidly like the roses in this month of June. After weeks of weariness and vexation devoted to fitting herself out with distinctive appropriate costumes necessary to adorn the outdoor amusements which have become such a leading element of summer life, the summer girl comes forth in all the glory of fresh attire.

While many gowns are simple in design, they are made with an idea of special effect and perfectly suited to the occasion on which they are worn. The social functions of the summer cannot fail to be a delight to the eye as far as dress is concerned, for the materials and the modes, when not exaggerated, were never prettier than they are this season.

The really latest productions of fashions are distinguished chiefly for their simplicity. Plain skirts, without trimming of any sort, are the rule, and sleeves are more graceful in their proportions; simple full bodices are almost hidden by the immense collars of lace, batiste, satin chiffon, which absorb nearly all of the ornamentation required on one dress, and are one of the special features of the season's fashions. Sleeves for dressy gowns for afternoon and evening wear are invariably short to the elbow or a little below and are finished with a band and bow of ribbon, with or without a frill of lace falling below, to partially cover the arm. Round waists, too, are very much worn, especially for thin gowns, and all sorts of plain and fancy ribbons are used for the belts and collar bands. Enough ribbon to go around the waist twice and tie in a bow in front makes a nice belt for the light batiste waists so much worn with old skirts. Gowns of plain or lace striped ecru linen batiste make up over a color or without any lining at all, which is more desirable, and, trimmed simply with a belt, collar and bows of cream satin ribbon, are very much in evidence both morning and afternoon. No other materials on the list for thin gowns is so suitable for street wear as this fashionable ecru batiste, which is so used in so many novel ways this season. Other batiste gowns are trimmed elaborately with linen passementerie, which comes for the purpose, or with open work linen embroidery, which is very effective; and bright plaid or striped ribbons are substituted for the cream white. Very large bows, without ends, are worn at the back of the neck and belt and are made of two or three outstanding loops on each side, the center loops standing out a little more prominent than those at the side, or the ribbon is tied in a double bow with a knot in the middle and put on so that the loops extend up on the neck and down on the dress rather than across the collar.

The ideal hat, which is worn with thin white gowns, is pure white straw with a wide brim turned up a little on one side and trimmed with white lilacs and a bow of mauve or pale green ribbon to give it a touch of color. White clover is another pretty flower for this purpose.—New York Sun.

CATALINA'S PIGEON POST.

Probably the Only Regular Feathered Mail Service in this Country.

So far as I can learn, the only regular pigeon post service on this side of the continent or the other is that which bears messages every day in the summer season between Los Angeles and the little town of Avalon, Catalina Island, and bears them at a speed which can be beaten only by the telegraph or telephone.

The steamer run once a day between island and mainland, and once it has cast loose from the wharf, the island, with a summer population of perhaps several thousand, is as completely cut off from the world as though it was in mid ocean, and yet the shore is a scant 20 miles away.

The demand for some additional service grew. Often there were men of affairs among the visitors, and they were not infrequently sore distressed to find means of communication. I remember hearing one financier declare:

"I'd give $500 gladly to get a dispatch to Los Angeles; it would be worth $5,000 to me easy."

It remained for two young men of Los Angeles, Otto and Oswald Zahn, to relieve the island visitors and residents from their embarrassing isolation. This was accomplished by the establishment of a carrier pigeon post between Avalon and Los Angeles. The service was inaugurated last summer and conducted for several weeks with unequivocal success.

It was feared at first that the pigeons, which are distinctly land birds, might hesitate to fly across so large a body of water; but, as far as known, there need have been no anxiety on this point. The message bearers usually started without delay, arriving at their destination with a certainty and promptness almost incredible.

The air line distance from Avalon to Los Angeles is about fifty miles. This was accomplished by some of the Catalina flyers in fifty minutes. From three to four hours is required to make the trip by railroad and steamer.

Last year a considerable revenue was earned in the forwarding of dispatches from Catalina by the winged messengers. Small bills posted conspicuously about the town of Avalon convey the somewhat startling information to the irresolue inlanders that "private messages and business orders may be forwarded at any hour of the day, in connection with the telephone, telegraph and cable lines, to any part of the world."—San Francisco Chronicle.

OUR MERCHANT FLEET.

Statistics Show That It Is of Very Respectable Dimensions and Growing.

The merchant fleet of the United States is really of vast dimensions. The general impression, derived from the decline in our foreign trade, may be otherwise, but that loss is more than offset by the increase of our domestic trade shipping.

The total tonnage of our vessels in 1890 included 928,062 in foreign trade, 926,355 in lake trade, 2,385,875 in coastwise trade, and 3,373,380 in river traffic. Here is a total tonnage of 7,633,676, while Great Britain's is but little larger, 7,915,336. Of course, she greatly surpasses us in the foreign trade. The number of our vessels was 25,540.

In 1820 our country, it is said, surpassed all other countries in foreign trade, its ships were more frequently seen in foreign ports. But soon after it began relatively to lose; the explanation being that the development of this continent and of home industries attracted capital by the larger profits it afforded. However, in 1846, our tonnage in foreign trade was about what it was in 1890, while in 1861 it had reached the great total of 2,496,894 tons. Then the war broke it down, and it has diminished ever since.

In 1890 the total tonnage of vessels cleared from American for foreign ports was 18,148,892. Of this but 4,066,757 tons was American; the remainder being represented by sailing vessels under foreign flags.

The internal commerce in 1890, excluding that by canal, reached the colossal proportions of eight hundred million tons, transported an average of 120 miles. As to foreign trade, vessels aggregating sixteen million tons entered with cargoes, and about nineteen million tons cleared, making about twenty-five millions. But our exports have a higher average value per ton than the commodities transported from one part of the country to another. The annual product of our industries foots up at least $10,000,000,000, of which only about one-tenth is exported. The so-called balance of trade being in our favor as it had been, without scarcely an exception for twenty years.

Over a third of our foreign trade is with Great Britain, our imports being mostly manufactures, and our exports more than three to one, largely in cotton, meat and breadstuffs.

Germany and France come next, but with imports largely in excess. The list of our imports in 1891 was headed by sugar and molasses, and then followed successfully coffee, iron and steel manufactures, chemicals, and so on. Cotton led our exports, exclusive of cotton manufactures, while meat and dairy products came next, and then wheat and wheat flour, mineral oils, cattle and so on, following.

An enormous proportion of our imports are manufactured articles, and of our exports agricultural products. Returning to the balance of trade, it is worth noting that to Brazil in 1892 we sent $14,000,000 worth of goods and received from her $119,000,000 worth, mostly coffee. To Cuba we sent but $18,000,000, receiving $78,000,000, mostly sugar, molasses and tobacco. With Canada exports and imports were about equal.

Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared, and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. Marlow, M. D., Tamaroa, Ill. For sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

Chamberlain's is the best of all. Vincent S. Barkl, of Danbury, Iowa, has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy whenever in need of a medicine for coughs and colds, for the past five years and says: "It always helps me out. If anyone asks me what kind of cough medicine I use, I reply, Chamberlain's, that is the best of all. 25 and 50c. bottles for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

It May Do as Much For You.

Mr. Fred Miller of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a Severe Kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called Kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure all Kidney and Liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c for large bottle, at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

The Ideal Panacea.

James L. Francis, Alderman, Chicago, says: "I regard Dr. King's New Discovery as an Ideal Panacea for Coughs, Colds and Lung Complaints, having used it in my family for the last five years, to the exclusion of physicians' prescriptions or other preparations."

Rev. John Burgus, Keokuk, Iowa, writes: "I have been a minister of the Methodist Episcopal church for fifty years or more, and have never found anything so beneficial or that gave me such speedy relief as Dr. King's New Discovery." Try this Ideal Cough Remedy now. Trial bottle free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

MISS VANWINKLE'S FUNERAL.

LARGE ATTENDANCE OF FRIENDS AT THE SERVICE.

Rev. Mr. McKelvey Preached an Excellent Sermon—Many Floral Tributes From Friends.

A touching tribute to the memory of a loving friend was the very large assemblage of persons attending the funeral of the late Miss Susan R. Van Winkle at the home of her parents on Elm place yesterday afternoon at 2:30. Members of the Christian Endeavor society and Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters, of Trinity Reformed church, were present in numbers.

The Scripture lesson was read by Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, after which Rev. Mr. Peeke, of the Reformed church, of East Millstone, offered prayer. A heartfelt hymn, "Fading away," was impressively sung by E. E. Runyon. Rev. Mr. McKelvey then spoke in part as follows:

I would like to call your attention to the fact that there are many divisions in the human family, different groups of nations, all having different callings, business and trades, and then there are divisions in individuals, all having separate interests and different motives. And yet throughout all there is one thing common. Like a magnificent musical production there is one strain through it all, and so there is one thing common, sorrow.

Tennyson's beautiful poem, "In Memoriam," has much for us:

That loss is common would not make
My own less bitter, rather more
Too common, never morning wore
To evening, but some heart did break.

This note of sorrow has been struck in this household.

Not many months ago the dear little granddaughter, daughter and niece was called to play with other children in the streets of the New Jerusalem, and now only day before yesterday as the day dawned and the shadows fled away, and as the sun rose from the eastern horizon to illuminate for a few short hours the world in which we live, the face of her whom we all loved so well was seen for the first time in the Eternal City, which has no need of the sun to shine in it, for the glory of God doth lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof.

There is a mystery connected with this death, but "God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform."

We see youth, health and happiness, and when we think that she was well and happy, and that the storm terrified her, we may be inclined to rebel against the workings of God.

At this time we need help. The human heart in the valley of sorrow cries out for more than human sympathy, and this we find in God and his revelations of the Bible.

At one time Eli, the priest of old, told his family they would be destroyed, and in answer to little Samuel who revealed it to him he said, "It is the Lord, let Him do what seemith Him good."

In the first place we see help, faith in God, and the language of truth. There is nothing by chance. Causes are not self-efficient. God is in all and over all, and we are told that not a sparrow escapes His notice, and that even the hairs of our head are numbered.

Let us be patient! These severe afflictions
Not from the ground arise,
But oftentimes celestial benedictions
Assume this dark disguise.

Then there is the language of acquiesence "Let Him do what seemeth good." It is all right. He doeth all things well.

And again, there is the language of hope, comfort and help, "What I do thou knowest not now, but will know hereafter." "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."

God never places more on us than we are able to bear, for he has said, "My grace is sufficient for thee."

Like the father teaching his child to walk, he is ever present to help in case we fall.

We have the assurance of her happiness. This occasion is particularly sad, for the dear one was about to be wedded. The church is called the bride of Christ, she was a member of the visible church and the invisible, and was Christ's bride.

She lives in memory, although lost to sight, and she may be to memory dear for her kindness and her unselfishness.

The hope of meeting again is a pleasant one. She reached her destination a little sooner than was expected, and can better be expressed in the following words of poetry:

Over the river they beckon to me,
Loved ones who've crossed to the farther side:
The gleam of their snowy robes I see,
But their voices are lost in the dashing tide.

For none return from those quiet shores,
Who cross with the boatman cold and pale;
We hear the dip of the golden oars,
And catch a gleam of the snowy sail.

And lo! they have passed from our yearning hearts,
They cross the stream and are gone for aye.
We may not sunder the veil apart
That hides from our vision the gates of day.

We only know that their barks no more
May sail with us o'er life's stormy sea;
Yet somewhere, I know, on the unseen shore,
They watch, and beckon, and wait for him.

And I sit and think, when the sunset's gold
Is flushing river and hill and shore,
I shall one day stand by the water cold
And list for the sound of the boatman's oar.

I shall watch for a gleam of the flapping sail,
I shall hear the boat as it gains the stand,
I shall pass from sight with the boatman pale
To the better shore of the Spirit land.

I shall know the loved who have gone before,
And joyfully sweet will the meeting be;
When over the river, the peaceful river,
The angel of death shall carry me.

May we live in the faith of Him whom she loved, so that when the call for us to go over the river we may do so with the words of the late Laureate:

Sunset and evening star,
One clear call for me!
And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I put out to sea.

Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark!
And may there be no sadness of farewell,
When I embark;
For though from out our borne of time and place,
The flood may bear me far;
I hope to see my Pilot, face to face,
When I have crossed the bar.

At the close of Mr. McKelvey's remarks Mr. Runyon sang effectively "Sometime We'll Understand."

The decedent rested peacefully in a white casket, just as though she was sleeping. Surrounding the casket was a profusion of the choicest flowers, consists of wreaths, a cross, and a very large handsome pillow of roses, greens, and lillies, tied with white satin ribbon. A beautiful tribute was a Maltese cross from the King's Daughters bearing the initials, "I. H. N." and a large wreath from the Sunday-school class in Trinity Reformed church, of which Van Winkle was a member.

A large pillow was given by the firm of H. W. Peabody & Co., New York, for whom Mr. Smith works. It was presented in place of the wedding present they had expected to give.

Interment was in the North Plainfield cemetery where Rev. Mr. McKelvey read a selection from the Scriptures, and Rev. Mr. Peeke offered prayer.

The bearers were, Messrs. L. A. Smith, G. F. Canfield, and E. G. Blot, of New York, and J. Fred MacDonald, Elias H. Bird, and John H. Van Winkle, Jr.

RELIGIOUS PERSECUTION.

Tennessee Adventists Sentenced to the Chain Gang.

There is a case of persecution in Tennessee that will attract widespread attention. A dissolute fellow was denied credit at a store kept by a Seventh Day Adventist, in Graysville, Tenn., and in a spirit of pure spite he swore out warrants against a score of the leading men, and professors of Graysville academy, for working on the Sunday contrary to the State law of Tennessee.

A telegram just received this morning announces that these worthy people have been sentenced to the chain-gang, for terms varying from thirty to ninety days for working on Sunday after having kept the Sabbath on the day before. That something is wrong in Tennessee is shown by the fact that these persons are punished for good works, while the saloons, railroads, and pleasure parties, constantly break the law without being molested. The very witnesses against these people were out hunting when they saw the law broken by the the keepers of the Seventh-day Sabbath.

No one pretended that these people disturbed others; in fact a ruling of the court was to the effect that it did not require that others were disturbed.

WILL BE HOTLY CONTESTED.

A South Amboy Team Will Try to Down the Y. M. C. A. Boys.

There is going to be a great baseball game, Saturday afternoon, at the Crescent Oval when the Y. M. C. A. boys play a nine from South Amboy. They are reported to be very strong, and are coming to Plainfield with the intention of cleaning out the home team. The Plainfield boys are going to put a strong team in the field, so a lively game is expected. The nines will line up as follows:

Y. M. C. A.		SOUTH AMBOY.
Burt	pitcher	Pretty
Townley	catcher	Voorhees
Corey or Schenck	first base	Dobson
Freeman	second base	Grace
Schoonmaker	third base	Skimmons

George Kirch to the Rescue.

A Frenchman and two friends from over the mountains had a narrow escape from a runaway last night about eight o'clock, at the corner of Somerset street and Grandview avenue. The horse became frightened at the trolley, broke the harness and started to run away, and but for the quickness of George Kirch the horse would have gone home alone.

Off for Europe.

The Red Star steamer "Noordland," left her wharf this morning with quite a party of Plainfielders on board. They were Rowland Cox, and family, of West Seventh street, and John M. Whiton, of Central avenue, and his two daughters, Miss Nella Whiton and Miss May Whiton.

Some Hail Remains.

The hail in Saturday's storm was so large that some of it has not melted yet. There is a small can partly full of the ice crystals in Tier's refrigerator that still remain almost the exact size.

Enough Doctors.

It is said that there are twenty-nine practicing physicians in Plainfield.

VICTIMS OF CIRCUMSTANCES.

The Sad History of the Uniforms of the Once Champion Crescents.

Who would have thought, two or three years ago, that the baseball uniforms then worn by the famous Crescents would be the cause of a suit between two young men of Plainfield, and yet they were, and Justice Newcorn's court was the scene of the case yesterday noon. Walter N. Mague against Howard Woolston, in tort, was the way Justice Newcorn announced it. Mague was made manager of a baseball nine in 1894 called the Crescents, and purchased from Charles A. Reed the suits of the old Crescent League team. Owing to press of duties Mague resigned and Woolston was elected in his place. The suits were turned over to the team and used the rest of the year. Mague claimed that Woolston agreed to become responsible, while Woolston said he did not. At any rate, Mague demanded the suits from Woolston, who explained nothing, but did not send them and then the suit was brought on. Harry C. Runyon represented the plaintiff, while the genial face of Counselor W. K. McClure beamed at him from beside Woolston. After an hour and a half of examining, cross-examining and arguing, the case was concluded.

This morning Justice Newcorn gave the judgement requiring Woolston to pay $9 and costs, the value of one suit, and eight pairs of sleeves, which were all that could be proved went out the hands of the defendant.

The case was promptly appealed to to the Court of Common Pleas.

MIDDLESEX IS FOR KEAN.

Republican Leaders Want to Show Their Gratitude.

The Newark Advertiser yesterday published the following from New Brunswick:

There is every reason to believe that Middlesex county will give nearly all the votes it is entitled to in the State Convention to John Kean. While there are friends and, in fact, relatives of Senator Foster M. Voorhees, and friends of John W. Griggs in the county, the majority of the prominent Republicans think it would be well for several reasons to give loyal support to Kean because he has been unusually generous for years to the Republicans of Middlesex. A sense of gratitude impels the party leaders to talk Kean first and last.

The Republicans of Middlesex realize that they have acquired some political prestige and power after many years of hard work, and that they were practically helpless and friendless until they found a friend in John Kean, and he has assisted them at all times. He has not only been a liberal giver to the county committee fund, but has given good counsel and advice.

Birthday Party.

Miss Ellena Thompson Woodcock, of 678 West Seventh street, celebrated her eighth birthday yesterday afternoon by inviting a few of her friends to spend the afternoon from four to six with her. The time was passed pleasantly in playing games, etc., until five o'clock, when the little folks marched in two by two to partake of the goodies prepared for them. In the centre of the table was a cake surmounted by eight candles, denoting Miss Ellena's age. Among those present were the Misses Rosa Woltman, Jean Douglass, Evelyn Hillman, and the Messrs. Jack and Will Douglass, Gideon and Guion Fountain, and Willie Wilson.

Fun and Fair.

The very mention of a fair set the young people wild with delight, and, yesterday afternoon, on the piaza of Mrs. Julia E. Tyrrell, Miss Mildred Tyrrell, assisted by her friends, the Misses Corra Harris, Jennie Dunham, Mary Dunham and Edith Dodd, held a little fair of their own. The good things to eat soon disappeared and the event came to a most successful end.

Stayed In When It Rained.

Last night's storm was too much for most of the Camera Club members and that accounted for no business being transacted. The few members who did brave the elements sat around the cosy club rooms and conversed until the storm subsided.

Landlord and Tenant in Trouble.

Summons were issued yesterday in the case of Dietrich against Naylor, landlord and tenant, returnable July 23rd at two o'clock p. m., before Justice V. W. Nash. George W. DeMeza will represent the plaintiff.

She Was Gone.

A woman named Mullen was complained of this morning to Chief VanHorn for making a disturbance in the borough, but when the Chief went to look for her she was gone.

Dr. Jereike and family, of New York, have rented the C. P. Ralli house on Belvidere avenue for the summer. Dr. Jereike will take possession Thursday.

FELL IN A FAINT.

Young Lady Prostrated During Last Night's Storm.

During the heavy thunder storm last night Miss Mary Howard was going from Tier's place on Bank place, to her home on West Fourth street, and in passing along Park avenue, near Rockfellow's grocery store, she was prostrated and fell in a faint to the sidewalk.

A small boy saw the accident and sought Policeman Cooney, telling him about it. The latter went at once to the place, and a man named VanHorn, with a horse and wagon, took the unfortunate young lady to her home on West Fourth street. He was assisted by Policeman Cooney.

Dr. Clawson was sent for and succeeded in quieting her, and in a little while she had entirely recovered.

HOP AT THE REVERE.

Informal Social Event at That Popular House Last Night.

An informal hop was given last evening at the Revere House to a few select friends of the guests of the hotel. A small but excellent orchestra from New York was engaged for the occasion. George B. DeRevere dispensed the hospitalities of his hotel in his usual liberal manner. Miss Emma L. Schirmer was the belle of the evening, among many fascinating matrons and maidens. David F. Harbaugh and Capt. G. P. Armstrong acted as M.C's. It was much regretted that Mrs. DeRevere was unable to be present, owing to severe indisposition.

It is intended shortly to have a weekly dance, to which the guests of the hotel may invite their friends.

How the Crops Are.

The weekly bulletin of the New Jersey Weather Service has the following reports from Union County:

Clark Township—The week has been more favorable for harvesting than its predecessor; oats look well but are badly lodged; corn making a rapid growth; considerable turnips being sown.

Westfield—Weather all that could be desired, except Saturday, which was showery; fine for gathering hay and grain; plenty of moisture has carried vegetation forward rapidly.

Plainfield—Crops for the week were very promising, especially corn and oats; those cutting grain and hay during the past week gained by it, as that cut in previous week was injured by rain. The hail, wind and rain on 13th damaged corn and oats in the districts passed over; corn, in many cases, had the leaves stripped from the stalks, and in others was broken and lodged; oats fared the same way; the hail ranged in size from a pea to that of a medium sized hen's egg.

Hung Up His Watch.

A tree is a rather funny place in which to lose a watch, but Mr. Evans, of East Front street, had that experience. He had been climbing the tall ash tree in the yard, sawing away some of the extra branches, and returned to terra firm again. He felt for his watch but it was missing. After a search on the ground beneath the tree, he happened to look up and there on a little twig swung his handsome gold watch without a scratch or injury of any kind. Mr. Evans says that this is the first time he ever "hung up" his watch.

It Beats the Flying Machine.

The successful flying machine has always been the dream of inventors and now Maxim appears to have solved the problem, but if you want to take a flying trip, go on the excursion of the Congregational, First Presbyterian, and Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-schools to Asbury Park tomorrow. The train leaves the North avenue station at 8 a. m. and a quick journey of an hour and a half brings the roar of the surf within hearing. Do not wait for Maxim and his flying machine but go tomorrow, you will have a better time.

Charges Against Former Rioters.

Warrants are out for the arrest of Charles Starken and Herman Fischbacker, who have been released from State Prison about a month, having served their sentence for inciting a riot during the strike trouble in Paterson in the spring of 1894. The men are charged with an assault on Wm. Roheken, he having testified against them at their trial. About ten days ago, as alleged, they lay in wait for Roheken at the Wiedmann Dye Works, where he is employed. Starken held the man while Fischbacker beat him.

Too Near for Comfort.

During the severe electrical storm last night a bolt of lightning struck the telephone pole in front of the Press office, and grounded without any damage.

Not Molested.

A very lively fight was witnessed by several families in a house at the upper end of Somerset street, last night, but fortunately for the parties engaged there was no marshal near to molest them.

WHAT THE TAXES WILL BE.

THE ASSESSORS COMPLETE THE APPORTIONMENT OF TAXES.

Rates to Be About the Same as Last Year, With the Increased Apportionment—The County Road Tax.

The County Board of Assessors have finished the work of computing the county and school taxes, and the proportionment of the county road tax to be levied on the seven cities and townships, says the Elizabeth Journal.

The total valuations in the county are: Real estate, $31,220,060; personal, $4,844,420; liabilities, $891,980; grand total, $32,973,500.

The total school tax to be levied in the county is $98,192.61, and the total county tax $185,000.

The county tax rate will be a fraction lower than last year. The increased appropriations in Elizabeth will keep the tax rate the same as last year.

The county tax is proportioned as follows:

Clark, $1,310.82; Cranford, $4,345.69; Elizabeth, $84,667.57; Fanwood, $3,862.97; Linden, $4,874.75; New Providence, $1,337.13; Plainfield, $371,41.14; Rahway, $15,541.70; Springfield, $1,705.32; Summit, $9,596.48; Union, $9,063.1[illegible]; Westfield, $7,448.99; Roselle, $4,114.2[illegible].

The school tax is proportioned as follows:

Clark, $695.78; Cranford, $2,306.55; Elizabeth, $44,934.91; Fanwood, $2,050.25; Linden, $2,590.55; New Providence, $709.71; Plainfield, $19,707.29; Rahway, $8,248.51; Springfield, $905.[illegible]5; Summit, $5,093.52; Union, $4,810.[illegible]8; Westfield, $3,954.19; Roselle, $2[illegible]83.73.

The amount of county road tax apportioned to each city and township is: Elizabeth, $196.90; Union, $1,370.[illegible]4; Springfield, $362.14; New Providence, $108.47; Fanwood, $314.41; Cranford, $306.21; Linden, $286.10; Roselle, $241.60; Rahway, $173.73; Clark, $193.39; Westfield, $651.05; Summit, $333.70; total $4,338.54.

A QUIET WEDDING.

And a Farewell Greeting of Old Shoes and Rice.

Another Brooklyn young man captured one of Plainfield's fair daughters when William H. Gilderleeve, of the city of churches, and Miss Laura E. Force, of this city, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's father, Henry W. Force, of 117 New street. Rev. C. L. Goodrich performed the ceremony. The wedding was a very quiet home affair, only the near relatives of the bride and groom being present.

The newly wedded couple left in a shower of rice, while an old shoe dangled from behind the carriage. They will take up their residence in Brooklyn, immediately.

The Bank's Temporary Home.

The work of moving the personal effects of the First National Bank was completed last night, and this morning they opened for business in the old post office building. Pierson & Gale, the carpenters, with their corps of men worked till midnight in making the change, after which cashier Frank S. Runyon invited them them to Shaw's drug store where they enjoyed his splendid soda. Special Policeman Robert McCormick has been on duty at the bank building for several nights, and he will continue his duty as night watchman at that place.

Go and Enjoy Yourself.

It is expected that a great crowd will attend the picnic of the street railway employees in Vail's grove this afternoon and evening. Guttman's band will parade to the grounds this afternoon and the Independent Fife and Drum Corps this evening. An immense dancing pavilion has been erected on the grounds, and enjoyment which prevailed at the picnic last season will certainly be increased this year.

South Bound Brook Protests.

Twenty six residents of South Bound Brook signed the following petition, which was presented to the council at its last meeting: The undersigned, residents of South Bound Brook, respectfully protest against the location of the sewer tank and pump house where at present proposed, and ask that it be placed at the Port Reading embankment where at first intended.

Warm Wave Coming.

You are making a big mistake if you think we are not going to have any hot weather. Farmer Dunn says so, too, but Tier makes it more delightful than cool weather by furnishing his delicious ice cream at forty cents a quart.

DWYER LOSES BANQUET

Sold After Being Placed for Trial Plate.

He Goes to Mr. Archer, Who Refused the Offer Made for the Return of the Horse—Harry Reed Takes the Selling Plate at Newmarket—Croker and Dwyer Winners.

London, July 17.—The trial plate of of 200 sovereigns, for all ages, the winner to be sold at auction for 400 sovereigns, was won at Newmarket by A. M. Singer's Virago, Banquet II. was second and Golden Slipper third.

Archer Claims Banquet.

The betting was 10 to 1 against Virago, 2 to 1 against Banquet II., and 9 to 2 against Golden Slipper, 13 to 8 against Tudor, 10 to 1 against Heremon and 20 to 1 against the others. Mr. Archer, the owner of Barba Rossa, claimed Banquet II. for 400 sovereigns, and refused to entertain the offer that was made for the return of the horse.

Harry Reed a Winner.

The selling plate of 103 sovereigns, for all ages, the winner to be sold at auction for 200 sovereigns, was won by M. F. Dwyer's Harry Reed. The betting was 6 to 4 on Harry Reed, 5 to 1 against Acrefield, 7 to 1 against Tancred, 14 to 1 against Jay Gould and 20 to 1 against the others. Messrs. Dwyer and Croker backed Harry Reed for £2,000. The betting opened 9 to 4 against and finished at 6 to 4 on. George Haughton did the commission betting. The horses got a flying start and Harry Reed won by three lengths, Simms unnecessarily striking him with the whip as he came in.

Bid Up to 1,250 Guineas.

At the sale Lord Marcus Beresford bid Harry Reed up to 500 guineas, Geo. Haughton making the opposing bids in Mr. Dwyer's interests. When Lord Marcus dropped out Charles Merry opposed Haughton until the latter made the last bid of 1,250 guineas.

PARDONED BY GOV. MORTON.

Executive Clemency Extended to Two Auburn Prisoners.

Albany, July 17.—Governor Morton has commuted the sentence of Antonio Glielmi, a life prisoner sentenced from Syracuse January 4, 1891, and confined in Auburn prison, to a term of fifteen years, which gives him nine years and five months yet to serve. The governor has also pardoned Harry M. Griest, a Chemung county prisoner, serving a term in Auburn prison for burglary. Griest's time expired July 31, but it had been represented to the governor that he was being made the subject of petty persecutions on account of his having served as a witness before the legislative committee which examined into the conduct and management of the state prisons last winter.

Petty Persecution.

Although Greist was a good conduct man in prison it is stated that members of the investigating committee and others have informed the governor that they have knowledge that he was being denied the right to grow his moustache, etc., little privileges granted prisoners in the last month of their terms.

WILL USE SECOND-CLASS COAL.

Conditions for a Quick Voyage of the Columbia Not Favorable.

Washington, July 17.—The belief among many naval officers that the cruiser Columbia will make excellent time in her voyage from Southampton to New York, under orders to come with all dispatch, has been somewhat shaken since it has become known that the conditions for a quick passage are somewhat unfavorable. A cablegram received at the navy department from Captain Summer of the Columbia says he has been obliged to store his bunkers with second class coal, which means much in such a trip, particularly as the Columbia's coal capacity is not large. In addition to this she has not only about one-half the necessary number of engineer officers on board and the engineers crew lack a quarter of being complete. Predictions that she will average 18 knots, however, are not lacking.

CYCLONE AT ASBURY PARK.

Hotels Unroofed and Other Damage Done.

Asbury Park, N. J., July 17.—A severe storm visited Asbury Park last evening. Hailstones fell for fifteen minutes, breaking window panes and doing considerable damage. The tornado that followed uprooted trees and carried away awnings. The roofs of the hotels Gladstone and Grosevnor were blown off and a house in West Park, owned by a man named Moran, was razed. At Ocean Grove the storm was also severe. The tenters suffered considerably.

DINED BY THE LORD MAYOR.

Augustin Daly, Ada Rehan and Company Entertained.

London, July 17.—Augustin Daly and Miss Ada Rehan, with twenty members of Mr. Daly's company, were entertained at luncheon by Sir Joseph Renals, the lord mayor, at the Mansion house yesterday. Among those present were Ambassador Bayard and Mrs. Bayard, United States Consul General Patrick A. Collins, Beerbohm Tree, Edward Terry and Charles Wyndham.

Dispatches Sent by Bicycle.

Salt Lake, Utah, July 17.—Private H. S. Webber, of the 16th infantry, stationed at Fort Douglass, this city, left here Monday for Washington. He will make the entire trip by bicycle, and bears dispatches from General Penrose.

Von Hammerstein a Fugitive.

Berlin, July 17.—The Tagesblatt says that Baron Von Hammerstein, formerly editor in chief of the Kreuz Zeitung, has fled from Berlin taking his effects with him, and that official seals have been placed upon his dwelling.

Weavers' Strike Settled.

Utica, N. Y., July 17.—The weavers' strike in the Globe Woolen mills of this city has been declared off, the differences between the company and the employes being arbitrated by a committee of citizens.

AWARDED A VICTORIA CROSS.

A British Captain Honored for Bravery at Chitral.

London, July 17.—Capt. Whitechurch has been awarded the Victoria cross for bravery during the siege of Chitral. On March 3 he took part in a reconnoissance from the Chitral fort and was attacked by a large body of Umra Khan's troops. Capt. Baird of the British force was wounded and lost to view, when Capt. Whitechurch reappeared, carrying the wounded man on his back. With this burden he fought his way back to the fort, being obliged to drop the wounded man several times in order to lead bayonet charges against the stone walls, from behind which the enemy kept up a galling fire upon the British. When Capt. Baird died, on the following day, he strongly urged Dr. Robertson, the British political agent, to record the bravery displayed by Capt. Whitechurch.

Another Reward.

Col. Kelly, who relieved the Chitral garrison after accomplishing a brilliant military achievement in leading a flying column from Gilgit to Chitral, passing over the snow-covered Shander pass, some 12,000 to 14,000 feet above the level of the sea, in bitterly cold weather, has been made a C. B. and has been appointed aide-de-camp to the queen with the rank of brevet colonel. The other officers who distinguished themselves during the Chitral campaign have received the distinguished service order and have been promoted.

CONDITION OF CROPS.

Government Report of the Outlook for Eastern States.

Washington, July 17.—The second weekly crop report of Prof. Willis L. Moore, the new chief of the weather bureau, gives the results in eastern states as follows: New England—May harvesting delayed; small fruits, generally light crop; some damage by hail. New York—Much hay secured in excellent condition, although the crop is exceedingly light; wheat yielding well; fruits slightly improving; grasshoppers and potato bugs very destructive. New Jersey—Growing crops in splendid condition; destructive tornado did great damage to crops. Pennsylvania—Both harvesting and haying well advanced; oats improved; corn, potatoes and truck doing well. Maryland—Wheat threshing progressing, average results; heavy crops of oats and hay; tobacco in splendid condition; all truck looks well; peach crop heavy in places.

MISS MILLIKEN TO BE TRIED.

Accused of Throwing Vitriol and Shooting at a Man.

Dedham, Mass., July 17.—In the local court Miss Mary A. Milliken was given a preliminary hearing on complaints of Joseph V. Daly, charging her with throwing vitriol and firing a revolver at him July 4, on the street, while defendant was disguised as a man. Daly and several witnesses testified for the government, while the girl and her parents absolutely denied that she was near the place where the assault was committed at the time it took place. Justice Wakefield, however, held her in $1,000 for the September grand jury, bail being furnished.

WRECK OF THE MEXICO.

Estimated Losses on the Cargo of the Steamship.

Quebec, July 17.—Following is an estimate in detail of the losses on the cargo of the steamship Mexico wrecked at Belle Isle: 210 cattle, $16,800; sheep, $8,040; 18,231 boxes cheese, $127,617; 8,291 bushels wheat, $6,052; 43,280 standard deals, $6,000; 5,477 sacks flour, $24,646; 515 boxes provisions, $20,600; 750 pails lard, $3,500; 897 packages butter, $8,500; 3,237 bales hay, $1,500. Total, $221,755.43.

VON DER AHE DENIES IT.

Says Bretenstein Has Not Been Sold To the New York Club.

St. Louis, July 17.—President Von der Ahe, of St. Louis baseball club, authorizes the United Press to deny the story published that Pitcher Bretenstein has been sold to the New York club. President Von der Ahe states that neither Bretenstein nor any other of the "stars" of the Browns is for sale, and all stories to the contrary are pure fabrications.

Saratoga's New Cab Law.

Saratago, N. Y., July 17.—The hack law recently passed by the board of trustees restraining hackmen, cabmen, cartmen, etc., from soliciting or standing on Broadway between Circular street and Grove street went into effect yesterday. Several arrests were made. The Liverymen's Protective association is united against the law and have retained counsel to fight it.

Will Return and Serve His Sentence

Haverhill, Mass., July 17.—District Attorney Moody has been notified that ex-Alderman George O. Tilton, who went to Canada rather than serve out a sentence of a year and a half, will return and take his sentence at the next term of court. Tilton was one of the three city officials found guilty of conspiracy.

HORR-HARVEY DEBATE

The Novel Discussion Begun in Chicago.

By Stages of Ten Minutes Each the Speakers Will Proceed for Eight Days—The Audience Limited To About One Hundred—Timekeeper and Judges.

Chicago, Ill., July 17.—Two men met in a little room at the Illinois club yesterday afternoon and began a spirited contest of national moment, one fighting for silver and the other for gold with all the intellectual powers, facts and authorities at their command. One of them was Roswell G. Horr, once a member of congress from Michigan, now an editorial writer for the New York Tribune, and the other was W. H. Harvey, of Chicago, author of "Coin's Financial School." Mr. Horr championed the cause of gold, while Mr. Harvey threw down the gauntlet for silver.

Only a Few Present.

The privilege of being present at this contest was accorded to few. There were seats for about 200 persons in the assembly room of the club house, but only a little over half that number was present. Congressman Sibley, of Pennsylvania, a leader of the free silver forces in the east, occupied a prominent seat. He will remain during the debate unless business engagements prevent. A prominent advocate of the gold standard was A. B. Humphrey, secretary of the national league of republican clubs.

Some of Those Present.

Others present were W. W. Meagher, of the bi-metallic league; Lyman J. Gage, referee for Mr. Horr; Ferd. W. Peck and A. H. Revell, of Chicago; L. G. Powers, of St. Paul; Dr. S. A. Robinson, of New York, and Charles H. Sergel, of Chicago. The last three acted as advisers to Mr. Horr, and sat by his side taking copious notes while Mr. Hawley spoke.

Harvey Went It Alone.

Mr. Harvey consulted little with anybody. He brought with him a great pile of authorities for the purpose of substantiating statements made in his book, to which he frequently referred.

Called Off by a Timekeeper.

A man with a watch sat at a table near the speakers, and whenever one had spoken eight minutes he would tap loudly on a call bell. This gave the speaker warning that he had two minutes more to conclude his statement. By these stages of ten minutes each the speakers will proceed for eight days, using only the afternoons and resting Sundays.

The Judges Introduced.

Dr. Homer Thomas, president of the Illinois club, called the assemblage to order, briefly setting forth the objects of the debate. He introduced Hon. H. G. Miller and ex-Judge William A. Vincent, both of Chicago, who, he said, would be judges and at the conclusion of the controversy decide which had the best of the novel debate. Mr. Miller then read the rules which are to govern.

To Deliver 140,000 Words.

It was, he said, the intention of the speakers to deliver altogether 140,000 words. Of these 5,000 are to be reserved for use at the end of the discussion. This will give each a chance to recapitulate his argument in 2,500 words. Three hundred words additional will be allowed each contestant as a rejoinder to his adversary's closing argument.

The Whole Discussion Copyrighted.

Mr. Miller stated that the whole discussion was copyrighted, and, that while it would be given the widest publicity through the press, it was the intention of the principals to preserve the debate as private property and issue it in book form.

The Debate Started.

The debate was started by Mr. Horr, who referred to the author of "Coin's Financial School" with some severity. He said he never read a book containing so many misstatements. Mr. Harvey in his opening statement contented himself with a presentation of his plan of campaign and told what he would prove.

Mr. Horr's Pertinent Question.

Mr. Horr wanted to know why the names of prominent citizens had been used in Mr. Harvey's book, and words put into their mouths that they had never used, to which Mr. Harvey replied that his book was simply an allegory, and the fact that a little boy was put in as teacher ought to be enough to prove to any sensible person that this was so.

Hard Work Preserving Tempers.

Then the speakers plunged at once into the thick of the fight. The argument at all times was very spirited, and both speakers several times had hard work to preserve their tempers.

JEALOUSY LED TO A TRAGEDY.

Love Sick Man Shot His Girl and Himself—Both Will Live.

Philadelphia, July 17.—Joseph Connor, aged 24 years, shot Kate Conly, aged 17, through the head yesterday, and then put a bullet into his own head. The shooting took place in Connor's house. Connor believed Kate was about to jilt him for some one else, and he urged her to marry. She refused, and he then shot both her and himself. Both will probably recover.

Mail Carriers Suspended.

Troy, N. Y., July 17.—Five mail-carriers were suspended at the local post-office yesterday morning, two for thirty days each, two for ten days, on charges preferred at Washington by the official inspectors recently sent here to make an investigation. They were suspended for neglect of duty.

Williams Memorial Library.

Middletown, Conn., July 17.—Jasper Tryon, of this city, has been awarded the contract for the Williams memorial library at Berkeley divinity school. The building will cost $20,000, and is a memorial to Bishop Williams.

A Paper Mill Burned.

Watertown, N. Y., July 17.—The Jefferson paper mill, situated at Black river, four miles above this city, and owned by W. M. Herring of Denver, was burned to the ground Monday night. The loss is $19,000.

IN DESPAIR.

A PEN PICTURE.

Many Women Will Recognize It.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

"Oh, I am so nervous! No one ever suffered as I do! There isn't a well inch in my whole body! I honestly think my lungs are diseased, my chest pains me so; but I've no cough. I'm so weak at my stomach, and have indigestion horribly. Then I have palpitation, and my heart hurts me. How I am losing flesh! and this headache nearly kills me; and the backache—Heavens! I had hysterics yesterday. There is a weight in the lower part of my bowels, bearing down all the time; and there are pains in my groins and thighs. I can't sleep, walk, or sit. I'm diseased all over. The doctor? Oh! he tells me to keep quiet. Such mockery!

Inflammatory and ulcerative conditions at the neck of the womb can produce all the above symptoms in the same person. In fact, there is hardly a part of the body that can escape those sympathetic pains and aches.

No woman should allow herself to reach such a perfection of misery when there is positively no need of it.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound acts promptly and thoroughly in such cases; strengthens the muscles of the womb, heals all inflammation, and restores that unruly organ to its normal condition. Druggists are selling carloads of it. Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., will gladly and freely answer all letters asking for advice.

Mrs. E. Bishop, 787 Halsey Street, Brooklyn, N.Y., suffered all the above described horrors. Now she is well. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured her. Write her about it.

CANADA WANTS HIM

Anxious To Give Holmes a Taste of Quick Justice.

Philadelphia Officers Now Believe That He Is a Triple Murderer—His Defense, It Is Said, Will Be an Alibi—How the Bodies of the Two Children Were Discovered.

Toronto, July 17.—The bodies of the Pietzel children have been removed from the vacant house, in the cellar of which they were exhumed, to the morgue. A post-mortem examination was made by Drs. Caven and Orr to determine the manner of death of the children. As soon as the examination is finished the inquest will be reopened and strong efforts will be made to have Holmes extradited in order that he may have the benefit of swift and sure Canadian justice.

Holmes' Movements in Toronto.

The story of Holmes' movements in Toronto are very interesting and the way in which they have been laid bare is remarkable. The clue which led to the discovery of the bodies was furnished by Thomas W. Ryves an old man who lives at No. 18 St. Vincent street, next door to the scene of the tragedy. Last October Mrs. Nudel's house was vacant and one Saturday afternoon a quiet appearing stranger called and arranged to take the premises at a monthly rental of $10.

Said a Widowed Sister Was Coming

He said a widowed sister in Hamilton was coming to Toronto to live with him, and that her two children who were already here were going to go to school. Holmes bustled about and was apparently making preparations to receive furniture.

Borrowed a Spade.

He asked Ryves if he could lend him a spade as he intended fixing up his cellar for the reception of some potatoes. Ryves gave him a spade, and it was kept for a few days and returned. Holmes came the following day to tell Ryves that he would be away for a while, and he wished to leave the key behind. He asked Ryves to put the potatoes in the cellar for him in case they should arrive in his absence.

Children and Holmes Vanished.

Holmes returned in a few days, bringing two children with him. Ryves saw them romping in the yard, and again on the front veranda. No furniture was brought to the house except an old bed and a very much soiled mattrass and a trunk. Soon after this Mr. Ryves missed the children. They vanished completely, and Holmes went too. There was some comment on the strange way of doing things, but no suspicion of murder was ever aroused.

Told the Police His Story.

The affair was being forgotten when accounts of Detective Geyers search for the Pietzel children brought the incident again to his mind. Pictures of the missing girls and of Holmes convinced him that his mysterious neighbor and children were identical with the persons described in the papers, and he decided to call the police and unburden himself. This he did, with the result of the bodies being found.

HOLMES' DEFENSE AN ALIBI.

Philadelphia Officials Believe That He Is a Triple Murderer.

Philadelphia, July 17.—Superintendent of Police Linder is impressed with the belief that Holmes is a triple murderer, that he killed the three Peitzel children, and their father as well. Efforts will be made to discover the whereabouts of Howard Peitzel, the third of the missing children, and also the Williams sisters. Holmes was taken to the district attorney's office yesterday afternoon and was closeted there with the officials for an hour. What took place then could not be learned.

His Defense an Alibi.

According to Mr. Shoemaker, Holmes' lawyer, Holmes will be able to prove an alibi by showing that he could not have been in Toronto at the time the children were killed. This alibi will be partly based upon the testimony of Holmes' third wife, who is known as "Mrs. Howard." It is said that she will testify that Holmes was traveling with her during the time the Peitzel children were in Toronto.

Another Character Introduced.

According to Mr. Shoemaker, Holmes says that the Peitzel children were killed by a man named Hatch, a mythical sort of a person, and a friend of Minnie Williams. Holmes says that he gave the two children in charge of Minnnie Williams and Hatch, at Buffalo, with instructions to go to Europe. Holmes asserts that he sewed $400 in the dress of the younger child and $1,000 in the dress of the older girl to pay their expenses to Europe. Holmes says it must have been this $1,400 that tempted Hatch and led him to kill the children.

SETTLERS UNDER ARMS.

Two Hundred Indians Reported To Have Left the Reservation.

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 17.—Governor Richards has received word from Maryville, in Fremont county, that ten bucks and six squaws captured at the Jackson Hole fight by settlers, had been brought in and fined $75 each for violating state game laws. A report is current that 200 Bannocks are on their way from the Fort Hall reservation, in Idaho. The settlers are preparing to drive them back should the report be true. The governor has been asked to send state troops into the region, as all ranch work has to be neglected, while the settlers are under arms awaiting further troubles with the Indians.

Imports and Exports.

Washington, July 17.—Figures compiled by the treasury bureau of statistics for the last fiscal year show the exports of merchandise to have been $731,690,319, or excess of imports of $75,732,942; gold coin and bullion $66,131,188, or excess of exports over imports of $30,984,449.

Counterfeiters Arrested.

Washington, July 17.—The treasury department is advised of the arrest in Union City, Pa., of James and John Maloney and James McNeiry, for counterfeiting United States coin.

KISSED HER LAWYER.

Mrs. Farrall Hysterical When the Verdict Was Announced.

La Plata, Md., July 17.—Mrs. Belle Farrall has been acquitted of the charge of murdering her husband, the late Frederick Farrall, of Haughesville. The jury was out only an hour when foreman T. J. Owens announced that a verdict had been reached.

Her Wonderful Nerve.

The scene in the court room when the verdict was announced was intensely dramatic. The handsome defendant exhibited wonderful control, and seemed but little concerned as the jury filed in. The Messrs. Farrall, brothers of the man whom Mrs. Farrall was charged with poisoning, sat near by, fully believing the woman guilty and hoping for a verdict of murder. The courtroom was jammed to the doors with interested spectators.

Hugged and Kissed Her Counsel.

When Clerk Turner read the verdict Mrs. Farrall broke down and wept for joy. She became hysterical, and as Col. Wilmer, her chief counsel, moved toward her, she threw herself upon his breast, clasped her arms about his neck and kissed him.

The Verdict Applauded.

Judge Briscoe's warnings were forgotten: there was no restraining the crowd. Hearty applause and cheers burst forth and swept spontaneously over the audience. The friends of Mrs. Farrall crowded around her, and in various ways indicated their joy over her acquittal. General approval was expressed at the verdict, which was arrived at by the jury with very little discussion. The trial, which began two weeks ago, has proved one of the most noted in the criminal annals of the state.

MACHINERY EXHIBIT.

Rivalry Between Philadelphia and Pittsburg at Atlanta.

Philadelphia, July 17.—Philadelphia is going to have a splendid exhibit of heavy machinery at the Cotton States exposition at Atlanta. Almost every firm engaged in the iron and steel industry will send specimens of their work. Heavy cotton and textile machinery will, of course, have the preference. It is expected that Philadelphia's exhibit of cotton, textile and milling machinery will be as great as at the world's fair.

Pittsburg a Rival.

"Pittsburg is making a dead set to beat us," said Secretary Vickers, of the citizens' exposition committee. "She is putting forth strenuous efforts to get her manufacturers to send a machinery exhibit that will outshine ours, and will try to get a big space in the state building. Of course we can easily beat her in carpets and other manufactured products, but our machinery manufacturers will have to wake up if we are to beat her in that line.

STILL HELD AT QUARANTINE.

One Doubtful Case Among the City of Washington's Passengers.

Quarantine, S. I., July 17.—The thirty-eight passengers from the Ward line steamer City of Washington, who were detained at Hoffman island by Health Officer Doty until five full days had elapsed from the time of leaving Havana, were not released when the time expired last evening, for the reason that one of the passengers was ill and it was, as yet, too early to make a definite diagnosis of his trouble. As a precautionary measure, therefore, Dr. Doty decided to hold the passengers twenty-four hours longer, until he can be entirely satisfied that absolutely no danger exists.

DEATH OF HON. S. J. YOUNG.

Tresurer of Bowdoin College and a Prominent Maine Man.

Brunswick, Me., July 17.—Hon. Stephen Jewett Young who died yesterday from an attack of apoplexy, was a graduate of the Bowdoin college class of '59. He had held the position of treasurer of Bowdoin college about twenty years and that of president of the Union national bank also for a number of years. He was formerly professor of modern languages at Bowdion. In 1859 he went to Europe and spent three years. He has represented this town in the legislature and has also been a member af the state senate.

Poisoned by Eating Toadstools.

Anna, Ill., July 17.—The family of C. C. Newton, en route from Marion, Ind., to Arkansas, and encamped near this place, have been poisoning by eating toadstools, which they supposed were mushrooms. Two girls, aged 13 and 17, and a boy are dead and the mother and two other children are not expected to live.

Main's Retirement Recommended.

Washington, July 17.—Chief engineer Hershell Main, U. S. N., has been found disqualified for active service on account of physical disability, and his retirement has been recommended to the president.

TORIES STILL GAINING

Unionists Sure of a Majority of 32 Thus Far.

Joseph Chamberlain, Speaker Gully, Justin McCarth and Michael Davitt Re-elected—Harcourt Will Stand Again in West Monmouthshire—Morley Sent Into Seclusion.

London, July 17.—Up to midnight the returns from the parliamentary elections show the following results: Conservatives, 200; liberal unionists, 31. Total unionist, 231. Liberals, 44; Parnellites, 4; McCarthyites, 12; labor, 1. Total opposition, 61.

Sure of a Majority of Thirty-two.

The gains of the unionists thus far insure them a majority of 32 in the next house, even if the remainder of the seats to be voted on remain the same as heretofore. The proportion of the electors who went to the polls was higher than on any former occasion. The superiority of the unionists was manifest both by the magnitude of their own majorities and by the extent to which they pulled down their opponents.

Naoroji Defeated.

Dadabhai Naoroji, the liberal member for the central division of Finsbury, who was once referred to by Lord Salisbury as a black man (he being an East Indian), was defeated, while his fellow countryman, Bhrownagree, won a seat for the conservatives. Lord Salisbury's youngest son, Lord Hugh Cecil, has been returned for Greenwich. A labor member, William R. Cremer, who sat for the Haggerston division of Shoreditch, and who recently made a journey to America to urge the adoption of an arbitration treaty, has been unseated.

Morley Relegated to Seclusion.

But the chief event of the day was the dismissal of ex-Postmaster General Morley, making the fourth minister in Lord Roseberry's cabinet who has been sent into seclusion. In Northampton, which is deemed a radical stronghold, Henry Labouchere had a majority greatly reduced, and the conservatives won the other seat.

Another Chance for Harcourt.

Sir William Vernon Harcourt, the liberal leader, who was recently defeated by C. Drage, conservative, at the Derby election, has accepted the offer of C. N. Warmington, Q. C., who was recently nominated to stand for election in West Monmouthshire, to retire in his favor. There was to be no opposition to the candidacy of Mr. Warmington, and Sir William Vernon Harcourt will be nominated in his place today.

Some of the Successful Candidates.

Among those elected yesterday were: Joseph Chamberlain, secretary of state for the colonies, for West Birmingham; Speaker W. C. Gully (liberal) for Carlisle; Justin McCarthy for Longford, and Michael Davitt for East Kerry.

NUNS EVICTED FROM ECUADOR.

The Attention of the State Department Called to the Matter.

Washington, July 17.—Ex-congressman Timothy J. Campbell, of New York, had an audience with Acting Secretary Adee, of the state department, with reference to the recent expulsion from Calceta, Ecuador, of several American nuns who located in the country eight years ago. The expelled nuns were Sister Genevieve and two assistants, Frances de Sales and Josephine. These women claim to have been driven out of Calceta by the leaders of the liberal party who recently inaugurated a rebellion against the government.

Asked for Protection.

Mr. Campbell received a letter from Sister Genevieve, who is now staying at St. Walburg's convent, at Elizabeth, N. J., stating that twenty-two benedictine sisters in the province of Manabi, Ecuador, are unprotected, and asking that their helpless condition to made known to the American authorities in as much as all of the number are Americans. Acting Secretary Adee informed Mr. Campbell that the expulsion of the three sisters as well as the necessity of protecting the others remaining in Ecuador would be brought at once to the attention of the American minister at Quito.

No Indemnity Probable.

Mr. Campbell also desired to know if an indemnity could not be given to the three expelled sisters as a compensation for their treatment by the revolutionists, but the acting secretary was disposed to believe that this could not be done.

STAMBULOFF CONSCIOUS.

Says He Recognized Two of His Assailants—Police Apathetic.

Sofia, July 17.—Late last evening M. Stambuloff recovered consciousness and a magistrate was at once summoned to his bedside to take his deposition. The ex-premier said that he recognized among his assailants two men named Holn and Tufktchiew, the latter of whom had been condemned in Turkey to eighteen years' imprisonment for murdering M. Nulkovitch.

Police Aided Their Escape.

Several witnesses, among them M. Krajew, a member of the Sobrane, declare that the police prevented M. Stambuloff's valet from pursuing his master's assailants. They state that the inspector who arrived shortly after M. Stambuloff fell to the ground struck the valet upon the neck with his sword, inflicting a painful wound.

Foreigners Look for Protection.

The foreign residents in Sofia have held several meetings for the purpose of considering the situation and taking measures for their own protection, in view of the lack of protection by the authorities.

To Train American Horses.

London, July 17.—It is thought probable that Charley Morton, who was formerly trainer for Abingdon Baird, will devote his time to training the American horses now in England and to be brought here.

Forger Taylor To Return.

London, July 17.—In the Bow street police court a writ was granted for the extradition to America of D. Taylor, a clerk in the employ of the firm of Ellis & Soulterman, of New York, who is wanted in that city for forgery.

Success to the Defender. But no worse luck than defeat to the Valkyrie, III.

Editor Boyd of the New Brunswick Home News, writing from Ireland calls it "dear old New Brunswick." Distance lends enchantment, so they say.

It is estimated that the completion of the New York and New Jersey Bridge will save the Government $400,000 in transporting mail across the Hudson.

While Elizabeth people are getting in trouble with the trolley car with great frequency Plainfielders are wonderfully free from such encounters. Let us be thankful that such a careful and faithful set of motormen are employed.

Commissioner Roosevelt answered Senator Hill last night in reference to the enforcement of excise laws. Mr. Roosevelt has expressed some good ideas, but the tenor of what he said last night indicates that if he is not careful he will need a larger hat very soon.

The new Chicago directory, just out, contains such queer names as Deathdew, Uppercrust, Naggar, Windyman, Dustdry, Gracebucket, a clergyman; Chargehigh, a dressmaker; Blanderboggun, Schwekenbracken, Blatherskelter, Braushgmutter, Blaumeisterskut and Eleaver Eisconsimeon.

At a meeting of the provisional committee of the Essex County Democracy, in Newark, a resolution was offered providing for the appointment of a committee of five to confer with Democrats in the various counties in the State on the question of nominating a candidate for Governor by petition.

Two facts of importance are brought into prominence by the report of the Union County Board of Assessors, printed yesterday in The Journal exclusively. The first is, that during the past year the townships have been growing more rapidly in proportion than the large cities. The second is, that the famous roads in Union county are exerting their beneficent influence in increasing the county's wealth, and that this influence is not decreasing in any degree whatever, but is more powerful today than when the new system of roads was completed. Every day affords new evidence of the marvelous effects of these roads. In a single year the county of Union has increased its tax valuations a million and a-quarter, and the striking feature of this increase is the fact that by far the greatest appreciation of values is right along the stone roads. They cost, it will be remembered, $350,000. It was thought to be an enormous sum for forty miles of good roads, but they have paid for themselves ten times over. The appreciation of Union county property, outside the large cities, is more gratifying this year than ever before. It proves that wealth, better times, greater developments and marked improvements are coming this way in full tide.—Elizabeth Journal.

Mrs. George Sloan, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. John Harris, of Pittston, Pa., who have been visiting at the home of Charles R. Norman, of Watchung avenue, have returned to their homes.

The Plainfield Way.

The extension of the Rahway Electric Railway to Woodbridge, Sewaren and Boynton Beach, has been practically abandoned for this year. A few hundred feet of the road was built at Woodbridge and this caused a report to be published that the work was to be completed this month. The only reason for laying the portion at Woodbridge was because the street there was being macadamized, and it was much easier to lay the rails for the electric railway while this was being done. There is no intention, it is said, on the part of the electric railway managers to finish the branch road this summer.

Accept an Invitation to Picnic.

At the meeting of John Hand Camp, S. of V., last evening, one candidate received the second degree and one was elected for the first. The camp accepted an invitation to a picnic to be given by Camp 20 at New Brunswick the last of this month.

When overtaken by rain a rider should stop and loosen the chain, or the mud, which naturally accumulates under such circumstances, tightens it and causes it to snap; care must also be taken not to put any sudden force on the pedals.

When necessary, an improvised spoke can be constructed in the following manner: Bend the broken ends of the spoke so as to make little hooks on the end of each with pliers or wrench. Attach to the ends so hooked a double thickness of wire, then with a piece of wood twist the wire up to a tension and leave the wood resting against a neighboring spoke.

New Haven's Famous Elms.

The elm beetle is fast denuding New Haven's famous elm trees of their leaves. The noble arch of elms in Temple street, which has been the theme of poets, could now furnish little inspiration. Some of the overhanging branches are almost bare of foliage, and others are covered with a mass of withered, colorless leaves. The connition of the trees on the Yale campus is even more deplorable. In this vicinity some of the handsomest elms are ruined, for this season at least. The scientists at the Connecticut experiment station say that nothing can be done this year, and the members of the Board of Public Works say that energetic efforts will be made to stamp out the pest during the fall.

Police Salaries in Elizabeth.

The City Council of Elizabeth met Monday night, when the bonds of the newly elected City Clerk James I. Manning and City Attorney E. S. Atwater, were referred to the law committee. The Mayor sent back unsigned the ordinance compelling bicycle riders to carry lamps. The ordinance did not include all other vehicles. A resolution was offered by Councilman Paterson to make the police salaries as follows: Lieutenant, $1,000 per year; detectives and sergeants $2.75 a day; patrolmen who have been on the force more than five years, $2.63 per day; patrolmen, $2.25; all new appointees, $2 a day.

A Question Often Asked.

The question is often asked, when should glasses be worn? To this answer should be, that as soon as discomfort arises for need of them, they should be adopted. If your eyes are causing you anxiety, or if the glasses you are wearing are not suited to your eyes, call on Leech, Stiles & Co.'s eye specialist, who will be at 107 East Front street, on Thursday, from 10 a. m. to 5 s. m. Examination free.

Broke All Records.

The increase in Christian Endeavor societies this year broke all previous records, 7,750. The total societies in the world, 41,229; total membership, 2 473,740; number of associate members received into full church membership during the year, 202,185; last year, 183 650; total in six years, 816,335. New Jersey stands eleventh in the number of societies, with 1,045.

Anxious to Leave Westfield.

A citizens' meeting was held last night at the Locust Grove schoolhouse to discuss further plans for forming a borough out of that part of Westfield Township. Signatures representing over fifty per cent. of the property within the proposed borough lines have been secured to the petition for an election.

No Reception.

The contemplated reception by the New Brunswick Y. M. C. A. Bicycle Club to the Bicycle Club of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A., on Friday evening, will not be held after all, as not a sufficient number of the Plainfield cyclists could be present.

Passed the Exams.

Miss Elsie Suffern, daughter of E. L. Suffern, of Linden avenue, and a pupil of the Plainfield Seminary, has passed successfully the preliminary Harvard examinations.

Music Enroute.

The Independent Fife and Drum Corps will go up to Vail's Grove in the electric car this evening and play on the way.

INS AND OUTS.

Another exciting game was played yesterday on the Scotch Plains grounds. Both teams did fine work up to the seventh inning when the Scotch Plains boys walked right ahead and won the game with the score of 22 to 6. The men lined up as follows: Scotch Plains—Macauley, right field; Flannery, shortstop; B. Macauley, second base; Haskard, third base; Marsh, pitcher; Chapin, catcher; Reich, left field; Day, first base; Fitzgerald, centre field. Fanwood—Johansen, left field; Douglass, second base; Quereau, catcher; Bartlett, third base; H. Bartlett, centre field; Allen, first base; Briggs, short stop; Davie, pitcher; Collins, right field.

Dunellen.

Robert Maltbie returned yesterday from Newark, where he has been visiting friends.

Mrs. M. Abrams, of New York, is a guest at the home of Herman Trust.

Mrs. J. G. Lindsey is entertaining Mrs. M. J. Shreve of Philadelphia.

Alfred Wilson is at Asbury Park for a few days.

Miss Louisa Lawson, of Brooklyn, is at the home of Rev. A. F. Todd, High street.

Miss Blanche Marlow is visiting Miss Elsie Richters at Perth Amboy.

Mrs. F. E. Herbert, who has been visiting Mrs. F. L. Hine, has left for Brooklyn, where she will spent several weeks.

Alex Vars returned home today after a few days spent at Boston.

Miss Cecelia Staats, of this place, and Miss Caroline Udhal, of Netherwood, leave Saturday for a two weeks stay at Lake Hopatcong and Delaware Water Gap.

An Evening Social.

Miss Lena Cose, of Grant avenue, gave an evening social last night at her home, in honor of her cousin, Miss Olive Blake, of Pennsylvania, who is visiting her. The time was pleasantly passed in dancing, after which refreshments were served. There were about twenty-five persons present.

George H. Ryder and Allen Hartley will play off their tie for third place this afternoon.

Leads the Opening.

Thomas Scheafer, the clever club juggler and baton spinner, is proving a success with Bentley's one ring circus at Ninty-ninth street, New York. He leads the grand opening.

—It was Louis H. Brown instead of William Brown who was a bearer at Dr. Field's funeral.

In Hard Luck.

I was going down to Staten Island one day when a seedy-genteel young man with a lonesome expression of countenance, who had a seat near the railing of the upper deck, suddenly began removing his shoes and outer garments. Of course the people around him were excited, but he gave them no attention. When he was about ready to leap over one of the ferry policemen came sauntering up and said:

"You there—put on your coat and vest!"

The young man donned the articles mentioned and the officer continued:

"Now put on your shoes."

In a couple of minutes the shoes were on, and then the officer said:

"Now, you sit down back there and stay there, or I'll heave you overboard."

"Can't a fellow commit suicide if he wants to?" muttered the young man.

"Of course he can, but you don't want to! This is about the tenth time you have gone to all this fussing and yet haven't jumped in! You make me tired, you do!"

"Do you really intend to commit suicide?" I asked of the young man a few minutes later.

"Certainly I intend to," he replied.

"But change your mind every time, eh?"

"Yes. People begin to coax and argue with me, and one and another hands me a quarter, and so I decide to live on. Hang that bloke of an officer! He's beat me out of at least two big dollars right here and hurt my feelings besides. You'd have given me a quarter to stop me, wouldn't you?"

"I was about to offer you a dollar."

"Look at that! And the crowd would have raised three or four more! Luck is not for me, and I might as well go up town and let an ice wagon run over me!"—Detroit Free Press.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

MOUNTAIN AVENUE SOCIETY.

Pleasant Birthday Surprise Given to Mrs. James Moore.

Mrs. S. J. Neal, of 29 Mountain avenue, arranged a very enjoyable surprise party, last evening, in honor of her sister, Mrs. James Moore, who celebrated the anniversary of her birthday yesterday. The evening was passed in playing games and listening to excellent music, after which refreshments were served.

Those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Green, Mrs. Benjamin Moore, Mrs. David Ryno, Miss Rachael Buckley, of Newburg, Mrs. Emily Wood, of Newark, Miss Lilly Sopher, Mr. and Mrs. Sopher, Burt and Frank Sopher, of South Plainfield, Miss Frances Thorn, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Neal, Frank Sheppard, Theodore Rutan.

A FAREWELL DANCE.

Cool Weather Assists in Making Miss Force's Dance a Success.

The recent cool weather made last evening almost an ideal one for dancing, and so it was that the farewell dance given by Miss Mabelle Force at her home on West Fourth street last evening was a perfect success.

Most of the evening was spent in dancing, after which dainty refreshments were served. At a late hour the party broke up, and the young people departed sorry that the very delightful evening had come to an end.

Among those present were: Mrs. J. L. Force, the Misses Charlotte Messersmith, Mills, Shepard, and Darby, of Plainfield, Stroude, of New Brunswick, MacDonald, of Jersey City, and Messrs. Dunn, W. Woodland, Johnson and Clark, of Plainfield, Birch, of Elizabeth, MacGraft and Barckalew, of New Brunswick.

Grangers to Have a Picnic.

The Grangers of Essex, Morris and Union counties will hold their annual picnic this year at Swinefield Bridge, on the Orange Mountains, on August 15th and 16th. Heretofore the picnic has lasted a single day and the affair this year will be an innovation. Among the speakers will be National Master Bingham, of Ohio, and State Master Cox, of Readington.

May Amputate Mr. Frazee's Leg.

Augustus M. Frazee, who fractured his left leg and was taken to the hospital yesterday, does not improve very rapidly. A consultation of pysicians was held this morning, and there is a probability that a portion of his leg will have to be amputated.

Miss Conrady is also at the hospital being treated for the fractured arm. She is improving exceedingly well.

But Will They Pay?

John W. Whelan, the assignee of Mr. Derby, the Cranford grocer, has issued a statement to Mr. Derby's creditors. From the statement it appears that if the parties who owe Mr. Derby for groceries shall pay one half they owe him he will be able to pay all his debts and have something left.

Leaves Wife and Children.

Jasper Hawkes, of New Brunswick, known as "Jesse," is among the missing. On the Fourth of July he left his wife and two little ones to take care of themselves. It is said by neighbors that their separation was due to "Jesse's" love for a cousin of his wife. Hawkes was a color-mixer in the wall-paper factory of Janeway & Carpender.

Another Big Business Block.

Plans are out for the erection of a four-story building at the corner of Front street and Madison avenue, on the property owned by J. W. Jackson. It is proposed to have a large store on the first floor 200 feet deep and the rest of the building devoted to flats. Oscar S. Teale is the architect.

New Building on Park Avenue.

Ex-Judge W. R. Codington has decided to erect a two-story building on Park avenue, next to Eugene Laine's barber shop. There will be two stores with offices on the second story. Architect Clum has supervision of the construction.

Caught in the Couplers.

Ruel Snyder, a brakeman on the Central Railroad, and living at Danville, this State, had three fingers crushed while coupling cars at Greenbrook tanks this morning. He was taken to the hospital where Dr. Long dressed the fingers.

Trolley Carries Big Loads.

The trolley line between Elizabath and Newark last Sunday did its largest business—16,560 fares were rung up.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—The roof on the Bryant school is being repaired by A. M. Griffen.

—Tomorrow evening at the East Third Street mission John Cory will lead.

—Unity Lodge, No. 102, Knights of Pythias, will hold a meeting this evening.

—The execution in the case of Van-Ness vs. Stelle was issued by Justice Nash this morning.

—The broken glasses in C. W. McCutchen's conservatory has been replaced by Woolston & Buckle.

—The electric cars are prettily trimmed with flags and bunting today in honor of the employes' picnic in Vail's Grove.

—George Voehl, J. H. Carney and Wm. Trust went fishing at New Market pond yesterday afternoon. They had lots of fun but not much luck.

—Several applications for membership will be acted upon at the meeting of Perserverence Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias on Friday evening.

—Plainfield did not get the full force of last night's storm. In Flemington the streets were flooded by water which fell in torrents for over an hour.

—It's the low prices that White of Plainfield is putting on goods that makes things so lively at that busy store. Their list of trade makers is great.

—Frank Fulton, of Legget's pharmacy, went fishing at New Market yesterday afternoon, with several friends. They did not catch quite all the fish in the pond.

—The lightning affected the fire alarm wires in the borough last night and caused the gong to blow, after which a test was made and everything was found to be all right.

—The Welsbach gas burner, sold by Gavett, is getting to be more popular every day. Jaquett the new clothing store on East Front street, is putting in fifteen of them in his store.

—The Rahway City Council at its last meeting read the riot act to Superintendent Jaques, of the Electric Light Company, and threatened to at once annul the contract the city made with him if he did not furnish better service.

—Robert Robinson, who was struck by the Royal Blue Line at Garwood on Saturday while driving across the track, still lies in a critical condition at Garwood and cannot be removed to his home in Rahway. His nephew, young Winans, who was also injured, is doing nicely.

Morris Wilson Paroled.

The Court of Pardons held a meeting at Sea Girt Monday, and among the prisoners paroled or pardoned was Morris Wilson of Linden, who was sent to State Prison for one year in November last. The charge against Wilson was an alleged assult on Constable Samuel Morgan. Wilson has a family of several children, and they were almost destitute without his support. Much sympathy had been aroused in his behalf.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Should a wheelman break a spoke of his wheel, the simplest remedy is to twist it about the nearest spoke so as to be out of harm's way, and then loosen the spoke directly opposite it.

THE FAVORITE SYRUP.

It tastes like more. Tickles the palate, pleases those who know a good thing when they taste it. Let your tongue make the test. You'll say it's the best that ever crossed the ivory barriers of your mouth. You'll taste more when you taste once. So much for so little is wonderful.

SENATOR ALLISON'S IDEA.

Public Life Does Not Pay Financially, if at All.

Senator Allison, of Iowa, is one of the healthiest looking men in public life. He is now sixty-six, but he is in splendid condition, both physically and intellectually, and I might also say psychically. He has always cultivated looking at matters in a common sense, conservative way, and, while he has been a hard worker and a fairly good liver, his life has been an even one, and he has not allowed the chase for the dollar nor the ambitions of politics to contract and distort his soul. He is clear headed and clean. Always well dressed, he makes you think of a New York club man or banker rather than of the average American statesman. His black clothes are well cut, and the linen of his shirt and his broad, expansive collar, which exceeds even that of William M. Evarts in size, is of the finest material and as white as the driven snow. His hair within the last year has perceptibly whitened, and it is fast becoming iron gray. His eye, however, is bright, and the rosy corpuscles that shine through his fair skin show that his blood is full of iron. He has a strong face. His forehead is very broad and above the average height. His nose is large and his mouth and lower jaw are indicative of determination and will. He is a good story teller, and he has a hearty laugh. He was sitting at a table with a box of cigars and a pile of papers beside him when I called, and he smoked as he talked.

SENATOR ALLISON.

"It is nearly thirty-three years since you were first elected, Senator. That is a full generation. Do you think it has paid you to be a public man?"

"I don't know," replied Senator Allison, reflectively. "I have thought of it many times, and I have sometimes decided that it has not. It has been pleasant in many ways, but it has often seemed to me that it would have been better for me had I closed my public career with my term in the House. There is really a great deal of hard work connected with Congress, and my life in the Senate has been one of hard work and much worry. When I left the House in 1871, twenty-four years ago, I was, you might say, at the beginning of my prime. Had I dropped politics and devoted myself to my profession of the law I would certainly be a much richer man than I am to-day. I think, perhaps, I would have been happier."

GREAT SALT LAKE.

A Description of Its Shores, Islands and Bird Life.

The Great Salt Lake is seventy miles long and fifty miles across in its widest part. Those engaged in the manufacture of salt here say that it takes six gallons of water to make one gallon of salt.

The Salt Lake shores are mostly gray flats of indescribable barrenness, the scant dwarf sage on the water's edge often beautifully flowered with a delicate frostwork of salt spray. On the northern slopes and down the western border there are numberless springs running pure brine. But stranger than this is the fact that in several places fresh water gushes out of the sand on east Antelope within fifteen feet of the brimming lake basin. The one perfect beach is at Garfield, a dozen or so miles west of where the Jordan River is crossed and at the feet of the Oquirrhs—a grandly picturesque range in whose clefts throughout the summer the snow lies like fallen clouds. The first bathing in the lake was done at Black Rock on Garfield Beach, which has been a time honored resort for picknickers since the early fifties.

The various groups of islands in this dead sea of the western continent are fragments of mountain chains gracefully strung out on the flashing bosom of this strange water.

In the fall of the year the marshes at the mouths of the rivers that empty into the lake are covered by flocks of wild geese and ducks, with sometimes a stately blue heron or swans with beautiful white plumage. Their cheerful clatter and the fresh green of the coarse grass and singing weeds contrast delightfully with the dreary tints and solitariness of the immediate desert. There are also numbers of seagulls, which visit the marshes to fish, coming thirty miles from their rookeries on Gunnison and its neighboring isles. The main food of the gulls is known to be the infinitessimal live things found in the bitter lake brine—a small winged shrimp, a smaller fly and its larvæ, the black worm before alluded to—the three atomic creatures that comprise the animal life of the lake.—San Francisco Chronicle.

LOANED $3.00 TO GOV. MORTON.

Only Asked for Two, But Patriotism Prompted Liberality.

I was sitting in a railroad depot in Buffalo waiting for a train when a stranger approached me and said:

"It's kinder queer how hard up the best of us may get sometimes, eh?"

"How do you mean?" I asked.

"Well, I just met the Governor of New York out here, Levi P. Morton, and he asked me for the loan of two dollars."

"You don't say!"

"That's what the matter. Had his pocket picked and wanted to use two dollars right away. He didn't know what to do about it until he happened to see me."

"You know him, then?"

"Never set eyes on him afore to-day. He jest picked me outer the crowd fur a man who'd do him a favor. He only wanted two dollars, but I made him take three. He'll send it back in a few days. Ever meet the Governor?"

"I've seen him several times."

"Wonder how he got his nose broke?"

"His nose isn't broke. What sort of a man was the chap you lent the money to?"

"Red hair—side whiskers—broken nose, and two teeth out in the front."

"Governor Morton is no such looking man. You have been swindled by some sharper."

"It can't be! He said he was the Governor?"

"I might say the same thing."

"And he called me by name?"

"So can I. You are James H. Johnson. There is your name on your satchel. Is the man around here, do you think?"

We went to the door of the depot and looked around, and then went to the depot officer and he looked around, but the Governor had vanished as might be expected.

"You ought to have known better!" exclaimed the officer, after giving up the search.

"How had I orter to known better?" demanded the victim. "Didn't he pick me out as a man who'd do him a favor? Didn't he say he was Gov. Morton? Didn't he praise my confidence in human natur' when I made him take three dollars?"

"You had better go and soak your head!"

"What fur? What good will soakin' my head do?

The officer turned away with a tired look, and the old man sat down and thought it all over and then said to me:

"Yes, I guess I've been swindled, and I guess I'm to blame for it. It's a good experience, though. I feel so mighty proud about lendin' the Governor of New York three dollars that if a feller had come along and said he was the President of the United States I'd a handed him over my other seven dollars and walked 62 miles to git home."—Detroit Free Press.

BEER SALOON IN THE AIR.

Interesting Attachment to a Wind-Swept Bridge at Albany.

Within half a mile of the City Hall of Albany is a little summer saloon which has no license and pays no excise tax. It is not in Albany, nor in any other city, town or township. In fact, it is off the earth, being situated exactly in the center of the big swing bridge over the Hudson River that connects Albany with Greenbush. This bridge is owned by a stock company, from which the liquor dealer hires the privilege of maintaining his saloon.

The saloon itself is unpretentious, consisting, as it does, of a slight framework covered over with canvas. It has been built, or rather put up, for it is more of a tent than anything else, for about a month, and is doing a big business. When the proprietor first started in the excisemen from Greenbush visited him with a suggestion as to the propriety of his getting a license. He told them that his saloon wasn't in Greenbush. Subsequently the Albany contingent had a few drinks at his expense and remarked that it was time he had a license and paid a tax, to which he retorted that Albany had nothing to do with his saloon. An informal consultation between Albany and Greenbush was held to determine the rights of the matter, but it ended in a lively disagreement.

"Let 'em fight it out among themselves," said the purveyor of liquid refreshments. "The more they fight the bettter I'm suited."

Probably they are arguing the matter yet. At any rate, the half-way saloon isn't paying any excise tax. It is making money, too, for with the river breeze that blows over it night and day it is about the coolest place about Albany. Only one thing disturbs the proprietor, and that is the two cents toll on the bridge, which brings the price of a glass of beer up to seven cents.

A New Order of Things.

They appear to have considerable polyglot talent on the New York Police Board. At a hearing before the board the other day Commissioner Parker spoke fluently in English, French, German and Hebrew to witnesses who could talk only in some one of these tongues. There was a time when a New York Police Commissioner couldn't even talk English, but times have changed, and Police Commissioners have changed with them apparently.—Boston Herald.

Done by a Blind Painter.

"A most wonderful bit of work. Those things were painted by a blind painter."

"What were?"

"Those blinds."—Rochester Union and Advertiser.

"The Yerkes telescope," they say, "will bring the moon within fifty miles of the earth."

"That's bad for the moon. The Bell Telephone Company will nab it sure!"—Chicago Tribune.

The Ideal Panacea.

James L. Francis, Alderman, Chicago, says: "I regard Dr. King's New Discovery as an Ideal Panacea for Coughs, Colds and Lung Complaints, having used it in my family for the last five years, to the exclusion of physicians' prescriptions or other preparations."

Rev. John Burgus, Keokuk, Iowa, writes: "I have been a minister of the Methodist Episcopal church for fifty years or more, and have never found anything so beneficial or that gave me such speedy relief as Dr. King's New Discovery." Try this Ideal Cough Remedy now. Trial bottle free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

It May Do as Much For You.

Mr. Fred Miller of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a Severe Kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called Kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure all Kidney and Liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c for large bottle, at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared, and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. Marlow, M. D., Tamaroa, Ill. For sale by Reyuolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

Chamberlain's is the best of all. Vincent S. Barkl, of Danbury, Iowa, has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy whenever in need of a medicine for coughs and colds, for the past five years and says: "It always helps me out. If anyone asks me what kind of cough medicine I use, I reply, Chamberlain's, that is the best of all. 25 and 50c. bottles for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. Price 25c per box. For sale by L. W. Randolph, druggist.

Shiloh's Cure, the great cough and croup cough, is in great demand. Pocket size contains 25 doses, only 25c. Children love it. Sold by all druggists.

Captain Sweeney, U. S. A., San Diego, Cal., says: "Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy is the first medicine I have ever found that would do me any good." Price 50c. Sold by all druggists.

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freemyer House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for any kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the diseases for which it is intended and he knows it. It is for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

A Remarkable Case

By Duffield Osborne

Our train had been snow-bound for nearly two days. At first most of us were very naturally restless and impatient; but, as the hours drifted by, we grew philosophically resigned. Two of the trainmen, together with several passengers, had volunteered to fight their way to the nearest station and bring relief; so there was nothing to do but occupy our minds with cards, conversation and smoke, and try to forget that our stomachs had been put on short allowance.

With this aim several men gathered at one end of the smoker and took to spinning yarns, first humorous, then of adventure, and finally drifting into what are known as "detective stories." There were five of us besides myself; two drummers, one from New York and one from Chicago; a Frenchman, who had been "doing" the country; a fussy old gentleman on his way east to attend his daughter's wedding which he was pretty reasonably sure to miss, and a gaunt, powerfully built man, with a sombre, nervous face and gray hair, who suggested a cross between a New York stock broker and a Kentucky colonel.

The Frenchman, one of the best companions, by the by, I ever met, had just concluded, amid an avalanche of weirdly accentuated English and a cyclone of gesticulation, a "true" story of the most pronounced Gaboriau type, when our sombre nondescript cleared his throat. He had shown no interest whatever in the humorous tales of the drummers, and had paid but little more attention when the theme shifted to travel and adventure. The detective vein seemed, however, to rouse him somewhat, though hitherto he had evinced no disposition to bear his share of the telling. Therefore, when he did speak, we all turned to him with the greater alacrity.

"I suppose some of you will recall the name of John Phillips?" he said, looking around.

"The big detective who died a few years ago? Sure!" put in one of the drummers.

"Yes," continued the first speaker; "the greatest, perhaps the only really great detective this country has ever produced."

"Let me see—but was he an American?" I asked. "It seems to me I heard once that he was an Italian."

"No. His father was a Neapolitan. Sebastian Phillips—the name was originally Phillippi," went on the other. "Sebastian came to New York when quite young, married a Southern woman, and went into the business of importing fruit from Sicily. His son was born here and, when old enough, made several voyages on his father's ships. They tell how he had a quarrel with one of the captains once, deserted at Messina, and wasn't heard of for over a year—lived among the peasants in the interior. So, you see, he was an adventurous young fellow, even in those days; but the experience was just what was needed to make him what he afterwards became. Take the subtile intelligence of an Italian, and add to it an American mother and an American education, topped off with several years of life right down among the lower classes, and you've got the best foundation for a good detective that I can imagine."

"Well, he was a good one," interrupted drummer No. 2. "Somebody told me once—but, pardon me, sir——"

"I was going to tell you of perhaps the most remarkable case that John Phillips ever unraveled," said the sombre man.

"Let's have it by all means," came from us in a chorus, in which the offending drummer joined heartily. The sombre man leaned back in his seat, half closed his eyes and began:

A number of years ago I was residing with an elder brother at a certain village situated on the Hudson river not far from the northern end of the Palisades. Our family was composed of my brother Robert, his daughter Mary, myself and a negro servant of the name of Pompey Augustus Anderson. My brother's wife had died shortly after the birth of my niece, who was, at the time I speak of, a remarkably handsome though delicate girl. She was clever, too, and, at times, erratically brilliant; but she was a creature of strange moods, and there were days when she would hardly speak to any one of the household, and would either shut herself up in her room or wander off through the fields and woods, even managing to return late for meals so as to avoid sitting at table with us. My brother worried a good deal over these eccentricities; but I used to console him with the idea that young girls of from fifteen to eighteen were apt to be dreamy and morbid at times.

Well, we lived in that way for upward of four years; and the only excitement that broke in on the monotony of our lives was my niece's first love affair. The young man, a New Yorker, had been rusticated that fall by one of the New England colleges which he was attending, and his family had sent him up to our village with a private tutor to spend a few weeks in study and contemplation. I never considered him a positively bad fellow, but he was certainly a very lively one, and some of his escapades, of which we learned later, had been startling and original, even for a collegian.

It was the most natural thing in the world that he and Mary should imagine themselves in love with each other. There was practically no masculine society for her in the village, and she was the only young woman there of refinement, beauty and education. Therefore, Jack Ralph, as we will call him—though that was not his real name—spent a great deal of time at our house.

My brother, as people are apt to do, paid no attention to the affair, pooh-poohed all my warnings, and buried himself in his books. Then, too, he was very much exercised at the time over his quarrels with a new railroad which was running its line through our place, and had made a most unsightly cut about two hundred yards from the house. He had fought the matter in the courts and had been beaten. The dispute now was as to the company's bridging this cut, which they had agreed to do, but which they delayed so persistently that there seemed to be considerable malice in it. In fact, I may say all the work had been prosecuted in a most dilatory way, and for several months we had been subjected to the annoyance of having gangs of Italians tramping around our lawns and making us feel that it was unsafe for Mary to go out unattended.

Amid such far from soothing contemplations, my brother was dumfounded by a point-blank request from young Ralph that he might become engaged to Mary. Then there was a scene. Robert was, I am bound to say, a selfish father, and I doubt whether any suitor would have been received with much favor; but he was also inclined to be puritanical in his notions, and, from what he had heard of Ralph's exploits, that young man would have been the last to overcome his selfishness. There were too many and too plausible grounds for rational objection. If I tell you also that my brother had a violent temper, you can perhaps imagine what occurred. There was much strong language on one side and finally some flippant impudence on the other. Nothing but my appearance prevented a personal encounter. I finally got Ralph safely out of the house; but the situation was awkward enough. He was obliged to remain in the village until recalled by his family or college, and our prospects for peace and comfort during the balance of his stay seemed poor enough.

Mary was, naturally, highly indignant, and, drawing within herself, as was her habit, refused utterly to hold any but the most necessary intercourse with us or to make any promise as to not seeing her lover. Then there were more scenes—threats of personal confinement on my brother's part, and moody, stubborn resistance on my niece's. I even began to wonder whether we weren't all a bit "off" by inheritance from a great-grandmother of Robert's and mine who was known to have been mentally unsound.

Four days passed; and then a terrible event happened. My brother was found lying dead in the railway cut at the foot of the lawn, with a ragged, contused wound in his right temple and a very extensive fracture of the skull. The whole village was, of course, intensely excited. Nothing so interesting had happened there within the memory of the oldest inhabitant, and the theorists of the country store argued the matter over among themselves and with the reporters that came up from the city. There were two very decided opinions that found adherents in not unequal force. A small majority held that my brother had gone out for the walk which he always took before breakfast, had fallen into the cut and been killed. Quite a large majority, which included, however, most of the foreign and reportorial talent, looked mysterious and intimated that the dead man had been in a great deal of hot water, and that it was more than likely he had been knocked on the head and then thrown down the embankment. The coroner convened his jury of local wiseacres, and the usual intelligent verdict was propounded, to wit: That "Robert" (Smith, let us call him) "came to his death from a fracture of the skull caused by sudden contact with some dull instrument or material."

During the twenty-four hours when all this was transpiring I had been thinking hard; and I could not get rid of the idea that there was something wrong in the affair—something more than mere accident. At the same time, I was disposed to admit to myself that my notion was based rather on intuition than on any really good reasons. To be sure, I had been a witness of the bitter quarrel between my brother and Jack Ralph; but it seemed impossible to suspect the young collegian of such an act. Then, too, his attitude was the last to be adopted by a guilty man who was not also a lunatic. He went around the village announcing more or less openly that he guessed the old man had been killed by some one he had insulted, and that, from his own experience, he wasn't disposed to be very hard on the party who did it. To all questions as to what his own experience had been, he utterly refused to vouchsafe an answer. This was pretty nearly enough; but when our servant, Pompey Augustus Anderson, who had been, since my brother's death, in a condition of nervous excitement bordering on hysteria, went before the justice of the peace and deposed that he had overheard the quarrel between his master and Ralph, and gave its details with very reasonable accuracy, the latter was promptly arrested and confined in Justice Bennett's house, pending his removal to the county jail. Then I felt that it was time to have some detective talent superior to that of the village constable set to work on the case. I was well acquainted with the superintendent of the New York police department; in fact, I had had some influence in getting him his appointment. Therefore, a telegram from me, asking that he send us his best man at once, was promptly honored and, within thirty-six hours of the finding of my brother's body, John Phillips walked into the library where I was sitting.

I remember Phillips as well as if I saw him before me now—a dark man, with straight black hair and rather beady eyes. His features were as delicate as a woman's, and his figure was small and slight—almost dapper. Only the cords that stood out in his neck and wrists went to show that he was made of tempered steel.

His expression was very grave and serious as he bowed and handed me an unsealed letter from the superintendent. It read as follows:

"Dear Sir—This will introduce Mr. John Phillips, whose name is perhaps familiar to you. You are very fortunate in obtaining his services, as both his health and a combination of engagements and circumstances conspired against his taking up this case. I have, however, felt under obligations to do my very best for you, and, at my most urgent solicitation, he has consented to waive everything and devote himself to your matter. Yours truly,

"EDWARD L. SANFORD."

Having finished reading the above note, I shook hands with the great detective and began to express my thanks. These, however, he very quickly cut short.

"You have nothing to thank me for," he said coldly. "I am here under orders; and now, sir, pardon me if I ask you to tell me all you know of the circumstances connected with your brother's death. Time is always precious, and this must excuse any apparent brusqueness on my part."

His manner was indeed almost repellant, but, as I looked more closely at his face, it seemed so drawn that I was conscious of a guilty pang at having been even indirectly instrumental in dragging a sick man into what bade fair to be a very arduous piece of work. There was nothing to do, however, but to relate, as briefly and yet as exhaustively as possible, all that I knew.

Phillips, during the recital, sat with his head resting upon his hand, while his eyes wandered incessantly about the apartment. He did not interrupt me once, but, when I had finished, proceeded to put his questions. Then it was that every vestige of languor vanished. His face became strangely animated, while his eyes fairly glittered.

"You have been very full in everything that bears upon Mr. Ralph's connection with the matter," he began; "and I congratulate you. A professional could not have stated it more clearly. Can you tell me, though, with a little more exactness, just what you know about your brother's disputes or altercations with the Italians who were at work on the railroad cut?"

"To tell the truth," I replied, "I know very little about it. My brother always imagined that the company was trying to retaliate, by petty annoyances and delays in the work, for his legal opposition to their schemes. About a month ago he came in one morning in a towering passion, cursing the whole Italian race and the foreman of this gang in particular. It appeared that he had gone down to remonstrate with them—a proceeding which I knew he would not be apt to conduct very gently, that the foreman had been impudent and said, in effect, that the court had given them permission and they'd do the work as they pleased and build the bridge when they got ready. Then my brother lost his temper completely, said that the New Orleans people were the only ones who understood how to deal with the Italian question, and that he proposed to get the damned cowardly Mafia off his place, if it took a shotgun to do it. From what I gathered, very little was said in reply. Two or three of the laborers were rather threatening; but the foreman quieted them with a few words in Italian, and my brother rushed back to the house. I will not deny that the incident troubled me considerably for a time, though Robert laughed at my fears. Nevertheless, I took occasion to go down to the cut once or twice and talk pleasantly to the foreman. I was surprised to find him disposed to be remarkably polite, and, shortly after, when the company drew the workmen off to another part of the road, he expressed his regret to me that they had not been able to complete the bridge before their departure. For the last two weeks none of them have been seen in the neighborhood, and my fears had entirely subsided when this terrible event happened."

"Very good," he said, "and now may I ask you to summon your colored man? I believe you stated that he made the affidavit implicating Ralph?"

To my surprise, I found some difficulty in persuading the negro to tell Phillips his story. "Wha's de good, Massa Harry?" he kept repeating; and nothing but my absolute orders availed to bring him into the library. Once there, he showed much agitation at first. Then he braced himself and launched out into a voluble relation of the quarrel between Ralph and my brother, ending up with:

M. Palmer's Trilby Company, Wednesday, November 27th; Byrne Brothers' Eight Bells, Tuesday, December 3d; The Cotton King Company, Monday, December 30th; A Cracker Jack, Tuesday, February 4th, 1896; The Gilhooly's Abroad, Gorman's Company, Wednesday, February 26th; Modjeska, Friday, April 20th.

Was This The Man?

Detectives are still at work trying to get a clue to the man who took the trunk from the North Avenue station last Saturday, but as yet nothing tangible has been discovered, except that Mrs. Johnson, of Manning avenue, saw a man go through that avenue yesterday morning about three o'clock with a canvas covered trunk on a hand cart. The man went up Somerset street toward the mountains, but nothing has been seen of him since.

Of Practical Value.

The Housekeeper, published at Minneapolis, is what its name implies. Its contents are full of practical suggestions and ideas that are of value to the wife and daughters who delight in making the home a cozy place that will be an attraction for them in their hours of rest and recreation. It well deserves the title of "A journal of domestic economy." It is published at Minneapolis, Minn.

Broke Her Finger.

Mrs. Evans, wife of Major Evans, of the Salvation Army, broke her finger yesterday afternoon. She was walking on East Second street in front of Jack Stevens' blacksmith shop, when she tripped on a projecting stone and fell, breaking her finger. Driver Dunavan of the Alert Hose Company, was driving by in a light rode wagon and took the injured woman to her home.

Small Sized Flood.

A fact worthy of note is that one million and three quarter gallons of water is now being pumped daily into the stand pipe at the water works. Of this amount the city of Plainfield uses about two thirds and the other one-third goes down the road towards Elizabeth, supplying the different towns.

Lucky to Escape.

While West Brokaw, of Vanderbeek and Sattels, was passing along West Fifth street Tuesday evening during the thunder storm, he received a shock from a vivid flash of lightning and for a short time was completely dazed. He feels the effect of it yet.

Before Justice Newcorn.

In Justice Newcorn's court yesterday the case of Henesey against Chase was adjourned to September 27th, and the Justice issued a summons in the case of Crandall and Godley against Schmidt on contract, which is returnable July 29th.

Profane Language.

Complaint was made to Chief Grant yesterday by residents of Fourth street, near Park avenue, that the sewer men were using indecent language. It is safe to say it will not occur again.

Knocked Out By Lightning.

Tuesday's thunder storm did do some damage after all. The chimney to the house in the rear of L. L. Manning's marble yard was struck by lightning and demolished. It was repaired yesterday.

Lost His Finger.

Ruel Snyder, the Central Railroad brakeman who had three fingers injured at the Greenbrook tanks yesterday, was obliged to lose the first finger and part of the third. Dr. Long performed the operation.

Plainfield Enterprise.

L. L. Manning, the popular Front street stone cutter, shipped a large and handsomely carved monument to Pittsfield, Mass.

A BIG PULLMAN RUMOR.

POSSIBILITY OF CAR SHOPS BEING BUILT IN UNION COUNTY.

A Tract of Real Estate Purchased Between Cranford and Elizabeth Gives Substance to the Report.

One of the largest real-estate transactions in this vicinity is the sale of the Benedict farm in Union and Cranford townships. The property, which was purchased by Charles W. Monahan, trustee, of East Orange, contains 105 acres. Its price was $21,100.

This deal lends a color of probability, says the Cranford Chronicle, to an article appearing in one of the Elizabeth papers on Saturday, and which is as follows:

"The big Pullman car-works, of Illinois, will before mid-winter be in full operation on a stretch of land a mile wide, which, for the past five months, has been bought up in small tracts by one of the prominent gentlemen farmers of Union county. The exact location of the big plant-proper cannot yet be divulged, but it will not be far from Cranford and the Central railroad. In the vicinity will be erected a young city of small houses for employes, including school houses, churches and other accessories to a young town. A trolley line will be constructed from Irvington to Cranford station, and is designed to tap the Elizabeth and Summit rapid transit road. Five million dollars will, it is said, be expended in constructing the cars, works, and the town.

"The purchased property on the south side extends very near to the Elizabeth city line and close to the plot known as Ursino Park."

NEW ELECTRIC COMPANY.

Its Operations to Be at Plainfield and Vicinity.

The Citizens Electric Company filed articles of incorporation with County Clerk Howard this morning. The incorporators are Harry G. Runkle, Elias R. Pope and James C. Pope all of Plainfield. The capital of the company is given at $50,000, and it will do business in Plainfield, North Plainfield and vicinity.

E. R. Pope was seen by a Press reporter this morning, and when asked as to the plans and intentions of the new company, refused to divulge the nature of them.

Missed the Mark.

A young man by the name of Lewis, who has charge of Lusardi's fruit store at the corner of Front and Somerset streets, received a severe cut in the palm of his left hand this morning while opening a box of oranges with a small hatchet. He missed the mark, and resulted in his cutting himself. He went to J. H. Leggett's drug store where the latter dressed the wound and applied a solution to remove the soreness.

Too Much Music.

For the past few days two Italians have been in town with a street piano. At night they would take it to the Metropolitan stables and some of the stablemen succeeded in arousing the indignation of nearby neighbors by grinding out music the biggest part of the night. Policeman Frederickson was complained to and soon put a stop to the nuisance.

Want a Schoolhouse.

The people of Garwood are making demands for a schoolhouse in that part of the township, claiming that it is so far to Westfield that the younger children cannot attend school there. The township Board of Education have the matter under consideration, and may provide primary school facilities there when the fall terms open.

The Difference.

Philadelphia, the city of Brotherly Love, is far behind Plainfield in civilization. In Philadelphia they still hang folks and wipe their gums on the door mat. But Plainfield hangs wall paper only by Brother Love, corner of North and Watchung avenues.

Following Good Advice.

Following the advice of The Daily Press the Street Railway Company is spreading crushed stone on East and West Front street and repairing the bad spots.

To the Park Overland.

Judge Coddington left this afternoon with his spanking pair of bays for Asbury Park, where will he keep them during his sojourn there this Summer.

As Delegates.

Fred Dunn, R. W. Barnes and J. A. Smith attended the semi-annual meeting of the State Grocers Association held at Morristown yesterday.

BOROUGH OF MOUNTAINSIDE.

Locust Grove, Branch Mills and Baltusrol to Have a New Government.

The citizens in and around Locust Grove are determined to have a government separate from Westfield, of whom they are now a part. Tuesday evenig a meeting was held, and much enthusiasm manifested. A series of resolutions were introduced and passed in which it was asserted that the Westfield Township Committee have turned a deaf ear to strenuous protests against the injustice of compelling them to pay for improvements in the village remote from their section. They sanctioned and approved the action of the self-constituted committee who have thus far had the matter in charge, and resolved to proceed according to the statute made and provided, to organize a borough in the northern part of Westfield Township, to contain not more than four square miles, to include Locust Grove, Branch Mills and Baltusrol, said borough to be known as the "Borough of Mountainside."

A committee of three was appointed, representing Locust Grove, Branch Mills and Baltusrol, to caary the resolution into effect.

The following committee were appointed: Wm. Miller, chairman; Chas. Badgley, Joseph W. Cory.

MOONSHINERS CAUGHT.

Revenue Officers Surprise a Still in Montclair.

Hiram Sirkin and his two sons, Simon and Bernard, with Nathan Hinkel, were arrested yesterday at Montclair by United States Marshal Brooks and two revenue officers, with the assistance of the local police. They were charged with manufacturing contraband whiskey. For some time past Marshal Brooks has been trying to get on the trail of moonshiners, and, although the still was in that town, they always boarded and left the trains at Bloomfield, and time and again eluded the officers.

Yesterday morning the illicit distillery was found in a new house on Gray street, near the Bloomfield line, and preparations were made to capture the gang. The officers had very little trouble in getting into the house. In the cellar they found all in full blast. There were barrels of mash, the engine puffing away and whiskey pouring out. When the officers entered Sirkin and his two sons were hard at work. The outfit was complete and new in every detail.

Sirkin and his sons were locked up and about an hour later Hinkel was arrested. He was the buyer for the establishment. Bills for sugar, yeast and flavors purchased of Wilson & Gaddis, of Newark, were found on his person. In the cellar were thirty-two gallons of whiskey. Last Monday night eleven barrels were hauled into New York. The still has been at work two months, and it is estimated that thirty-five barrels of whiskey have been sent to Newark and New York.

No Such Thing.

Dr. D. A. Adams accompanied by J. N. Honeyman, of Duer street, spent a part of yesterday at Sewaren Beach. The fishing was excellent, the Doctor and Mr. Honeyman landing seventeen fine tide-runners, but a zealous fellow anchored near the Doctor and did not catch a fish, and he says fourteen of those landed by the Doctor were toad fish.

Mr. Armstrong's Affliction.

F. W. Armstrong, father of T. S. Armstrong, of Reynold's Pharmacy, died at his home, Camden, early yesterday morning, after an illness of about seven months. He leaves a widow, six sons and one daughter to mourn his loss. He was a devout Christian man and one of Camden's most honored citizens.

Death of John Tracey.

The death of John Tracey occusred at his home in South Plainfield yesterday. He leaves a wife and two children. The funeral will be held at Metuchen tomorrow morning. Death was caused by pneumonia.

A Blight of Joy.

One woman arrived at the North avenue station this morning just in time to see the excursion train leave. Her hopes of enjoying the day at the beach were unfortunately disappointed.

Mr. Hartley Wins.

The tie for third place between A. Hartley and G. H. Ryder, in the tennis tournament, on East Front street, was played off yesterday afternoon, Mr. Hartley winning 6-1; 6-1.

Good Appointment.

Dr. W. L. Mattison, of the borough, has just received his commission from the Secretary of State, as Justice of the Peace, for a term of five years.

TALK OF NIAGARA FALLS EXCURSION.

The Long Named Tribe May Journey to the Brink.

An interesting meeting was held in the wigwam of Paugh Caugh Naugh Sinque Tribe last night. There was a large attendance and a great deal of important business was transacted.

The Fourth of July committee made their final report, showing that all bills were paid. The tribe showed their appreciation of the efforts of this committee by extending a vote of thanks, and praising them warmly for the fine showing they made in the parade.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Geo. H. Babcock for the use of her magnificent black horses on the Fourth. These beautiful animals added greatly to the appearance of the float. They and the gigantic colored men in charge of them will long be remembered by Plainfielders, as one of the principal features of the parade.

A number of visitors were present, and gave very interesting talks on team work and Redmanship generally. There is considerable talk of an excursion to Niagara Falls in the near future.

PICNIC NOT ABANDONED.

Railway Employes Will Have Their Festivities Continued Tonight.

Peltering raindrops brought to an abrupt end the picnic of the Street Railway Employes and drenched those in attendance last night. Extensive arrangements had been made to accommodate the big crowd which was assured. The pleasures of the evening had just commenced when the storm broke and, of course, all scattered to places of shelter.

The projectors have went to such expense in making the arrangements that they have decided to continue the picnic and festivities this evening in the same grove.

The Somerset County Fair.

That is the name of an organization formed in Somerville; Lawyer Steele was chairman of the meeting and A. P. Sutphen, Secretary. A little over $1,000 has been subscribed by residents of the county, mostly business men of Somerville, and it has been decided to hire the grounds of the old association and hold a fair in September or October. Committee to draw up articles of incorporation, etc., and to nominate officers were appointed, and they are to report at a meeting.

A Big Purchase.

Edward White made an immense purchase of summer wash goods in New York yesterday. The goods consist of Grecian lawns, imported ducks, figured fiques, and crepe cloths and cost the manufactures 12 and 15 cents a yard. They will be put on sale tomorrow at the remarkably low price of 7 cents a yard. You buy two dress patterns for the price of one.

Carrying the Gospel to Westfield.

On Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, Rev. Edward Kionka will hold Lutheran services at Etta Hall in Westfield. Preaching will be in German. Superintendent Morse, of the Garwood Union chapel, has tendered the use of the chapel to Mr Kionka that he may hold Lutheran services there any Sunday.

An Excursion of Delegates.

The members of the Seventh Day Baptist church, together with their many friends from various parts of the United States, who will be here in annual conference in August, will enjoy an excursion to Asbury Park August 27th.

No Clue in Rahway.

Chief of Police Grant was in Rahway yesterday looking for a valuable trunk that was stolen out of the baggage office Saturday evening. He did not get any clue to the missing trunk in Rahway.

Operated on for Hernia.

Charles Holmstedt, of Mt. Bethel, who is suffering from hernia, had an operation performed yesterday by Dr. Long, at the hospital, which was very successful. Today Mr. Holmstedt is improving nicely.

Six-Footer Can Reach It.

The letter box, located on the corner La Grande and Putnam avenues, has been lowered, and now anybody less than six feet tall can reach it.

Riding Without a Light.

Howard Wilson was fined $5 by Judge Coddington this morning for riding a bicycle on West Front street without a light.

A Stranger No More.

OLD LADY BURNED TO DEATH.

MRS. CONGER IGNITED FURNISHINGS IN HER ROOM WITH A CANDLE.

Parts of Her Body Were Literally Roasted—Lingered in Agony for Three Hours—Respected and Well Known.

Mrs. Miner A. Conger, of Cranford, died Tuesday night at 12 o'clock from the results of horrible burns received earlier in the evening. She was a widow, and resided with her daughter, Mrs. John C. Dennan.

Mrs Conger was fifty-six years of age, and one of her customs was to use a candle instead of a lamp. Tuesday night, about 9 o'clock, she lighted her candle and went to her room on the second floor. About ten minutes later the servants were alarmed by agonized cries for help that came from Mrs. Conger's room. They rushed up stairs and burst open the door.

They were horrified to find the room filled with smoke and flames. The bed clothing, curtains and number of the articles were burning, while in the middle of the room lay Mrs. Conger. Her clothing was blazing furiously and she was making feeble endeavors to extinguish the flames.

Mrs Conger was burned in a horrible manner. The flesh on some parts of her body was burned to a crisp, while in others it was literally roasted. Her sufferings must have been terrible before she was overcome by the extreme pain and became insensible.

Doctors MacConnell, Sr. and Jr., were summoned, and did all within the possibilities of medical science to relieve the suffering woman, but her injuries were so terrible that recovery was impossibe. Only once did Mrs. Conger speak, and then she asked for water. She lingered in agony until midnight, when death relieved her sufferings.

Mrs. Conger at one time was a resi- of Westfield, though for some time she has resided with her daughter in Cranford. She was quite well known and was highly respected by a large circle of friends. The funeral will take place tomorrow. It will be private. The interment will take place in Greenwood Cemetery.—Elizabeth Journal.

Stars and Stripes With Them.

Collector Spencer, of the borough, received a postal card this morning, under date of July 8th, from A. D. V. Honeyman. It was mailed from the Isle of Wight and says: "This is to say I havn't forgotten you, though 3,500 miles away. We are on a coaching trip, and it is the finest I ever took. Tomorrow we go to Lord Tennyson's; only a little coaching trip of forty-five miles. We have twelve horses and six men, and ride like earls and dukes, and carry three American flags wherever we go. Many a poor woman whose boy is abroad salutes the Stars and Stripes, and we cheer them."

Matthews Made President.

The new Elizabeth Board of Education was organized by the Republicans last night. They succeeded in electing their candidate for president, George P. Matthews, by a party vote, 7 to 5. There was a hitch over the secretaryship, some Republicans bolting the caucus nominee, Joseph D. Lowden, and voting blank. Three ballots were taken, each resulting: Lowden, 6; Ryan, 5; blank, 1. Further balloting was stopped, and William H. Ryan, the Democratic secretary, will for the present hold over.

Sale Again Deferred.

The Sherriff's sale of the Fowler Car Works at Elizabeth, which was to take place to day, was postponed a week. It may be again postponed, as President Searles, of the company, has got from the court a rule to show cause why the sale should not be further deferred. This writ was served on Judge Gilhooly, counsel for Henry H. Isham, of Brooklyn, who is selling the plant under foreclosure. Mr. Isham claims the plant owes him about $40,000. Its estimated value is over $100,000.

Paid the Preacher in Full.

The consistory of the Spotswood Reformed church held a meeting yesterday afternoon, and decided to pay the salary of the pastor, Rev. W. H. Van Doren, in full up to September 1, 1895, which is the date when his term expires. This is satisfactory to the pastor, who is still occupying the parsonage. A successor has not been elected as yet.

Along Legal Lines.

The landlord and tenant case of Eggerding against Zimmer came up in Justice Newcorn's court this morning and possession was given to the claimant.

The case of Eddy against Ward on contract is returnable in Justice Newcorn's court July 26.

TO WHIFF OCEAN BREEZES.

Fifteen Cars of Excursionists Leave for Asbury Park This Morning.

Fifteen cars of happy excursionists left this morning for Asbury Park where they will enjoy all that that great resort offers for the pleasure seekers. The cars were all well filled and some looked crowded, but as there was only one section all had to go on that or stay at home. As the day was such a promising one all took the chances of being crowded for a time in order that they might have a whiff of the cool breezes for which Asbury Park is noted. It was noticeable that more young people went on this excursion than any other of the season from Plainfield. Many of them took their wheels. When Long Branch is reached many of the boys expect to get off and ride to the Park. Among the churches included were the Congregational, First Presbyterian and Park Avenue Baptist.

TROUBLE AMONG THE JUNIORS.

A New Brunswick Secret Society Fighting Among Themselves.

Serious trouble has arisen since John Kinsey, a member of Goodwill Council, Junior Order of American Mechanics, of New Brunswick, attempted to organize another council in that city. Recently Mr. Kinsey, after securing more than fifty applicants to join the new organization, made application to Goodwill Council for a charter. At a meeting of Goodwill Council on Monday night resolutions were passed protesting against the formation of the new council on the ground that it would injure their council, because one could become a member upon paying a small initiation fee and without undergoing a medical examination. Goodwill Council will appoint a committee to present the matter before the board of officers of the State Council. Goodwill Council is the largest secret-society lodge in New Brunswick, having a membership of 500. It is also one of the most active in the order, having supplied many State and National officers out of its ranks. Mr. Kinsey says that he will go ahead with his scheme. He expects to have at least seventy-five applicants to the new organization.

THE FARMER DID NOT STOP.

An Early Morning Episode Near the Park Avenue Bridge.

Two young men with a horse and light wagon rented from a Plainfield livery were returning home this morning about one o'clock. Near the Park avenue railroad bridge a farmer with a heavy wagon ran into them, completely smashing the wheel of the light vehicle. The horse attempted to run away but the young men quickly quieted the horse. One tried to stop the farmer by catching the reins, when one of the rear wheels ran over his right food, causing him much pain. The farmer did not stop and the young men do not know who he is.

The light horse and wagon was returned to the livery.

Not So Bad After All.

It was reported in Jersey City yesterday that the Grand Jury had indicted four men for selling liquor on Sunday, but the story was not exactly correct. One dead man was indicted, his name being Patrick Sullivan. He died six months ago, and his widow is running the place in his name. The other errors were of the same sort, except that the former proprietors are not dead. They merely sold out and moved away. Their names were left over the door as part of the good will. New indictments will be substituted bearing the correct names.

Miantonomoh to be Jolly.

At the meeting of Miantonomoh Tribe, I. O. R. M., tomorrow night, the excursion committee will make a report, and the good and welfare committee will furnish an excellent entertainment consisting of vocal and instrumental music and recitations. There will also be short and long talks. A collation will follow.

Oh! Wasn't He Mad.

As an evidence of how the truth cut Mr. Runyon regarding his Chinese labor wages of $3.50 a week, against $13 to $20 paid by The Press, one has only to read his lying tirade on The Press in last night's Courier-News.

A Bird's Eye View.

John French has erected a substantial wooden tower on Johnston drive, as a lookout. The view to be obtained at this place is wonderful and well worth seeing.

—The women's prayer meeting of the Park Avenue Baptist church will be held at half-past three o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the residence of Mrs. Seely Edsall, 49 Sandford avenue.

THEIR HOPES WRECKED

Liberals Suffering Defeat in All Quarters.

Results in Scotland and Wales Disappointing to Them — Unionists Expected To Win Even in Gladstone's Old District—Comment of the Liberals' Organ.

London, July 18.—The latest returns show the election of 229 conservatives; 42 unionists; 62 liberals; 26 anti-Parnellites, and six Parnellites. The total gains thus far are: Conservatives, 40; unionists, 14, and liberals, 10, making the net unionist gain 44 seats.

Unionists Continue To Gain.

The story of the polls yesterday was much the same as on previous days. The returns announced to-day show that the unionists continue to gain seats, increase their former majorities, and, where they were unable to oust liberals, to materially reduce the latter's figures.

Trevelyan's Reduced Majority.

Sir George O. Trevelyan, secretary for Scotland in Lord Rosebery's administration, had a hard fight to retain his seat. At the last election he had a majority of 1,378. Yesterday this was reduced to 400.

Prominent Liberals Defeated.

Among the more prominent liberals who failed of election to-day was Sir Charles Cameron, the champion of Scottish disestablishment, who was defeated in the College division of Glasgow by Sir J. Stirling Maxwell. The latter is a member of one of the oldest and wealthiest families of Scotland.

In Scotland and Wales.

The losses in Glasgow, together with the unionist successes in Edinburgh, tend to lessen the cofidence of the liberals in Scotland rallying to their support, despite the reaction against them in England. Two unionist victories in Wales, at Swansea town and in the Carmarthen district, also depress the hopes that the liberals placed in the principality.

Gladstone's District in Doubt.

In view of the drift of events much interest is centered in the election in Edinburgshire (Mid-Lothian), Mr. Gladstone's old district. In 1885 Mr. Gladstone's majority was 4,631. In 1886 he was returned without opposition, and in 1892 his majority was pulled down to 799. It would be no great surprise to find the district represented by a unionist in the next parliament, although Mr. Gladstone, in his recent farewell to his constituents, recommended Sir T. G. Carmichael, the liberal candidate, to the electors.

Expect To Be Independent of All.

The conservatives hope to have in the next house a majority sufficiently large to render them independent of the liberal unionists. Should they have such a majority, it is certain that certain liberal unionist leaders, notably Joseph Chamberlain, the new colonial minister, will find himself shorn of some of the power he has arrogated to himself since the overthrow of the Rosebery government.

Into Power on Beer.

The Daily News, the liberal organ, says to-day: "The polling in London, resulting in the return of eight liberals and fifty-one tories, have wrecked the liberal hopes, and exceeded the wildest expectations of the tories. The elections turned almost exclusively on local option. Numbers of liberals refused to support the party while this fatal measure was on its programme. It is 1874 over again. Lord Salisbury's government, like Lord Beaconsfield's, floats into power on beer."

HEAT AND HAILSTONES.

St. Louis Experiences a Variety of Weather.

St. Louis, July 18.—With the thermometer at 98 degrees yesterday a hailstorm began bombarding the north end of the city. The fall lasted ten minutes. Shade trees, windows and light structures were demolished. Twenty persons and many animals were injured. Some of the hailstones measured four inches in circumference. The thermometer fell 20 degrees. Following the storm the sun shone hotter than before. Twenty-two persons were overcome by the heat.

Editor Lingane Sues His Assailant.

Providence, R. I., July 18.—One result of the assault made by William C. Swineburn, of Newport, upon the editor of the Telegram, David E. Lingane, near the Athletic club Saturday night, was the issuance of a writ for $10,000 damages. Editor Lingane is still confined to his house under medical care, but he is mending.

Would Not Cut Cuffee's Hair.

Sag Harbor, L. I., July 18.—Coachman Cuffee, the negro who applied to Barber Mink to have his hair cut and who was refused by the barber on account of his color, will begin proceedings for damages under the Mably law. Cuffee says he will allow his hair to grow until the case is decided.

Desperate Prisoner Escapes.

Chicago, July 18.—Charles Davis, colored, wanted at Bordertown, N. J., for attempted murder, who was under arrest in Evanston made his escape Tuesday night. The officer arrived to take him east, but when he went for his prisoner he found the iron bars twisted and broken and Davis gone.

Lightning at Rancocas.

Mount Holly, N. J., July 18.—Several large barns, together with their contents, on Pierre Lorillard's Rancocas stock farm, at Johnstown, were struck by lightning during Tuesday night's storm and destroyed. The loss which amounts to about $10,000 is partially covered by insurance.

Fatal Fire in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, July 18.—At a fire in the warehouse of J. H. Heimisch & Co., yesterday, at Water and Walnut streets, two firemen were killed and sixteen injured by the falling of the Front street wall.

A Degree for Miss Maltby.

Berlin, July 18.—An American lady, Miss Maltby, has obtained the degree of doctor of philosophy at the Goettingen university.

A MYSTERY TO PHYSICIANS.

Unable to Account for Miss Decker's Illness and Death.

Brunswick, N. Y., July 18.—Miss Belle Decker died at this place a few days ago. She was a mystery to physicians. Many prominent experts from New York city examined her, but were unable to diagnose the case. A year ago she fell down a stairway at her father's house. Two weeks later she lost the power of speech. She took to her bed and remained there to the time of her death. During the year's illness she gained a foot in height, but just before her death weighed but thirty pounds. Last Monday at midnight Belle's older sister, who was watching at her bedside, was startled to hear her exclaim: "I can't stand this any longer. I'm dying." After the girl's death the physicians said that her vital organs were in good condition. They were unable to account for her death, as they had been for her illness.

CINCINNATI'S GIFT.

A Silver Service Presented to the Cruiser Named After Her.

New York, July 18.—Amid the roll of the drums and the marching of the crew to quarters, a delegation of distinguised citizens of Cincinnati were greeted yesterday by the officers of the United States cruiser named after that city. The committee, who had come to the navy yard to present a souvenir to the Cincinnati, was headed by Mayor John A. Caldwell. Rear Admiral Bunce, Captain Henry Glass, and the other officers stood at the gangway and received the delegates. The souvenir was a beautiful service of silver plate. Mayor Caldwell made the presentation speech. In the absence of Secretary of the Navy Herbert, Rear Admiral Bunce thanked the gentlemen for the present, and expressed the hope that the Cincinnati would be found always ready in time of the country's need.

THE MORA CLAIM.

Washington Not Officially Notified of Intended Immediate Payment.

Washington, July 18.—No official confirmation of the decision of the Spanish cabinet to pay the Mora claim immediately has yet reached Washington. According to the Spanish practice the ministry, who form a council similar to the British council of state, usually refer such cases as the Mora claim to a sub-committee for determination, and it is believed that the decision referred to in the cable dispatches is really only that of the sub-committee which has been considering this particular claim.

TREASURY RECEIPTS.

For the First Time This Month They Exceeded Expenditures.

Washington, July 18.—For the first time this month the treasury receipts exceeded the expenditures. The excess was light, only $4,418, but it marks a turn in the tide outward. The receipts this month have aggregated $16,218,000, and the expenditures $30,047,000. The deficit for the month so far of $13,828,000 will probably be considerably reduced befor the 1st of August, as the heavy payments, pension and interest, aggregating $18,000,000, have been made.

EXPLOSION ON ERICSSON.

Five United States Sailors Injured; Two Perhaps Fatally.

New London, Conn., July 18.—The worst accident that has yet happened to the torpedo boat Ericsson occurred yesterday. She was out on the sound for a run when a steam-pipe burst, shockingly scalding five men. The steamboat Cactus happened to come near, and brought the men to this port and to the hospital. Two of the men are thought to be fatally burned.

Poe's Cottage Purchased.

New York, July 18.—The New York Shakespeare society has purchased the Edgar Allen Poe cottage at Fordham, and will maintain it as a headquarters and as nearly as possible in the condition in which it was during the poet's occupancy. It will always be open to the inspection of visitors.

Pfeffer Sold to the New Yorks.

Louisville, July 18.—Fred Pfeffer, the ball player, will return to the diamond. The New York club has purchased his release from the Louisville club and he will play here to-day with the former. The price is understood to be $2,500.

Denied Use of the Mails.

Washington, July 18.—The postmaster-general has issued an order denying the use of the mails to the Mecklenburg-Schwerin state lottery of Schwerin, Germany.

Lavigne Challenges McAuliffe.

New York, July 18.—George Lavigne, the light-weight pugilist, has issued a challenge to fight Jack McAuliffe, of Brooklyn, the light-weight champion of the world.

INSURGENT VICTORIES

Spanish Troops Routed Near Manzanillo.

Government Losses Heavy—Gen. Santocildes Among the Killed—Sanches' Command Also Suffers Defeat and Big Losses—Many Recruits for the Rebel Ranks.

Santiago de Cuba, July 18.—A serious encounter has taken place between a body of insurgents and a government force in the country between Manzanillo and Bayamo. The rebels were victorious, and it is said that the government losses were heavy. Among the killed was General Santocildes, the Spanish commander. Details of the engagement are suppressed by the government.

Swelling Insurgent Ranks.

Santiago de Cuba, July 18, via Key West, July 18.—The revolution in this district is increasing every day. Within the last three days more than a hundred men of the common class have left this city to join the insurgents, and of the elete, a great number of the most distinguished men have also gone.

Dr. Duany Joins Them.

Among the latter is Dr. Jeaquin Castillo Duany, graduate of the Pennsylvania university, and who served in the American navy. He was the physician appointed in 1881 to go on board the Rodgers, on the relief expedition sent out by the United States to the north pole in search of the Jeanetta. Dr. Castillo was the chief physician of the Juragua Iron company here, and he had established a private hospital here a few months ago, named the Iberia. His brother, Demetrio Castillo was appointed agent to supply the Spanish troops with arms and provisions at the beginning of the revolution.

All Well-Known in New York.

Pedro Aguilera, a civil engineer, who graduated at Troy, and who was superintendent of the Spanish-American Mining company, his brother Eugenie Aguilera, chief engineer of Juragua Iron company here, have also joined the insurgents. The two last named are sons of Francisco Aguilera, a rich Cuban gentleman, who was vice-president of the Cuban republic during the ten years war, and who died in New York during the latter part of that war. Dr. Felipe Veranes, a rich and prominent physician of this city, is another fresh acquisition to the insurgents' ranks. The above named men are all well-known in New York.

Fled Before Insurgents' Fire.

Spanish Commander Sanchez, with 400 soldiers, left Jiguani on the second instant, in combination with another Spanish column, with the object of surrounding the insurgent leader Rabi and his forces. The troops arrived to a defile near Cacao, where they suddenly received fire on all sides from the rebels. The soldiers, who were of those lately arrived from Spain, became confused and fled.

A Complete Defeat.

The commander took refuge in the woods with the few men that remained with him. The doctor of the Spanish column succeeded in gathering some of the scattered soldiers, and fought his way bravely until he reached the commander's party. The party then returned to Jiguani, after a total defeat.

270 of His Command Missing.

When the commander called the roll he found 270 of his men missing. He does not know whether they were taken prisoners or what has become of them. This is the second defeat the Spanish have had this month, the first being the encounter of Cayo Largo.

Burned Wagons of Provisions.

On the morning of the 7th inst. twelve wagons loaded with flour and provisions left this city for a Spanish merchant at the village of Cobre. When the wagons had gone about half the distance, a party of insurgents appeared, stopped the convey, burned all the goods and threatened the wagonmen with death if they were caught again carrying goods to that merchant.

Attacked a Garrison.

Havana, July 18.—Capt.-Gen. Campos has arrived at Bayamo, province of Santiago de Cuba, from Manzanillo, in the same province. He has reconcentrated the troops in that district and is continuing operations against the insurgents. Four hundred insurgents recently attacked a detachment of the civil guard at Cunao, near Santi Espiritu, province of Santa Clara. The insurgents demanded the surrender of the garrison, but the latter made a gallant defense, and the enemy eventually retired. No further details of the fighting have been received.

Must Leave Cuba.

Washington, July 18.—Acting Secretary Adee has been informed by a cablegram from United States Consul General Williams at Havana that Targas and Ruiz, two American citizens who have been under arrest in Cuba under suspicion of being dangerous characters, have been released by the Spanish authorities upon their agreement to quit Cuba immediately.

TO TALK SOUND MONEY.

Hoke Smith To Make Several Speeches in Georgia.

Washington, July 18.—Secretary Hoke Smith is about to start for Georgia to deliver a series of speeches in favor of sound money. He will begin in the northern part of the state at Gainsville, and from there he will go to Columbus and afterward to Speaker Crisp's district. All these districts are supposed to be free silver strongholds.

Simms Stumping in Mississippi.

Meantime Assistant Secretary Simms, of Mississippi, is carrying on an organized system of joint debates in his state, he also taking the administration view of the question in favor of sound money.

The Steamer Ariel Safe.

Richmond, Va., July 18.—The steamer Ariel, reported sunk in the James river with 200 colored excursionists on board, has arrived safely at Petersburg. She was delayed by the storm.

SNUBBED THE PRINCE

Madame Stambuloff Spurns His Sympathy.

Ferdinand and His Government Blamed for the Attempted Assassination—Two Servants Arrested—Turkey Now Preparing for Trouble—The Ex-Premier Dying.

Sofia, July 18.—A representative of Prince Ferdinand called at the residence of M. Stambuloff last evening, to express the soverign sympathy and condolence, but Madame Stambuloff refused to receive him or hold any communication with him.

His Servants Arrested.

Two of M. Stambuloff's personal servants have been arrested, charged with complicity in the cowardly assault on the ex-premier of Bulgaria. They are the valet and coachman, belief in the latter's guilt being strengthened by the fact that he reined in the horses and stopped the carriage when called upon to do so by the ruffians.

Turks Preparing for Trouble.

The Turks are actively constructing earthworks at several points in Roumenia, and a mountain battery has been dispatched to Usdub district. Troops have been sent from Salonica to quell a reported insurrection near Strumitza.

The Government Accused.

None of the ministers has called to inquire as to M. Stambuloff's condition. The Svoboda, M. Stambuloff's organ, of which M. Petkoff is editor, bluntly accuses Prince Ferdinand and the government of bringing about the crime.

Stambuloff Much Worse.

The condition of the wounded man is to-day much worse. He has a high fever, and is in a comatose state. The gravest fears are entertained that he will die.

AMERICAN ARMOR PLATE.

Successful Test in Russia of the Bethlehem, Pa., Product.

Bethlehem, Pa., July 18.—The Bethlehem Iron company has received a cable message from Russia to the effect that the armor plate manufactured by the company stood a very satisfactory test at St. Petersburg. Russia recently gave the company a contract for supplying armor for three new warships. The satisfactory test of the plate assures the acceptance of 1,200 tons of armor.

Bitten by a Pet Dog.

Lambertville, N. J., July 18.—Tuesday evening Mrs. Owen Malone attempted to whip her pet hound dog when the animal suddenly caught hold of her right hand and bit the flesh to the bone. It was with difficulty that the dog loosened his hold. A physician cauterized the wound, but Mrs Malone is suffering much pain. The dog was shot.

For a New Gun Plant.

Washington, July 18.—The ordinance department of the army have commenced the installation of a sixteen-inch gun plant at the Watervleit arsenal, West Troy, N. Y. The sixteen-inch gun lathes have been contracted for and some of the largest, used for boring and turning, are now nearing completion at the shops of the contractors, the Niles Tool company, Plainfield, N. J.

Fighting Against the Big Fight.

Denison, Tex., July 18.—A large meeting of Christian people was held here yesterday, and a petition was started requesting the governor to use all means to prevent the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight, even if it becomes necessary to call an extra session of the legislature to pass ironclad laws to cover the case.

Killed by a Soda Water Siphon.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 18.—Harris Polas, the proprietor of a soda water stand on Stone avenue, was rolling a heavy iron soda water siphon on the sidewalk to the curb stone last night, when the siphon exploded, the fragments striking John Malone, 9 year old, in the head and body killing him instantly.

Mary Abernathy Will Be Hanged.

Richmond, Va., July 18.—The jury in the case of Mary Abernathy, one of the women on trial at Lunenburg courthouse for the murder of Mrs. Pollard, rendered a verdict of murder in the first degree. The feeling against the woman is so bitter that there is little change of her escaping the gallows now.

London's Athletic Team.

London, July 18.—The team of the London atletic club that is to compete with a team of the New York athletic club will sail on Aug. 27 on the steamer Aurania. The committee has not yet completed the list of the team, but sportsmen concur that the team will be about the strongest known.

Fell Dead at His Wife's Feet.

Rochester, N. Y., July 18.—Frederick I. McCall, at one time manager of the Grand Opera house and well known in this city, fell to the floor dead in the Warner Medicine company's building while conversing with his wife. Heart failure was the probable cause.

Summer Hotel Burned.

Hamilton, Ont., July 18.—The Ocean house, the finest summer resort hotel at Burlington beach, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. Loss $30,000; insured. The guests succeeded in making their escape but loss most of their effects.

Railroad Earnings.

New York, July 18.—The gross earnings of the Pittsburg & Western road for the second week of July were $64,266, an increase of $21,388, and, for the two weeks, $116,355, an increase of $35,600.

Reported Engagement Denied.

Newport, R. I., July 18.—The report from England of the engagement of Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, daughter of Mrs. Alva S. Vanderbilt, to the Duke of Marlborough, is denied here by good authority.

Woman Postmaster Appointed.

Washington, July 18.—The president has appointed Lilian J. Pearsall postmaster at Sea Cliff, N. Y. This office became presidential on July 1. Miss Pearsall succeeds her father.

TORONTO MAY NOT GET HIM.

Holmes Will Probably Be Tried in Philadelphia for Murder.

Philadelphia, July 18.—District Attorney Graham said this morning that there was but little chance of Holmes being taken to Toronto to be tried for the murder for the Pietzel girls. He has found evidence, he said, which leads to the conclusion that the body found in the Callowhill street home, in this city, was Pietzel's, and he is now preparing to try Holmes here on the charge of murdering Pietzel.

To Search for Howard Pietzel.

Detective Gayer, who unearthed the bodies of the Pietzel girls in Toronto, is in almost hourly communication with the district attorney. Late last evening District Attorney Graham received a telegram from him, dated Toronto, which said: "I am going to Detroit to look for Howard Pietzel." Holmes is believed to have murdered Howard in that city and Gayer is going there to endeavor to discover the body.

TRIAL OF THE ST. LOUIS.

It Will Be Conducted with Great Secrecy Some Time in August.

Washington, July 18.—According to information received by the navy department the trial of the American line steamer St. Louis in the English channel to determine her eligibility as a man ship, and also as an auxiliary naval vessel will be conducted some time in August next over a course now being laid out by the hydrographic office. President Griscom, of the International steamship company, sailed for England yesterday to make arrangements for the trial which will be conducted with extreme secrecy, no representatives of the press being permitted to be present. Commander R. B. Bradford of the navy will have charge of the trial, and he will be assisted by Lieutenant Mulligan of the navigation bureau.

RUHMAN-GOULD SUIT.

Efforts To Compel the Defendant To Produce Certain Letters in Court.

Trenton, N. J., July 18.—An affidavit came to the supreme court yesterday from Alexander Simpson, nearest friend of Rosella Ruhman, declaring that George Gould, whom she is suing to recover the value of a $40,000 check, acknowledged the truth of the young woman's allegations to ex-Police Supt. Byrnes, of New York. The affidavit asserts further that Gould has in his possession certain letters material to the pending action against him, and which court is asked to have him produce upon the trial. Gould's admission to ex-Supt. Byrnes was made, it is alleged, before the filing of the plaintiff's declaration.

OLNEY AT GRAY GABLES.

The President Will Not Visit the Adirondacks This Summer.

Buzzard's Bay, Mass., July 18.—Secretary of state Richard Olney called on the president yesterday and stopped over one train while on his way to Boston. The president wishes it emphatically stated that he does not contemplate a trip to the Adirondacks before his return to Washington. There is very little possibility of his visiting any place before he leaves Gray Gables in October.

BY HIS WIFE'S SIDE.

Mr. Lock, Married Only One Day, Found Dead in Bed.

London, July 18.—Mr. Lock, chief officer of the American line steamer Berlin, married Miss Gale at Southampton Tuesday, and the couple went to Devonshire to spend the honeymoon. Yesterday morning Mr. Lock was found dead in bed by his wife's side.

Hamilton Mill Strike Ended.

Amesbury, Mass., July 18.—The strike among the weavers of the Hamilton mills that began June 19 is now practically at an end. The mills opened yesterday with 419 looms running. The weavers voted to return, and will be taken back as vacancies occur, but new men will not be discharged to make room for them.

Washington, July 18.—The First National bank of West Newton, Pa., capital $50,000, has been authorized to begin business.

GEN. HARRISON SAYS NO

Is Not a Candidate and Will Not Be One.

Does Not Want the Office and Anxious To Avoid Being Considered as in the Race—Declines an Invitation To Address Grand Army Men at Syracuse.

Old Forge, N. Y., July 18.—Benjamin Harrison has broken the silence as regards the presidency. He has said that under no circumstances will he become a cadidate for that office. These statements were made in his cottage in the presence of two of his old Grand Army of the Republic friends. Their names are congressman Theoren L. Poole, of Syracuse, N. Y., and Joseph I. Sayles, of Rome, N. Y.

Urged Him To Visit Syracuse.

Congressman Poole came here for the purpose of inviting Gen. Harrison to go to Syracuse on Grand Army day, which will be during the week of the state fair. Every grand army post in the state will be invited to visit the fair on that day, and already preparations are being made for the event.

Will Not Break His Vacation.

General Harrison in reply to Mayor Pool said that he is always pleased at meeting his old comrades in arms, but he could not promise to go to Syracuse at the time he was asked to. "I have come into these mountains," said the general, "for rest and recreation, and I do not intend to leave them until my vacation is ended." So positively was this statement made that Major Poole apparently did not deem it advisable to press the matter much further.

Positively Declined.

While the other members of the party were inspecting the general's quarters, Mr. Sayles suggested to Major Poole that he make another effort to have General Harrison change his mind about the Syracuse matter. Major Poole called the general to the south end of the tent. Mr. Sayles went with him. Mr. Poole renewed his efforts to have the general promise to go to Syracuse. Harrison again said he would not go.

Would Say He Was a Candidate.

Then there was a moment's hesitation which was broken by the general himself. Turning to Major Poole Mr. Harrison slowly began, saying: "Major, I will tell you why I do not care to go to Syracuse at the time you want me to. If I go anywhere now and make a speech candidates for the presidency will say that I am a candidate for that office, and that I am going for political purposes."

Would Not Accept the Office.

Then with a voice that carried with it all the earnestness and positiveness that is to be found in the general's make-up, he continued: "I am not a candidate for the presidency, have not been, and will not be. I do not want the office, and would not accept it."

Syracuse Subject Dropped.

These are the exact words the general used, and when he had finished talking the question of his going to Syracuse was immediately dropped by Major Poole and Mr. Sayles, who, as another steamer came in view, took leave of General Harrison.

Denial by Mr. Poole.

Syracuse, N. Y., July 18.—Major Theodore L. Poole, who had just returned from Old Forge, was seen by a representative of the United Press and told of the press dispatch which stated that Benjamin Harrison had broken the silence which until now had been maintained regarding his candidacy for president. When asked whether the ex-president had made this positive assertion, Congressman Poole said: "General Harrison did not in my presence in any way, directly or indirectly, allude to the possibility of his entering the race for the nomination. Had Mr. Harrison made any such statement none of our party would under any circumstances have repeated it. The ex-president was looking well and seemed to be thoroughly enjoying his rest and outing.

PLUNGED THROUGH A BRIDGE.

Three Persons Killed and Three Others Fatally Injured.

Monument, Col., July 18.—A Santa Fe freight train bound from Denver to Colorado Springs fell throught a bridge just south of here yesterday, killing three persons, fatally injuring three and seriously injuring fifteen others. The killed were: Jim Childers, foreman bridge gang; Mrs. Cooper, wife of stationary engineer, and an unknown tramp. The fatally injured are Mark Wincherf, engineer freight train; D. N. Irby, brakeman, and James Neal.

Reservoir Bulkhead Gives Way.

Norwich, Conn., July 19.—Meadow Brook reservoir, a supplementary reservoir, containing 50,000,000 gallons of water, was emptied yesterday afternoon by the breaking of the bulkheads. The water inundated many acres of farm land, destroying crops and sweeping out hay into the Yantic river. Cattle and horses were rescued with difficulty.

Peace Congress Postponed.

New York, July 18.—Mary Frost Ormsby, who was appointed a delegate for the fifth time to the International Peace congress, which was to have been held at Brussels, Aug. 16, has received a cable dispatch, stating that the meeting has been postponed until next spring.

Hotchkiss Guns for the Navy.

Hartford, Conn., July 10.—Twenty-seven-one-pound Hotchkiss guns have been completed at the Pratt & Whitney company works for the United States navy and will be shipped to the Brooklyn navy yard next week. Twenty-five additional guns are being built.

The man who says this is a wet moon is no liar.

The devil has to work hard for all he gets in the home of a praying mother.—Rams Horn.

One man's word is no man's word; we should quietly hear both sides.—Goethe.

"Mr. Sage's Sight Improves," reads a newspaper heading. But not his liberality.

The Newark clothiers have decided that the Saturday half-holiday closing act is not a paying one.

Moonshiners arrested in Jersey and the whiskey trust to be sold. But people will drink it the same as ever.

If Plainfield is to take in all of Union and Somerset counties, we have nothing more to say.—New Brunswick Fredonian.

Well then keep still.

Garwood wants a school house. To a new town like Garwood a school house is of more value to its growth than a new factory.

Newark papers claim that the school census was not properly taken, and that the children will have to be counted over again.

The Asbury Park justice who refused to marry a colored man and a jewess did pretty near right—so near right that no criticism can be passed on his action.

The Tribune this morning publishes a news heading, "More Gold Going Abroad" and in the next column appears, "Silver Debate Proceeds."

From Norfolk, Va., comes the report that hereafter all vagrants who are arrested will be sold at public auction under an old colonial law.

A New York business man who has had considerable transactions in this city on the credit system, states that Plainfield is the best place he ever visited for prompt payments on delivery of orders.

The movement among Locust Grove people for a governmental separation from Westfield is most natural. At present they are being taxed for improvements from which they receive no benefit.

When the New York and New Jersey bridge is built it will be used by eleven railroads. It is contemplated that in the terminus of the New York side the largest distributing postoffice in the world will be established.

The Daily Press agrees with the Courier-News editor that $10,000 a year is not too big a salary for the Governor of New Jersey. But the hypocrisy of Editor Runyon is displayed in the sweat shop wages of $3.50 a week which he pays to his compositors.

The Evening World pointedly remarks that Commissioner Roosevelt is trying to make New York not only the dryest but the dullest place in the world on Sunday. But Coney Island is near, and so is Hoboken.

Below is an extract of an editorial published in The Daily Press. Alongside of it is an extract of an editorial published in The Courier-News. The Courier-News editor is said to be a college graduate:

DAILY PRESS.	COURIER-NEWS.
The Daily Press desires to make a correction in justice to The Courier-News editor. It is $3.50 instead of $3 a week that he pays his compositors, less the holidays and lost time for funerals and sickness. The compositors on The Daily Press are paid from $13 to $20 a week.	In regular backwoods, wild and woolley style. The Press broke out yesterday in the most surprising diatribe. Plainfield has rarely witnessed such evidences of raw provincialism. But what can one expect? How much better it would have been to have quietly stated the facts, instead of launching out in an Arizona Kicker specimen of western Yahoo English, as did the North avenue paper yesterday.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—There has been seven cases treated at the hospital in the past three days.

—The most charming display of Summer wash goods are focused at Peck's.

—The Fire, Water and Lamps Committee of the borough will meet this evening.

—Franklin Council, No. 41, J. O. U. A. M., meets this evening in K. of P. hall on West Second street.

—Moses Ayres, of West Fourth street, has taken the agency for the Goodwin washing machine.

—Work was commenced yesterday in removing the large clock safe at the First National Bank building.

—Noah's Dove Encampment, a supplementary branch of the Odd Fellows, will meet tonight in their rooms in the Babcock building.

—The North Plainfield public school has been thoroughly cleaned and scrubbed by two women hired by the Board of Education.

—The Christian Endeavor meeting at the First Baptist church tomorrow evening will be of special interest, and a large attendance is desired.

—The entertainment committee of Hope Chapel hold a rehearsal today for their entertainment which takes place on Thursday, July 25th.

—Wm. Doud, of Duer street, who fractured his shoulder bone a few weeks ago, is improving rapidly, and the fractured member is almost well.

—George Hummer, carpenter and builder, is erecting a large carpenter shop and planing mill on the lot adjoining his property on Stone street.

—The fractured leg of Augustus M. Frazee was set by the doctors at the hospital yesterday, and it is now thought that the limb may be saved.

—The picnic to be given by Camp 20, S. of V., of New Brunswick, which will be attended by members of Camp 28, of this city, will be held Saturday, July 27th.

—Unity Lodge, No. 102, Knights of Pythias, met last evening. Few members were present on account of the shower. No important business was transacted.

Iona's Entertainment.

Iona Council, Daughters of Pocohontas, met last night and had a good social time. Arrangements were made to have an entertainment two weeks from last night, and an invitation was sent to Menemosshe Council, of Elizabeth, to be present. Mrs. Holstein has the matter in charge.

On the Bond Syndicate.

A. B. Hepburn, president of the Third National Bank, of New York, has written for the August number of The Forum an article fully explaining the operations of the Bond Syndicate, pointing out the excellent results which have followed its work.

Stambouloff is Dead.

Sofia, Bulgaria, July 18—M. Stambouloff died at 3.35 this morning, not having uttered a word since the death struggle, which began at 10 o'clock last night.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Sold by druggists, 75c.

BY THE WAY.

—A new letter box replaced the old one in front of E. Mulford's real estate office today.

—A representative of the Board of Underwriters is in Plainfield today rating buildings.

—Mrs. Lemuel Serrell, of Crescent avenue, was presented last night with a horse, trap and outfit complete by her husband. The outfit was purchased in New York.

—"Jewels for the week" is the heading of the Two Vans new advertisement, and the list of bargains mentioned are certainly jewels. Read it over and be convinced.

—Some unknown miscreant made a trip through Watchung avenue, upsetting the piles of sewer pipes, causing many of them to be broken, which is a great loss to the contractors.

—Delegations from both tribes of Red Men will accompany District Deputy Charles Ulrich to Perth Amboy where the chiefs of Po Ambo Tribe will be raised. They will go by wagonette.

—Eva Brock, aged four, whose parents live on Washington street, in Elizabeth, was run over by a lumber wagon last night and probably fatally injured. The child was playing in the street.

—The hailstorm of Saturday afternoon cost photographer Moffett, of Somerset street, twelve dollars to replace the broken panes of glass in his gallery. The repairing was done yesterday by Benj. Canfield.

—The Johnson Signal Works, which have been closed for several months, have started up. The plant has been purchased by the Easton Switch Company, and in a short time expects to be running with a full force of hands.

—The Garden, State, Poultry and Pigeon Association will hold its first annual show in the armory of Company G, Hackensack, on November 26th, 27th, and 28th, next, under the superintendence of William J. Andrus.

—Rival telephones do not flourish in in Bayonne. The Phœnix Mutual secured a franchise some time since, but beyond putting up some private wires has done nothing towards establishing an exchange. The Home Telephone Company is now making a bid for favor, but is not meeting with much encouragement, as it cannot give a service outside of the city limits.

INS AND OUTS.

The Monroe avenue team will play a nine from Potter Press Works Saturday.

The Y. M. C. A., of Westfield, will play the Rahway team at Rahway, Saturday.

The Scotch Plains baseball team will play the Westfield boys Saturday at Scotch Plains.

The Orientals will play at Newark against the Red Stockings on Saturday. T. Lyons will play shortstop for the Orientals.

The Westfield Athletic Club, who have been playing such good ball this season, will meet the Cranford team Saturday afternoon at Cranford. Each team has won a game, and they will play off the tie. Out of fifteen games played this season Westfield has lost two games. D. Kane, of this city, will catch for Westfield Saturday.

A great game will be played at Dunellen next Saturday afternoon between the Arlington Athletic Club, of this city, and the Dunellen Athletic Club. It will be a game for the cranks, as each team has won one game from the other, and will decide the championship between the Dunellen and the Plainfield boys. The game will be called at 3:45 p. m.

A large crowd of cranks gathered yesterday afternoon to witness the ball game between the Scotch Plains team and the Young Crescents of of Plainfield. The game was the best ever played by these teams, and at the end of the ninth inning the score stood in favor of the Crescents 6 to 4.

During the eight innings the players of both teams were playing steady, but at the ninth the Scotch Plains boys became rattled and broke all to pieces. The men lined up as follows: Scotch Plains; Marsh, pitcher; Chapin, catcher; Mooney, first base; Phillips, second base; J. Albert, third base; Fitzgerald, short stop; Macauly, centre field; Reick, left field; H. Albet, right field: Crescents; Hewitt, pitcher; S. Macauly, catcher; Emmons, first base; Quereau, third base; Briggs, second base; Fleming, centre field; Keefe, right field; Angerbaur, short stop. Another game could not be arranged as the Crescents are engaged for the next few days. The Scotch Plains boys are very anxious to try their luck again.

"Yield Not to Misfortune."

I was afflicted with catarrh last autumn. During the month of October I could neither taste or smell and could hear but little. Ely's Cream Balm cured it. Marcus Geo. Shautz, Rahway, N. J.

I suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since a boy, and I never hoped for cure, but Ely's Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many acquaintances have used it with excellent results. Oscar Ostrum, 45 Warren ave., Chicago, Ill. Cream Balm is agreeable.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Charles Hall, of Reynolds's pharmacy, rode his wheel to Perth Amboy yesterday.

Horace J. Martin went to New York yesterday to get a supply of Gale bicycles for his trade.

A number of the Victor Wheelmen are contemplating a visit to the picnic of the Eagle Wheelmen, of Newark, on July 25th.

E. C. Bald has ridden thirteen mile races in an average time of 2:10 2-5. This is a record average. His fastest mile was 2:02 1-5.

U. B. Crane, of East Second street, rode down to Asbury Park on his wheel Tuesday afternoon, and returned yesterday afternoon.

The second annual bicycle races of the Middlesex Athletic Club will be held at the Middlesex Driving Park, near South River, on July 17.

George Rose and Walter Rittenhouse left this morning on their wheels for Budds Lake to look for a camping place for a party of their young boy friends.

Many bicyclists say that the machines are turned out so rapidly this year that it is difficult to get one that does not require more or less repairing after it has been in use for a few weeks only.

On Saturday afternoon next a five-mile road race will be run under the auspices of the bicycle club of the Y. M. C. A. at Summit. The course will be over Springfield avenue to New Providence and return, and the start will take place at the corner of Morris avenue.

A 100-mile open handicap road race is scheduled for Saturday, September 21st, under the auspices of the Century Cycle Club of Newark. The club committee which has been chosen to arrange for the event has selected a course through Elizabeth, Plainfield and Rahway, which will be repeated four times to make up the necessary number of miles.

A cyclist named Geo. Wilson passed through Plainfield, Tuesday, in an attempt to break the time record for five thousand miles. He started from Florida several weeks ago. While in Plainfield he stopped at F. L. C. Martin's store. Wilson is riding a Cleveland and has had no trouble with it, despite several ugly falls, one of which was at Fanwood.

—The old board walk on Watchung avenue, beside Hillside and Woodland avenues, is being replaced by a stone flagging, which is a marked improvement to that section of the street.

The Ideal Panacea.

James L. Francis, Alderman, Chicago, says: "I regard Dr. King's New Discovery as an Ideal Panacea for Coughs, Colds and Lung Complaints, having used it in my family for the last five years, to the exclusion of physicians' prescriptions or other preparations."

Rev. John Burgus, Keokuk, Iowa, writes: "I have been a minister of the Methodist Episcopal church for fifty years or more, and have never found anything so beneficial or that gave me such speedy relief as Dr. King's New Discovery." Try this Ideal Cough Remedy now. Trial bottle free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

NOT INTENDED FOR RABBITS.

Farmer Mundy Tells the Court He Used Poison to Kill Cut-Worms.

Mahlon Mundy, Jr., the young farmer of Piscataway township who was ordered to appear before Justice Ford yesterday afternoon at New Brunswick to explain why he put Paris green on his cabbage plants, was on hand with Frederick Weigel to represent him, and with some score of Piscataway township farmers to cheer him up. Mr. Mundy did not like the fix he was in, but said that he was not amenable to a fine under the game laws, as Warden James Tooker, Jr., of Perth Amboy, had alleged in his complaint, because he used Paris green to kill the cut-worms, and not to exterminate rabbits.

Mr. Tooker said that Mr. Mundy's father had acknowledged to him that his son had put Paris green on the sprouting cabbage to kill off the rabbits. The son's answer to this was that he was not responsible for what his father said. Furthermore, he had seen no rabbits, nor even a track.

The spectators in the crowded courtroom had agreed among themselves that Mr. Mundy's act was a subject for investigation by the Board of Health, and not a case for the game warden, since he used the poison to protect his own property. Justice Ford adjourned the case until August 1st, owing to the absence of Dr. F. M. Donahue.

Tailors Talk of a Strike.

A strike is threatened among the garment workers in Newark. The union held a meeting last night to appoint a walking delegate to keep watch of the firms employing non-union men with a view to ordering a strike if these employees are not discharged. The agreement with the bors tailors expired June 21st.

—The usual meeting of the Christian Endeavor society of the Park Avenue Baptist church will take place Friday evening.

—An election will be held in Bloomfield township, Essex county, on August 6th, to decide whether the township, including the borough of Glen Ridge, shall be incorporated as a third-class city under the State law.

—The Consolidated Traction Company has begun laying tracks in Bloomfield, and expects to have the trolley line in operation by September 1. The 5-cent fare between Newark and Bloomfield has been adopted, and has resulted in a large increase of patronage to the horse-cars.

Rubinstein Not a Happy Man.

Though his life was full of work, and he was ever faithful to duty, Rubinstein was not a happy man. With each succeeding year he grew more and more pessimistic. Life failed to give him the amount of enjoyment he craved outside of his art; and except in the society of women he did not seem commonly happy.

But for the fair sex he had ever a joke or a smile. It amused him to shock their feelings, and when they opened their eyes widely at his audacity, he never failed to enjoy it. He believed that a knowledge of woman was necessary to an artist; and if a young aspirant to any artistic calling asked his advice, his first question was, "Have you loved yet?"

For he believed that a man who could not love was incapable of becoming an artist. He himself could not be accused of any failing in this case; for his loves were as many and various as almost his days. He had all the faults and all the virtues of his artistic calling, and in every sense of the word lived for his art and his fancy, regardless of all things. His was a true Bohemian nature.

There was a certain roughness, want of tact, and even brutality in his nature that made itself disagreeably felt at times. His was not a temper to be tried. Up to a certain point he could hold it in check admirably; but anything beyond this caused an explosion of wrath that was terrible.

As is his physiognomy, so in his temper there was much of the lion. Those who did not know him consequently feared him, for his personality was one that awed, especially in the latter years of his life.—Century.

CUBA'S CAUSE IN EUROPE.

A Demand From France that Uncle Sam Should Free the Island.

We believe that none of Cuba's previous struggles for liberty has excited any particular attention in Europe, certainly never of the serious and politically emancipated sort now bestowed upon it in France. M. Henri Rochefort expresses himself with his accustomed feeling in his newspaper, L'Intransigeant:

"Cuba is for Spain a magnificent milch cow. What astonishes us is that the United States continue to look with coldness upon the struggle heroically sustained against the Peninsular Government by the brave patriots resolved upon their independence. For years since, by its geographical position and the origin of its inhabitants, of whom many call themselves descendants of the comrades of Christopher Columbus, Cuba should have been part of the United States of America. The actual situation of this beautiful island is that which Cabais occupied for more than two hundred years after the siege in which it fell into the hands of Edouard III. The Duke of Guise retook it from the English, and America, to which it belongs, will one day take Cuba from the Spaniards? We demand that this should be done immediately."

Le Temps speaks to the same effect:

"Proud though the Cuban be even of his descent, he has no more love for the mother country than have the Spanish colonies of the three Americas. Nor does he maintain its institutions. Upon the ground of the new world, peopled by emigrants from ours, the monarchical tradition has not taken root. As we saw the Virginia Royalists in the second generation repudiate the loyalty of their fathers and arm themselves against England to obtain their independence, in the same way the Spanish-Americans have denied the political faith of their ancesters and shed their blood to free themselves from the yoke of the Spanish Capital. In speech, in religion and race this land is a Spanish land. It has ceased to be so in heart, and its interests cause it to revolve around a pole of irresistible attraction, that of the great American republic. Against this attraction nothing can prevail."

Spain, still ruling Cuba, sucking her blood to fatten herself, keeping the flag of a trans-oceanic monarchy flying on the republican Western shore of the Atlantic, almost within signaling distance of the Stars and Stripes, is an anomaly which not only France, but all Europe, must now repudiate, with the exception of Spain.

QUEER FREIGHT FOR CHINA.

The Skeletons of Dead Chinese Shipped in Boxes Marked "Fish Bone."

A curious freight which is shipped exclusively from San Francisco to China is "fish bone," which pays $20 a ton. It is sent in large boxes consigned to the Tung Wah Hospital at Hong Kong, but the contents of the boxes are really the bodies of dead Chinamen sent home for burial. Most of the Chinamen who come to the United States are under the care of the Six Companies, who sign a contract guaranteeing to return the bones of the dead for burial with their ancestors in the celestial empire, and the Tung Wah Hospital acts as agent on this side in carrying out the agreement. They are shipped as "fish bones" in order to evade the rule of the steamship companies, who charge full first-class passenger rates for the dead.

Nearly every ship leaving San Francisco for China carries among the steerage passengers a number of invalids who hope to live until they reach their native country, but several usually die on every voyage. There is an agreement between the steamships and the Six Companies which forbids the burial of these bodies at sea, and the latter furnishes coffins of the peculiar Chinese pattern for use in such emergencies. They are made of slabs, the first cut of the log, so that the sides and bottom and top are rounded.—Chicago Record.

How Would It Look With Bloomers.

A feminine reformer wants a revival of the old fashioned sunbonnet.

"I do wish," she remarked "that I could get about twenty women to join me in bringing the sunbonnet into popularity again. Many women in this city do their own marketing, and how absurd they look togged out in flowers and ribbons, in silks and laces: how much more appropriate would be the old-fashioned sunbonnet.

"A pretty woman always looks prettier in a dainty white sunbonnet than in anything else, and what a picturesque feature of our markets it would become if our attractive society dames would return to the pretty sunbonnets of their grandmother's day.

"I would like to see school girls in pretty sunbonnets, too. If one wise woman would only 'make the break' how soon our streets would be filled with sweet, chattering schoolgirls in the sweet, old fashioned sunbonnet. The sunbonnet must have been a Southern invention. I wish Southern women would revive it."—Courier-Journal.

Dangerous Diet.

First Cannibal—I'm dying! Oh! oh!

Second Cannibal—What's the matter?

First Cannibal—I've just eaten that friend of the missionary's wife.

Second Cannibal—Good gracious, man! That woman's a member of Sewrosis. She never agreed with any man in her life.—Harper's Bazar.

The Senator's Way.

"A statesman's motto," said the earnest patriot, "should always be:

"'Be sure you're right, and then go ahead.'"

"Maybe so," replied Senator Sorghum, thoughtfully. "But that's not my platform."

"What is it?"

"Go right ahead and square it afterward."—Washington Star.

RICHMOND'S BLACK WARD.

"The Man and Brother" in the Capital of the Dead Confederacy.

Thirty years ago the Federal troops marched into Richmond on one side and Jefferson Davis and his Cabinet and the Confederate troops skipped out on the other. The only people who did not feel that the end of time had been reached for the population of the Confederate capital were the black Americans. What seemed death to the whites was life to the blacks. In the sequel it proved life for both, and more so for the whites than the blacks. Where wealth was concentrated among a few whites under the operations of the close corporation of slavery it has become widely diffused among the masses of the whites as the direct result of free conditions. Where opportunity—social, commercial and political—had been reserved to a few whites before the war they are now one and all at liberty to make the most of such opportunity as is going. As a result there are more millionaires in Richmond to-day than there were in Virginia before the war; there are more whites owning homes here than owned independent estates before the war in the State, and still a large majority of the whites have their eyes turned toward the flesh pots of slavery, and spend more time worshiping the heroic statues of Robert E. Lee and A. P. Hill and the 100 Confederate veterans in the pleasant home graciously provided for them out of taxation of black and white citizens, than in taking advantage of the opportunities made possible by the statesmanship of Lincoln and the sword of Grant.

The population of Richmond is about 100,000, according to the police census. Of this population 45,000 are Afro-Americans. Just how these have fared under the shadow of the modest building where Jefferson Davis and his Cabinet conspired to condemn them to a condition of living death is worth knowing. The whites should be able to take care of themselves everywhere. Everything is in their favor. Of the 45,000 blacks and colored people of Richmond, 20,000 of them reside in Jackson ward, one of the largest in the city, a sort of black belt.

There is nothing like Jackson ward elsewhere in the United States. The blacks not only live in it, but control it. In Jackson ward they are the people. In this ward they have seven doctors, four lawyers, eleven halls, valued at $65,300; ten churches, and are represented in the City Council by six representatives, four of whom are Afro-Americans. Including this ward and the other parts of the city, they pay taxes on $650,000 of property. The city has appropriated $14,000 for the building of an armory on West Leigh street, which will cost $20,000 when completed. It is a beautiful building, and never would have been possible but for the presence of John Mitchell, the editor of the Planet, in the Council as the leading representative of Jackson ward.

One would expect to find Jackson ward a different sort of thing from the other wards of the city, but the whole ward presents an appearance in no sense different from the other wards. The people walk on the streets as the people in the other wards do; their houses, taken block after block, look just like the houses in the other wards, no better and no worse. Indeed, one is surprised at the uniform richness and neatness of home and garden plot when informed that he is in the Little Africa of Richmond.

The True Reformer Hall, valued at $30,000, is the most imposing structure in the ward. The Odd Fellows' Hall, valued at $8,000, comes next. These eleven halls in the ward, valued at $65,300, are the rallying points of the people. The Masons, Odd Fellows, Knights of Pythias, and social and beneficial societies all have their halls. Jackson ward is the main artery of the black life of Richmond. Instead of being an eyesore, it is one of the most attractive, decent and respectable wards in the city.

The New Baltic Canal.

The first sod of the new Baltic Canal was turned by the venerable Kaiser Wilhelm I. eight years ago. The canal is considered one of the greatest engineering achievements of the century. It unites the waters of the Baltic Sea with those of the German Ocean. The project is 600 years old. In 1398 a waterway known as the Stecknitz Canal was made. It was little better than a ditch. In 1874 the Eider Canal, from Kiel to Toennig, on the North Sea, was cut, but it afforded passage only to very small craft. The new canal follows for half its distance the course of the old Eider. It was built at a cost of $39,000,000. It extends from Holtenau, on Kiel Bay, to Brunsbuttel, near the mouth of the Elbe, a distance of 61 miles. There is a lock at each end, but none between. It is lighted by electricity along its whole length. At no point is it less than 29 feet 6 inches in depth. It saves 40 hours between Hamburg and the Baltic, and 24 hours between all English ports south of Harwich and the Baltic.

A Trade at Last.

The proud young scion of the Van Busted family searched his pocketbook.

"Has it come to this——"

A flush of shame mantled the noble reclining forehead——

"That a member of the oldest Knickerbocker family, one whose name was never associated with trade——"

He could hardly say the words——

"Needs the dough!"

Warned in Time.

Junior—So you didn't propose to her after all?

Weed—No; and I'm not going to. When I got to her house I found her chasing a mouse with a broom.—Puck.

Averaging It.

"Are you happily married?"

"I—I guess so. The extravagance of his protestations of affection for me just about equal his economy in buying dresses."—Indianapolis Journal.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that an ordinance entitled "An Ordinance for the laying out and opening of Watchung avenue from the northwesterly side line of East Front street to the city line in Green Brook," a copy of which is subjoined to this notice, has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt such ordinance at the regular meeting of the Common Council to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 100 Park avenue, in the city of Plainfield, N. J., at 8 o'clock p. m., on Monday, the fifth day of August, A. D. eighteen hundred and ninety-five, at which time and place, prior to the adoption of said ordinance, said ordinance will be considered by the Common Council and all persons interested may be heard before the Common Council.

Dated July 8, 1895.

By order of the Common Council.

James T. MacMurray, City Clerk.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., July 8, 1895.

An Ordinance for the laying out and opening of Watchung avenue, from the northwesterly side line of East Front street to the city line in Green Brook.

Whereas, The Common Council have judged and do hereby judge that the public good requires that Watchung avenue should be laid out and opened between the points named in the title to this ordinance, therefore

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Sec. 1. That a public street to be known as Watchung avenue be and the same is hereby ordered laid out and opened in said city as hereinafter specified, that is to say: The centreline of said street shall begin at a point in the northwesterly side line of East Front street as now laid out and opened, said point being distant thirty-two and five one hundredths (32.05) feet in a course of north 46 degrees and 17 minutes west from an iron monument being the intersection of centre lines of said East Front street and Watchung avenue as now laid out and opened, and running thence in a magnetic course of north 46 degrees and 17 minutes west, a distance of three hundred and eighty-five feet over lands of the Young Men's Christian Association and Hannah Durlach, to a point in the centre line of Green Brook, said point being also in the city and county line, and there to end, and said street shall be sixty feet in width, that is to say, thirty feet on each side of said centre line.

Said center line and also the side lines of said street are delineated on a certain map filed with the City Clerk July 1, 1895, entitled "Map showing proposed extension of Watchung avenue from Front street to Greenbrook, Plainfield, N. J., June 1895," to which reference is hereby made for greater certainty

The lands, real estate and appurtenances to be taken for the laying out and opening of said Watchung avenue on the Northeasterly side of said center line of said proposed street from the Northwesterly side-line of East Front street to the City line Green Brook, are all those lands, real estate and appurtenances included between said center line and a line thirty feet distant therefrom and parallel therewith and includes all that part of the land, real estate and appurtenances of Hannah Durlach which lies within said lines.

The lands, real estate and appurtenances to be taken for the laying out and opening of said Watchung avenue on the southwesterly side of said center line of said proposed street from the northwesterly side-line of East Front street to the City line in Green Brook, are all those lands, real estate and appurtenances included between said center line and a line thirty feet distant therefrom and parallel therewith, and includes all that part of the land, real estate and appurtenances of Hannah Durlach and the Young Men's Christian Association which lie within said lines.

The lands, real estate and appurtenances to be taken ahd the lines of the proposed street as the same is hereinbefore ordered to be laid out and opened, are shown on a map on file with the City Clerk, entitled "Map showing proposed extension of Watchung avenue from Front street to Green Brook, Plainfield, N. J. June, 1895."

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., July 8, 1895.

An Ordinance to enable the Administratrix of James Conneely, deceased, to make use of the license heretofore granted to and paid for by said deceased.

Whereas, James Conneely was duly licensed to sell spirituous and fermented liquor in the saloon No. 216 Park avenue recently conducted by him and paid for such license the sum of seven hundred dollars, and

Whereas, said James Conneely died June 4, 1895, intestate, and the Common Council desire to recognize the equitable claim of said administratrix in the premises.

The inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Mary Conneely, widow of James Conneely, deceased, who has been duly appointed administratrix of his estate, be and is hereby authorized to sell spirituous and fermented liquor in said saloon under the said license granted as aforesaid to her intestate, until the expiration of the term of said license, provided that none but men over the age of twenty-one years shall be permitted to be in attendance in said saloon in the management and conduct of said business.

A Remarkable Case

By Duffield Osborne

"An I jes' knowed dat young fellah warn't no good from de day he done wa'k over man phortchalakan bed an larfed fit to kill heself when I tol' him to be moah cahful."

"Where were you, Anderson," asked Phillips, quietly, "when you heard the words between your master and Mr. Ralph?"

"In de hall, sah."

"What were you doing there—I mean, what did you go there for?"

"Nuffin at all. I jus' went dah t' see 'f everything was all raht and clean an——"

"What time of day was it?"

"I doan rahtly recollec' dat, sah."

"Your present master tells me that the dispute took place in the afternoon very shortly before dinner."

"Das raht; das raht, sah. I recollec' now."

"You are the only servant, I believe."

"Yessah."

"Well, aren't you pretty apt to be confined to the kitchen just before dinner? It's a rather bad time to go looking around the house for nothing in particular, isn't it?"

Anderson's face began to grow ashy and his legs trembled perceptibly.

"Foh de lawd, Massa Phillips," he stammered. "Yo doan spec me a killin' Massa Smith?"

"FOH DE LAWD, YOU DOAN SPEC' ME."

"Certainly I don't, Anderson," said Phillips, reassuringly; "but I do know that you have committed perjury. You didn't see or hear the quarrel, as you said you did. That's all. You can go now."

Anderson tried to reply, but seemed unable to articulate. Then he almost reeled from the room, while I looked on in utter surprise. Phillips turned to me.

"You and your brother probably talked the matter over at table?" he said.

"That's hardly likely, in the presence of my niece. It would not have been an agreeable subject."

"Neither is it likely that your niece was present at the meal immediately following the summary dismissal of her lover."

"That's so. She remained in her room," I said quickly; "and, although I can't recollect definitely, I don't doubt that we did talk some on that occasion—but do you believe Anderson can be implicated in any way? He had worshiped my brother for twenty years with a dog's devotion, and——"

"How has your niece conducted herself since her father's death?" interrupted the detective.

I stopped short and looked at him. A curious sinking sensation came over me.

"Really," I began; "you don't—you can't suspect for a moment that—that—my niece could—could have—been in any way involved," I concluded, desperately.

His manner was extremely gentle as he replied:

"My dear Mr. Smith, in all my career as a detective I have never suspected any one of a crime. I don't allow myself to be misled by the bias which a suspicion would generate. As far as individuals are concerned, my mind remains an absolute blank until I am sure that I have identified the criminal. Therefore, I begin by investigating everything and every one."

Reassured somewhat, I tried to acquaint him, as well as I could, with my niece's peculiar disposition, as going far to explain the indifference she had certainly manifested ever since her father's death. As I have before stated, she had been gloomy and depressed—sulky, in fact, from the time of my broner's trouble with Ralph; and I was fain to confess that, since the terrible denouement, I had been utterly unable to detect the least change in her demeanor. Once or twice I had heard her talking to herself; but the only time I had ventured to console her was immediately after the discovery of the body, when I feared the shock of the first news might be serious. I was astonished at her calmness. She heard me to the end, and then replied.

"I am not a child, uncle. I have borne other troubles, and I shall have to bear this—and I will bear it. I will even try to believe it may be for the best. Only one thing I want to say; that I know Jack Ralph to be as innocent as—as I am; and now let us not speak of it all. It is too horrible."

"You may readily believe," I concluded, "that I made no further attempt at consolation."

Phillips had listened without comment.

"I hope you do not think it worth while to examine my niece," I ventured.

"No—no, I think not," he replied, rousing himself from what seemed to be a fit of deep abstraction. "Not now at any rate. I will have an opportunity of seeing her casually—at dinner, perhaps. The next step will be, I think, with your permission, to look at the body—and the clothes in which it was dressed when found."

I rose and led the way into the darkened bedroom where the remains had been laid upon the couch and covered with a sheet. I had known enough to insist that they should not be prepared for burial until the arrival of the city detective, though, of course, the physician and the local coroner had been obliged to take off the clothes, which they had thrown over a neighboring chair.

Phillips at once proceeded to open the blinds. Then with an even more serious manner than he had yet shown, he approached the body and bent down over the white face.

"The face has been washed. I presume?" he queried. "D' you know whether there was much blood on it when found?"

"There was some blood from the mouth," I answered. "I would not permit them to do more than wipe it away with a handkerchief."

"But do you know that no water was used before you came?" he pursued.

"I am very sure of it," I answered. "The neighbor who discovered my brother rushed at once to the house where I was at breakfast at the time. Within five minutes of the discovery I was on the spot. The body lay on its back; and I noticed that two slender streams of blood had run from the corners of the mouth and formed a small congealed or rather caked pool beneath the neck."

Phillips took a magnifying glass from his pocket and carefully examined the wound in the forehead. A flash of intuition as to the line of his investigation came over me.

"You think it possible——" I began.

"I think nothing," he said shortly, straightening up. "There is not a sign of blood having flowed from this wound. I can readily see traces of it about the mouth and neck. Nothing but a thorough use of soap and water could remove them. Your brother did not die from the blow on the head. He was dead for at least half an hour before it was received."

A sensation of horror came over me at the words. I had been hoping against hope that Phillips might be able to show that the death was accidental, after all. Now I saw at once the utter futility of entertaining such a notion.

"Moreover," he pursued, "if you say the blood was 'caked,' he must have been dead for several hours before he was found. I took the trouble to examine the railroad cut on my way here. You will remember that its bottom is entirely shielded from the morning sun, the lack of which, together with the heavy dews of the last two or three mornings, would tend to keep blood more or less moist for some time."

"What did kill him, then?" I asked, at last.

"We shall see," returned Phillips, and, drawing down the sheet, he proceeded to minutely examine the body, beginning at the head. Suddenly he stopped and straightened up again. I looked at him inquiringly, and he pointed toward the left breast.

"He must have had a pin or a needle in his undershirt," I said, as I noticed a scratch less than an inch in length a little above the heart.

"A rather long pin or needle," muttered Phillips, grimly, and, bending over, he pressed his thumbs on each side of the hair-like line of browning red scab, until it broke apart; and I saw a deep, gaping wound made undoubtedly by a very thin-bladed knife. It ran horizontally across the body between the ribs and seemed to range downward at an angle of about forty-five degrees.

For a moment the interest in this discovery overwhelmed the horror of it.

"But the clothes?" I said, stepping toward the chair. "They examined them."

Phillips' lip curled.

"What's the good of examining anything," he said, "when you start with a supposition based on the first bit of evidence that appears? These yokels never got beyond the idea that that wound in the head killed the man, so all their work was superficial and useless. Now, let us see," he pursued, and, taking up the articles of apparel, one by one, he scrutinized each carefully—especially the shirt, undershirt and coat.

"Where did the knife pierce these?" I broke in, as I peered over his shoulder. "I see no——"

"It didn't pierce these at all," said Phillips, putting the garments back on the chair. "Your brother did not wear these clothes when he was stabbed."

"But he wore these when he was found," I said vaguely, and with a consciousness of added mystery dawning slowly upon me. "You see the dirt stains where they lay in the cut."

"It is perfectly clear," pursued Phillips, ignoring my remark, "that whoever killed your brother dressed him in these clothes and then carried him out and threw him down that embankment. This is probably how the skull was broken."

"And that accounts for there being no blood on his linen," I put in.

"I don't imagine there was any on the linen he did wear," said he. "You forget that there was none on the skin in the neighborhood of the wound—just enough to form that tiny scab which you mistook for a scratch. I wasn't sure about it; but I was looking for serious wounds and I found one. Perhaps you do not know that a deep stab with a very thin-bladed knife hardly ever bleeds externally. The internal hemorrhage was probably considerable, as the bleeding from the mouth would indicate; and death must have been practically instantaneous."

I was all at sea now, and my mind whirled around amid a dozen half-formed conjectures. Phillips picked up the shoes that lay near the chair.

"He had these on?" he asked.

I nodded.

"You can see, then, that the last time they were worn was in the house; that he could not have walked to the cut in them," he pursued, unwinding an unsoiled thread of carpet from a projecting nail.

This disclosure came upon me with crushing force. It seemed to point to some one in the house as the criminal; yet to whom? It was impossible for me to believe that Anderson could be guilty, and yet who else was there? Only myself and my niece. At last, as I slowly gathered courage to ask some question, in order to relieve my suspense, Phillips spoke again:

"Perhaps it would be as well to examine your brother's wardrobe with a view to ascertaining whether any garments are missing. You see that the trousers on the chair here do not match this coat. If he were up and dressed, you'll doubtless find that the coat and waistcoat that do match them—if there were such—are gone."

Without trusting myself to reply, I proceeded to search carefully, but without avail.

"You are right," I said at last. "They are missing—both of them; and it was the suit he has been wearing every day. I cannot conceive my stupidity in neglecting to observe so noticeable a point, especially as my brother was a very careful man about his dress. As to the shirt and undervest, I don't know how many he had, but probably my niece——"

"Never mind those," said Phillips shortly. "He had unquestionably dressed himself fully, and we shall be safe in assuming that the murderer has destroyed or otherwise disposed of all the four garments through which the knife passed. Kindly permit me to examine the grate, although I don't suppose——"

He removed the chimney board as he spoke. The dust lay thick within, and, upon it, the charred fragments of a letter.

THE CHARRED FRAGMENTS OF A LETTER.

But for this, the place had evidently been undisturbed since it was shut up in the spring.

The detective leaned over and picked the burnt paper carefully up. It was perfectly black and fell to pieces in his hand. Of course no writing was visible, much less legible. We both examined each minute fragment thoroughly, with the aid of Phillips' pocket lens, and it was apparent that both letter and envelope had been thrown where we found them within a very few days. Their freedom from soot and dust was enough to make that much clear to the most superficial observer.

"Do you think it probable that this letter is in any way connected with the affair?" I asked.

"I can't tell yet," he replied. "I shall be perfectly frank and open with you, Mr. Smith; and the case, as far as we have gotten, amounts to just this. Your brother was killed in the house at some time in the morning before the usual rising hour of your family. Whoever did the deed either lived here, or broke in, or was let in by someone who lived here. It is evident, too, that robbery was not the motive, and the murderer appears to have been singularly cool and deliberate in all his acts. I think we may further assume that the murder was committed while it was yet dark. Otherwise it is inconceivable that anyone should have risked carrying the body across the lawn."

A new idea, more horrible than any I had as yet harbored, came suddenly over me, and I grew sick at the mere thought. Was this man going to prove that my niece had let Ralph into the house to kill her father? The detective, however, seemed not to notice my agitation.

"I presume," he continued, "that no examination was made of the doors or windows to see whether they have been tampered with?"

I shook my head. Then I said:

"Anderson reported to me that he found the front door unfastened, but we naturally explained that by the supposition we had already arrived at—that my brother had walked out before breakfast."

"And as we may feel sure that he did not walk out," said Phillips, "we simply alter your supposition to assuming that the murderer opened it in order to carry his victim out. How the murderer got in, I shall be better able to tell when I have looked about a bit."

He now went over the house very carefully, with the exception of my own, my niece's and Anderson's rooms; but, though the lens was frequently brought into use, there was no trace whatever of any housebreaking.

"Don't you want to look everywhere?" I suggested.

"It is unnecessary," he replied. "No would-be murderer would break into a house through the occupied room of a third party. It would only serve to double the chances of his detection. You may regard it as established that our man, if he entered at all, entered by collusion with one of the inmates."

SWALLOWED HIS LITTLE BROTHER

Unsentimental Proceeding on the Part of a Glen Island Alligator.

Visitors to Glen Island on Sunday who happened to be near the Zoo late in the afternoon were attracted to the alligator pen, where one alligator was devouring another. For some time the alligators had been crawling about with wide-open mouths, as though seeking food. One, about three feet in length, apparently desperate, crawled slowly over to another that measured fully eighteen inches, closed in upon him, and prepared to make a meal. For a moment the hungry saurian sized up his victim, then grabbed him by the head. A quick gulp, and at least six inches of number two was out of sight. Neither emitted a sound, but a violent wriggling of the visible part of alligator number two evidenced his objections. Number one closed his jaws and waited about five minutes. By that time the wriggling became less vigorous. Raising his head well from the ground, the hungry reptile took several quick swallows and shortened the projecting extremity of his brother by about four inches.

Onlookers who, up to that time, had supposed that this sort of thing might be a pastime among alligators, and that the smaller one would of course be released, now began to regard the affair seriously, but no one interfered, and in ten minutes all but four or five inches of number two had disappeared. What could be seen of him showed no signs of life. But at this point came the tug of war. Further attempts to swallow were ineffectual, and alligator number one was evidently tired. He swayed his head rapidly from side to side, savagely closing his jaws as though trying to bite the tail of his prey in two. This was unavailing, and he laid back for another rest.

After a lapse of five or six minutes he resumed operations with renewed energy. But despite great exertion and the frequent twisting of his body in the efforts to swallow, he only succeeded in moving the load about an inch. Signs of internal dissentions now appeared. Number one, swollen to enormous size, seemed about to collapse. Appearances did not count, for in opportune gulps he swallowed the remainder at two or three minute intervals till all but the tip end of alligator number two was hidden from view. As though to further satisfy all hands that his performance was no illusion, Mr. Alligator now stretched his mouth to its widest proportions, and all that was left of number two disappeared forthwith. The muscular struggles of the conqueror were no longer apparent, and closing his eyes he settled back for a period of peaceful digestion.—N. Y. Sun.

UNCLE SAM ON THE NEW WOMAN.

Interesting Statistics in the Last Bulletin from the U. S. Census Office.

The remarkable extent to which women are displacing men in all branches of labor is brought out very elaborately in the last bulletin from the United States Census Office.

It gives official confirmation from the United States Government of all the claims heretofore made by zealous advocates of the New Woman. It demonstrates beyond all doubt that the woman of to-day is engaging profitably in every branch of human activity. One of the most noticeable features of the Government publication is the disclosure that women are gradually leaving domestic pursuits and are engaging more extensively in manufacturing and mechanical industries, trade and transportation and in the professions.

Since the previous census was taken, the number of women engaged in profitable occupations has increased 47 per cent., while the increase among men is about 27 per cent.

That women are extending their service in the professions is shown by the remarkable increase of 75 per cent. in that branch. And while the numbers in professional service has almost doubled, those in domestic service has made but slight advance.

But it is in business occupations that women show the greatest advance. The increase reaches 363 per cent. in the subdivision of those engaged in trade and transportation, while the increase is 62 per cent. among those engaged in manufacturing and mechanical industries. These large percentages of increase are said to be due to the general introduction of typewriting machines, and the large demand for women as bookkeepers, clerks, stenographers, typewriters and saleswomen.

But the unique feature of this Government showing is in the diversity of occupations to which women now turn their hands. It is a singular fact that in the hundreds of occupations specified women are enumerated as engaged in all but two, and these two are officers and soldiers of the United States Army.

There is even a woman pilot holding a license from the United States Government. There are four women railroad engineers and firemen. There are women blacksmiths, women architects, women roofers, women veterinary surgeons, women watchmen and detectives women molders, women coopers and butches.

It will bring joy to the advocates of the New Woman to dig into the details of this Government showing and see to just what extent her sisters are competing with the men.

What Robert Was Doing.

Husband comes later than usual from his club. To avoid disturbing his wife he takes off his boots and steals into the room on tiptoe. But vain precaution, his wife begins to yawn.

Quickly determined, he goes to the cradle of the first born and begins to rock it, singing slumber songs the while.

"Whatever are you doing, Robert?"

"I have been sitting here a couple of hours trying to get the baby to sleep."

"Why, Robert, I have him here in bed with me!"

CHOLERA INFANTUM.

July Begins to Reap Its Fearful Harvest.

Put Infants on Lactated Food Early This Summer.

Saves Thousands of Precious Lives Every Month of the Year.

July has begun its deadly work earlier this year than last. Mortality reports from the cities show a sudden prevalence of cholera infantum. "It behooves mothers who are not already using it," said a well-known physician in this city yesterday, "to put their babes upon lactated food forthwith—except, of course, where the mother's milk is absolutely good and plentiful.

"If a child is being weaned this best of all foods should certainly be used. The closest investigation has shown that babies are stronger and grow faster, and that fewer fall ill during the summer when fed upon lactated food than upon any other diet.

"The lactated food, it must be remembered, is in no sense a medicine.

"Like nature's food, its basis is the purest sugar of milk, in proportions to closely represent mother's milk. With it is combined pure barley malt, the finest wheat gluten and the nutritious elements of the oat, and the mixture is thoroughly cooked by high steam heat. It contains all the properties essential to the maintenance of life and the healthful growth of bone, flesh and muscle. It is palatable and children take it naturally.

"Best of all, lactated food, with which thousands of little ones have been started on their way to long life, is not expensive. A dollar package will give an infant 150 meals. One of the smaller sized packages that druggists retail for 25 cents, makes 10 pints of the best and most reliable food for infants that there is. It is really more economical, as it is far safer, especially at this season, than cow's milk.

"It is the surest known preventive of cholera infantum."

Rev. Frank A. Domer, pastor of the M. E. Church, Greensburg, O., writes: "I send you herewith a picture of our little girl who has been raised on lactated food. She was born June 22, 1893, and has never been sick to speak of even when teething. During the past summer she has had nothing but lactated food and thrived on it. We tried several other foods, but found nothing which we liked as well as the lactated. She was ten months old when the picture was taken."

Chamberlain's is the best of all. Vincent S. Barkl, of Danbury, Iowa, has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy whenever in need of a medicine for coughs and colds, for the past five years and says: "It always helps me out. If anyone asks me what kind of cough medicine I use, I reply, Chamberlain's, that is the best of all. 25 and 50c. bottles for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared, and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. Marlow, M. D., Tamaroa, Ill. For sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freemyer House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for any kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the diseases for which it is intended and he knows it. It is for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

It May Do as Much For You.

Mr. Fred Miller of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a Severe Kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called Kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure all Kidney and Liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c for large bottle, at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

A NIGHT OF FESTIVITIES.

UNDAUNTED BY RAIN RAILWAY EMPLOYES PROVIDE A GOOD TIME.

A Warm Evening Brings Out a Multitude of Pleasure Seeking People, Giving Profit to the Picnic.

Nothing could daunt the Street Railway Employes in making their annual picnic a success, and in consequence a large crowd gathered last night in Vail's Grove and fully enjoyed the affair that was so hastily broken up the night before on account of rain.

The grove was handsomely decorated with red, white and blue bunting and this, together with a profusion of flags and Chinese lanterns well arranged, made the scene one of charm to all who witnessed it.

The refreshment stand did a big business for it was just the kind of a night when everyone felt like patronizing that sort of an article.

On the dancing pavilion there was a jolly set of dancers and the light fantastic toe was a delight to all who indulged to the excellent music furnished by Nathan Guttman.

That the affair was a success goes without saying, and as each succeeding year rolls around those who attended last night will anxiously await the enjoyable occasion.

Those who managed the picnic were Harry Martin, James McCormick and Michael Higgins, and much credit is due them for the success attained.

The dancing platform was in charge of M. Nevins, M. Higgins and D. Angerbar. The promoters of the picnic cleared $150.

The electric cars were run till the small hours of the morning to accommodate the many uptown people who attended.

ISOLATED BY SEWER TRENCHES.

Contractors Should Fill In as Fast as the Pipe Is Laid.

The slowness with which the sewer contractors are completing the work they start is causing much complaint. The trenches are excavated and the pipe placed but in many sections the contractors seem to take their time in refilling. An instance at present is the inconvenient access to Orchard place. Open trenches extend from West Second street through Liberty street to Orchard place, and through Orchard place to New street and then back to West Second street. Under the present condition of affairs Orchard place residents, who desire to get to their homes, are obliged to perform acrobatic feats in crossing the numerous open trenches.

Raritan Looses the Blacksmith.

Bayard Morton, the blacksmith, of Raritan Landing, has gone from town for good, if he is to be believed. Morton told his wife that he was going away, and although she protested he was not turned from his purpose. He made no concealment of his affection for a Bound Brook widow and she recently moved to New Brunswick and lived in a house on Sandford street. A few days ago Morton told his wife that he was going to Newark to live and now Mrs. Morton is left with her two children. Once White Caps posted a warning to Morton.

Fair Officials.

The Somerset County Fair Association have elected the following officers: President, W. V. Steele; vice-president, E. E. Bergen; treasurer, C. L. Voorhees; secretary, A. P. Sutphen; directors, George H. Miller, George A. Dilts, Charles Schwed, W. H. H. Wykoff, William Hardgrove, Lewis A. Bellis, Elijah Stevens, William V. Streeter, E. E. Bergen, C. L. Voorhees, A. P. Sutphen.

The admission was fixed at 25 cents, and children between the ages of 6 and 12 at 15 cents.

Troublesome Italians.

One difficulty has arose between Honan & Sons, the sewer contractors, and the boss Italian who furnishes the men for work. It appears that the latter wants more money from the men for board and that he wants Honan & Sons to stand more of the expense, while the contractors think that the man is getting all he deserves. The matter will be settled in court.

Rolled and Recovered.

A horse belonging to a Hebrew peddler and driven on Somerset street by its owner yesterday afternoon, fell down in the shafts opposite French's carriage factory. The man succeeded in getting the harness off the horse and then took him in the rear of Blimm's hotel, where he walked him around and then let him roll. He soon recovered.

—William Newcorn's store on West Front street is being improved by a new coat of paint.

THE LARGEST OF ALL.

Several Incidents of a Most Enjoyable Day at the Seashore.

Asbury Park was flooded yesterday with Plainfielders, of whom 766 went down on the excursion of the Congregational, First Presbyterian and Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-schools. According to the officials of the railroad, it was the largest excursion in the number of people that has left Plainfield this year. There was only one accident going to the Park and that was a financial one that happened to Frank Smalley. He was standing on the rear platform when the conductor asked for his ticket. He opened his pocketbook to take his ticket out when a five dollar bill that lay beside it sailed away down the track to the great disgust of Smalley.

An accident to a Pennsylvania Railroad train stopped the excursionists at North Asbury Park, and most of them alighted and took the electric cars to the beach. On the return a woman and several children were left behind, but getting into a carriage they caught the slow-moving train at North Asbury Park, when it stopped to allow them to get on board. Owing to the crowded condition of the cars one woman fainted on the return trip. But everybody had a splendid time.

AGAINST SUNDAY OUTING.

Father Mulligan Says the Use of Liquor Is Against All Law.

Rev. Father B. J. Mulligan, of the Church of the Sacred Heart, of New Brunswick, has awakened wide interest among Catholics by his opposition in the pulpit and out of it to Sunday excursions. He said yesterday that he had received a communication from Division No. 3, Ancient Order of Hibernians, of America, in which the society refuted the report that it intended to conduct a Sunday excursion. By request the priest made the denial, and said that he did it with much pleasure. He said also that he was pleased to be able to declare that no society affiliated with his church would have Sunday outings this year. It was by his own request that one of them had abandoned the idea, and the others did so of their own accord. The priest said:

"I am not opposed to legitimate Sunday enjoyment, even to a sail down the river to some summer resort, provided the excursionists attend church before they go. But there is a distinction in excursions. While we commend a man for seeking health and recreation by this means on the Lord's day, we must disapprove of the abuse of such health and recreation when kegs of liquor are introduced into the 'enjoyment' and a grand carousel ensues. Such orgies are violently in opposition to the principles, teachings and laws of the church. Besides this they are against all human and common law.

"Unfortunately, in these modern days, the beer that is consumed is far stronger than the beer of olden times. Time was when in this country, like in European lands, where mild beers and light wines are national beverages, one could allay thirst with impunity and feel no evil effects from the potation. But it seems that modern America has a more heated temperament. Either that, or the liquor is worse. In view of these facts, suspicious beverages should be left severely alone."

Can Spend a Pleasant Day There.

John French has spent a considerable amount of money and time in improving a section of Johnston's Drive, and he very kindly invites people to use the grounds for picnics or camping purposes. Those who have visited the place know that it is a rare place well worth going miles to see, as an excellent view can be obtained of the Brooklyn Bridge and various other points of interest. A day or even more can be spent very profitably at this place.

A Noted Pugilist Visits Plainfield.

Peter Maher, the noted middle weight pugilist, was in town yesterday as the guest of George Thatcher, the minstrel magnate. Mr. Thatcher left last night for Chicago, where he will fulfil an engagement before starting his own company in August.

Picnic at Metuchen.

The sixth annual picnic of St. Patrick's Alliance of America, Branch No. 2, of District No. 8, will be held at Cedar Grove, Metuchen, Saturday afternoon and evening, July 20th. Eugene O'Reilly will furnish music. Stages will run from this city.

ANXIOUS FOR A RECEIVER.

CENTRAL JERSEY TRACTION COMPANY ALLEGED TO BE INSOLVENT.

A Temporary Injunction Granted—The Proposed Trunk Line of the Company Was to Go Through Plainfield.

Ex-State Senator Lemuel E. Miller has filed a bill in Chancery against the Central Jersey Traction Company, of which ex-Mayor Frank A. Magowan, of Trenton, is president, alleging the company to be insolvent. He asks that a receiver be appointed and declares the company's liabilities to be $225,000, with no assets other than on a contract with the New York and Philadelphia Traction Company to construct and equip an electric railway, which contract has no present market value.

Vice-Chancellor Pitney has granted a rule, directed to President Magowan and Manager Reall, citing the company to show cause at Newark on July 23d why a receiver should not be appointed, and has also granted a temporary injunction restraining the company from contracting any debt or mortgaging or disposing of any of its property until the case shall have been heard.

The ex-Senator's claim against the company is for constructing a branch road between Raritan and Bound Brook. The scheme of the Central Jersey Traction Company is to build an electric trolley line across New Jersey and they have secured franchises from several counties.

The history of the Central Jersey Traction Company, as given in the bill, is of more than ordinary interest. On April 12, 1891, Jeptha Baldwin, John H. Tingley and George C. Crosby became the Central Jersey Traction Company under the railroad act of 1875. Their charter has the power to build, buy or sell railways or almost anything else in the counties of Essex, Morris, Mercer, Somerset, Middlesex, Union, Burlington and Camden and to run electric power plants. They proposed to build a trolley road across New Jersey and carry passengers and freight from New York to Philadelphia and to build branch railways between the several towns along the main stem.

The capital stock was placed at $150,000, the bill says, divided into 1,500 shares at $100 each.

On December 13th, 1894, the capital stock was increased to the par value of $1,000,000, and the full amount subscribed for and actually issued. Then the company opened an office in Trenton and entered upon the business of making contracts with railroad corporations for the building and equipping of railroads, and continued making the contracts up to January 14th, 1895. About this time the Central Jersey Traction Company entered into a contract with Lemuel E. Miller, who files the bill, to build and equip an electric railway between Raritan and Bound Brook, which road was to have been completed, according to plans and specifications accompanying the bill, April 1st last. The contract price of the branch road was to be $35,600, payable as the work proceeded.

Mr. Miller swears that he proceeded with the work and did erect and complete a portion of the electric railway in accordance with the terms of his contract, continuing the work until he had actually earned about $25,000 of his contract price, but he received no money. On March 23d last the company gave Mr. Miller a promissory note, payable in thirty days, for $2,500 on account, but upon maturity the note was allowed to go to protest.

The bill goes on to say that the complainant believes "that the liabilities of the said Central Jersey Traction Company amount to over $225,000, of which $200,000 is represented by bonds of the said company, and the $25,000 is the indebtedness so due." Mr. Miller adds: "That the company has no assets, except a certain contract made with the New York and Philadelphia Traction Company for the construction of a road across the State." Mr. Miller charges that the Central Jersey Traction Company is insolvent and prays that a receiver may be appointed.

Nearing Completion.

The frame-work of Chapot & Sons glove factory at Evona was completed yesterday, and today the work of enclosing it was commenced. The large chimney, which is seventy feet high, is completed. It is expected that there will be a building boom in houses at that section at an early date.

Want to Be a City.

The Kearny Township Committee have formally received the petition in favor of the formation of a third-class city, to include the township of Kearny, and the new borough of East Newark. The petition was drawn by Senator Voorhees, of Union county.

COMPANIES TO CONSOLIDATE.

THE BOROUGH WILL PROBABLY BE LIGHTED FROM THE CITY PLANT.

No Definite Statement, But Indications Point to the Purchase and Abandonment of the Borough Plant.

It is understood that the organization of the Citizens Electric Light Company in this city is but a reorganization of the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company who propose to buy out the plant and franchise of the Edison Electric Light Company, of North Plainfield, abandon the plant in the borough, and furnish all illumination from the city plant.

For that purpose the present city plant is being greatly enlarged, both in capacity and quarters.

It is a well-known fact that the company have for a long time been anxious to gain a foothold in the borough, but as long as the Edison company was in operation this was impossible.

The city company have a few poles erected in the borough and two months ago they were ordered to remove them. The time limit in which they were to take them up expired yesterday, but the poles still remain where they have been set, and it is understood that they will not be touched for some time in order to await the result of negotiations between the two companies.

AN EVENING WITH LEMONS.

A Novel But Delightful Gathering of Borough Young People.

When a lemon party is given, it does not always signify that those invited are too sweet, but the lemon party that Miss Fannie Western, of Washington avenue, gave her friends was certainly not a sour affair. The invitations came in the shape of lemons, tied with lemon-colored ribbon.

After the guests had all arrived, each one was handed a lemon and told to guess the number of seeds within. Miss Hattie Loundsbery was the wisest among her sex, while Charles Hazeltine gussed the best among the gentlemen. After several other games, dance cards, cut in the shape of a lemon were passed, and the rest of the evening spent in dancing. Dainty refreshments, and there was something besides lemons now, were served at the close. Then in the wee small hours of the morning the party broke up and bid their gracious hostess goodbye.

The feminine consolation prize was won by Miss Eveline Hall, and the men's consolation prize by William Western.

Among those who were present at this novel form of gathering were: Miss Ethel Marsh of Harlem, Miss Hattie Loundsbery of Harlem, Miss Gertrude Hazeltine, Miss Ada Bartling, Charles Hazeltine, Henry B. Drake, John H. VanWinkle, Jr., Clarence L. Murphy and Carlos C. Gallup, Miss Emiline Hall, Mrs. T. H. Buckingham, William H. Western and Charles Western.

Metropolitan in Every Way.

Metropolitan in all appointments will be the gents furnishing store on East Front street which H. M. Jacquett will open the middle of next month. The interior of the store will be one of the pettiest in the city, and will be filled with as fashionable a line of goods as can be found in the metropolis. Mr. Jacquett is a man of experience in this line of trade, and will doubtless build up a substantial business.

A Royal Jolly Time.

The Red Men of Perth Amboy had a big time last night. District Deputy Chas. M. Ulrich, with his staff, Willam Newcorn, William F. Trust, E. H. Neal, J. H. Carney, and W. A. Westphal, went there to raise the chiefs of the Po Ambo Tribe, No. 65, of that city. The party went over in a wagonette and spent a royal jolly time. An elaborate and bountiful collation was served after the ceremony.

Justice Newcorn's Share.

Justice Newcorn had his share of work to do today. The case of Moore against Hughes was adjourned until next Thursday evening. Charles A. Reed represented the plaintiff, and W. S. Woolston, of Elizabeth, the defendant. Summons were issued in the cases of Lowrie against McGinley, on contract, returnable July 26th, and Charles Hand against Miss Heggins, on contract, returnable July 26th.

Death of a Little Fellow.

The death occurred this morning at eleven o'clock of George Fahn at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Fahn, on Duer street. The child was one year old and death was caused by membraneous croup. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at ten o'clock from the house.

TROLLEY TALK.

Traction Company Troubles Give Rise to Seemingly Probabilities.

The announcement that an application had been made for the appointment of a receiver for the Central Jersey Traction Company was received with considerable interest and comment in this city. The trunk line which the Traction Company had mapped out to build from New York to Philadelphia passed through Plainfield. The line was to enter at the city limits in Netherwood and down North avenue and out Plainfield avenue to Metuchen and so on to New Brunswick. By some it was thought that if the plans of the company ever materialized the local corporation would be bought out, as it would be impossible to get through the city without using their tracks. The only towns in this vicinity that had granted them franchises were Westfield and Fanwood.

This morning it was talked as quite probable that the Consolidated Traction Company, who operate the line between Elizabeth and Newark, would endeavor to extend their lines to this city.

Old Coal Wharves Sold.

Charles Meyer, of Elizabethport, has purchased the four big coal wharves used by the D. L. and W. Company for many years, and afterwards by the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company. Mr. Meyer has began tearing down the docks and selling the timber for kindling wood. He expects to make a big profit. The wharves have been built more than a quarter of a century. The docks have not been used since the Reading Company abandoned them several years ago.

Bloomfield Ambitious, Too.

The issue of the local campaign for the incorporation of Bloomfield as a third-class city is whether or not the city can legally include the borough of Glen Ridge within its boundaries, and thus effecually prevent the establishment of a separate government in Glen Ridge. Legal opinions obtained by the Bloomfield officials are to the effect that the city will take in the borough, and the latter as a separate corporation will pass out of existence.

New Census for Newark.

The New Jersey State Board of Education has ordered a new census for Newark, as the local Board of Education is displeased with the result of the last census, which showed a falling off in the population of school children of 3,663. Should the new enumeration be the same as the last, an investigation into the census of 1894 will be made, as it will then seem as if fraud was practiced. The police of Newark will assist the State enumerators.

Prostrated at the Picnic.

During the progress of the picnic at Vail's Grove last evening, John Newman, better known as "Sue," of West Third street, was taken with a fainting spell which lasted for fully half an hour. Finally, by the efforts of some of his friends, who were near at hand, he was soon resuscitated. It will be remembered that this young man was bitten by a dog some time ago.

Got It In for Liquor Dealers.

Edward S. Chapin made a complaint yesterday before Justice Frazer, in Rahway, against all the liquor sellers who were indicted at the January term, and who have been tried in the police court. It had been supposed that no other complaints would be prosecuted, pending the decision upon those already appealed to the Supreme Court.

Brilliancy Wanted, Not Capacity.

Rahway has the distinction of having one of the largest installations of alternating arc lamps on multiple circuit for street lighting in the United States. It is the Thompson arc lamp. The contract for putting in seventy-one arc lights has been fulfilled, and the full number have been put into service, and give general satisfaction.

Upset Himself and Another, Too.

Walter Martin and Harley Apgar, both employes of Neuman Brothers, had a little accident all of their own yesterday. Martin was on his wheel, and when passing the corner of North and Watchung avenues he accidentally ran into Apgar who was crossing the street. They both came to the ground, but luckily no one was hurt.

How They Did Bite!

The weak fish have begun to bite and all Plainfield fishermen are migrating toward Boynton Beach. Yesterday Elvin VanName and John Tier went in search of the finny tribe and returned with a goodly quantity. Samuel Neal, George Neal and Ed Eaton also secured a nice mess of them. An army of fishermen go forth tomorrow.

HOW TO EXERCISE A VOTE.

MOST IMPORTANT POINTS OF THE NEW ELECTION LAW.

Duties of County Board of Election—Authority Vested in Other Officials—Timely Ideas.

The new election law is rather a long measure, and it is doubtless if the average newspaper reader has had the patience to go through it. A few of the points contained in the new election law are found below.

The board of Freeholders shall provide a suitable office in the Court House or in a building near there. The County Board of Election shall meet on the first Tuesday in August at 10 o'clock, or, as they may agree upon, within the first ten days in August to organize. Boards of Registry and Election shall be appointed during the first ten days in September.

Nominations for election boards to be made by Chairman of County Executive Committee shall be made after 10th and no later than the 20th of August. The County Board shall supply any deficiency in list of nominees, provided all nominees shall answer in writing over their own signatures all reasonable questions satisfactorily to said Board. The County Board may remove any member of election board for neglecting or refusing to properly discharge the duties of his office; and all police officers, constables, sheriff and peace officers are required to remove summarily and by force, if necessary. Term of office for election boards shall commence September 11th, and be for one year.

If a vacancy should occur, on election day it shall be filled by the members of the district board of the same political party as the member whose place became vacant and shall be immediately reported to the County Board of Election. The authority vested in the respective clerks of municipalities to issue permits to agents or challengers (so called) is transferred and vested in the County Board of Election. For all general elections the County Board of Elections shall act as the Board of Canvassers without extra compensation. The County Board of Election shall sit at their office on the Saturday next preceding, and also on election day from 8 o'clock until 5 o'clock, for the purpose of granting certificates to persons whose names properly belong on the Registry list.

A Day of Pleasure.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland, of Sandford avenue, and a party of young people, spent yesterday at Boynton Beach. They left Plainfield early yesterday morning and reached Boynton in good time. After spending a few hours among the pleasures which that resort offers they were served with one of those good old picnic lunches which all enjoyed, and returned in the evening tired but happy.

Among those who enjoyed this good time were Miss Edna Harris, Miss Cora Harris, Mrs. Bryant, Mrs. N. Harris, Leslie Leland, Erwin Leland and Mr. and Mrs. Leland.

To Camp Out.

Percy McVoy, Arthur McVoy, Wyatt Barnes, W. Thorn and a few others, are preparing for their annual outing at New Foundland, Morris county. They will leave Monday, July 29th, and be absent two weeks. They go by wagon and will take tent, cooking utensils, and everything necessary in a camping outfit.

Found Dead in a Dynamo Room.

Thomas Heffernan, an employe of the Newark Electric Light and Power Company, was found lying dead on the floor of the dynamo room at midnight last night. He was shocked to death. As there was no one present when he received the shock, no one knows how it happened.

Representative to State Council.

There was a large representation of members at the meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, J. O. U. A. M., last evening, and one candidate was elected a member, and two initiated. W. C. Force was elected representative to State Council in the place of E. R. Pope, Jr., who resigned.

More Hose to Be Bought.

Messrs. Peck, Smith and Valiant, the fire, water and lamps committee of the borough, met last night and considered bids for hose for the fire department.

On the Bowery.

Notorious Mollie Stevens, whom the police would like to interview, is said to be sojourning on the Bowery in New York until the clouds roll by.

Another Tennis Court.

The young people of Westervelt avenue have just completed a new tennis court.

IN SING SING PRISON

Maria Barberi Now Awaiting the Death Summons.

Mrs. Foster, the Tombs Angel, Remains with the Unfortunate Girl During Her First Night in the Death Chamber—Subjected to Unnessary Torture in Court.

Sing Sing, N. Y., July 19.—Maria Barberi, in charge of a deputy sheriff, and accompanied by Mrs. Foster, who remained with her last night, arrived here last evening. She was met at the station by Keeper McNeal and taken in a hack to the prison. She was placed in a room on the top floor of the hospital, which had been prepared for her. The death watch will be Keeper Cochran days and Keeper Talcott nights. The condemned woman is quiet, and does not seem to realize where she is. A matron was placed in charge of her this morning.

TO DIE AUGUST 19.

Terrible Torture Suffered by Maria Barberi in Court.

New York, July 19.—Many of the spectators in Recorder Goff's court when the death sentence was imposed upon Maria Barberi, the Italian girl convicted of murdering her bootblack lover, expressed the opinion that the recorder was unnecessarily long in his remarks to the unfortunate girl, and was only adding to her terrible torture.

Almost Hysterical.

The unfortunate girl had spent the morning in violent fits of weeping, and when she was taken from her cell in the Tombs to the court she was in almost a hysterical condition. Mrs. Foster, the "Tombs angel," was with her, doing all in her power to help the woman bear up under the ordeal. There was a long list of pleas heard by the recorder, so that there was a delay in passing the sentence. The girl remained on the bridge until the calendar was cleared. At 11.15 Clerk Carroll called "Maria Barberi to the bar." Sheriff Tamsen tiptoed in. He was to receive the death warrant.

Brought Into Court.

Leaning on the arm of Mrs. Foster the girl entered. She was attired in black and wore a great flower-covered hat. Her eyes were half closed and were marked with great round black rings. The girl reached the bar and then sank into a chair beside Mrs. Foster.

Her Pedigree Taken.

Then Maria's pedigree was taken. She said in a low voice that she was 22 years old, had been a dressmaker, was single, could read and write very little, was a Roman Catholic, and that she never drank any incoxicating liquors.

Moving for Death Sentence.

This being put upon the record, Mr. McIntyre arose and moved that the sentence of death be passed upon her. In making this motion Mr. McIntyre said that in his opinion the counsel for Maria had done everything that lay in their power to awaken the sympathy of the jury for her and to interpose a defense. "To my knowledge," said Mr. McIntyre, "Mr. Evans called experts when he was assigned to the case to enamine into the mental condition of the defendant and those experts pronounced her sane. "I say now that the defendant had a fair and impartial trial. I have but one more duty to perform and however much I may regret to do it, I must now move that the sentence of death be passed upon Maria Barberi."

No Interest in the Proceedings.

The girl's head was resting upon Mrs. Foster's shoulder, and she gave no sign that she understood what Mr. McIntyre had said. "Have you any legal cause to show why the sentence of death should not now be passed upon you?" asked Clerk Carroll.

Asks for a New Trial.

Maria did not move, but Lawyer Evans moved for a new trial. His remarks were supplemented by Lawyer House, who had just been taken in the case. He made a strong and eloquent appeal. "Mr. Evans' hands were tied," said he. "He could not summon to his aid the great experts of this city on mental diseases and avail himself of their opinions concerning the mental condition of this defendant. Penniless, friendless, standing hear within the shadow of death, she was not able to avail herself of the testimony which might have saved her. All we ask is a reasonable time to look over your honor's charge to discover if we may not find something upon which to appeal to your sense of justice to grant us a new trial."

The Motion Denied.

Recorder Goff answered in an almost inaudible tone that the law would protect Maria in the higher courts if he had made any mistakes and he would therefore deny the motion for delay.

Assisted to Her Feet.

The recorder then directed that the defendant arise. She was assisted to her feet and stood trembling with abject terror at the bar, supported by Mrs. Foster, who had all she could do to keep the girl from falling. Then began eight minutes of terrible torture for the frightened little woman. Very slowly and in a voice devoid of all emotion the recorder began to tell Maria Barberi how she had been tried by a jury of "more than ordinary intelligence" for the murder of Dominico Cataldo, and how everything had been done for her that could be done, but that it was all of no avail and that she must die.

To Die the Week of August 19.

Sentence by sentence the recorder's words were translated to the wretched girl, whose face had taken on a look of dumb despair. He said the date of her execution would be some time during the week beginning August 19. Maria was allowed to sit down, and then came the formality, which is only practiced in Recorder Goff's court, of reading the death warrant. At last, that, too, was over, and the recorder said: "Remove the prisoner."

The President Goes Fishing.

Buzzard's Bay, July 19.—The president and Joe Jefferson drove five miles to White island pond yesterday for a day's fishing, returning after dark.

Died at the Age of 110.

Jacksonville, Fla., July 19.—At Suwannee Shoals, Fla., Sam Basheat died yesterday. He is said to have been 110 years old.

MRS. FREAS IS A HEROINE.

Jumps into Fifty Feet of Water and Rescues a Child.

Conshohocken, Pa., July 19.—The heroine of Plymouth township, is Mrs. Frank Freas, who bravely devested herself of her gown, leaped into water fifty feet deep and saved a little girl from drowning. As Mrs. Freas was passing Ramsey's quarries, she heard cries of distress. She hurried in the direction where the sound came and found struggling in the fifty feet of water in the abandoned quarry a little Polish girl. There was nothing she could throw the struggling child and rescue her.

Towed the Child Ashore.

Mrs. Freas hesitated but a moment, and then devesting herself of her gown, she threw it toward the drowing girl, but it was not of sufficient length to reach her. She then sprang into the water and swam close to the child. She kept far enough away to prevent the victim from grasping her, but just near enough to throw the gown so the girl could reach it. The almost exhausted one sized the dress, and then Mrs. Freas swam ashore with the girl trailing behind. They landed in safety and the brave rescuer not long afterwards received the praise of all the little girl's family and friends.

REVOLUTION STORY DENIED.

Emphatic Statement by Venezuelan Officials in Washington.

Washington, July 19.—Positive denial is made at the Venezuelan legation of recent reports in this country of a revolution in Venezuela. The most recent advices to the legation were dated on the 9th of the present month, and they indicate a condition of general quiet and peace throughout the republic. Senor Andrade, the Venezuelan minister, said to-day that he placed no credence in the report that arms had been landed on the island of Vrinidad for the use of Venezuelan insurgents. He added that there always is more or less disaffection towards Venezuela in the islands off the coast, but as a disturbance aimed at Venezuela was suppressed recently by the governor of Trinidad, he does not consider another demonstration as at all imminent.

THE BALLOON BURST.

Mlle. Madison Falls Thirty Feet, But Escapes Injury.

Haverhill, Mass., July 19.—The balloon in which Mlle. Madison ascended at the pines yesterday, burst soon after starting and the woman fell thirty feet to the ground. The balloon caught in the top of a pine tree, which broke the fall. No bones were broken, but the woman was severely shaken up and fainted. The 2,500 spectators present were wild with excitement, but calmed down when they found that she was not killed. The balloon was totally ruined.

TO BUY ANTICOSTA ISLAND.

French Capitalists Will Stock It With Game for Sporting.

Quebec, July 19.—Mr. Desprechars and a party of French capitalists have gone down to Anticosta accompanied by the well known Canadian explorer, Joseph Bureau. It is the the intention of these gentlemen to purchase Anticosta island and stock it with fur-bearing animals and game for sporting purposes. They will also work the fisheries adjoining on a large scale.

Will Stop Bull Fights.

New York, July 19.—William Hoses Ballou, vice president of the American Humane association, declares that he will stop the proposed bull fights at the Atlanta exposition. He to-day served notice on the management that unless prompt denial is received from the authorities that such exhibition was to be permitted, he would institute injunction proceedings, or failing therein would cause the arrest and punishment of all concerned.

Military Wedding at Plattsburg.

Plattsburg, N. Y., July 19.—Plattsburg was the scene of a military wedding last evening, the contracting parties being Lieut. Conway Hillyer Arnold, jr., of the fifth artillery, located at the Presidio, San Francisco, and Miss Gertrude May Harvey, daughter of major Philip F. Harvey, surgeon, 21st regiment, U. S. A., of Plattsburg.

Fall River Mill Troubles.

Fall River, Mass., July 19.—Late last night it was decided by the slasher tenders to call a special general meeting in Hibernian hall this evening to again consider the wage question. One of the officers gave it as his opinion that the members would vote to reconsider their determination to strike Monday morning.

Dined with the Queen.

London, July 19.—The Marquis of Salisbury, the prime minister; the Marchioness of Salisbury, the Duke of Devonshire, president of the council, and the Duchess of Devonshire, dined last night with the queen at Windsor castle. They remained at the castle over night.

Presbyterian Pilgrims Entertained.

London, July 19.—The Presbyterian Social union of London gave a soiree last at the Holborn restaurant in honor of the Presbyterian pilgrims from the United States who have been touring in England, Scotland and Ireland. Ambassador Bayard was present.

New Electric Road Opened.

Niagara Fall, N. Y., July 19.—The new electric railroad on the American side of the river running from Niagara Falls city to Lewiston, N. Y., was formally opened to the public yesterday afternoon and the first passenger train was run over the line.

An Offer for Spanish Soldiers.

Tampa, Fla., July 19.—The Spanish vice-consul has posted notices in Ybor City, saying that any Spaniard who has escaped from the Spanish army will be reinstated without penalty if he will come forward and make himself available for service.

Counterfeiters Convicted.

Corry, Pa., July 19.—Noah Billeter and Forest M. Watson, of Newcastle, two of the gang of counterfeiters who have been flooding the Shenandoah valley with spurious coin, were convicted in the United States district court yesterday.

Reichensperger Dead.

Berlin, July 19.—Auguste Reichensperger, a well-known litterateur, and at one time the leader of the German clerical party, died in Cologne, Tuesday, aged 87 years.

Unionists Still Sweeping Everything.

They Have Probably Captured Gladstone's Old District and Also That of Herbert Asquiths—The Defeat of John Morley a Severe Blow—He May Retire from Politics.

London, July 19.—The polling thus far gives the following results: Conservatives, 256; unionists, 47; liberals, 75; anti-Parnellites, 36; Parnellites, 6. The conservatives' gain is now 49; the unionists have gained 16 seats and the liberals 10. The tide of unionist success flows on with monotonous persistency. The result in Hythe, which was announced at about midnight, completed the long list of successes in the English boroughs which are now all polled. Whatever the prospective comfort the liberals draw from the remaining English counties and Scottish and Welsh electorates must needs be chastened by the defeats and qualified by the successes heretofore recorded in those quarters.

Gladstone and Asquith's Districts.

The popularity of Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman, lately secretary of state for war, enabled him to retain the Stirling Burghs with an increased majority, but the liberals have qualms regarding East Fifeshire, represented in the last parliament by the Right Hon. Herbert Asquith, the home secretary, and Midlothian, Mr. Gladstone's old district, in both of which constituencies polling took place yesterday. The results will not be known until late to-day. The unionists believe that they have wrested Mr. Gladstone's old seat from the liberals and wiped out Mr. Asquith's majority of 294 given him in 1892.

Morley Defeated.

The worst blow that the liberals received yesterday was the announcement of the defeat of the Right Hon. John Morley, formerly chief secretary for Ireland. The party leaders had little, if any, hope that he would be returned, but under the present circumstances they are grasping at straws, knowing full well what a bad effect the defeat of members of the late government will have upon the elections yet to be held. It is freely said that Mr. Morley will not seek re-election in any other district, but that he will retire from political life and devote himself to literature.

Defeat of Sam Woods.

The reduction of T. P. O'Connor's majority in the Scotland division of Liverpool is ascribed chiefly to to the lukewarmness of the priests, owing to Mr. O'Connor's attitude on the education question. The defeat of Sam Woods, the liberal and labor candidate, in the Ince division of Lancashire, is noteworthy. Mr. Woods was the author of the amendment against the contracting out clause of the employers' liability bill, which the house of commons carried and which resulted in the house of lords wrecking the measure.

Can't Spare Such Members.

The loss of Sir William, Mr. Morley and such members of the party would be a loss from which the liberals would be a long time in recovering. The party will require old parliamentary hands to make their opposition in the next house felt, and the matter of fighting the unionists cannot be left to green men.

SHOOTING AT BISLEY.

Tink Made the Highest Possible Score—Beaten on a Shoot Off.

London, July 19.—At Bisley yesterday, in the Daily Graphic contest—seven shots at 500 yards—Tink of Canada made the highest possible score, but was beaten in shooting off ties. The other Canadian scores were: Boville, 34; White, Roslton, Spearing, Marris, and Hayhurst each 32; Armstrong and Mitchell, each 31; Chamberlain, Broadhurst, and Skedden each 30. In the second stage for the queen's prize—10 shots each, at 500 yards—Boville scored 48, making his aggregate 136; Hayhurst 46, aggregate 140; White 43, aggregate 133; Skedden 42, aggregate 136. Boville tied with two other marksmen at the top single score.

ALBANY CAPITOL WORKMEN.

The Commissioners Complete the Selections.

Albany, July 19.—The capitol commissioners, after an all day session, adjourned last evening, having selected 175 additional men for work in the construction department. This completes the number to be given employment this year under the appropriation made by the last legislature and brings the aggregate up to about 600 men. The commissioners directed their secretary that the names of those selected should not be given out for publication.

BOYCOTTED BY THE K. OF L.

Sovereign Issues a Manifesto Declaring War on National Bank Notes.

Washington, July 19.—Notes of national banks are to be boycotted by the knights of labor. Grand Master Sovereign has issued a manifesto to his organization and to the farmers' alliance, people's party, reform clubs and kindred societies reciting the wrongs of the masses and calling for a general boycott on national bank notes in all dealings between individuals. The boycott is to go into effect September 1.

To Investigate Indian Troubles.

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 19.—Under orders from Governor Richards, Adjutant General Stitzer left here to-day for the scene of the Indian trouble in the Jackson country. He will investigate the situation and if he deems the presence of troops necessary will take steps to have them on the scene.

C. E.'s at Old Orchard.

Old Orchard, Me., July 19.—One hundred Philadelphia Christian endeavor excursionists, who came from Boston via White mountains, are here taking in the sights along shore. Most of them went to Portland last night to attend the service at Williston church, returning by special train.

Connor To Give Up Baseball.

St. Louis, Mo., July 19.—Roger Connor, the first baseman of the Browns has decided to abandon baseball, and has submitted his resignation. He stated that his playing had deterorioated and was as unsatisfactory to himself as to the public.

THE EDUCATION OF PLANTS.

More than a hundred years ago a Jesuit missionary found a certain bark (now called calisaya or cinchona) in use among the tribes of Peru as a cure for fever. This led to the discovery of quinine—its alkaloid and active principle. Originally containing but a very small percentage of the active principle, the bark of this tree, under careful cultivation, now yields several times the amount.

By the same method the Shakers of Mt. Lebanon, N. Y., have developed, both as to quantity and quality, the medicinal principles of the herbs from which the Shaker Digestive Cordial, their well-known remedy for indigestion and dyspepsia, is now made. They have persuaded nature to do for suffering humanity vasty more than she at first intended. As quinine is without a rival in its own field so this preparation of the Shakers is destined to become, for a ll the ailments of the digestive tract—now grouped under the general head of dyspepsia.

Some of the symptoms calling for its use are as follows: Distress after eating; sickness and nausea; pains in the head, chest, sides and back; foul taste in the mouth and the rising of an offensive gas from the stomach; costiveness and irregular action of the bowels; variable appetite; sick headache; ringing in the ears; palpitation and heartburn; loss of sleep; the "fidgets"; a tired and weary feeling; sore muscles; mental depression, etc.

To relieve and cure this universal disease (the source of most others) the Shaker Digestive Cordial is expressly adapted. Like quinine it is a specialty, a specific. Its good effects are felt at once. Unlike quinine it is pleasant to the palate, always effective, never harmful. For this the Shaker pledge their reputation as herbalists. And its success thus far bears them out.

To settle whether it is what you need try a ten-cent bottle. For sale by nearly all druggists.

MEETING OF BAPTISTS

Over 10,000 Visitors Assembled in Baltimore.

The Most Notable Gathering of Christian Workers the Monumental City Has Even Known—Delegates Present from Every Section of the Nation.

Baltimore, July 19.—Songs of praise from thousands of lips, words of eloquence from men high in state and church, the enthusiasm of myriads of Christian workers are weaving around associations that will remain written on Baptist history until earth itself fades out.

A Great Gathering.

Gathered from every quarter of the nation are thousands of people with but one idea—that of making the fifth international convention of the Baptists young people's union of American the greatest assembling of the mighty hosts that the progressive organization has ever seen. They labored with this purpose in view and they have succeeded. They surprised even themselves.

Ten Thousand Delegates Present.

Baltimore awoke to see within her gates the most notable gathering of enthusiastic church workers she has ever known. All the day before and through the long hours of the night the increasing hosts were arriving until the dawn of day found more than ten thousand delegates gathered in the Monumental c t . But that is not all—for from the distant points they are still arriving.

The Flower of the Churches.

These delegates are the flower of the Baptist church in the United States. They have all the enthusiasm and sacrifices of youth with the restraining and directing power inseparable from a multitude of mature counsel. Their work is not confined alone to denominational bonds, but is effective and inspiriting to all the sects who stand upon the broad platforms of the Christian religion.

Much Good Must Follow.

From the convention will go out cheer and encouragement to the great Baptist denomination, and well-considered lines of work upon which the energies and prestige of the church can be exerted to wide advantage. The delegates meet here under the happiest auspices, and their deliberations cannot fail to be productive of the greatest good. This has been called the southern gathering of the young Baptists and the delegates found typical weather of the south land waiting for them. It was July temperature with a vengeance. The mercury fairly whizzed upward, but the only seeming effect it has had on the visitors is to warm up their enthusiasm.

NO CURRENCY SPEECHES.

Attitude of the Democratic Congressional Committee.

Washington, July 19. — Senator Faulkner, chairman of the national democratic congressional committee, denies that any party of democratic orators is to be sent to the northwest under the auspices of the committee during the present summer and approaching fall to discuss the currency question in a series of meetings. "I have written Mr. Hazzard, who seems to have initiated the movement for the tour," said the senator, when asked about the report, "telling him that the congressional committee could have nothing to do with the scheme. There is no campaign this year, and the committee does not feel called upon at this time to send orators through the country to discuss any question. If any individual gentleman or a party desire to go out as individuals and address the people, that is another matter; they have a perfect right to do so, but it is not proper that the name of the congressional committee should be used by the party as was proposed."

WATER WAR ENDED.

Atlantic City Gives Up After Twelve Years of Fighting.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 19.—The city council last night ended the war waged against the water company which has been in progress for twelve years or more, with the passage of resolutions directing Mayor Story, the city treasurer and water commissioners to accept the terms proposed by the corporation for the turning over of the plant to the city. The price paid was $775,000, and the money raised by bonds, which were taken by Spencer, Trask & Co., New York brokers. The bonds will be exchanged for currency in New York today.

NEGRO COLLINS CONVICTED.

Guilty of Murder in the Second Degree for the Killing of Ohl.

Trenton, N. J., July 19.—The jury in the case of John Collins accused of murdering Frederick P. Ohl came in at 11.45 last night with a verdict of murder in the second degree.

Pleasure Seekers Drowned.

London, July 19.—A boating accident in which six persons lost their lives occurred last evening on Omesby Broad, near Yarmouth. A party had gone out for a pleasure sail and were caught in a squall, the boat at the time carrying most of her canvas. She capsized almost immediately, and before aid could reach the scene six of her occupants were dead.

Honored in His Father's Memory.

Washington, July 19.—The society of the war of 1812 of the state of Connecticut has elected Col. Sam Reid, of this city, an honorary member of the society in appreciation of the distinguished services of his father, who commanded the brig of war General Armstrong at the battle of Fayal.

Big Railroad Trestle Burned.

Old Forge, N. Y., July 19.—The big trestle on the Adirondack & St. Lawrence railroad, north of Fulton Chain, was burned last evening. Traffic was delayed until nearly midnight. Sparks from a freight engine set the structure on fire.

The Wharf Strike at Colon.

Colon, Colombia, July 19.—The strike of wharf and ship laborers here continues; business is paralyzed and the steamers are idle. A detachment of soldiers is expected here from Panama to keep order.

GREAT LOSS TO SPAIN.

Santocildes Was One of Her Best Generals in Cuba.

New York, July 19.—"The death of Gen. Santocildes is a great loss to the Spanish army in Cuba," said Gen. Rafael de Quesada to-day. The general is the Cuban leader in this country, and the news of a Cuban victory, together with the death of Santocildes, caused a number of his lieutenants to gather to-day and discuss Cuban affairs. Gen. Quesada was surrounded by seven or eight patriotic Cubans when he talked about the bright outlook for Cuban independence.

He Was a Tower of Strength.

"Gen. Santocildes," he continued, "was next to Gen. Campos, and his death, as I said, is a great blow to Spain. Of all the generals that Campos depended upon, the dead officer was the one. He was able and aggressive. He had a dash about him which the others have not, and he knew what war meant. His death in battle is glorious news to every patriotic Cuban, because he was a tower of strength.

A Warning to Campos.

"I have no doubt that the army under him will soon become disheartened without his inspiriting presence. His sudden taking off will be a salutary warning to Campos that he himself is not invulnerable."

Not Afraid of Their Best Fighters.

The general paused, and after conversing a few minutes in Spanish to his friends, said: "We have won another battle, and it is all the more important because we defeated a Spanish crack regiment, killing captain Gonzales Lopez. This battle shows that the Cubans are not afraid to meet in warfare the flower of the Spanish army.

May Never Return.

"I hear that Campos is going into the interior in order to set an example of bravery to his dispirited officers and troops. That is splendid news, because it may be that Campos will meet his Waterloo there. The Cuban patriots know every foot of the ground, and they may attack him when he at lease expects it. I hope a great many Spanish troops will follow him on his inland raid, for they may never return."

FIGHTING IN FORMOSA.

Japanese Troops Forced To Fly Before the Black Flags.

Hong Kong, July 19.—A large force of Black Flags recently attacked the Japanese troops at Tokoham, island of Formosa, and fought courageously. The Japanese were only saved from defeat by the superior discipline of their troops, and they were finally compelled to retreat before the onslaught of the Chinese. When these advices left the island, the Black Flags were advancing to attack Teckham, and another battle was imminent.

CIGARETTES MADE IN COURT.

Working of the Briggs Machine Introduced in Evidence.

Asheville, N. C., July 19.—Cigarettes were made in the United States court here yesterday. Judge Simonton appeared quite interested in the working of the Briggs machine, which was introduced in evidence in the suit brought by the American Tobacco company to restrain a number of southern firms from using a similar device, claiming an infringement of patent. Both parties to the suit have agreed to a final settlement with the present hearing.

Italians Given Their Places.

New London, Conn., July 19.—The freight handlers on the Norwich line of boats at the depot here were all discharged and paid off yesterday and their places filled by about forty Italians, who came here from New York for that purpose. The trouble comes over dissatisfaction because of the discharge of an old hand a few days ago.

New York Hotel To Close.

New York, July 19.—The Oriental hotel, Broadway and Thirty-ninth street, will close its doors to-morrow night. The hotel was a popular one some years ago, but the modern hotels growing up around it have taken away almost all its patronage.

Edwards Respited.

Columbus, O., July 19.—Gov. McKinley granted a respite of sixty days to Isaac Edwards, who was to have been hanged at midnight last night. The respite was granted to give his lawyers time to submit newly discovered evidence.

Homes for ex-Pullman Employes.

GOD PROTECT BULGARIA

The Last Words Spoken by ex-Premier Stambuloff.

The Remains To Lie in State Until the Funeral To-morrow Afternoon. Many Messages of Condolence Received by Mme. Stambuloff—Editor Petkoff's Great Grief.

Sofia, July 19.—The remains of ex-Premier Stambuloff, who died yesterday from the terrible wounds received at the hands of assassins, were this morning placed in the special catafalque prepared for them. The body will lie in state until a few hours before the funeral, which will take place to-morrow afternoon. The amputated hands of the dead statesman have been placed in the casket with the body.

Many Messages of Condolence.

The government has not yet proposed to give the remains of M. Stambuloff a state funeral. The widow of the deceased statesman has received many telegrams of condolence from high personages in different parts of Europe.

His Last Words.

Stambuloff's last words were "God protect Bulgaria." His death has intensified the bitter feeling that exists between his partisans and the supporters of the present government, and it has been freely charged that Prince Ferdinand and his ministers were directly responsible for his assassination.

Petkoff's Devotion.

M. Petkoff, M. Stambuloff's personal friend and editor of his newspaper organ, the Svoboda, who was with him at the time he was set upon by the assassins, and who was himself wounded, sat for hours beside the body. He refused to leave the dining room of the Stambuloff residence, where the remains were lying. His wounds are in the head.

M. STAMBULOFF'S CAREER.

Sketch of the Life of the Former Bismarck of Bulgaria.

Stefan Nicoloff Stambuloff, widely known as "the Bismarck of Bulgaria," was born in Tirnova, the ancient capital of Bulgaria, in 1853. It was intended that he should enter the church, and with this end in view he studied theology at the Seminary of Odessa. Upon the breaking out of the insurrections of Rosnia and Herzegovina in 1875 he left the seminary and cast in his lot with the party that was seeking to create an uprising in Bulgaria. The plot failed, and Stambuloff fled to Bucharest.

Volunteer in the Russian Army.

During the Russo-Turkish war in 1877 and 1878 Stambuloff served as a volunteer in the Russian army. After the election of Alexander I. as prince of Bulgaria, he became a liberal leader, having already been elected a member of the sobranje. After acting as president of that body for two years, in August, 1886, he formed with M. Karaveloff a movement against the government and against M. Zankoff's conspiracy to depose Prince Alexander. In this Stambuloff was successful.

Desired Bulgarian Independence.

He was sent out at the head of a deputation to meet and welcome Alexander upon his return. Russia's opposition to Alexander was so great that the latter resigned shortly afterward and Stambuloff, Doravoff and Mutkuroff were made regents. Stambuloff was at this time the greatest man in Bulgaria. He opposed Russian interference in Bulgarian affairs and was practically the ruler of the country until his deposition in 1894. It was his greatest wish to sever relations with Turkey and to cause his country to be recognized as an independent state.

Denounced As a Judicial Murderer.

On July 4, 1897, the grand sobranje, at his instigation, elected Prince Ferdinand of Saxe Coburg and Gotha to be prince of Bulgaria, and Stambuloff became his chief adviser. In this post, with the title of minister, he was virtually dictator. Frequent attempts were made to overthrow him and, incidentally, the government, but were in each instance discovered and the leaders severely dealt with. So many of the conspirators were put to death that the press of Europe denounced Stambuloff as a judicial murderer. His power did not grow less, however. He gained the sympathy of the triple alliance, and with the protection of England and Austria succeeded in raising a national Bulgarian loan.

Opposed Russia and Turkey.

He increased the displeasure of Russia by his constant opposition to her Bulgarian policy and incurred the anger of Turkey by poining money in Prince Ferdinand's name. He also arranged the marriage of Prince Ferdinand with the Princess Marie Louise of Parma, which took place in spite of Russia's opposition in April, 1893. Out of consideration for the religious belief of the princess, the constitution of the state was modified.

His Downfall Came.

On May 29, 1894, Stambuloff and his colleagues resigned, though to all appearances they had everything their own way. Ferdinand, however, felt that so long as Stambuloff was in power Russia would not recognize a king of Bulgaria. Notwithstanding the fact that Stambuloff was publicly thanked by the prince for his services, the tide of popular feeling had turned against him. His supporters were badly beaten at the next election, and soon afterward he was summoned to explain abusive language which he was accused of using toward the prince. He refused to answer, and was compelled to give 35,000 francs bail.

Virtually a Prisoner in Sofia.

In last January a parliamentary commission was appointed to investigate the acts of his last cabinet. His power was gone and his enemies, who had left the country, returned to join the attack upon him. He had lately been virtually a prisoner in Sofia, not being allowed to leave the city, although he insisted that his health required a change of air and scene.

The announcement that Mr. Harrison never said no seems to please the Elizabeth Journal.

It makes no difference how wrong a statesman may be in England, he is generally the Right Honorable.

The Dunellen Call is agitating the question of lower communtation rates on the Jersey Central between that town and New York.

Every man who starts a new party wants to get himself into office, which the old parties refused to give him.—New Brunswick Times.

"In Union there is strength" may apply to Foster M. Voorhees, but the strength of John Kean, Jr., is in Camden county.—Paterson Guardian.

The moderate weather of the past month has made a fizzle out of the corner which the New York syndicate expected to make on the supply of ice this season.

The words of Rev. Father B. J. Mulligan, of New Brunswick, published elsewhere in The Daily Press, are words of advice that commend themselves to all.

When Mr. Roosevelt says that he proposes to enforce the law against soda water stands as well as saloons on Sunday, it demonstrates the fact that Mr. Roosevelt is altogether too officious.

Judging from Senator Morgan's thrusts at Senator Hill in his speech on the money question at Atlanta yesterday, the Georgia statesman must still remember the keen and pointed remarks the New York man directed at him in the Senate two years ago, when Mr. Morgan was feared as the cock robbin debator of the National arena.

The trouble which has sent the business of the New York and Philadelphia Traction Company into the courts is an apt exemplification of "flying high and lighting low." The company assumed too much to start with on a limited capital, and the result has been inevitable. The outcome of the affair will be of more than ordinary interest to Plainfielders, inasmuch as this is the company who proposed to connect with the local corporation in completing their trunk line.

The verdict of murder in the second degree rendered in the case of John Collins who was charged with the murder of Frederick Ohl, the Princeton college student seems to have been as severe as the circumstances demanded. There is no question but what college students, when out for a lark, are aggravating to the extreme to the man whom they may seek to "jolly," and especially to a man of Collins's mental calibre. Their trouble is generally of their own seeking. In this particular case, however, the young man who was killed was not a member of the party that precipitated the trouble.

INS AND OUTS.

The Scotch Plains baseball team are mourning the loss of their catcher, Ned Quereau.

A great game of baseball will be played on the Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon between the Y. M. C. A. team and the South Amboy's. Go with your friends and enjoy it.

Scotch Plains.

Mr. French has bought the house formerly occupied by Mr. Bartlett, on Park avenue.

Mr. Quereau and family, of Park avenue, left today for Brooklyn where they will make their future residence.

Mr. Bartlett and family, of Park avenue, left yesterday for their new home in Harlem.

One of the features of yesterday's baseball game was a wrestling match between Fred Collins and Squire Reich.

The Merry Mongoose.

Miss Helen Hay, daughter of Col. John Hay, of Washington, the poet and historian, will have a humorous poem in the August number of St. Nicholas. Miss Hay's verse is called "The Merry Mongoose." It is her first contribution to the magazines.

—Local capitalists who put their money in the Liberty Cycle Company, at Rockaway, have applied to the Chancellor for an injunction prohibiting the removal of the works to Bridgeport, Conn. The company employ 350 people and their leaving would cripple the industrial business of Rockaway.

The Ideal Panacea.

James L. Francis, Alderman, Chicago, says: "I regard Dr. King's New Discovery as an Ideal Panacea for Coughs, Colds and Lung Complaints, having used it in my family for the last five years, to the exclusion of physicians' prescriptions or other preparations."

Rev. John Burgus, Keokuk, Iowa, writes: "I have been a minister of the Methodist Episcopal church for fifty years or more, and have never found anything so beneficial or that gave me such speedy relief as Dr. King's New Discovery." Try this Ideal Cough Remedy now. Trial bottle free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria,
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria,
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria,
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

DOANE & EDSALL.

One of Nature's Concerts.

People have loved music ever since the earliest times, especially that furnished nature. But, to the lover of the ocean, there is no prettier music than that of the surf. Besides all the natural seashore attractions of bathing, fishing and sailing, Asbury Park furnishes hosts of other kinds of pleasures, and a chance to enjoy them all will be given next Thursday when the excursion of the Trinity Reformed Sunday-school leaves Plainfield at eight o'clock a. m. And what will make the trip most delightful will be the fact that the train does not leave the beach until seven o'clock p. m.

In Danger of Arrest.

A number of people on West Front street have been disgusted with the actions of the driver of a delivery wagon who persists in lashing his horse without any reason, except on account of his own slowness. Cruelty to animals is a serious offence and punishable by law. Several indignant citizens have already declared to make things hot for the lazy driver, if he continues in his present way.

Invited to See the Yacht Race.

E. T. Douglass, of Sycamore avenue, superintendent of boat transportation of the New York Central and Hudson River railroad, has invited a few friends to join him on his special boat tomorrow afternoon to witness the trial race between the Defender and the Vigilant.

A New Thresher.

W. C. Kelly, of Oak Tree, was in Plainfield today and has a story of terrible destruction to tell of last Saturday's hail storm. His entire oat crop was threshed on the field, while all his other crops were badly damaged. He places his loss at over $500.

A Correct Decision.

If you have not decided before you had better decide now to go to the special sale of buttercups at Tier's tomorrow. They will be fifteen cents a pound, but there is also a fine display of candies, ranging in price from ten to sixty cents a pound.

Preparing For a Great Day.

The Young Men's Association, of the Monroe Avenue chapel, and the Young Men's League, of Hope chapel, will meet at the Monroe Avenue chapel this evening to make the final arrangements for the joint field-day which is to take place on August 31st.

Will Be a Large One.

The yearly conference of the Seventh Day Baptist denomination in August will probably be the largest and the most successful ever held. They will meet in this city.

Plainfield Represented.

The Hillside Tennis Club is to be represented in the single and double tournament in Orange tomorrow by Carl Walz, Fred Walz, Fred Beebe and Henry West.

An Old Favorite Returns.

William H. Ross, who formerly kept a restaurant at 106 Park avenue, will return to his old stand and soon open the Delmonico oyster house and restaurant.

Cool Breezes There.

The Honeyman party are traveling in Switzerland at present. Today they go to see that famous glacier, the Mardi Glace.

—The work of laying flagging on Grove street near the bridge is progressing rapidly and the improvement is appreciated.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Shiloh's cure is sold on a guarantee. It cures incipient consumption; it is the best cough cure, only 1c a dose; 25c, 50c, $1. Sold by all druggists.

"Yield Not to Misfortune."

I was afflicted with catarrh last autumn. During the month of October I could neither taste or smell and could hear but little. Ely's Cream Balm cured it. Marcus Geo. Shautz, Rahway, N. J.

I suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since a boy, and I never hoped for cure, but Ely's Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many acquaintances have used it with excellent results. Oscar Ostrum, 45 Warren ave., Chicago, Ill. Cream Balm is agreeable.

CYCLING COMMENT.

The F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company recived seventeen new wheels yesterday.

Charles T. Rogers, of New Market, has just bought a new Barnes Special from Frank Havens.

Cabanne is said to be the best boxer on the bicycle circuit. It required several bouts before he succeeded in showing his superiority.

Henry and George Rider and Allen Hartley went on their wheels to Perth Amboy yesterday where they enjoyed the fine sailing and bathing the bay offers.

Should the saddle or the post in the frame of a wheel break, it is best not to ride the wheel home, as incomplete repairs to there parts often prove injurious to the rider.

J. VanEps and Benj. R. Force will start for Asbury Park next Wednesday, at five o'clock in the morning. They say they are going to make a big record, wind and weather permitting.

A series of races at varying distances is being considered by Bloomfield and Montclair wheelmen to decide the championship of the two towns. The contest will be decided by points.

M. F. Faulkner has been appointed trainer for the Spalding team, in place of Shafer, who is now with Sanger. Titus will start today for Battle Creek. Cabanne is still laid up at Asbury Park. He will go to Springfield in a few days, where he will remain until he is able to race.

George F. Rose and Walter Rittenhouse started yesterday for Bund's Lake. The boys got as far as Somerville when George Rose's wheel broke, and he was compelled to take the train home. Rittenhouse reached the lake after walking half the way, as the roads were such that he could not ride. He returned by the way of Morristown.

Arrangements have been completed for a twenty-five mile handicap race for the championship of Middlesex county to be run off Saturday afternoon on the road between Metuchen and New Brunswick. The race is under the management of the Perth Amboy wheelmen. The first and second men will be given gold and silver medals respectively. Other prizes will be awarded. Twenty-five have entered.

The remarkable growth of cycling can be imagined from the fact that in 1885 there were less than a dozen cycle factories in the United States, while there are now over 125 establishments, turning out from ten to several hundred wheels a day. The entire output this year is estimated at 500,000 machines, and still many dealers find it hard work to secure wheels to fill all their orders. One-third of the cycles made this year are for women's use. Last year only five per cent of the machines sold were of the drop frame variety.

Two of our town sports disguised themselves in bloomers last Thursday, seized their bicycles and made tracks for old Coney. They had many exciting encounters on the way with bloodthirsty bull terriers, farmers with hay rakes, and were held up on the Brooklyn bridge by a punctured tire, but as they carried all the improved appliances for quieting pantatas, dogs and shot guns they at last reached the land of the wooden elephant, razzle-dazeles, red lemonade and variegated beauties, where they saw the sea serpent, mermaids, fat maids and living skeletons, blew in a few hours, several dollars, and started on their homeward voyage, arriving in the early hours, after several relays of limburger sandwiches and numerous draughts from the town pumps en route.—Bound Brook Democrat.

Riding the bicycle has ceased to be either undignified or conspicuous. Several years ago a bishop denounced the practice by women as immodest and therefore immoral. An immodest woman on a bicycle would surely be immodest still, the wheel not having any power to save her, but an immodest woman would be immodest walking in the street or sitting in church, or wherever she might be. The bicycle has nothing whatever to do with modesty or immodesty, with morality or with immorality; and when the pious bishop uttered his denunciation of the machine and its use his intellectuals must have been befuddled by too much pondering on subjects too hard or too easy for him. But his dictum has not counted for much, for the bicycle is growing in popularity every day, and the manufacturers, one of whom at least is turning out one hundred machines a day, have difficulty in filling the orders that are sent to them.—John Gilmer Speed, in August Lippincott's.

YOUR SCALP! During the heats of summer does it become irritated and invite an occasional friendly scratch? To wash it is well, but not too often, lest your hair become "brash" and stiff. But treat it twice or thrice a week with our Petroleum Hair Tonic—a little rubbed in with your finger ends, and you will find the feeling of comfort and coolness truly delightful. Positively nothing equals it as a balm for the woes of your scalp. Sprinkler bottles 50c. Only at Looking Out For Fall.

Harry Kidd, the representative of the wholesale shoe firm, Johnson and Murphy, of Newark, spent most of the day at the store of Doane and Edsall, who are putting in a fall line of goods.

Not the Man Who Cut Down the Tree.

George Washington, colored, while returning to his home this morning at four o'clock, fell and struck his head on a curb, inflicting a severe scalp wound. He went to the hospital where Dr. Long took several stitches in the cut.

IRIS AND AUNTIE.

"But you're not in earnest," I said.

"Certainly I am," replied Bob, and his face corroborated his assertion. "If Iris is an angel, which at present I am inclined to allow, and if she is expecting me to put the marriage question—which I feel positive is a fact—where is the harm if I go to a private detective—to Norton Scrubbs to wit—and say, 'I want to know the ups and downs of Miss Iris Maypel; here's my money, report as soon as possible?' Where's the harm? In a few days I know all about the lovely Iris from the world's standpoint, my own convictions confirmed beyond question in the future. Sure of the quality of my game, I load and fire, and at my feet falls the young and lovely Iris."

"And if the detective's report is not to your liking?"

"Ah, that's where the gain comes in. I am saved a life-long disaster. There are fools who aver that marriage is a lottery. Bosh! Built on a commercial basis it's as sure a thing as exists. Start without any bad debts—without any misunderstandings, fallacies, preconceived embellishments which never existed but in your imagination, and there's a lifelong happiness to draw from as you require. Where, I repeat, is the harm of inquiry?"

I was too disgusted to reply; so pleaded an engagement and left him.

Bob Pallant was my friend, and I doubt if I could have swallowed his impertinent suggestion had it referred to a stranger, but when Iris, the pretty, soft-voiced, downy-cheeked, innocent-eyed Iris was concerned my stomach absolutely refused. For I adored Iris Maypel, and that she should be subjected to such an insult as Bob proposed made me simmer. For it was an insult this prying into her secret life, even if Iris were conscious of the liberty. Moreover, I had read of how these private inquiry agents would pry even around the domestic hearth, and could—by mistake or intent—throw such lurid lights upon a little error as to make it appear ghastly.

"Her innocence alone should protect her from such duplicity," I argued as I walked. "To attack such guileless rusticity with the subtleties of urban resource was blackguardly in the extreme. Even Iris' maternal aunt, who had piloted her through her first London season with creditable care and watchfulness, would hardly be alert to Bob's unprincipled suggestion.

I purposely avoided Bob's rooms for a week. I knew I should only insult him if I went, and I was loath to do that. Beside, upon reflection, a little brightness broke through the mist. If Norton Scrubbs made a mistake and—either by accident or design—supplied Bob with a report of Iris' character and upbringing, libelous and untrue, Bob would throw up the sponge, and then——

All along it had been patent, to me, at least, that Iris' preference for Bob was the result of chance. She had met him an hour before I was introduced and Bob had made the running. He had had the start of me and I was not quite good enough to overhaul him. But what opportunities for me were offered by an adverse report from Norton Scrubbs! I would never submit my darling to such an indignity! I would never——

In the midst of my reverie in walked Bob.

"Congratulate me, Reggie," he smiled.

"Eh? You're—you're engaged, do you say?"

"As good as. I've got Scrubbs' report. Here it is:

"'Iris Maypel, of Maypel Court, in the County of Blankshire; only child and heiress of Alexander Thomas Maypel, J. P.'"

He looked up suddenly from the paper.

"I verified name and address in the county register," he said.

"Anything more?" I asked.

"Oh, yes, lots. I'll give you pertinent extracts. 'Born May, 1875.' She's younger than I thought, Reggie."

"She doesn't look her age," I retorted.

Bob grunted and continued:

"Family renowned for rectitude of purpose, moral severity, generosity and mercifulness."

"I could have told you that," I interrupted. "Iris carries all that, and more, in her face. Go on!"

"The ladies noted for their enduring beauty, innocence of mind and splendid physique. The Maypels came over with William of Normandy, and are hence of Norman extraction; their——"

"That's enough!" I interrupted angrily. "Why will you continue to insult the girl you pretend to love?"

Bob laughed light heartedly.

"By the bye," I remarked presently, "you take Scrubbs' report for gospel, I notice. You don't question his—er—veracity?"

Bob laughed merrily.

"Question the accuracy of Norton Scrubbs! Doubt the written word of the smartest man in his profession! No, my boy, only an idiot would do that. Why, even the bar acts upon it, sometimes. Besides, look at his bill of costs. Fare to Maypel Court, first return—£3 18s. Lodging and board at hostelry in vicinity of the Court, together with tips for information, etc.—£3 4s. What do those items mean?"

"Oh, I suppose it's all right," I replied. "I don't doubt that one of the hounds has followed the scent, but it's amazing to me that you can be satisfied with the report of any third person and yet be incredulous of your own eyes."

"Now, look here, old man," said Bob, with a paternal flourish, "what's mine can't be yours—where a wife is concerned at all events; so make up your mind to the inevitable, and if you must love Iris Maypel learn to love her as a sister, though there's greater security, both for you and me, to say nothing of our friendship, if you drop loving her at all."

He left me to ponder over his well-meaning hint and I was vainly endeavoring to perceive the truth in it when a letter from Iris was handed in. The first few lines led up to this:

"Why have you deserted us so long, Mr. Clive? Failing to meet you at any social gathering where you are usually to be found, we quite expected you to call. I have, with great difficulty, dissuaded dear auntie from the belief that I have offended you. Will you not come and assert my innocence? Dear auntie's box for Wednesday's 'first night' is not filled, and if you will honor us by helping to fill it dear auntie will be really delighted—as also yours, etc.

"P. S.—Kindly drop us a line to-day. If you have the inclination to bring your answer, auntie will be at home—as also yours, etc."

I read the lines and then endeavored to read between them. Iris had never before approached me in so intimate a mood—in fact, I had been shown to comprehension more than once that Bob's friend was not necessarily upon the same family footing as Bob. And as for the auntie—certainly her cold civility had often impressed me, but I had never flattered myself that she would have concerned herself if Iris had offended, ay, insulted me, a dozen times a week.

However, I quickly resolved upon action. I would call upon Iris, and if things looked favorable I would promise myself for the Wednesday, if not I could easily invent an excuse.

The fact is Hope, so recently evaporated, condensed again, and I drank it with avidity.

I fancied there was a smile on the man's face when he opened the door of the pretty flat in St. James' and said—

"Miss Maypel is in the conservatory, sir, and expecting you."

The man's smirk spoilt what else would have been my record heart-leap. Still, it looked hopeful that Iris was waiting for me in a place I knew from observation her aunt did not frequent.

The man left me hurriedly at the door, and I walked round the conservatory twice and peeped behind every available refuge—there were giant palms and no less giant screens in plenty—but Iris was not there.

I stood perplexed, wondering if there were any connection between Iris's absence and that ugly serving man's smirk. But suddenly I heard a voice, at first faintly, and then most distinctly.

"Don't you be a fool," it said. "You'll get your money, right enough, if you wait. Only let me run alone. I've got my head screwed on right. I can assure you. If you interfere you'll suffer for it, that's all."

It was Iris's voice!

"But, my dear"——

There was the thin, piping voice of her aunt.

"Don't but at me!" interrupted Iris, angrily. "Bob Paliant is off, I tell you, and all your arguments won't bring him on again. Little Reggie Clive's my man now."

I shrank within myself. At the moment Iris spoke my own name they had entered the conservatory, and I had arranged myself for a formidable sneeze with which to announce my presence. But the end of Iris's sentence broke off my sneeze into a mere sigh, and before I could rearrange myself for the effort they were speaking again, and I was uncertain whether it was best to boldly face them or to wait behind the screen on the chance that they would soon clear out.

"I suppose I must tell you the whole tale," Iris continued, peevishly, "though some things are best kept to oneself. Bob Palliant has made an egregious ass of himself."

"Good gracious! How?" breathlessly exclaimed auntie.

"Applied to Cousin Norton for my character and antecedents."

"Well!"

"Of course, Norton humbugged him right enough, told pretty lies about me, and planted me and my family in a fairly respectable county position, but"——

"Doesn't that suit you?" interrupted auntie.

"No, you old fool. Do you think I'm going to marry a man who has been humbugged like that?"

"You're unusually tender about a little imposition."

"Thank you, that will do. I didn't pick up a chaperon and pay her handsomely to stand auntie to me for a season and introduce me to society to be bullied by her in earnest. There are no men to hear us now, remember. I'm not a kid. I've ceased to blubber, and I won't be whipped. Can't you see that if I marry Bob Pallant after this, my chance of pleasure—to say nothing of your chance of your fee—wouldn't be worth a week's notice? He would very soon undeceive himself, and then"——

"You wouldn't be to blame. You didn't deceive him."

"No, but Norton Scrubbs did, and it would ruin his reputation and close his purse to me forever. Norton has already given me to understand as much and advised me to take on Reggie Clive. But there, you haven't any sense."

What an awakening! How I mentally cursed myself! How I mentally cursed Bob for not having married his innocent-lipped, downy-cheeked, dove-eyed Iris right away without inquiry, and so spared me the agonizing predicament I was in. How I cursed—likewise mentally—Norton Scrubbs and all his kith and kin. And all that mental imprecation came out through my pores until drops of sweat fell soft and silent upon the lorn petals of a dying chrysanthemum.

But I had suffered in silence long enough. Scene or no scene, scandal, slander, or what not. I cared not—I was callous to them all. I would reveal my hideous presence.

The revealing was done for me. That smirking servant appeared and announced in a sepulchral voice that Mr. Clive had arrived.

There was a little flutter at the announcement and I heard a fleeting footstep that betokened auntie's departure, for it was Iris who replied:

"Very well, Adams, show him in."

"I—have—already shown him in, Miss Iris," stammered the man.

"Didn't I tell you to show him here—to the conservatory?" said Iris, severely.

"And so I did, Miss Iris. I brought him here several minutes ago, and I have been searching for you ever since to tell you so."

I stepped from behind the screen just in time to witness the full comedy of the moment. Iris was a spectacle to behold! She baffled all description. Amazement mingled with fear, shame, guilt, horror, rage, indignation and a number of other symptoms peculiar to such a nervous shock. I walked to where she still sat, too paralyzed to move.

"Miss Maypel," I said, "I have overheard your conversation, and I know you will call me a coward and an eavesdropper, but my conscience is innocent. I was put here by your man, and you had already committed yourself before I could warn you of my presence, so I waited in the hope that you would leave before discovering me."

She made no reply, so I gladly walked from the conservatory and the house.

I went home and tried to see the end of the business. What attitude would Iris adopt when Bob, in the flushing pride of Norton Scrubb's report, proposed marriage to her? I gave up the conundrum when, far into the night, I had failed to solve it.

I went down to the club the following day resolved to tell Bob all when his familiar face—wearing anything but his familiar expression—looked in. He came straight across to me, and without any preliminaries said:

"Reggie! Where's Iris?"

I pushed my plate aside and returned his gaze.

"How should I know if you are ignorant?" I replied. "Isn't she with her—her auntie?"

"Possibly," returned Bob. "In fact, probably. But where's her aunt? They've disappeared from their flat—flown, owing six months' rent besides salaries and unpaid bills innumerable—and have left no address."

"Well," I said, reflectively, "I'm not surprised after what I overheard in their conservatory yesterday afternoon."

"What did you hear?" asked Bob, eagerly.

I told him.

THE NEW PRIME MINISTER.

Lord Salisbury Proposed the Behring Sea Arbitration.

It was Lord Salisbury who first proposed to submit the Behring Sea sealing dispute to arbitration, and it was he who arranged with Secretary Blaine the modus vivendi.

When the dispute threatened to become acute five years ago, the marquis, at a meeting of Conservative members of Parliament in the Carlton Club, expressed the hope that the difficulty with the United States over the Behring Sea question would be settled soon.

"But," he added, "with such a susceptible nation as America Great Britain cannot negotiate at the top of her voice."

This will be Lord Salisbury's third term as Prime Minister of England. His first ministry, formed in 1885, lasted only a few months, but he was recalled to the head of the Government in 1886 and remained in office six years. Mr. Gladstone and Lord Salisbury seesawed in the Premiership for nearly fifteen years.

The marquis is of medium height, very stout, weighs nearly 300 pounds and growing stouter; has a heavy beard and hair liberally silvered (he is sixty-five years old), and a face that lacks expression in repose, but lights up wonderfully when he talks. His gestures are few and he never attempts oratorical flourish, yet he oftentimes is eloquent, is invariably forcible and clear and never is at a loss for a word.

PRIME MINISTER SALISBURY.

Of course he is opposed to Irish separation. That goes without saying.

In regard to the House of Lords question he made this declaration last autumn:

"If the question of handing the government of the country over entirely to a single chamber should come before the country, which I do not believe it will do, we would have to confront the greatest danger that the community has had to face in many centuries."

Lord Salisbury, being a younger son, had to face poverty in his early manhood. He fell in love with a Miss Alderson. His father forbid the union because the young woman was only the daughter of a judge—not aristocratic or rich enough. Lord Robert stood manfully to his affection, married his choice, and it has been said by a biographer that "this misfortune," as many then regarded it, probably was the making of him. He obtained a wife whose devotion, ability and compatibility have made his domestic life one of the happiest and purest among the public men of his time; it forced him into the employing and maturing of talents which otherwise might have lain fallow or undiscovered.

"Could he not have sneaked in on the preceding day and concealed himself?" I faltered.

"He could have," said Phillips, "provided he wanted to take big chances; but he did not."

"How do you know that?" I blurted out desperately. "Surely you cannot believe that any of us three let him in——"

"I don't," said he.

"But you said one of the inmates," I persisted, now anxious to know the worst of his deductions.

"I did," he assented, "but was not your brother one of the inmates? I'm afraid you would not do for my profession. What do you suppose Mr. Robert Smith got up and dressed himself for at such an hour?—some time before daylight, remember. I saw by a short glance through his medicine bottles that he was not troubled with insomnia——"

"Never in his life," I broke in.

"Well, then," pursued Phillips, "it is quite clear that he got up quietly, dressed himself, admitted some one who came by appointment (probably asked for in that letter in the fireplace), and was killed by the man whom he admitted. That history seems to me to give a perfect explanation of everything, and no other chain of events begins to do so. If your niece, your servant or yourself had admitted this person, or if he had broken in or been concealed in the house, surely your brother would not have been fully dressed before daylight to receive him."

"SHE SHUT THE DOOR IN MY FACE."

"And if someone inside had killed him," I added, "they could have locked the door again."

"Yes," said Phillips, grimly; "if they were fools, they might have pursued that method of fastening the crime upon themselves. Your remark shows you just how stupid even the intelligent criminal can be and usually is."

I felt myself flush at his words and tone; but it would have been worse than foolish to take offense.

"Then it only remains," I said, "to identify the person who made the appointment to meet my brother."

"That is all," he replied rather irritably; "but meanwhile, I imagine it is nearly your dinner hour, and, with your permission, I will go to my room and wash up a bit."

To tell the truth, I was not altogether sorry to be rid of my ally for a few moments, until I could recover my composure. I showed him to his room in silence.

"We shall dine in about fifteen minutes," I said, as he closed the door. Then I went to my niece's room and knocked. At first there was no response, and I knocked again more decidedly. I heard her moving, and a moment later the door was opened a few inches. Her face was set in grim lines.

"I came to see whether you were not coming down to dinner. There is a gentleman here——" I began.

"I should think you would know better than to invite anyone at such a time," she said bitterly. "I certainly shall not come down."

"But, Mary," I pleaded. "It is a detective from the city, a Mr. Phillips, and the best man in his profession."

"So much the worse," and she shut the door in my face.

I went down stairs again, filled with new fears and anxieties. What would Phillips think of such actions? They could hardly fail to strike him as more than peculiar. Even in me they re-aroused vague suspicions which I had practically laid aside. Still, if she was going to act so strangely, perhaps, after all, it was as well that he should not see her.

In this state of mind I sat down to dinner with my guest, pleading the excuse of a bad headache to account for my niece's absence.

"Very natural," he replied, as I went on to elaborate my apologies; "still, I hope to be able to see Miss Smith before my departure."

"I don't know——" I began. "To tell the truth, Mr. Phillips, my niece is, as I believe I intimated to you, in a very peculiar frame of mind. Perhaps we should be surprised by nothing, considering the shock she has received; but I feel that I ought to tell you that she resents your presence here and absolutely refuses to see you."

"Ah!" he replied, and then added, after a few seconds of thought; "That is rather unfortunate, for it is absolutely necessary that I should talk with her before coming to a definite conclusion."

"Are you as near success as that?" I exclaimed, fairly startled by the assurance of his answer.

"I do not know how near I am," he answered testily, "but surely you can see how absurd it would be to go away without examining every inmate of the house."

"I don't know how you can accomplish it. Mary is a very obstinate woman."

"Let me suggest," he replied, more blandly, "that you frankly state the case to her. Say that I am an officer of the law and am compelled to do my duty, and that, if she will submit to the inevitable, my stay and the consequent annoyance to her will be cut short."

I acquiesced in the sound sense of this advice; and little more was said during our meal. When it was concluded, I went up stairs again to my niece's room and represented the situation as well as I was able. This time I found her, though indignant, yet more inclined to look at things reasonably.

"Very well then," she said. "If I must see this—this man, I will do so; but be sure I shall have nothing to say to him, nor will I submit to being questioned."

"When will you come down?" I asked.

"Very shortly," she replied, and again closed the door.

I returned to the library, where I found Phillips and acquainted him with the success of my mission. He bowed and made some remark expressive of regret at being obliged to trouble Miss Smith at such a time. Then we sat silent for a few minutes.

"I presume, of course, that you will examine Mr. Ralph?" I said at last.

Before he could answer we heard the rustle of a woman's gown in the hall, and Mary threw open the door and stood in the threshold. Phillips started to his feet with a short, inarticulate exclamation. His face was very pale, and I saw him clutch the table as if for support. My niece eyed him curiously with her head thrown forward and her lips slightly apart. Her look was at first vague and inquiring, as if trying to remember something, and then partook somewhat of the detective's agitation.

"I—I have nothing at all to say," she began; "and I won't say anything except that I know that the man you suspect is entirely innocent."

In a moment she had turned and disappeared. I half rose to remonstrate and to beg her to remain, but Phillips put out his hand and restrained me.

"It is unnecessary," he said. "I know all that I want to know."

Phillips resumed his seat, while I gazed at him wonderingly and apprehensively. He was now entirely composed, and no sign of his late agitation remained except an increase of his pallor and a deepening of the lines of his face. I recalled the paragraph in the superintendent's letter referring to the bad health of his favorite detective, which had almost prevented our obtaining his assistance; and I again reproached myself for the thoughtlessness which had entirely ignored the physical condition of my companion. My reveries were broken in upon, just as I was about to put them into words, by Phillips rising slowly.

"Will you pardon me," he said, "if I ask you to let me retire? I am not entirely well, as you know, but I imagine a full night's rest will enable me to do better work in the morning."

I now took occasion to apologize for my lack of consideration and to express the hope that he would sleep soundly, rise refreshed and not allow me in my eager selfishness to drive him harder than the condition of his health would justify. All this I said, as I led the way to his room, but he waived my protestations aside and insisted that he would find himself entirely able to stand all that could be put upon him. After seeing that he had everything he required, I bade him good night.

"I think I can promise you, Mr. Smith," he said, with a peculiar graveness in his tone and manner, "that we are very near the solution of this matter."

Then he closed the door, and I went to my own room.

Once there, I found time to think over the curious scene in the library between my niece and the detective, and the more I thought the more it disquieted me. His last remark, too, seemed to me, to say the least, ominous; and altogether, I slept little or none.

I got up about half-past seven, and, arter dressing hastily, went down stairs. Phillips had not appeared, and I hesitated awhile as to whether I should awaken him, deciding finally in the negative. Mary, of course, did not leave her room.

At last the clock struck nine. I went up to the detective's door and listened. Evidently he was not moving, so I knocked—gently at first, then more decidedly; but without response. Finally I ventured to try the door, only to find that it was locked on the inside. I now began to pound vigorously, listening, from time to time, until at last, thoroughly frightened by the persistent silence, I put my shoulder against it and forced it open.

Phillips was lying on the bed, apparently in a very heavy slumber, although the daylight was streaming through the window. His lips were parted and his cheeks seemed slightly flushed. I spoke to him, and laid my hand on his shoulder.

Then I recoiled with sudden horror. The man was dead—rigid—cold as stone, and had evidently been dead for many hours.

The shock of this discovery was so great that, for a few moments, I was utterly unable to think connectedly. Little by little I began to realize the full extent of the calamity, and regret for what seemed to me the extinction of our best hope to learn the truth as to my brother's murder, was mingled with a deeper regret that the strain of my interests had been the last straw to break down an overworked and useful life. Pervading all was the consciousness of a possibility too horrible to contemplate. There was nothing to do, however, but notify the authorities, and, before the day had passed, the house was again thronged with coroner, physicians, constables and jurymen.

The body of the dead detective was examined. He had evidently prepared himself for bed as usual; his clothes were laid carefully over a chair, and he had passed away in his sleep apparently without a struggle or pang. I breathed a sigh of heartfelt relief when the investigation disclosed no evidence of violence, and the verdict was rendered accordingly: "Death by heart failure occasioned by exhaustion and overwork."

My brother's funeral had been set for the following day, and I confess to something of a mental struggle as to whether I should at once acquaint the local authorities with Phillips' discoveries. Skidmore, the village constable, was the last to leave me and, as he did so, he took occasion to intimate that the solution of the murder had been pretty accurately arrived at, and that, without the aid of "no highfalutin city detective."

"What do you mean?" I asked quickly.

"Oh! nuthin' much," he replied. "Only we've found out that that there feller Ralph was seen a walkin' up th' road in this direction 'bout five o'clock that mornin'."

"Who saw him?"

"Billy Gough. I reckon he don't know much, but he knows enough not ter be fooled on a feller that's bin 'round here as long as Ralph has."

With this parting shot, the local Hawkshaw took his departure, leaving me inconsiderably perturbed at his information. I had begun somehow to feel satisfied of the innocence of the young collegian. A knife thrust was the last method a man like him would adopt, and it seemed to me to bring the crime closer to the Italians with whom my brother had quarreled. Whether this impression originated within myself or whether I felt unconsciously that Phillips' conclusions were tending in that direction, I do not know. Still, I could not deny that this last bit of testimony was very material as circumstantial evidence. To be sure, Billy Gough was hardly half-witted, but, as the constable said, he knew Ralph well enough not to be mistaken on a question of his identity.

I have forgotten to state that, immediately upon my discovery of Phillips' death, I had naturally telegraphed Superintendent Sanford, and that, by his directions, Inspector Ransom had come up to attend the inquest and to make arrangements for the removal of the body to New York. He had had little or nothing to say during the proceedings, and I had left him in the room occupied by Phillips, while I saw the constable to the door.

"WHAT DID THAT MAN SAY TO YOU?"

As I turned back into the hall, Mary was descending the stairs. Her face was agitated and I surmised at once that she must have overheard Skidmore's parting remarks, a surmise which proved to be correct.

"What did that man say to you?" she asked, coming close.

"Nearly all last winter I was sick in bed, and was attended by different physicians; none cured me, none helped me very much. When I attempted to get up, it was always the same story; my back would ache, I was dizzy and faint, the bearing-down pains were terrible. I also had kidney trouble badly.

HOW PEOPLE BECOME DRUNKARDS.

Dr. Leslie E. Keeley, Inventor of the Gold Cure, Decribes Influences of Heredity.

I have treated over 200,000 drunkards, and perhaps have made a more careful and thorough observation of drunkenness than any other man in the United States.

Alcoholics drink because they are alcoholics, but not all drinkers are alcoholics. Nine-tenths of the liquor of this world is drunk by men and women who are not alcoholics, do not become intoxicated or diseased to any great extent, and are not the subject of prayers or curses by reason of the liquor they drink. There are many wine cellars in this country dedicated to secrecy.

People drink because they have other diseases. Ever since the landing of Noah and the Cain wedding, alcohol has stood by the sick bed and has held the lamp for feasters and revelers. It has waited upon birth, sickness, injury, pain, joy, marriage, revelry and death alike. If drinking is a vice only, then the prescription is a crime. Alcohol is the instinctive remedy for injury, for sudden illness, for pain. It is not the least among the remedies used by physicians, and is acknowledged to be beneficial and an antidote to disease and disease infection.

Not the least among the causes of the habit of drinking is heredity. I regard the hereditary drinkers as the so-called temperate drinkers. I do not regard inebriety as a necessarily hereditary disease. Heredity protects people rather than destroys them. The known laws of heredity build up a protection or an immunity to poisons of all kinds. Men acquire immunity from diseases by heredity. The men who are exposed to typhoid, measles, diphtheria, smallpox, scarlet fever, typhus, etc., and do not take the diseases, are the men who have acquired the power of resisting these poisons. They acquire this power either directly by the action of the poisons upon themselves, or they acquire the resistance from their poison-leavened ancestry by the law of heredity. The law of heredity, as a factor of natural selection, has brought mankind out of the wilderness, or is bringing him out.

Our consumptives are the people who do not inherit consumption, but have not yet acquired a resistance to the microbe of this disease by heredity. Our inebriates, or men who cannot resist the poison of alcohol, are men who cannot oppose, by means of the vital resistance of their tissue cells, the poisoning of alcohol. Any native Indian, or Australian, or Hottentot if given whisky, will become a drunkard. Not one Christian American or European in a thousand will become a drunkard under precisely similar conditions. The reason is that the European and American inherit a tolerance to the poison from a line of poisoned pestered ancestry, extending back to an historical marriage feast, the orgies of King Canute in the first of the eleventh century, the nakedness of the drunken King of Israel, and the vine planting and "celebration" of Noah.

With one exception heredity has but one method of propagating disease. The law or force of heredity saves people from disease. Immunity from the action of poisons is only given by the action of poisons themselves, and this immunity so acquired is what is transmitted by heredity. The man who can inhale sewer gas containing tubercle bacilli and escape consumption is the man whose ancestors have so long been poisoned by this microbe that they acquired an immunity to the poison. Now, this man can, very likely, put a glass of old rye under his vest every morning or before dinner to enjoy the pleasure of the exhilaration therefrom and never lose his "self-control," as he proudly calls it. He can keep up his habit during his natural life without "alcoholism" or drunkenness or any of the lesions alcohol may cause. It is not because this man has more self-control or Christianity than other men. It is simply because he inherits more vital resistance to this poison.

LESLIE E. KEELEY.

Chamberlain's is the best of all. Vincent S. Barkl, of Danbury, Iowa, has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy whenever in need of a medicine for coughs and colds, for the past five years and says: "It always helps me out. If anyone asks me what kind of cough medicine I use, I reply, Chamberlain's, that is the best of all. 25 and 50c. bottles for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freemyer House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for any kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the diseases for which it is intended and he knows it. It is for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

It May Do as Much For You.

Mr. Fred Miller of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a Severe Kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called Kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure all Kidney and Liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c for large bottle, at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

JOY TO INFANTS.

Frail, Sickly Babies Get Fat and Sturdy.

Their Steady, Healthy Growth Due to Lactated Food.

BABIES WHEN WEANING DO NOT THROW IT UP.

Puny Ones Show a Decided and Immediate Gain.

Lactated Food Babies Stand Summer Heat the Best.

There are many anxious mothers now warm weather is here.

And they have every reason for being alarmed. The hot, vertical sun beats down mercilessly on the little ones; reduces their strength, robs them of high spirits, spoils their appetite and loosens their slender hold on life, unless extraordinary care is taken that their food is free from impurities and sufficiently nourishing and strengthening.

In thousands of cases where nursing, protracted into warm weather, has reduced the vitality and richness of the breast milk, babies that show signs of fretfulness and often colic, become again fat and sturdy when put on a diet of lactated food. It is undoubtedly true that babies that have the advantage of their mother's milk seem to stand the heat of summer best, providing the natural food agrees with them. But when the hot weather brings down the strength of both mother and child there is always danger of the severe bowel affections which come on so suddenly and are so often fatal.

Practiced physicians prescribe lactated food to be kept always on hand and used at once on the first indication of looseness or loss of strength, or if baby is evidently not thriving on its present diet. Lactated food is the diet physicians use in their own families.

Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared, and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. Marlow, M. D., Tamaroa, Ill. THE DAILY PRESS

ESTABLISHED MAY 10, 1887. PLAINFIELD, N. J., SATURDAY, JULY 20, 1895. TWO CENTS A COPY—$5 A YEAR

THE PRESS WAS RIGHT.

Golf Course to Be Laid Out Between Central and Plainfield Avenues.

The proposed golf club, in connection with the Hillside Tennis club, which was exclusively announced in The Daily Press of a month ago, appears to be a recognized fact.

A committee from the Hillside Tennis club, consisting of Howard Beebe, Carl Pfeifer, and George P. Mellick, have been working among the young men of Plainfield, and their efforts are meeting with great success, and it is very probable that a golf club will soon be formed. The location of the links has not been definitely decided, but, despite the erroneous statements of the Courier-News, the committee are much in favor of locating them in the fields between Central and Plainfield avenues, just back of F. A. Barnaby's residence and extending out towards Road's End, the country home of Mr. Corlies. The country in that direction is very beautiful, and answers the requirements of the course.

CAN BUILD THE TROLLEY.

The Court Will Remove the Injunction in New Brunswick.

Chief Justice Mercer Beasley announced yesterday that he will sign an order removing the power of an injunction from the writ of certiorari obtained against the Traction Company in June by Wm. B. VanNortwick and his daughter, Mary VanNortwick, of George street and Throop avenue, New Brunswick. This means that the company can go on with its work in that city. The next move will be for the Common Council to organize and grant the Traction Company permission to pass through the streets through which is wishes to extend its tracks. It is thought the ordinance is legal. This question will not be argued until a later term of the Supreme Court.

Where Fun Will Be Rampant.

A fine hotel with all the luxuries of life is a very nice place to spend a few weeks, but there is, perhaps, more real pleasure for a party of young men in a tent, and believing this, Walter Hetfield, Wyatt Barnes, Burt Wyckoff, Harry Fulper, Clarence Thorn, Frank Smalley, Harry Dencklau and Percy McVoy are going camping on the shores of Hank's Lake, a short distance from the village of New Foundland. The party will start at two o'clock on the morning of July 29th with two wagons to carry the campers and their outfit. Two tents will protect the party for their two weeks stay, and a royal good time is expected by all.

Grain Thieves in Union.

Grain thieves are plentiful just now in Union township, Union county, and the farmers report numerous depredations. Their barns and granaries have been broken open and robbed. The latest raid was made Thursday night at Freeholder Noah Woodruff's place. The thieves stole oats, feed and corn. His corn-crib was broken open and about twenty-five bushels of corn were taken. Since May over 200 bushels of corn have been stolen from the Freeholder. The farmers are going to organize for mutual protection.

Will Make Tramps Work.

The Township Committee, of Woodbridge, passed a tramp ordinance at their meeting Thursday night similar to the one now in operation in Rahway. Tramps found within the township limits will be compelled to work twenty-four hours on the streets. Woodbridge has been pestered lately with tramps who stop pedestrians—even women—and ask alms.

Touch of the Blind Staggers.

The hack horse belonging to Michael Kennedy had the blind staggers on North avenue yesterday afternoon. Mr. Kennedy was driving down that thoroughfare when the horse began to sway from side to side and finally stopped. With the help of several passersby Mr Kennedy kept the animal from laying down, and finally bled him, after which he went along all right.

Mr. Raymond Off For Europe.

Dr. A. V. V. Raymond, formerly pastor of Trinity Reformed church in this city, but now president of Union college at Schenectady, sailed on the Obdam of the Netherland line, for Europe today. He was accompanied by his family.

Will Not Move.

P. M. Decker, the North avenue barber, will not move from the Hotel Grenada building to the opposite side of the avenue.

Who Said Friday Is Unlucky?

Vanderbeek & Sattells, the Park avenue hustlers, sold four pianos yesterday.

WHERE THESPIANS WILL PLAY

MUSIC HALL WILL PRESENT AN INVITING APPEARANCE TO PATRONS.

Mr. Stillman Is Making Repairs that Ensure for Him and His Bookings a Successful Season.

That Plainfield's theatre-going people are to have an opportunity of enjoying a season of excellent attractions at Music Hall will be a source of much pleasure to them. William M. Stillman, who has secured the hall, has been to no little trouble and expense in arranging that everything necessary be done for the comfort and pleasure of the patrons of the theatre. For some time past men have been engaged at the hall thoroughly renovating it in every nook and corner.

On the stage and in the wings Woolston & Buckle's men are busily engaged repainting the scenery which has done service for many years. There will be several scenes new to Plainfielders, and that tired feeling, which has often been expressed over the monotonous and well-worn scenes will no doubt be obviated. One of the best improvements in the hall is the work done in the dressing rooms. Of course, patrons have nothing to do with this part of the business, but it is an important feature in securing the best class of attractions, and it is a great satisfaction to know that everything about the place is first-class. These rooms have been put in the best of condition, and the sanitary arrangements repaired in a manner that will no longer merit the condemnation of the profession.

It will seem like old times again to witness an excellent performance in this place with all the attending comforts that it is possible to furnish.

And then when the mercury is crowding zero no one need have any fears about the hall not being warm, for the perfect heating of it will be made a feature, and one will be able to take their overcoat off and enjoy the play. The management of the hall, as everyone knows, is of the best, and no further evidence is needed to assure Plainfield that it will be all that is desirable. Polite and courteous attention will be the rule of the season, and everyone who appreciates good treatment will find it.

W. R. Mattox will look after the minor details of the house and will see that everything in his charge is properly cared for. The performances will be meritorious ones as in evidenced by the partial list published in Thursday's issue of this paper.

Edward Nelson will again preside in the box office and in his usual business-like and courteous manner sell the best seats in the house to those coming first.

It is Mr. Stillman's idea to give the people of Plainfield an opportunity of witnessing the best companies on the road and they will, no doubt, appreciate his efforts in this direction by a liberal patronage.

The Daily Press predicts a season of success to Mr. Stillman and the hall.

BATHERS SEE A SHARK.

They Lose No Time Getting to Land at Boynton Beach.

The Methodist church, of Newark, sent its annual picnic to Boynton Beach yesterday. Almost a thousand persons were in the grove, says The World. Several hundred were in bathing when one of the employes of the grove ran down the pier, pointing out on the Sound and shouting: "Shark!" There was a wild scare and a general scamper for the shore. Women and children shrieked, and one woman, Mrs. Bartell, of Newark, fainted in the water and was carried ashore.

The fishing boats, of which there were thirty or forty, began rowing towards land. There was a general sigh of relief when the last reached the pier. By this time a man-eater more than eight feet in length could be plainly seen by those along the banks. During the afternoon the shark swam around, at one time within nearly a hundred feet of the pier.

The Harvest Home.

The great harvest home held last year on the large grounds of Israel J. Coon at Smalleytown drew hundreds of people and everyone was highly pleased. The committee are already making extensive preparations for their annual gathering to be held in the first week in August. Fine music, good speaking and a big supper will be among the attractions of the occasion.

Mr. Bird Out Again.

Fred Bird, who was injured while riding his wheel through Long Branch Thursday, July 11th, is able to be out again. It will be sometime before he can work.

A LITTLE TOT'S ABSENCE.

She Hid in the House and Frightened New Market.

An interesting story is told about Ellen Peterson, the exceedingly bright two-year old daughter of the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Peterson, of New Market. A few days ago her father was busily engaged away from home while her mother was absent. She was left in charge of her grandfather and grandmother. Suddenly they missed her and were unable to account for her disappearance. They started to search for her, and looked all over the house, high and low, but not a trace could be found of the little tot. In a little while her father came home and when he heard the story he became alarmed and quickly joined in the search. They went through nearby fields and called on the neighbors, but still no tidings of her could be heard. The neigbors became anxious and they also began to look.

By this time the party had increased in numbers and dispersed in every direction, and at the same time calling the little girl by name, but there was no response, and an hour and a half had elapsed since she was missed.

Finally her father thought he would look through the house again. The grandfather and grandmother went with him, and as they entered the library they heard the little one saying, "Here I is, grandma," and there she was hid away from sight in a small opening in Mr. Peterson's secretary, with a newspaper covering her. It was a great relief to find her and after promising not to do so again, she was helped down and the household once more resumed its wonted quietude.

Moonshiners Caught in Bayonne.

Six United States Secret Service detectives, headed by Chief Brooks, made a raid on an illicit whiskey distillery in a house in Avenue A, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets, Bayonne, at an early hour yesterday morning. Samuel Goodman, who leased the premises two months ago, was not at home when the officers arrived. After a careful survey of the place the detectives loaded all the distilling apparatus, which included a fifty-gollon copper still, on a truck, and took it to Jersey City. Goodman, who was arrested later, gave bail to Commissioner Romaine in Jersey City for a hearing on a charge of distilling whiskey without a Federal permit. Goodman says the stuff was found in two rooms he had rented to two New York strangers about two weeks ago.

Rescue the Perishing.

There is a chance that there will be one less church in Plainfield unless some of the generous people of this city come to its aid. There is a claim of $600 on the property of the Fillmore Avenue Baptist church which must be paid before October and to raise that sum and save the church, a grand concert will be given there on the evening of Thursday, August 8th. The admission will be twenty-five cents, and refreshments will be sold. J. W. Jeffress, the pastor, is working hard for the success of the entertainment and the saving of his congregation.

A Musical Evening.

A small social gathering took place at the country residence of Mr. Smith, in Union Village, one of the head electricians in the Edison Electric Company's Works. Music took up most of the evening. Among those present were: Miss May McLaughlin, Miss Jennie Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark, George W. DeMeza, Robert Clark, Jr., and Edward O. Clark.

Epworth League Rally.

Tomorrow evening there will be a special rally of the Epworth League in the Methodist church. Miss Ida Angleman, delegate to the National Convention at Chatanooga, will read a paper on the same.

The Best of All.

Maurice Higgins, sexton of St. Mary's church, after looking at the lawns surrounding other churches, says they are nowhere compared to the one under his charge.

For a St. Patrick's Alliance.

On Tuesday evening, July 30th, there will be an effort made to organize a branch of St. Patrick's Alliance in Plainfield.

For St. Mary's Altar.

Two statues of adoring angels from the celebrated establishment of Mayer, Murich, Bavaria, now ornament the altar of St. Mary's church.

A Stray Horse.

A stray horse was found running loose early this morning by Policeman Cooney. It was taken to Cole's livery where the owner can get it by calling.

SPILLED OUT BUT NOT HURT.

An Exciting Runaway on Leland Avenue Last Night.

Miss Maude Lord, of Netherwood, together with two lady friends, were out riding on Leland avenue last night about six o'clock when they met with a serious accident. Further down the road a man named Lewald was seated in a tea wagon, belonging to an out-of-town firm, who was delivering goods. The horse has the reputation of being a runaway, and without any warning started off at a break-neck speed. The animal had the best of Lewald, and the latter was unable to get control of him.

Just ahead was Miss Lord and her friends. They did not apprehend any danger till the runaway horse and wagon collided. One of the women jumped, while the other two remained in the wagon. One of their front wheels was smashed and the horse was thrown down, and received several scratches and cuts. Fortunately none of the party were injured. The runaway horse kept right on, and apparently would not stop for anything. It is not known where he brought up.

Policeman Frederickson who lives near the scene of the accident came out and helped the other steed to his feet. He then secured his own horse and wagon and took the women home.

IS IT GAIN OR PRINCIPLE.

An Interesting Discussion of the Barbers' Sunday Closing Movement.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—

Last evening's Courier-News publishes an interview with a barber who out of personal avarice offers a compromise to the principle underlying the barbers' Sunday closing movement. It is not a matter of law with the barber, neither can the law be construed as it is in said article. Sunday is the legal holiday of the week in New Jersey, but the law allows any person having conscience in regard to the day to keep another. This law is somewhat abused in Plainfield at present.

The barber complaining in regard to being unable to keep shop if he is obliged to close up Sunday, makes a very poor point. He acknowledges that on Saturday he has not got the return for his time he ought to have. This movement desires to give him the work on Saturday that he now does on Sunday, reducing our working hours from ninety to about eighty hours a week. Keeping Sunday as a day of rest a barber may be benefited morally and physically, and his family will also derive benefit. I, for one, have no doubt that the barbers will have the moral support of everybody in Plainfield. All mechanics know that today they work for the same wages, doing about the same amount of work in ten hours, that they formerly did in twelve. A Barber.

MRS. PARKHURST'S FALL.

The Mother of a Prominent Citizen Breaks Her Hip.

There was consternation at the home of George R. Musgrave, 101 Duer street, Thursday evening, when Mrs. N. E. Parkhurst, the mother of Mr. Musgrave, fell and broke her hip. She was in the room at the time with her son and started to walk over to the table, when sundenly she fell and the accident happened. Mr. Musgrave had his back to her at the time and knew nothing of it until she had fallen. Dr. Tomlinson was called and the injured woman put under his care. She is now doing nicely and no bad results are expected.

Is the Plainfield Man to Get the Go By?

The following item from Elizabeth appeared in the New York World this morning:

It is doubtful if the Elizabeth Board of Education will be able to elect a secretary at the meeting called tonight. Commissioner Marriot, the Republican "kicker," demands, it is said, a pledge that he can have the deputy or assistant county clerkship before he will cast his vote for the Republican caucus nominee for secretary. The place is now held by Elmore D. Moffett, Democrat, ex-president of the Plainfield City Council.

This statement has led many Plainfield Republicans to wonder what the chances of the Plainfield Republican will be who is said to have been promised the place.

No Place for the Beasts.

Mrs. Eaton, of Norwood avenue, will have an audience with Mayor Gilbert this afternoon, during which she will make a vigorous protest against the violation of a city ordinance by cattle continually grazing on Norwood avenue.

Still in the Alps.

The Honeyman tourist party are at Zermatt, Switzerland, today, where they will view one of the finest glaciers in the Alps.

THE ANGEL IN BLACK HERE.

HOSPITAL AMBULANCE ARRIVED IN TOWN THIS MORNING.

Is Splendidly Equipped for the Errands of Mercy Which It Will Perform—Made by Studebaker.

She came like a ghost in white, but now the white robes have been removed and her black sides and running-gear shine in the sun while the word "Ambulance" in red and white tells her mission to all. For the long-looked-for ambulance of the Muhlenberg Hospital came last night and is now ready to go on its errand of mercy. It arrived on a flatcar late in the evening and about eight o'clock this morning was unloaded and taken to Roberts' boarding stable, which will be its home in the future.

The outside of the wagon is very plain, black panels surrounded by narrow bands of gold with a small red cross and "Muhlenberg Hospital" in red and white on the forward panel and "Ambulance" in larger letters on the lower main panel. Strong springs make an apparently easy running wagon, inside of which is a wicker cot or stretcher and two seats for the attendants. There is a businesslike look about it that presages great things for the future and promises to fill its part with the many other aids for the sick and wounded. A gong like those used on the New York ambulances will clear the road for this angel in black. The ambulance was manufactured by Studebaker Brothers, the great carriage makers of Indiana. Its weight is about fourteen hundred pounds and can be pulled by either one or two horses, but only one horse, however, will be used in Plainfield.

The money necessary to purchase the ambulance was raised through the efforts of the woman's auxiliary of the hospital.

RAHWAY'S POLITICAL SAGE.

New Jersey Advocate Comments on the Political Situation.

Editor Rollinson this week publishes the following concerning the chances of Plainfield Republicans:

There is already talk about the Assembly nominations in this county. The general sentiment favors a nominee from each of the three cities—Elizabeth, Plainfield and Rahway. Freeholder Roll, of Springfield, is not unfavorable to being considered a candidate, and he would make a good one. Rahway Republicans would probably waive any claim they might have in his favor, as they know his sterling worth and remember with gratitude his labors to defeat the South Orange sewer bill. The only thing they want is for him to come out on the right side on the gubernatorial question and all will be well.

If Senator Voorhees is nominated for Governor, as now seems very likely, Plainfield will have a candidate for that position and there should not be the slightest opposition shown by the Republicans in any other part of the county in granting that honor to Plainfield. There's where Republican majorities flourish. Plainfield Republicans have never had the Senatorship, and this will be a good year to accord that recognition to them.

A Blunder of the Leaguers.

The Law Enforcement League of Rahway, it is claimed, has made a blunder in bringing a charge against Michael Whalen, proprietor of the First Ward Hotel, for alleged Sunday selling. Whalen was tried for this offence before the Court of Common Pleas at Elizabeth, his being made a test case. The Court acquitted him and directed that the other cases be taken before the Police Justice in Rahway, as the Common Pleas did not have any jurisdiction. Whalen being once acquitted cannot, it is said, be again tried for the same offence. With the other ten liquor dealers the case is different, as they had no previous trial.

Snubs the Citizenship Union.

The Board of Excise of Elizabeth it is said snubbed the Christian Citizenship Union Thursday night at a meeting of the board by referring to the City Attorney a communication from the union relative to half a dozen saloon-keepers accused by the union of selling on Sunday. The union now threatens to go before the next Grand Jury and have the Excise Commissioners indicted for neglect of their sworn duty.

Not the First Time, Either.

The horse belonging to William J. Stephenson, of North avenue, suddenly started off on Putnam avenue yesterday afternoon, nearly pulling the boy off of his seat, but by good management he was finally stopped at the foot of Putnam avenue hill.

A DROP IN BEEF.

The Electric Car Track Proves Disastrous to a Load of Meat.

There was a sudden fall in beef yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock and for that matter, in pork and mutton, too, for a delivery wagon belonging to the Plainfield Beef Company, had a back wheel dished while crossing the electric car tracks on West Front Street, near Washington avenue, and the large wagon load of meat came to the ground with a crash.

The wagon had started for Dunellen and Bound Brook, when it came to this sudden halt. The accident blocked up the up track and the cars were forced to transfer passengers and return from whence they came. The horses were unhitched and taken away, Krewson's express wagon was secured, and the load transferred into it.

They Were Hungry.

New Market has alays been quite popular with Plainfield fishermen and yesterday Arthur Murphy, of Washington avenue, and George Snediker, of Grove street, went out in search of adventures. They started to walk there and back, and the down trip was made all right. A good swim and a nice haul of dace occupied the afternoon and the young men started homeward, but the healthy exercise heightened the pangs of hnnger and they were glad of the chance af a ride home on a passing wagon.

Different From the Rest.

Wednesday of next week is the date set for St. Mary's church excursion. Glen Island, one of the loveliest spots in the country, is the destination. There is a sail of nearly three hours on the Sound. The rest of five hours is at the shore. The music on board the boat, refreshments, etc., are attractions commending themselves to lovers of change from the ordinary railroad excursions.

"This."

The New York Evening World is always looking for novelties in newspaperdom. Plainfield has what the Bound Brook Democrat is pleased to call a freak, and it is feared that The Evening World is not advised of this fact. If The World wants to make a hit let them import the man who has set Plainfield people agog by appearing in knickerbockers as a business suit. The baloon reporter would not be in it with This.

Strike and Lose Their Jobs.

Twenty men at work depressing the streets in Elizabeth under the Central railroad tracks went on strike yesterday for higher wages. The men were paid $1.10 a day, and want $1.25. They also wanted to get their money in advance of the regular payday, July 20th. The strikers' names were stricken from the roll of employes, and in the afternoon new men were put in their places and the work proceeded as usual.

A Contractor in Trouble.

Charles S. Hogan, a contractor, formerly in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was arrested Thursday evening on a warrant issued by Police Justice Frazee at Rahway. The complainant is John Mundy, of Main street, who alleges that Hogan gave him a beating on Sunday night. Hogan is a big and powerful man, while Mundy is small and frail. Hogan was held by Justice Frazee in $200 bail to await the Grand Jury's action.

Was It Plainfield?

It was currently reported in Rahway yesterday that Edward Adams and Florence Manning, the couple who eloped on Wednesday night, succeeded Thursday in getting married in a town not far from Rahway. Just who performed the ceremony is not stated, nor where it took place.

Trophy from Asbury Park.

Wm. M. McCutchen, of Rockview Terrace, and Kirby Dwight, of Rockview avenue, have returned from Asbury Park, where they went to attend the national meet of the L. A. W. Billy brought back a $50 diamond ring as his share of the honors of the day.

Of Course It Does.

"It pays to advertise in the "Press," saps Edward Love of North avenue, and we may venture to say that the substantial way Mr. Love backs up his words with fine goods at low prices and first class work, has something to do with the success of his "ad" in this paper.

It Runs in the Family.

Edward Stillman Randolph, nephew of L. Warren Randolph, the druggist, who was at one time a resident of Plainfield and attended the High School, is keeping a prosperous pharmacy in Asbury Park, and is doing very well there.

TRYING TO SAVE MARIA

A Full Pardon Will Be Asked for Her.

Everything Possible Under the Prison Regulations Being Done for the Condemned Woman's Comfort at Sing Sing—Warden Sage Expresses Sympathy for the Girl.

New York, July 20.—The friends and sympathizers of Maria Barberi, the Italian woman under sentence to be killed in the electric chair during the week beginning August 19, have begun to taken active steps to arrest the sentence and obtain from Governor Morton a full pardon. Mrs. Foster, the Tombs angel, is now aiding the Countess di Brazza in her efforts to save the girl.

Want a Full Pardon.

While Maria's lawyers are trying to get a legal stay of execution of the sentence, Countess di Brazza and Mrs. Foster will circulate a petition asking Governor Morton for a full pardon. Printed slips were to-day circulated for signatures. These slips, after they are returned to the countess, will be forwarded to Albany. Nothing but a full pardon will be asked for. These slips may be had by writing to Lawyer Evans at 309 Broadway.

Many Women Interested.

Countess di Brazza will go to Newport to procure signatures of her wealthy friends who may have some influence with Governor Morton. Many women have already become interested in the movement to have Maria pardoned, and it is expected that the petition when forwarded will have many thousands of signatures.

Cheerful in Prison

Sing Sing, N. Y., July 20.—Maria Barberi, the condemned young Italian woman who is confined in the state prison here under sentence of death is much more cheerful than might be expected under the circumstances. Everything within the law and prison regulations to comfort the poor girl is being done. She is confined in the room specially prepared for her and she will not be placed in the death house, where six condemned murderers are now awaiting execution of their sentences.

Watched Day and Night.

Warden Sage has engaged a Mrs. Zimcemp to act as matron and to attend to the wants of the condemned woman. A male guard will be on duty day and night at the door leading to Maria's room. The girl will be watched constantly. She calmed down after she was placed in the room and passed a fairly good night. When Mrs. Foster left her yesterday Maria thanked her for what she had done for her, speaking in broken English. She also gave Mrs. Foster to understand that she would like her to visit her soon.

Warden Sage's Unpleasant Position.

Maria is the first woman in this state to be condemned to the electric chair. Warden Sage to-day expressed much sympathy for the unfortunate young woman, and said that he would make her room as comfortable as possible. He hinted that he hoped something would happen to keep him from being compelled to kill Maria in the electric chair.

Female Watchers To Be Appointed.

Albany, July 20.—Warden Sage of Sing Sing prison has officially notified Gov. Morton of the arrival of Maria Barberi at the prison. He has applied to the governor for the appointment of two female watchers to look after the death cell of his new charge until the execution of the death sentence. The application was granted. Letters are pouring in on the governor pleading for clemency for the woman.

THE CAMPAIGN IN FORMOSA.

Stubborn Defense Being Made by the Chinese.

Yokohama, July 20.—An official dispatch received here from the island of Formosa says that the Chinese are making a stubborn defence of that territory. After the capture of Lung-Taupao, on June 14, an attempt was made to effect a junction between two Japanese battalions at the river Takukau, but the attempt failed and a squadron of Japanese cavalry, which was suddenly attacked by a superior force of Chinese, was cut to pieces, only three troopers escaping. The junction of the two battalions was effected on July 16.

SIX HUNDRED TURKS KILLED.

Sultan's Forces Defeated by a Force of Macedonians.

Sofia, July 20.—A serious fight has occurred on the Turco-Macedonian frontier between a force of insurgents, stated to have numbered 5,000 and a body of Turkish troops. The latter were defeated with a loss of 600 men.

Her Remains Identified.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., July 20.—The unknown woman who was killed by a New York & New Haven train in this city Thursday morning, has been identified by Mary McGauley, of Yonkers, as her mother, Mrs. Mary McGauley, aged 63, of Sing Sing, N. Y. The unfortunate woman was on her way to visit a daughter who lived at Harrison, N. Y., when she was struck by the express and instantly killed.

Murdered by Her Uncle.

Farmington, Minn., July 20.—Josephine Sherdol, the 12-year-old daughter of Sever Sherdol, of Eureka, was murdered yesterday by her uncle, Edward Anderson, who has been working for her father. The girl was sent to Sever Larson's place, three miles from home, on account of her uncle's conduct. He followed and cut her throat from ear to ear.

Murderer Travers Put to Death.

Washington, July 20.—James L. Travers, the murderer of Lena Gross, was hanged in the district jail yesterday. He died without a struggle. The hanging was witnessed by about thirty persons and was attended by no unusual incidents.

Detailed As Military Instructor.

Washington, July 20.—Secretary Lamont has detailed Capt. C. C. Hewitt, of the 19th infantry, as military instructor at the West Virginia university, Morgantown.

AID FOR THE CUBANS.

Another Filibustering Party and Ammunition Landed.

Kingston, July 20.—It is a pretty well established fact that another filibustering expedition has either been landed in Cuba or is hovering off the coast awaiting an opportunity to land. On Tuesday last a strange ship sailed from Ocho Rica, having on board a number of filibusters and a quantity of arms and ammunition. It has been learned that war material had been concealed for months in a vault near Ocho Rica in order to prevent its confiscation by the British authorities.

Probably Landed Last Monday.

The vessel was noticed Monday riding at anchor, but no particular attention was paid to her. The supposition is that the men, guns and ammunition were taken off Monday night, and as soon as the cargo was stored on the lighter she put to sea. She was not molested in any way, and Cuban sympathizers here are congratulating themselves upon the successful despatch of the expedition.

THE MURDER OF STAMBULOFF.

Three Arrests Made and Three Police Officers Dismissed.

Sofia, July 20.—Three arrests have now been made of men implicated in the assassination of M. Stambuloff. Two of the prisoners are believed to have been accomplices in the murder, while the other was actually concerned in it. Three gendarmes have been dismissed and will be tried for not protecting M. Stambuloff.

Stoiloff Will Not Attend the Funeral.

Prime Minister Stoiloff has expressed his profound regret to Madame Stambuloff, but says it will be impossible for him to attend the funeral.

Wants Ferdinand To Abdicate.

A leaflet, written in an illiterate style, has been put in circulation urging that Prince Ferdinand be compelled to abdicate, and that Arsen, the son of the late Count von Hartenau (Prince Alexander of Battenberg), formerly of Bulgaria, be placed on the throne.

PRAISE FOR THE KAISER.

Peace Bureau Congratulates Him on the Opening of the Keil Canal.

Washington, July 20.—Mrs. Belva Lockwook filed at the state department yesterday a congratulatory letter on the opening of the Kiel canal to Emperor William II. from the American branch of the international peace bureau, to be forwarded to Germany for presentation to the emperor. Concerning the canal the letter says:

True Greatness.

"It gives a new impetus to the commerce of the world, in which all maratine nations have a direct interest. It does more. It established a grand fact of the great moral revolution now taking place in the civilized world, that a nation's development in commerce, manufacturers and the arts constitute the elements of her true greatness, rather than war and conquest."

TO OBTAIN WALLER'S RELEASE

The People of Kansas Begin Action in the Matter.

Topeka, Kas., July 20.—The people of Kansas intend to secure, if possible, the release of ex-Consul John L. Waller from the French prison in which he is now confined. At a mass meeting here a committee appointed at a previous meeting submitted an address to the people, recommending that petitions be circulated in every county in Kansas, to be forwarded to the delegation to congress from the state, and that Governor Morrill take immediately steps to ascertain from the state department the exact condition leading up to Waller's arrest and incarceration. The meeting adopted the recommendations and a committee will be sent to Washington to secure congressional action.

WORK FOR 1,000 HANDS.

The Luke Fidler Colliery To Resume in September.

Shamokin, Pa., July 20.—The Luke Fidler colliery, which was on fire and then flooded, entailing a loss of $200,000 and five lives, will resume operations in September. One thousand men and boys will be given employment. The colliery has been idle since last October.

Battalion Review at Peekskill.

State Camp, Peekskill, N. Y., July 20.—The prettiest ceremony of the season was the review of the battalions last night by Adjutant General McAlpin. Colonel Hemand Dowd, of the 12th regiment, was in command and General McAlpin was accompanied by General McLewee, General Guy V. Henry, 5th United States cavalry, and Major Burbank, 4th United States artillery. Many visitors were present.

Ribbon Weavers' Strike.

Paterson, N. J., July 20.—Ribbon manufacturers of this city met and agreed to fill the orders of Frank & Dugan, whose weavers are on strike for an advance in their wages. The strikers will make an effort this afternoon to have all the ribbon weavers in the city support their cause. If they succeed a general strike may be ordered on Monday.

Death of Hon. W. E. Lehman.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 20.—Hon. William E. Lehman, who represented the First district of Philadelphia in congress during the first two years of the rebellion died at the Hotel Brighton Thursday night of congestion chills after an illness of four days. Mr. Lehman was succeeded in the house by the late Samuel J. Randall.

Broke Every Bone in Her Body.

New Haven, Conn., July 20.—Coroner Mix is investigating the Colombe murder. The murderer does not deny his guilt, but says that he would not have attacked his wife had he been sober. The result of the autopsy has shown that nearly every bone in the woman's body was broken.

The Schooner Fooks Safe.

Philadelphia, July 20.—The three-masted schooner Stephen J. Fooks, which was supposed to have sunk after a collision with the British steamship Henley, on the night of June 29, has arrived at Warren, R. I., with all hands safe and well.

Died at the Age of 104 Years.

New York, July 20.—John Christopher, aged 104 years, died at his home in Stoneboro, Pa., yesterday. He was a veteran of the war of 1812 and fought under Gen. William Henry Harrison.

SHE IS MISS MARION

Ruth and Esther's Baby Sister Named.

Not Known What Induced the President and His Wife to Select This Name—Probably Chosen in Honor of the Charming Town of Marion on Buzzard's Bay.

Buzzard's Bay, Mass., July 20.—The president and Mrs. Cleveland have named the little girl, now thirteen days old, Marion Cleveland. As in the case of both Ruth and Esther no middle name is given. The announcement was made by Private Secretary Thurber, who happened to be at Gray Gables last evening. It is not at present known, of course, what induced the parents to select this name, but it will be readily recalled that it was at the charming town of Marion on Buzzard's bay where Mrs. Cleveland spent her first summer in New England, and where she made many warm personal friends, besides becoming very much attached to the place. Mr. Thurber stayed at Gray Gables last night in order to finish some business with the president, and just before dinner took a drive with the president over to Joe Jefferson's.

ENGLISH ELECTIONS.

Latest Returns Somewhat Less Favorable for Unionists.

London, July 20.—The returns yesterday were somewhat less favorable to the unionists. The success of ex-Home Secretary Asquith, in East Fifeshire, and of Sir T. D. Carmichael in Midlothian, Mr. Gladstone's old district, have given heart to the liberals and disappointed their opponents, who were almost certain that they would capture both seats.

Other Unpleasant Surprises.

The unionists experienced other unpleasant surprises in Dumfriesshire, the Lichfield division of Staffordshire, Londonderry and North Tyrone. In the first two named constituencies the liberals captured the seats from the liberal unionists; in Londonderry Mr. Knox, a nationalist, defeated the conservative candidate, and North Tyrone will be represented by a liberal instead of a conservative.

Ahead, However, on the Whole.

Nevertheless, on the day's returns, the unionists go one better than the opposition, while several material reductions in liberal votes, and increases in unionist votes are to be noted. Exceptions to this, however, are not wanting. The total returns thus far received show the election of 270 conservatives, 48 liberal unionists, 88 liberals, 43 anti-Parnellites and 6 Parnellites The net gains of the conservatives are now 53. The liberal unionists have gained 16 seats, the liberals 13, the anti-Parnellites 1 and the Parnellites 2.

CAN HOLD THE TWO JOBS.

No Law To Oust the Postmaster at Oxford, Conn.

Washington, July 20.—The attention of acting postmaster general Frank Jones was called to the case of captain Charles H. Butler, recently appointed postmaster at Oxford, Conn., who is also superintendent of the state capitol. Mr. Jones stated that there was no rule of the department prohibiting Captain Butler to hold the postmastership in this case. If there was any objection it must be made by the state of Connecticut. The Oxford office, he said, is of the fourth-class, and as long as Captain Butler performed the duties thereof satisfactorily he could continue them in connection with his duties as a state official. If the Oxford office was of a higher class, however, an order from the president could remove the postmaster.

PROBABLY PERISHED AT SEA.

Two Members of a Fishing Vessel Lost in a Dory.

Gloucester, Mass., July 20.—Schooner Henry M. Stanley, from Grand Banks, reports loss of John Benson and Carl Sandstrom, members of the crew who got astray attending trawls. Not being heard from it is thought they either perished from hunger or their dory capsized and they were drowned.

Steamer Sunrise a Wreck.

St. John's, N. F., July 20.—The steamer ashore near here is the Sunrise, from Sydney for this port with a cargo of 1,400 tons of coal. Her bows are stove and she lies in 18 feet of water with her bottom considerably broken. The vessel is a total wreck, but the crew were all saved in the boats, taking all their personal belongings.

Killed and Injured by Lightning.

Hampton, S. C., July 20.—Three negroes were killed outright yesterday by lightning during a thunder storm that passed over the town of Barnville. Another negro was seriously wounded. The bolt struck in front of the postoffice, and several white men nearby received severe shocks.

Mrs. McKee at Old Forge.

Old Forge, N. Y., July 20.—Yesterday afternoon Gen. Harrison and Benny McKee came out from camp and drove to the railroad. Mrs. McKee and her young daughter arrived at 4 o'clock. Mrs. McKee will remain until her father leaves.

One of the Ericsson Victims Dead.

New London, Conn., July 20.—The accident to the torpedo boat Ericsson Wednesday resulted last night in the death of Jack Strinsky, junior engineer, whose home is in Dubuque, Iowa, one of the men scalded. He came on here with the boat.

Fifty Mile Bicycle Record.

London, July 20.—Chase, the bicycle rider, yesterday rode fifty miles on roads to the north of London in 2 hours and 5 seconds, beating the record.

Mrs. Carnegie's Yacht at New York.

New York, July 20.—Mrs. Lucy Carnegie's steam yacht Dungeness arrived last evening from Fernandina, Fla., after a run of seventy-three hours.

Corbett Knocks Out Maber.

Baltimore, July 20.—"Shadow" Maber was knocked out in the seventh round by "Young Corbett" last night.

LOOK IN THE CLOSET

SEE if you can't find some old clothes that you have put aside because of the worn-out look they have, or some clothes that are badly spotted.

We want you to bring any old clothes of that sort to us—or better yet—we'll send for them.

We propose to clean those clothes---or to dye them for you---either way to make them wearable. This is an economical suggestion.

We take out grease spots so they stay out, or we dye clothes with a color that wears. We charge as little as possible for the work.

Just a dollar or two—and you'll have a lot of new clothes.

NOISY YOUNG BAPTISTS

They Are Having a Grand Time in Baltimore.

Several Cities Extend Invitations for the Convention of '96—The Boy Orator from California Greeted with a Great Demonstration—List of Officers Elected.

Baltimore, July 20.—With prayer and song the second day was begun of the fifth international convention of the Baptist Young People's union of America. State banners were planted throughout the tent, and around these rallied the delegates and visitors from the several states as they arrived. Each band took possession of the tent for a time, and a grand time it was. "Maryland, My Maryland." "The Star Spangled Banner" and "The Red, White and Blue" were mingled with hymns until Ontario came up with "God Save the Queen." Finally the great choir sang "America" and comparative calm prevailed.

The Boy Orator.

One of the most striking features was when northern California was called. The response came in boyish treble from George M. Purnell, of Sacramento. He did not look to be over fifteen years of age. He wore glasses and his voice was shrill and penetrating. He said: "I came 3,000 miles to greet you in the name of the 2,400 young people of northern California. Eureka is our motto."

Compelled To Repeat His Speech.

He continued to speak the full minute and over. At the conclusion of his speech there were great demonstrations and the performance was considered so remarkable the delegates called for its repetition on the speaker's stand. The youthful orator was escorted to the stand, where a chair was set out, on which he mounted. He repeated his speech, and at the conclusion led the Colorado delegates in the yell about Denver being one mile nearer heaven than Brooklyn. The applause was tremendous and handkerchiefs waved all over the tent.

Climax of Patriotism.

The climax of patriotism was reached when the District of Columbia was called. The banner of the delegation, a silk flag of the Stars and Stripes, was waved by Miss Cory, while the Rev. Mr. Thomas, of Georgetown, delivered a patriotic address. Then the tent audience rose and sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

Invitation for '96.

The states broke out soon again with calls for the convention of 1896 to be held in their own particular places, Rhode Island, Wisconsin and Texas being particularly conspicuous. The Brooklyn (N. Y.) band was quiet. It is hoped to have the convention of 1897 in Brooklyn. Oregon invited the convention to accept its hospitalities in 1896. New York presented letters from the private secretary of Governor Morton, Mr. Ashley W. Cole, and Mayor Schieren, of Brooklyn, seconding the invitation of the delegation to hold the convention of 1897 in Brooklyn.

"Pikes Peak or Bust."

Denver demanded the convention for 1897, and while delegates throughout the tent shouted "Amen!" a fantastically dressed person marched through the main aisle bearing a banner inscribed "Pikes Peak or Bust, '97." Rhode Island also asked for the convention for '97, and sang a verse to the air of "Old Kentucky Home." The delegates were extremely noisy throughout the proceedings and the greatest cheer prevails.

Election of Officers.

At the election of officers the following were chosen unanimously: president, John H. Chapman, Illinois; vice-presidents, P. F. Bothong, New Jersey, R. J. Shenstone, Toronto, Canada, and George B. Taylor, D. D., Virginia; recording secretary, the Rev. H. W. Reed, Illinois.

INSURGENT ACCESSIONS.

Gomez Orders One of His Captains Shot for Treachery.

Havana, July 20.—Antonio Suarez, who was an insurgent brigadier in the last insurrection, and Lopez Leiva, an accountant of the city of Concol, in the district of Villa Clara, have joined the insurgents. Luis Guaseres, of Juan de las Yeras, in the district of Villar, has raised a band of insurgents and burned the village of Magazabomba. In the province of Puerto Principe the insurgent leader Gomez has caused the former bandit Leiva, more recently a captain in the insurgent army, to be shot for accepting money for allowing a supply of cattle to enter the city of Puerto Principe.

THROWN FROM A TRAIN.

Woman Escaped with Slight Injury and Accused Her Husband.

Pittsburg, July 20.—While the Wall accommodation train was approaching East Liberty station, on the Pennsylvania railroad, Mary Prudan was thrown from the train by her husband, Harry Prudan. The train was running very slowly, and the woman escaped with slight injury. She came to the city on a street car and reported the case to the police.

Britannia Defeated by Ailsa.

Bangor, July 20.—Britannia and Ailsa started yesterday in the race for the big yachts in the regatta of the Royal Ulster Yacht club on Belfast Loch. Brittannia got the best of the start and both yachts were soon lost from sight in the fog. Ailsa eventually finished three minutes ahead of the Prince of Wales' yacht.

New Bicycle Record.

Washington, July 20.—The bicycle road record between this city and Baltimore was broken yesterday by Harry Park, a member of the local Young Men's Christian association bicycle club, the time being 2 hours, 47 1-2 minutes, which is 30 minutes faster than the previous best record.

No Agreement with Harvard.

Philadelphia, July 20.—H. Lausat Geyelin, president of the University of Pennsylvania Athletic association, denies the report that Pennsylvania had entered into an athletic agreement with Harvard covering all branches of athletics and to last for a term of years.

SEDGWICK'S HORRIBLE SUICIDE

New York Man Ends a Parasian Debauch by Cutting His Throat.

Paris, July 20.—Clarence W. Sedgwick, of New York, committed suicide in a hotel in the Rue Richer yesterday by cutting his throat. Mr. Sedgwick was a manufacturing jeweler. He left New York on the steamship Aurania on June 15 in company with a man said to be George Hurd, of the Hurd & Whiting Paper Manufacturing company. He was married and about 35 years of age.

Turned Out of Hotels.

He arrived from London on Monday last and squandered his money in cafes and other places, his conduct causing such a scandal that he was turned out of two hotels. The room in which he was found presented a horrible appearance. The body was found in an adjoining dressing-room, with the head almost severed from the trunk. Mr. Sedgwick had got up and tried to cut his throat with a razor. Not inflicting a fatal wound, he dragged himself along the floor to the dressing-room, where, with another razor, he again slashed his throat with such force that he broke the handle of the razor. The sum of 15,000 francs was found upon his person.

THESE BOYS WERE GIRLS.

Two Runaways from Chicago Found Working as Waiters.

New York, July 20.—Two Chicago girls, who have been masquerading at Glen Island for a week as men, were discovered yesterday by their father in a decidedly unexpected and dramatic manner. About a week ago there came to New Rochelle what appeared to be two nicely dressed young men on bicycles. They spent most of the day in town, and then took the ferry to Glen Island and applied for work.

Discovered by Their Father.

Yesterday an elderly man occupied a table in the cafe. One of the supposed young men waiters started to wait on him, but with a scream dropped a tray and ran out of the room. The head waiter was profuse in his apologies and said he would discharge the man. "Man!" exclaimed the old gentleman. "She's no man; she's my daughter, Matilde. Where's her sister?" They were discovered in their room locked in each other's arms. They will return to Chicago with their father.

DIPHTHERIA EPIDEMIC.

Many Persons Ill from Water Drank at a Picnic.

Canonsburg, Pa., July 20.—A week ago last Thursday the First Presbyterian church held a picnic in Johnson's grove. Since then there has been an epidemic of diphtheria, and there are now some forty cases. It is believed the sickness was caused by the water or something eaten by those who attended the picnic. Dora Franz, aged 16 years, one of those who attended the picnic, died last evening of diphtheria. Several others have been very ill, but are improving.

BLOOMERS WIN.

It Is Decided by a Vote That Toronto Teachers May Wear Them.

Toronto, Ont., July 20.—At a meeting of the school board a resolution was introduced condemning teachers for wearing bloomers, and asking that the inspector report all teachers who adopted this style of dress. After a heated discussion the resolution was defeated by a vote of 13 to 6.

How Collins Was Convicted.

Princeton, N. J., July 20.—Sentence has been deferred until next Wednesday in the case of John S. Collins, the negro convicted of the murder of Frederick Ohl. The verdict of murder in the second degree was reached on the third ballot. The first one stood seven for murder in the first degree and five for manslaughter. The second ballot stood eight for murder in the first degree and four for manslaughter.

E. F. Rothermal Dying.

Philadelphia, July 20.—E. F. Rothermal, the artist, is dying from cancer at his country home near here. Mr. Rothermal is an artist of ability. His best known painting is the immense canvas "The Battle of Gettysburg," for which he was paid $25,000 by the state of Pennsylvania. The picture now hangs in the state library at Harrisburg.

Declines the Chaplaincy.

New Haven, Conn., July 20.—Rev. Dr. Justin E. Twitchell, pastor of Dwight Place church, has declined the appointment of chaplain of the staff of Colonel Burpee, of the 2d regiment, C. N. G. Dr. Twitchell has served for eight years on the staff of the 2d regiment, but believes that he cannot serve any longer.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Favorable Reports from All Quarters.

The Volume of General Business Throughout the Country Largely in Excess of That One Year Ago—Outlook for Fall Trade Bright—Bank Clearings.

New York, July 20.—All the previously reported favorble industrial and commercial features are continued this week, the endurance of the revival in demand for iron and steel, the further advances in prices of the same, and additional increases of wages of industrial employes, being the most significant, says Bradstreet to-day in the weekly review of business.

Bank Clearings.

Notwithstanding the season of prevailing midsummer quiet in some lines of general trade, the volume of general business throughout the country is largely in excess of that of one year ago. Bank clearings totals recede a little from last week's extraordinarily large aggregate, the amount being $1,029,000,000 this week, but an increase of 25 per cent. over the total in the like week in 1894, 5.4 per cent larger than in the third week of June, 1893, and only 2 per cent smaller than in the like period of 1892. There were 214 business failures in the United States this week. Last week the total was 266, one year ago it was 212, and two years ago it was 526.

Evidences of Continued Activity.

But the record of prices is of greater firmness than even that shown by clearings, the only decreases of importance noted being wheat, flour, corn, cotton and lard, while previous advances are firmly maintained by closing quotations for hides, leather, iron, steel rails, print cloths, wool, woolens, pork, coffee, sugar and live stock. Evidence of the continuance of the activity recently shown in production and consumption is afforded in higher prices this week for Bessemer pig iron, steel billets, bar iron, copper, petroleum, paper, some building materials, and for oats.

Outlook for Fall Trade.

Merchants at almost all larger cities are preparing to send out travelers, and until they begin to exhibit results no exact estimate of how fall trade will open can be prepared. At this time the outlook is regarded as highly favorable. At Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore, among eastern cities, noteworthy gains in sales of staples are announced.

Boom in the West.

The expansion of industrial activity at Chicago, St. Louis, Louisville and Cleveland stimulates the distribution of merchandise staples generally. Country buyers are present in unusually large numbers. In Nebraska the corn crop will be very large, and in South Dakota the crop prospects are as nearly perfect as possible. Duluth's lumber mills are largely sold up. All central and northwestern cities report merchants counting on a large volume of fall trade.

Improvement in the South.

Reports from southern cities show further improvement, gains this week being more marked than in a like period for months before. Country merchants in South Carolina are much encouraged with the crop outlook, as demand is fair and prices tend upward. Like reports come from Augusta, and in Texas cotton buyers have begun to make their presence felt.

CANNED HORSE MEAT.

The First Establishment of the Kind in This Country Begins Work.

Portland, Ore., July 20.—The Western Packing company's horse meat canning establishment at Linton, the only one of the kind in existence in this country, began operations yesterday. The plant is equipped with about $10,000 worth of machinery for slaughtering, packing and shipping meat. The first batch of horses were shipped here from Arlington a few days ago. About ten were killed to-day as a starter. Railroad companies have been asked to make a rate on canned horse meat in car load lots to the east at one dollar per hundred. Special rates have been quoted on live horses from Idaho and Arizona to Portland and according to this, prospects for the market seem good.

Destructive Storm in Michigan.

St. Clair, Mich., July 20.—Last evening a terrific storm of wind struck here. Several yachts are said to have been overturned in the river, and two children of Wm. Lee were crushed under a falling chimney. The hotel Cadillac was unroofed, the tower of the court house and city hall was wrecked and the roof lifted off.

Engineer Bothwick Recovers.

Washington, July 20.—Chief Engineer Bothwick, who attempted to commit suicide at Fort Monroe, Va., about two weeks ago by cutting his throat, is reported by the officials of the Norfolk naval hospital to be ready for duty. It is believed that he will soon be placed on the retired list.

Another dryer Sunday for New York.

The chances of Plainfield Rupublicans for political preferment outside of Plainfield seems to depend on an "if."

Really, New Jersey is getting too much like Kentucky. Another set of moonshiners have been captured at Bayonne.

The Rahway Advocate says that Plainfield has a candidate for the Senatorial nomination if Foster Vorhees is the gubernatorial candidate.

Grand Master Workman Sovereign has got the biggest and hardest job he ever undertook when he attempts to boycott the government bank notes.

The American Star, the organ of the colored people of Essex county, is stirring up the G. O. P. politicians in the direction of nominating one of their race for Assembly.

Ex-Senator Thomas C. Platt, of New York, is one of the most temperate men in public life and rarely tastes even the lightest of wines. He does not use tobacco in any form.

The proposed consolidation of the Epworth League and Christian Endeavor societies would form the strongest alliance of subordinate church societies in existence.

The Somerset Democrat professes not to believe that "hen's egg hail" fell in Plainfield one week ago. And so does every one who was not in the sweep of the storm. But it fell just the same.

The Republican papers of the rabid partisan stripe are having a hard time in trying to make people believe that the present adminstration have not contributed anything to the movement towards better times.

The highway law of New Jersey requires the removal of loose stones from the beaten tracks once each month, from April 1st to December 1st. It is an important duty, but one that is sadly neglected.—Dover Era.

Farmer Jackson, of Sullivan County, New York, is a genuis in protecting his private fishing pond. He has pastured his ferocious bull in the vicinity of the pond and now the disciples of Izaak Walton no longer linger there.

Mr. Depew was six days on the water, during which the English elections took place, but as soon as he landed on the other side he talked about the Liberal defeat and causes thereof with as much confidence as he could about American politics.

The Daily Press has it upon the best of authority that Mayor Rankin, of Elizabeth, is bitterly opposed to the nomination of John Kean, Jr., for Governor. In a talk with a Plainfielder a few days ago his words were not minced in expressing his disgust for the gentleman. But with all his opposition he candidly admits that Mr. Kean's prospects are of a rosy hue.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Arthur Peck and Orville T. Waring went on their wheels to Feltville yesterday afternoon.

J. Van Eps and H. R. Force, go to Asbury Park on their wheels Monday instead of Wednesday as previously announced.

Miss Hagen, of Prospect avenue, purchased a Cleveland lady's wheel of the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company this morning.

A number of local cyclists went to Metuchen this afternoon to witness the twenty-five mile road race from New Brunswick.

The Union County Roadsters are holding their field carnival this afternoon at their grounds. A large number of prizes, contributed by the business men of Rahway, are offered.

L. D. Cabanne, who was injured at Asbury Park, is in worse shape than was at first supposed. He telegraphed to New York yesterday for a pair of crutches, and it may be some time before he will be seen on the racetrack again.

The gate receipts during the national bicycle meet at Asbury Park foot up about $10,000. This is hardly as much as was expected by the Asbury Park wheelmen, but it gives a fair profit to the association. The cost is not supposed to exceed $6,000, including the prizes.

Among the sights of the Oranges is a young woman of East Orange, who, on almost every fair day, can be seen taking her daily spin on her wheel in knickerbockers, with a pug dog comfortably seated on the baby carrier in the front of the machine. The turnout attracts a great deal of attention.

The project of building a bicycle path from Trenton across the State to Asbury Park is meeting with much favor. It is proposed that the path shall be five feet wide and uniform in construction. The route would take in several places which have large numbers of riders, and it is thought that the needed $50,000 can easily be secured from the wheelmen, even if the State refuses to aid in the work. The distance is fifty-four miles.

The wheelmen of Elizabeth are not by any means satisfied with the new bicycle ordinance which Mayor Rankin wants the city council to adopt, and intend to use every means in their power to defeat its passage. The ordinance submitted by the Mayor is an exact copy of the one now in force in Paterson. It limits the speed at which bicycles shall be run to six miles an hour on the principal streets, eight miles an hour on less crowded thoroughfares within the fire limits, and ten miles outside the fire limits. There is a penalty imposed for riding on the sidewalk, and also for not carrying on the bicycle a lighted headlight after dark. There are not many wheelmen who know just where the fire limits are, and it is said by the cyclists that the proposed ordinance discriminates against them even more than the one just vetoed by the Mayor. They now want the city council to let the whole matter severely alone, and say if this is done the thing will finally regulate itself.

Lay Off at Potter's.

Fifteen machinists were laid off temporarily at Potter's Press Works, Sunday.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

DOANE & EDSALL.

AN ENGLISHMAN'S TRIBUTE.

And a Hint of Warning to the Americans Rushing to Europe.

At last comes a bit of appreciation from a source whence it had long been withheld. A young Englishman, who has been doing the rounds of the American cities, writes home in praise of us, and, better still, an English weekly, The Gentlewoman, publishes it, as follows:

"The Americans I simply love; they are so wonderfully sympathetic to one. There is no trouble they will not take, or personal inconvenience they will not suffer, if in way they can render one a service." The name of this extraordinary young Englishman is not given or it should be blazoned forth.

The weekly paper, in reproducing the extract, takes its cue from it, and urges Londoners and all English folk to appreciate the "boundless kindness and hospitality which they (Americans) heap upon us," and be ready to "receive the strangers right royally" in return. It calls attention further to the unprecedented influx of "men and women from all parts of the United States," who are now crowding and who will crowd for the next six weeks. London, and then separate for wanderings all over England, and making a plea that they be well treated.

There is a bit of policy it its concluding advice, which every one who has suffered the extortionate impertinence of the London tradespeople—an impertinence none the less because it is often enveloped in fawning servility—will say a hearty "amen" to. "In these bad times of depression in trade, it would be as much to our advantage as to theirs, not only to welcome but retain the Americans in England as long as possible. Not all Americans are rich, though most are generous. We are sadly in need of their dollars, but need not be extortionate, for all that."

One is provoked and indignant to think of the thousands of dollars those "crowd of Americans" will spend, not only in England but through Europe, before the autumn will send them home again. Provoked because many of the thousands will go for things that will be bought under the impression that if they are the same price they are better than can be bought at home, while, if they are cheaper than the same goods here, it will still be supposed that they are of the same quality.

A woman buying gloves in Paris last summer was surprised at the price charged her for the make of gloves she was accustomed to buy for considerably less in New York.

"Ah, madame," said the glib shopgirl, "but we send only our 'seconds' to New York."

Of course this was wholly untrue. It is absurd to suppose that skilled American wholesale buyers are going to be imposed upon with seconds of anything, much less gloves, whose quality is a known quality every time to an expert at the trade.

The same woman's experience in London was similar. Prices were always equal and often greater than in New York, but stress was invariably laid on the superior wearing qualities, a stress that was expensively disproved in the case of most articles. Tourists from this country are looked upon abroad every time as geese to lay golden eggs. They are geese to give their gold for the value they get, nine times out of every ten.

Terrier and Cat.

"Jack," a rough-haired fox terrier of quiet disposition, but a good ratter, and an inveterate enemy to strange or neighboring cats, of whom, to my sorrow, he has slain at least one, became without effort the attached friend of a minute kitten introduced into the house last November. This friendship had been continued without intermission, and is reciprocated by the now full grown cat. She, unfortunately, got caught in a rabbit trap not long ago, but escaped with no further injury than a lacerated paw, which for some time caused her much pain and annoyance.

Every morning "Jack" was to be seen tenderly licking the paw of the interesting invalid, to which kind nursing no doubt her rapid recovery may be attributed; and, though she is now more than convalescent and able to enjoy her usual game of play, he still greets her each morning with a gentle inquiring lick on the injured paw, just to see if it is all right, before proceeding to roll her over in their accustomed gambols. This seems to me a marked instance of individual affection overcoming race antipathy.—The Spectator.

Cyclone Cellars for Iowa Schools.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Sabin, in answer to questions, holds that school boards are fully authorized by law to build cyclone cellars and to use the contingent funds of the district in so doing. He places the cyclone cellar under the general head of school expenses. The law for it or not, it is better to have a place of refuge and not want it than to want it when the clouds are raging and not have it. It doesn't invite a conflagration to insure one's home. One is in no more danger of being killed with an accident policy in his pocket than he is without it. Money might be spent for better purposes than cyclone cellars; still, pupils and teachers who have had an experience with cyclones cannot be induced to think so. —Davenport Democrat.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

—Peck is raising quite a breeze with his stock of fine fans.

—J. W. VanSickle has just put in a large Marvin fire-proof safe.

—A neighborhood cottage meeting will be held at the Liberty Streut mission Monday evening at eight o'clock.

—Mrs. Kate H. Marsh has closed her business until September in order to make improvements in the house.

—Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., met last evening and accepted one application. The Fourth of July committee made its final report.

—The young women of the German Reformed church will conduct a pink and white tea in the church Monday and Tuesday evening of next week.

—The death occurred early yesterday morning of the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Kriney, of Clinton avenue, which was the result of cholera infantum.

—Robert Robinson and his grandson, Robert Winans, who were injured at Garwood by being struck by a train last Saturday, are in a fair way to recovery. The boy will lose one eye.

—Miss Rachael Mair, who has been studying for the ministry at Chicago for some time, is to speak at the Christian Endeavor meeting in the Congregational church tomorrow evening.

—The monthly consecration service was held by the Christian Endeavor society of the First Baptist church last night. There was a large attendance and the meeting was an excellent one.

—A barn owned by Neuman C. Lyons at Martinsville, eight miles from this city, was struck by lightning Tuesday evening and burned to the ground, together with its contents and three horses.

—Plans are out for the erection of a new church by the congregation of the Mount Teman Methodist Episcopal church of Elizabeth on Union street. It will cost about $4,000. The pastor, Rev. C. O. H. Thomas, has been active in the collection of contributions.

—Sam Frazee and his "Little Joker Sea-Food" market on Park avenue, opposite North avenue, have been before the public so long, and have always given such satisfaction, that it is hardly necessary to state that they are still at the old stand. Anything you want in his line you can get at right prices.

—At the last meeting of the Westfield Fire Department the matter of the standing of J. H. Cash was laid before them. The department ordered that Mr. Cash be received into the Hook and Ladder Company, and accorded all the privileges of a member and subject to the same orders. This was a complete victory for Mr. Cash and his friends.

Borrowing

is a bad practice, but to borrow trouble is the worst form of borrowing, and this you are doing when you neglect caring for your sight. It will cost you nothing to have your eyes examined at Collier's, 103 Park avenue, and if you need glasses, they can be secured there with the assurance that they will be properly adjusted, and strengthen and prolong your sight.

New Market.

A pleasant surprise party was tendered A. G. Nelson on Thursday evening, it being his twenty-first birthday. About sixty persons were present and dancing was the feature of the evening. Refreshments were served on the lawn about eleven o'clock. The yard was tastefully decorated with Japanese lanterns which gave the residence a fine appearance.

FARMERS MAKE MONEY.

They Don't Know It, but Secretary Morton Says So.

J. Sterling Morton, Secretary of Agriculture, believes that there is money in farming. He is a man of much wealth, and a great part of his fortune has come out of the soil. He is highly cultured and college bred, but he is as plain in his ways as was Abraham Lincoln, and he has practical ideas of men and things.

"It is not half as bad as it is painted," said the secretary. "The farmers are making as much money as any other people in the United States. They don't make as much as they formerly did. No business is doing that. Why, we used to get ten per cent. for money out West on gilt edged security. I have paid twelve per cent. myself, mortgaging the best of real estate to get it, and have made money out of it. You can now borrow all the money you want for six per cent. The people are now contented with small profits. It is the same in the mercantile business. The storekeepers used to growl when their profits were less than twenty-five per cent. They are now glad to get eight per cent. The truth is that the farmers' profits have fallen the least, and failures are proportionately less among them than among any other class of business men. Take this matter of mortgaged farms. These farmers are doing business on borrowed capital, and now and then one of them fails. The majority of merchants do their business the same way, and ninety per cent. fail at some time in their lives. I believe the percentage of failures in the dry goods business is fully as high as ninety-seven per cent. The majority of the farmers succeed. They pay their expenses and in the end own their farms."

"What do you think of the way our farmers live, Mr. Secretary? Would it not be better if they lived in villages and not on their farms?"

"In many respects, yes," was the reply. "The farmer's wife has a dreary lot. She is in most cases little better than a slave to her work and her house. She drags out a sad existence, scrubbing and cooking, with few resources outside of herself. I can't imagine anything much worse than her condition, and it seems to me that the European system of farm villages is better than ours. And still, the most of our farmers' wives are bright women. They are as a rule industrious and good business women, but they get little for it. I believe in making women to a large extent the business partners of their husbands. They are not so in the case of most men. Take, for instance, a story I heard the other day about the family of an old farmer in Indiana. The man and his wife had lived together for fifty years. Their children had grown up and left them, and now, at 70, the farmer found the burden of his work too much for him, and he decided to sell his farm and live off of the interest. It was worth $40,000, but when the deed came to be made the farmer's wife objected. She said she had helped to pay for the farm. She had worked all her life for it, and she was bound to have some of the money which it brought before she signed the deed. The lawyer and the husband were dumfounded. They had not anticipated such a complication, and at last one of them asked the old lady how much she thought she ought to have. She hesitated a moment, and then said that she believed she was really entitled to ask for as much as $3."

Died With His Chum.

In the reminiscences of Gen. Sir Evelyn Wood, himself a brave English soldier, a touching instance of courage and self-sacrifice is given. One June day in 1855 a detachment of English marines were crossing the Woronzow road under fire from the Russian batteries. All of them reached shelter in the trenches except a seaman, John Blewitt. As he was running a terrific roar was heard. His mates knew the voice of a huge cannon, the terror of the army, and yelled:

"Look out! It is Whistling Dick!"

But at the moment Blewitt was struck by the enormous mass of iron on the knees and thrown to the ground. He called to his especial chum:

"Oh, Welch! save me!"

The fuse was hissing, but Stephen Welch ran out of the trenches, and seizing the great shell tried to roll it off of his comrade.

It exploded with such terrific force that not an atom of the bodies of Blewitt or Welch was found. Even in that time when each hour had its excitement, this deed of heroism stirred the whole English Army. One of the officers searched out Welch's old mother in her poor home and undertook her support while she lived, and the story of his death helped his comrades to nobler conceptions of a soldier's duty.—Youth's Companion.

He Got Food for Reflection.

Tramp—Madam, I have had nothing to eat in four days, and I would thank you heartily for anything in the line of nourishment.

Madam—I would be glad to supply your need, good sir, but I have just read there is bacilli in everything we eat, and my humanity revolts against giving you anything that might endanger your salubrity.

Tramp—Thanks, madam; sincerest thanks! You have, at least, given me food for reflection.—New Orleans Pidayune.

The Thoughtful Chauncey.

A good story is told on Chauncey Depew. He received a letter from a young married friend in Albany asking for a pass for his mother-in-law, who was coming to make him a visit, and closing with the delicate hint: "Don't forget to have the return coupon attached." Mr. Depew is nothing if not worldly wise and sympathetic, and in sending the pass he wrote: "I have not neglected the return coupon and have limited it to three days."—Minneapolis Journal.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is on every wrapper.

MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY

I told her in a few words, mitigating, as I did so, a hardly felt doubt as to the reliability of Billy Gough's statements.

"He was perfectly correct, nevertheless," she said, after a short hesitation. "I went out about 5 o'clock to meet Jack by appointment and to arrange to go away with him. I met him on the road, and he walked as far as the gate with me. It was almost six o'clock, and Jack went back to the village. He did not come even as far as the house, and I know he could not have killed father. As for your New York friend who was trying to fix it on him——"

"Mr. Smith, may I have a few words with you at once?" came a voice from the stairs. My niece started at the sound and darted into the library.

THE MAN WAS DEAD.

"Certainly, Inspector," I answered.

"Can I trouble you to come up here?"

I mounted the stairs hastily, and Ransom drew me into the room, closing the door behind us. His face was more than serious.

"Here is a sealed letter addressed to you," he said. "It is Phillips' handwriting. I found it in the escretoire."

Utterly astonished at this new development, I took the envelope from him and mechanically opened it.

"Pardon me," I said. Then I read as follows:

"Dear Sir—Realizing that my life must terminate very shortly, I take occasion to commit to writing a brief summary of the discovered facts as to your brother's murder.

"He was killed by a knife thrust inflicted from behind over the right shoulder. This happened in his own room or, at least, in the house, and the murderer was a man admitted by appointment. The charred letter in the grate was doubtless the communication asking for the appointment and must have advanced strong reasons to obtain one at such an hour. Let us suppose that it came ostensibly from one of the railroad gang and offered to disclose, for a consideration and under conditions insuring secrecy, the directions given by some officer of the company to his subordinates to delay the work and to harass Mr. Smith as much as possible in retaliation for his persistent hostility. Your brother, feeling as he did, would have been only too glad to get such information on any terms, so he destroyed the letter, as was doubtless stipulated for, rose, dressed, admitted his alleged informant secretly, took him to his room, was stabbed, partly undressed and dressed again, carried out while it was yet dark and placed or thrown into the cut, care being taken that his skull should be fractured as to apparently account for death. Then the murderer, having wrapped up the garments through which the knife passed, took them away with him. Much of this is in the nature of a recapitulation of facts you already know. It is the simplest thing in the world to see that the murder was not committed by your niece, your servant or by Mr. Ralph. The first could not have carried the body to the railroad cut, and neither of the others could have obtained an appointment at such an hour. Ralph, moreover, would never have used a knife, though I admit that, assuming the local theory of an early morning walk, a quarrel and a blow on the head, things would look very black for him. On the other hand, Anderson's clumsy lie was merely an ignorant man's way of trying to bring to justice one whom he believed had murdered his master and whom you and Miss Smith were shielding.

"Let me now go a step further than we have gone together and add that it is perfectly clear that Mr. Robert Smith was killed by an agent of the Mafia, in revenge for the insults he offered that society. This theory not only supplies an ample motive, but it also accords fully with the method of killing and the overwhelming evidence pointing to a deliberately planned assassination. Moreover, every first-class detective must be familiar with the fundamental principles of the great secret organizations, and those of the Mafia make it certain that language such as your brother used would have infallibly marked him as a victim. The work was not done, however, by any man with whom Mr. Smith had ever been in communication, much less had trouble. The rule is that, after death has been decreed by the branch before which the case is tried, notice is sent to some branch located at a distance, one of whose members—an entire stranger to the matter—is then selected by lot to act as executioner. Some member, then, of the Mafia, was doubtless in the gang that heard your brother's tirade, made report of his words, and the result followed.

"Now let me inform you of a conclusive piece of evidence which one of those chances against which no criminal can guard has placed in my hands. Otherwise the task of detection would be well nigh hopeless; but, as it happened, your niece and Mr. Ralph were walking along the road very early in the morning and met the assassin coming from the direction of the house with the tell-tale bundle under his arm. Mr. Ralph would doubtless recognize him again. Miss Smith has recognized him. Add to this the fact that the man is half Italian by birth and spent much of his early life among the peasantry of Sicily, and I consider that I have sufficient evidence in hand to cause his arrest.

"There are reasons, however, why such a proceeding is inadvisable and why a different course will serve the ends of justice almost equally well. As you know, I tried by every means in my power to avoid an assignment to this case, but, seeing the finger of fate in my being compelled to undertake it, I determined that my professional standing at least demanded that I should pursue it exactly as I would any other, by the same means and to its logical conclusion. I do not think that I allowed myself to be influenced by any knowledge not coming to me as an investigator, and the result shows that a clever offender can rarely be a match for an equally clever detective. Whatever else I may have been, my reputation as a conscientious and able official remains without spot.

"Finally, I have, by the use of a vegetable poison known only to a very few persons in Sicily, administered justice and avenged the law. Should you ask how a man of my intelligence, education and calling, could lend himself to such an act, I will only say that I was a wild boy of 15 when I joined the Mafia, and that disobedience to its commands meant certain death. Then, too, you must remember my Italian blood, and that we do not look at some things as do the northern races.

"JOHN PHILLIPS."

There is little more to tell. When Inspector Ransom had read the above paper we both concluded that it ought not to be made public, unless necessary to clear an innocent man; and that contingency did not arise. My disclosure of the knife wound and the testimony bearing upon the time and place of the murder, together with my niece's relation of the causes and details of John Ralph's movements, served to divert suspicion to some one of the Italian workmen and there, with the aid of the police, all clues were lost. Ralph was discharged and, several years later, married my niece.

I will only add that I have told you this story to hasten the flight of anxious hours and relying upon you as gentlemen to regard the facts related as strictly confidential. Do you not think me justified in call-

PROF. HUXLEY'S LIFE

HIS OWN ESTIMATE OF HIS ACCOMPLISHMENTS IN SCIENCE.

His Visit to America. There Were No Honors in the Gift of Nations to Men of Science Which Did Not Come to Him.

Americans heard Professor Huxley lecture in New York when he was in all the brightness of his honors.

He was unrivaled as a lecturer on scientific subjects, and one who was a good judge of eloquence said that he was, "next to John Bright, the best orator in England." This he was, undoubtedly, in exposition and in power of elucidating a complex subject before a popular audience. He spoke clearly, deliberately, and with much force. How he acquired this talent and how he reached his knowledge, which embraced physics, chemistry, botany, and zoology to an extraordinary degree, was perhaps a miracle to him.

He says in his autobiography, which is the slightest but the most interesting record which may be made of his life, that "physically and mentally I am the son of my mother so completely that I can hardly find trace of my father in myself, except an inborn faculty for drawing, which, unfortunately in my case, has never been cultivated." He says:

"I have next to nothing to say about my childhood. In later years my mother, looking at me almost reproachfully, would sometimes say:

"'Ah! you were such a pretty boy!' whence I had no difficulty in concluding that I had not fulfilled my early promise in the matter of looks.

"My regular school training was of the briefest, perhaps fortunately, for though my way of life has made me acquainted with all sorts and conditions of men, from the highest to the lowest, I deliberately affirm that the society I fell into at school was the worst I have ever came across.

"We boys were average lads, with much the same inherent capacity for good and evil as any others; but the people who were set over us cared about as much for our intellectual and moral welfare as if they were baby farmers. We were left to the operation of a struggle for existence among ourselves, and bullying was the least of the ill-practices current among us.

PROF. HUXLEY.

"As I grew older my great desire was to be a mechanical engineer, but the fates were against this, and while very young I commenced the study of medicine under a medical brother-in-law.

"I am now occasionally horrified to think how very little I cared about medicine as the art of healing. The only part of my professional course that really and deeply interested me was physiology, which is the mechanical engineering of living machines; and, notwithstanding that natural science has been my proper business, I am afraid there is very little of the genuine naturalist in me.

"I never collected anything, and specie work was always a burden to me; I cared more for the architectural and engineering part of the business, the working out of the wonderful unity of plan in the thousands and thousands of diverse living constructions and modifications of similar apparatuses to serve diverse ends. The extraordinary attraction I felt toward the studies of the intricacies of living structure nearly proved fatal to me at the outset.

"I am sorry to say that I do not think that any account of my doings as a student would tend to edification. In fact, I should distinctly warn ingenious youth to avoid imitating my example. I labored extremely hard when it pleased me, and when it did not—which very often was the case—I was extremely idle, unless making caricatures of one's pastors and masters is to be called a branch of industry, or else wasted my energies in the wrong direction. I read everything I could lay my hands upon, including novels, and took up all sorts of pursuits, to drop them again quite as speedily. No doubt it was largely my own fault, but the only instruction from which I obtained the proper effect of education was that which I received from Mr. Wharton Jones, the lecturer on physiology at the Charing Cross School of Medicine.

The extent and preciseness of his knowledge impressed me greatly, and the severe exactness of his method of lecturing was quite to my taste. I do not know that I have ever felt so much respect for anybody as a teacher before or since. I worked hard to obtain his approbation, and he was extremely kind and helpful to the youngster, who, I am afraid, took up more of his time than he had any right to do.

The last thing it would be proper for me to do would be to speak of the work of my life, or to say at the end of the day whether I think I have earned my salary or not. Men are said to be partial judges of themselves. Young men may be; I doubt if old men are. Life seems terribly foreshortened when they look back and the mountain they set themselves to climb in youth turns out to be a mere spur of immeasurably higher ranges, when, with a failing breath, they reach the top.

SHE OWNED THE CHICAGO COW.

The One That Kicked the Lamp That Fired the City of Chicago.

Mrs. Catharine O'Leary, owner of the fractious cow which, in a barn in the rear of 137 Dekoven street, in October, 1871, was said to have kicked over a lantern or a lamp and started a blaze which cost Chicago $190,000,000, died recently of acute pneumonia.

Father Feeley said: "The historic woman has left us. I was privileged to be at her bedside before she died and to administer the dying benefits of the church while she was yet in perfect health of mind. During the last six years, whenever her health permitted, she had been in attendance at my church. Since I have known her she has always been very averse to saying anything concerning the great fire with which she had so close a connection. Her death was very peaceful and quiet."

A three-story, stone-front, brick structure occupies the site where, in 1871, stood the O'Leary cottage. The structure is used as a flat building. Upon a large stone in the front of the house at No. 137 Dekoven street appears these words:

The great fire of 1871 originated here
And extended to Lincoln Park.
Chicago Historical Society 1881.

Mrs. O'Leary moved away from No. 137 Dekoven street in 1879, taking up her residence near the stock-yards. But she was frequently seen afterward in the neighborhood of her old home. She seemed to take pride in being pointed out, but always indignantly denied that her cow started the great fire of 1871.

The story relative to the cow and the fire, as told by a man named Klerker, of Chicago, who says he was at Mrs. O'Leary's house the night the fire started, was as follows:

Mrs. O'Leary had arranged to give a party. During the evening the alarming information was given out that the house was short of milk. A young lady who was present said that as Mrs. O'Leary was a dairy woman she ought to have a cow, and that she (the guest) would go out and milk the animal. Mrs. O'Leary consented to this, and the young lady, taking a pail in one hand and a tin lantern in which there was a candle in the other, went into the barn in the rear of the house. She put the lantern down near a pile of hay. Being unfamiliar with the modus operandi of milking, she approached the wrong side of the cow. Thereupon the cow kicked the young lady over. In falling she struck the lantern and the candle ignited the hay, and the wind did the rest.

The Chicago fire started at 8.45 o'clock P. M., Sunday, Oct. 8, 1871, and it was not extinguished until 10.30 o'clock Monday night. Within a space of 26 hours something like 18,000 buildings were consumed, and nearly 100,000 persons were made homeless. The total area burned over was 2,124 acres. The fire traversed on an average 65 miles an hour, and, according to a reliable estimate, the average destruction of property for the same time was about $7,500,000, or $125,000 a minute.

The burned district was about four miles in length, from north to south, and two-thirds of a mile in breadth, on the average.

The origin of the fire is still a mystery, though the generally accepted theory is that it was caused by Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicking over a kerosene lamp or a lantern. There was an official investigation made not long after the fire, and about fifty witnesses were examined, but there was not a word of testimony as to how or by whom the conflagration was started.

Shame on the Rooster.

The conduct of a hen which protected her brood of chickens from the dangers of rapid transit attracted the attention of passengers on car 180 of the City and Suburban Railway Company the other day.

The car was going down grade on Eastern avenue toward Highlandtown, and was traveling at a high rate of speed. Just ahead, at Luzerne street, the motorman saw the hen and her family in the middle of the track. A brave looking rooster was there, too, strutting about with pride and arrogance.

The motorman, fearing that the chickens would get under the wheels of his car, made an effort to stop, but the speed was so great that he could do nothing more than check it by the time the group of chickens was reached. The rooster flapped his wings and ignominiously flew away, leaving the hen and the young ones to look out for themselves.

The mother, scenting danger to her little ones, squatted on the ground in the center of the track and raised her wings under which the chickens took refuge. When the car had passed the passengers who had witnessed the incident were delighted to see the hen and her brood unharmed. The car had passed right over her, but she had squatted close to the ground and in that way escaped injury to herself and her chicks.—Baltimore Sun.

SHALL BABY DIE?

Cholera Infantum Now Menace the Homes.

Mothers Warned to Look Sharp to Child's Food.

Diet Wrong When Infant Cries Continually.

CHILDREN OF PHYSICIANS FED ON LACTATED FOOD.

Delicate Sickly Ones Thrive Wonderfully On It.

The hot weather puts a pressing question to every mother—a question that demands an immediate answer.

It is impossible to postpone looking the great problem of infant-feeding fully in the face. Has every precaution been taken to keep baby well during the summer? Is the baby running any risk from cholera infantum?

People have begun to learn that medicines for infants are more sparingly used in physician's families than in any others, and that the well-educated physician, when the mother's milk for any reason, is not sufficient, brings up his own children on lactated food.

There are no healthier or plumper babies than those fed on lactated food. Fewer cases of summer diarrhœa and cholera infantum occur in homes where this superb nutriment is employed than in others. The most carefully, intelligently guarded children are those fed on lactated food. Every infant who is not thriving, has poor color, or shows small gains in weight and size, should be given this perfect infant food. It is relished by young children, and there is no difficulty in inducing them to take it in quantities sufficient to insure their growth and healthy condition. During the exhaustive hot days of summer, while teething and during the weaning period, lactated food stands its best test as an ideal infant food for all trying occasions.

When for any reason the mother cannot nurse the child, or when her milk is insufficient or poor in quality, the best trained nurses use lactated food at once. It is known to invariably make firm flesh, a clear skin, bright eyes and to strengthen the body so that diarrhœa, cholera infantum and exhausting summer sickness do not easily gain a footing. And a great blessing it is to countless humble homes that for 25 cents a mother can buy a package that contains enough to make 10 pints of pure cooked food.

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freemyer House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for any kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the diseases for which it is intended and he knows it. It is for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

It May Do as Much For You.

Mr. Fred Miller of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a Severe Kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called Kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure all Kidney and Liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c for large bottle, at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

The Ideal Panacea.

James L. Francis, Alderman, Chicago, says: "I regard Dr. King's New Discovery as an Ideal Panacea for Coughs, Colds and Lung Complaints, having used it in my family for the last five years, to the exclusion of physicians' prescriptions or other preparations."

Rev. John Burgus, Keokuk, Iowa, writes: "I have been a minister of the Methodist Episcopal church for fifty years or more, and have never found anything so beneficial or that gave me such speedy relief as Dr. King's New Discovery." Try this Ideal Cough Remedy now. Trial bottle free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

I was afflicted with catarrh last autumn. During the month of October I could neither taste or smell and could hear but little. Ely's Cream Balm cured it. Marcus Geo. Shautz, Rahway, N. J.

I suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since a boy, and I never hoped for cure, but Ely's Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many acquaintances have used it with excellent results. Oscar Ostrum, 45 Warren ave., Chicago, Ill. Cream Balm is agreeable.

Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared, and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. Marlow, M. D., Tamaroa, Ill. HARD TO BEAT THE UMPIRE.

THAT IS WHAT THE Y. M. C. A. TEAM HAD TO DO SATURDAY.

But Plainfield Also Put in an Umpire and Then the Perth Amboy Boys Got Tired and Quit.

It is rather hard for nine men to defeat ten men in baseball, especially if the tenth man happens to be the umpire, but that was what the Y. M. C. A. nine tried to do Saturday afternoon when they played a team from South Amboy. They succeeded, too, but not as exactly as they wished, for after three inning had been played, the visitors gathered up their bats and set sail for home. It was not a fight though that caused their departure. Five of the team worked in the evening, and as they preferred to lose the game rather than their job, they forfeited it to the home club.

The umpire who started the game was the manager of the South Amboys, and he appeared to be either blind or cross-eyed. In the first inning, when Skimmons tried to steal second, Townley got the ball to Schenck who touched him out, and then when he slid clear past the base, touched him reapeatedly, but the umpire could not see, as he remarked, and declared the man safe. The The Y. M. C. A. boys were slightly discouraged at this, and five more runs resulted from the umpire's little pleasantry. And then a ball went two feet over Townley's head, and the dear man from the Raritan river remarked "one strike." That was too much, but he managed to call a few more of the same kind on equally tough balls, then Walter Freeman consented to assist him in trying to umpire, and after that Plainfield had some show on the bases.

Burt was hit rather heavily and so was Petty. The rather mixed-up arrangement of the home team had much to do with the large number of runs made, although only two errors were made, but one of them, a dropped fly by Neal, allowed the visitors to make three runs that they never should have had. Schenck put up his usual good game at second, and knocked the longest hit made in the field for a long time, sending it down to the far turn of the bicycle track, and bringing in a man on first and one on second, and running to second himself, and was almost good for three bags.

Townley was at his best in throwing to second, catching every man that tried to steal second including the umpire's favorite. Where the score would have gone to had the full nine innings been played is a question, but it is likely that, with a fair minded umpire, the Plainfield nine would put up a hard fight.

Petty was a fairly good pitcher but he had one trick of going through all the motions preparatory to delivering the ball and then delivering it to one of the bases instead. It came rather near a fight at one time, for any one except an idiot or a very partial minded umpire could see that it was a balk, but the manager-umpire had something the matter with his eyesight again and said there was nothing the matter. When Freeman acted as umpire it is significant to remark that the pitcher did not try his trick.

The score by innings was as follows:

Y. M. C. A.	3	2	4	--9
South Amboy	6	0	6	--0

The individual records were:

ARLINGTONS BEAT DUNELLEN.

Fifteen to Nine is the Score the Plainfield Boys Made.

The Arlington Athletic Club, of this city, went to Dunellen Saturday and played a game with the Athletic Club of that place, and defeated them by a score of 15 to 9. The Dunellens were planning all the week for this game and as a result they had out their very best players, including the star battery. The Arlingtons took kindly to the Dunellen pitcher by knocking his curves all over the field and earning seven of their fifteen runs, while the Dunellens could not hit the pitching of Sutphen to any extent. The Arlington did not play the same clean game as in their last game; their fielding was very loose, this accounting for Dunellens nine runs.

The Arlingtons had the misfortune of having three of their best players badly injured, while their opponents also had some misfortune in having their pitcher sunstruck. Aside from this the game was very interesting.

The game was characterized by the heavy hitting of the Arlingtons who hit the ball in all directions. The features of the contest was the pitching of Sutphen, the batting of Mumford, Sprowl, Dupue and Bogart, and the playing of M. Sutphen, Carpenter, Fletcher and Mumford. The umpiring was very good, considering the kind of game that was played. Following is the detail of the game:

ARLINGTON A.C.	R.	H.	E.	DUNELLEN A.C.	R.	H.	E.

LIGHTNING STRIKES AND FIRES.

Bad Conflagrations at South Bound Brook and Somerville.

Last night about ten o'clock lightning struck the grocery and post office building at South Bound Brook in charge of D. D. Hoffman, who conducts the grocery business and is also postmaster.

In a very few minutes the building was one mass of flames. With some effort two lines of hose were laid and water was thrown on the building. Although the building is not a total loss, the damage is heavy and considerable mail matter was destroyed. A house six feet away, was saved.

A large fire occurred at Somerville. Just as the storm was at its height the lightning struck the barn of Mr. Wilson, near the ridge pole, with the result of igniting the structure, and also the sheds near it. The flames spread so fast that before the engines could reach the scene it had reached the barns on both sides. The buildings and contents, with the exception of horses and cattle, were destroyed.

HORSE THIEVES AT WORK.

Sergeant Kiely Captures One of the Offenders in Conneely's Saloon.

Plainfield is getting her share of robberies all at once. Word was sent to the Plainfield police this morning that a horse and carriage had been stolen from Roselle, and about eleven o'clock Sergeant Kiely saw a horse answering to the description of the stolen animal standing in front of Conneely's saloon.

A little investigation showed that the driver of the rig was trying to trade it off, but he was too late for Sergeant Kiely soon had him on his way to the station house and was in another minute safely locked up. His accomplice escaped, but the stolen outfit was sent to Roberts' stable for safe keeping. As soon as a warrant can be issued, the guilty individual will enjoy a ride back to Roselle.

The man arrested gave his name as McCracken. He had shaved off his moustache since leaving Roselle last night.

The horse was owned by Bonnell, a liveryman, who came to this city after he had been notified and drove the rig home.

A Musical Service.

The service in the First Presbyterian church last evening, was essentially one of music. Gounod's cantata, "St. Cecilia," was rendered by the choir, the solo parts being sung by Miss Katheryn Glenn, of this city, and Charles Foster, tenor soloist of Trinity church. During the intervals between the selections, Rev. C. E. Herring read selections of Scripture and commented on them.

In the Arms of Morpheus.

The Courier-News must have had a long sleep. In their Saturday issue they say there is need of a pound in the borough. There is one already in the borough and another one would be an unnecessary tax on the people.

CHRISTIAN ATHLETES.

Events to Be Contested for By Hope and Monroe Avenue Chapels.

The Monroe Avenue Chapel Athletic Association met Friday night and received George Firstbrook, Geo. Gray, A. Muir and W. Stewart, of the Hope Chapel Association. Those receiving them were B. Randolph, W. Arthurs, H. Apgar and E. Morgan. The committees talked over the field day events, and planned them as follows: 100-yards dash; one-quarter mile run; pole vault; running high jump; 220-yards run; running broad jump; one, two and three mile bicycle races; throwing twelve-pound hammer; 120-yards hurdle race; tug-of-war; hop, step and jump; standing broad jump; three mile run. The affair will take place at Maltby's, Saturday, August 31st.

Rev. G. Kennedy Newell was chosen referee, and the other officials will be chosen later.

The committee from Hope Chapel then refired, after which members were elected as follows: Louis Fulton, Wm. Morgan and B. King.

The committee will meet again about August 15th.

TWO BOOKS AT A TIME.

Another Library Convenience for Plainfield Readers.

For the convenience of users of the Free Public Library, who frequently want more than one book at a time, a system known as the "two-book system" has been adopted.

To any holder of a card making application an extra card, called a "non-fiction card," will be issued. On this may be drawn any circulating book, not a book of fiction. The ordinary card can be used as at present for any book, thus allowing the borrower one book of light reading, and one of heavier, or if desired two books not fiction.

From the frequent inquiries made as to whether more than one book can be taken at a time by one person, it is believed that this arrangement will prove a very popular one. As the system is already in running order, applications may be made at any time.

Contracts Filed.

The New Jersey Contractor reports the following Plainfield contracts filed in the county clerk's office, last week:

Chas. W. McCutchen with Utzinger & Kline, carpenters: house, Madison avenue, near Stelle avenue, $2,000.

Charles W. McCutchen with Wm. Tallamy, mason; house, Madison avenue, near Stelle avenue, $848.

First National Bank with Wells & Newton Co., steam heating, $902.

A. D. Thompson with the Standard Electric Equipment Co., house, Netherwood, to be erected, $374.

School of New Methods.

Miss Eleanor Demarest having completed the course of study of the most improved methods of teaching, under the direction of Madame M. Krans-Boelte, of New York, will open in September a kindergarten differing in some respects from any now existing. It is felt sure there are many who will be glad to avail themselves of this opportunity of giving to their children the advantages derived from pure kindergarten training.

Making Big Hits.

The club juggling and baton throwing act of George Schaefer, of this city, has made such a hit with the patrons of Bentley's old-fashioned one ring circus at Ninety-ninth street in New York, that he has been engaged for an additional two weeks. The bareback riding act of popular Bob Whitaker, also of this city, scores a great success with admirers of expert horsemanship. Several Plainfielders will visit the circus this week.

Alleged Moonshiner Gives Bail.

Samuel Goodman, on whose premises in Bayonne the United States Secret Service detectives discovered, several days ago, an illicit whiskey distillery, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Isaac Romaine, of Jersey City, on Saturday afternoon, and admitted to $1,000 bail for examination in September.

Cranford Man Insane.

William Appleton, of Cranford, an electrician, has been taken to the Morris Plains Asylum. For a year pasthe has been mentally unbalanced and his friends feared that he might become violent and do harm to someone.

Cyclers Proof Against Heat.

The heavy rain storm on Saturday night did not leave the atmosphere any cooler and those who were obliged to remain at home suffered much from the intense heat. The usual large number of cyclers rode to Plainfield, however, and apparently did not mind the warm weather.

ROBBED BY AID OF DRUGS.

A DARING DEPREDATION COMMITTED EARLY YESTERDAY MORNING.

The Store and Home of K. Rothberg Entered and Several Articles Stolen —Police Working on the Case.

The most daring robbery reported in this city since the vault of the First National Bank was looted occurred about two o'clock yesterday morning when the drygoods and grocery store of K. Rothburg at 565 West Third street was entered by a man who helped himself. He broke a window in the rear of the store through which he entered, and then took four gold watches, a ring and a box of cigars.

The robber then went up stairs and chloroformed Mr. Rothberg who was sleeping alone in a room. Going through the pockets of his trousers he found two pocketbooks in which was about $30. This he took and put in his own pocket.

From there he went to where Mrs. Rothberg was sleeping with evil intent. He had a bottle of chloroform in his hand and on entering the room found Mrs. Rothberg awake. Thinking he could quiet her he sprinkled the drug over the bed clothes. He then picked up a blanket with which, no doubt, he intended to strangle her, but she screamed and that frightened the marauder away, and he ran down stairs post-haste.

By this time Mr. Rothberg had about revived from the influence of the drug and both he and his wife went to the window, and called for the police. Michael Welsh and Tom King, who happened to be near, heard the screams and went to the house, but were unable to do anything as the man had disappeared. In a few minutes Policeman Vanderweg appeared, but he also could find no trace of the thief except a pair of shoes which the man left near Sullivan's saloon and a coat left hanging on the fence near the scene of the robbery. Mrs. Rothberg describes the man as being very tall and stout, a full red beard, and wearing a cowboy hat pulled down over his face. He was also barefooted.

The matter was placed in Chief Grant's hands and he is today working up the case. He has the pair of shoes and coat and feels assured that the man can be detected and caught.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Rothberg are weak and prostrated today and the former feels the effects of the drug very much.

Policeman Vanderweg passed the place about fifteen minutes before the man committed his depredations, and it is thought that the former was watched till he had reached another part of his beat, so he would run no chance of being caught.

HIGH SCHOOL CHANGES.

Repairs and Improvements to be Made During the Summer.

When September comes and the High school reopens for the winter, it will hardly be recognized by the pupils, for a number of changes are to be made. The assembly hall will probably look the least like its old self. The present platform is to be removed, and another one placed on the south side of the building. Instead of the long benches, there will be a number of seats and desks, so that the room can be used for study after morning exercises. The rows of seats will be placed at right angles to their old position. New floors will also be put in throughout the building. The fire escapes are expected to arrive some time this week, and will be immediately put up.

One of the large elm trees in the girls yard has been cut down, on account of the worms on it which are pests to all the neighbors, and the other elm will soon join its brother.

The flag pole on the Franklin building, that was struck by lightning, is to be removed, and a large one set up in the middle of the girls yard.

The buildings are now receiving a thorough renovating, and will soon be ready either to close until September or to begin work on.

YOUNG SWEENEY HURT.

A Western Union Messenger Boy Kicked By a Horse.

This morning William Sweeney, of West Fourth street, a messenger of the Western Union Telegraph Company, was run down while riding his wheel in front of Randolph's Pharmacy. He was riding past a horse that stood by the curb, when a team of horses attached to a carriage forced him close to the standing horse. No one seems to know whether he touched him or not, but at any rate the horse kicked the lad in the side, knocking him off of his wheel, and then stepped on his foot. A large crowd gathered and the boy was taken home by kind friends.

FAILED TO GET A BOODLE.

Thieves of a Novice Kind Enter a Westervelt Avenue Home.

The house on Westervelt avenue occupied by Mr. Joseph, of the firm of Joseph Brothers, the West Front street shoe dealers, was entered by thieves Sunday morning about one o'clock.

The thieves must have been novices for they made such a noise that Mrs. Joseph was awakened and called her husband. Before he could get up and secure his revolver the would-be robber escaped.

Several doors and windows about the house were found open and the second floor of the house was reached, but they secured nothing whatever.

Last Thursday night Mr. Joseph was followed all the way home by a man whom he knows and he is suspicious of him as being implicated. He says he is going to find out why he was followed.

AN AFTERNOON OF PLEASURE.

The Defender and the Vigilant Are Seen By a Party of Plainfielders.

There were numerous parties that went to see the yacht race for the cup given by the New York Yacht Club, Saturday afternoon, but of all those that went no party enjoyed themselves more than a number of men from Plainfield and North Plainfield who, through the kindness of Gibson Douglass, of Sycamore avenue, were permitted to enjoy a delightful sail down the bay and then see the yachts Defender and Vigilant on their return from the race. The party besides Gibson Douglass, consisted of Gibson Douglass, Jr., Walter Douglass, Edwin Hooley, Bertram Brooks, Harry H. Moore, Mr. Anthony, Nathan Lane, Jacob Kirkner, James Taylor, James Taylor, Jr., Allen Taylor, Colles T. Pond, W. A. Woodruff, Benjamin O. Bowers, Harry G. Bowers, C. G. Crawford, and several others from the office of the New York Central where Mr. Douglass is at the head of the transportation department. At about 1:30 they left Pier 5 on the New York Central tug Chauncey M. Depew and sailed down the bay. During the trip coffee and sandwiches were served to the guests.

After a sail of about ten miles outside Sandy Hook the party returned in time to take the five o'clock train for Plainfield. A most delightful time was enjoyed by all and the whole party heartily united in thanking Mr. Douglass for his great kindness.

Marconnier Chapel Dedicated.

The new chapel at Marconnier was dedicated yesterday afternoon, when about 200 people were present. Although the weather was very warm everybody present had an enjoyable time. The singing by the Crescent Avenue choir was fine, and both Dr. Richards' and Rev. C. E. Herring's addresses, though short, were interesting. The people of Marconnier have worked hard for this chapel and want to thank both General and Mrs. Schwenck for what they have done for the new chapel.

A One-Sided Game.

The baseball game between Potters and the Monroe Avenue chapel teams on Saturday was not a very brilliant one, as the score was too one-sided, it being 22 to 8 in favor of the Monroe avenue team. The features were B. Randolph's running catch and Everett Morgan's home run. The battery for the winning team was J. Bowmer and A. Taylor. J. Hibbits and J. Young were the umpires and W. Arthurs the scorer. The game was played on West Front street near Clinton avenue.

He Spent It All.

Charles Manning, colored, for being drunk and disorderly on Cottage place yesterday, was given his choice this morning, by Judge Coddington, between a fine of $5 or twenty days in the county jail. Funds were low, so he chose twenty days board at Sheriff Kyte's house.

Calling on Comrades.

H. C. McVoy, H. S. Thatcher and W. C. Dobbins, of John Hand Camp, No. 28, S. of V., went to Hopewell Saturday night and visited Division Commander J. E. Pierson and several members of the Hopewell camp. The trip was an enjoyable one.

Wired the Fracture.

Augustus M. Frazee who fractured his left leg recently has experienced considerable difficulty in keeping the bone in position, so the doctors at the hospital thought it advisable to wire the fractured part, which was done yesterday.

Emil Closs Coming.

Emil Closs, under the auspices of the good and welfare committee of Somerset Council, J. O. U. A. M., No. 104, will entertain the members of council next Friday evening. Refreshments will be served to those present.

DIED FROM AN OPERATION.

REV. WILLIAM DAY EXPIRES AT HIS HOME IN RUTHERFORD.

Death Came Just as the Morning Service in His Church Ended—A Former Plainfield Pastor.

The Rev. William Day, pastor of the M. E. church at Rutherford, died at his home there at a few minutes after noon yesterday, as the result of an operation performed several days ago.

After considerable suffering Mr. Day went to Paterson on July 10th and consulted a physician as to his trouble. The doctor suggested an operation on the spot, and Mr. Day consented. After the operation Mr. Day, unaccompanied, started back to Rutherford on an Erie train. On his arrival at the station, he walked half a mile to his home, and then succumbed. The seriousness of his condition was realized early in the week, although Mr. Day himself expected to recover.

Rev. William Day was one of the oldest and best-known Methodist ministers in New Jersey, having filled the pulpits of churches in most all of the important cities in the northern and central parts of the State. He was of English parentage, was about sixty-eight years of age, and had been engaged in active work in the ministry for about forty-four years. Although never a sensational preacher, his sermons were full of quiet eloquence, and his personal popularity was marked. A quarter of a century ago he was pastor of St. Paul's church, in Jersey City, and his other charges have included churches in Newark, Orange, this city, New Brunswick, Passaic and Dover. This was the second year of his pastorate at Rutherford. Mr. Day was twice married, and his second wife survives him.

Mr. Day came to this city in 1868, and for three years was pastor of the Methodist church, where his popularity as a preacher is well known among Plainfielders. After a pastorate in Nyack he was recalled to Plainfield in 1874, and was with the same church three years longer.

He had two children, Harry Day and Mrs. Winter Davis.

The funeral will be held at Rutherford on Wednesday afternoon. Interment Thursday morning.

BOYESEN'S OPINION.

The Chautauqua Movement in the Cosmopolitan for June.

In spite of a mistake in locating the present headquarters of the Chautauqua literary work in Plainfield, and dubbing Plainfield an insignificant New Jersey town, the article on the Chautauquan movement in the Cosmopolitan for June, written by Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen is a charming one.

Mr. Boyesen writes delightfully of most subjects to which he puts his pen, and he enters so thoroughly into the true spirit of the Chautauquan idea, confesses so honestly to prejudices overcome by what he sees, hears and knows there, and gives such unqualified praise to the noble men who originated the broad, world-encircling idea, that the article can interest all who take the time to read it. Being a foreigner, it is pleasant to know that in Mr. Boyesen's opinion we get the Scotch wish granted:

O wad some power the giftee gie us,
To see oursels as others see us!

Real Estate Transfers.

The following real estate transfers are reported by the New Jersey Contractor as recorded from Plainfield in the county clerk's office during the past week:

Leonidas Dennis to Armitage Mathews, lots Stelle avenue, $10.

John D. Runyon et ux. to Whitney Frazee, lots, South avenue, $1,950.

John D. Runyon and Chas. H. Hand et ux. to Euphemia S. Gullberg, lots, South avenue, $1,950.

Whitney Frazee et al, to Charles H. Hand, lots, road from Plainfield to Rahway, $3,900.

Chas. H. Hand et ux. to John D. Runyon, lots, South avenue, $1,900.

John D. Runyon et ux. to Charles H. Hand, lots, Berckman street, $500.

Armitage Mathews, New York, to Mary S. Dennis, Plainfield, lots Stelle avenue, $10.

Abraham L. Cadmus to Arabella Schomp, lots, Tremont street, $2,000.

Katie A. Quereau et ux. Fanwood, to Albert N. Strong, New York, tract, Park avenue, Fanwood, $6,250.

The Ambulance Has a Call.

In attempting to get off the 11:25 train while in motion Saturday night at Clinton avenue, Fred Milbenberger, of Bound Brook, sustained severe injuries. Both bones of the left leg above the ankle were fractured and the right foot was lacerated considerably. The ambulance was sent for and conveyed the man to the hospital where his wounds were dressed and bandaged. Milbenberger is getting along as well as can be expected.

BACKDOWN FOR FRANCE

Surrender to Germany in the Moorish Demand

Prince Ferdinand Gives Up His Period of Seclusion Since the Assassination of Stambuloff—Germany Insists Upon the Punishment of the Guilty Parties.

Berlin, July 22.—The recent German and Dutch demonstrations at Tangier, which were forced upon both by outrages committed upon German and Dutch subjects in Morocco, seemed likely to cause a quarrel with France. The murder of a German trader named Rockshoh and the plundering of the Dutch brig Marie Anne, a short time ago, led at first to diplomatic representations which proved to be futile. These were followed by the presence of four German and two Dutch warships in Moorish waters, whereupon the sultan promised to execute the murderers, or somebody else, and also to pay an indemnity.

Newspaper Interference.

This having been reported to the Berlin government orders were immediately sent to the German warships to remain in Moorish waters until both the German and Dutch indemnities were paid. The German consul at Tangier acted in behalf of the Dutch government in the negotiations, and this fact obviously inspired the recent articles in the Paris Journal des Debats warning Germany to keep her hands off Morocco if she desired to maintain good relations with France.

France Backs Down.

The Vossiche Zeitung, replying to these articles called upon the Berlin government to give a fitting answer to the insolence of France if the question should be raised officially. The German press genarally adopted the same tone in regard to the matter. Official communications thereafter passed between the two governments, and whether they were initiated or the basis of settlement originated in Berlin or Paris is not known, nor does it make much difference, but the French government has repudiated the Debats articles and acknowledged the right of Germany to deal with Morocco in her own way even to the extent of occupying part of her territory. This is a complete knuckle-down for France.

Ferdinand at Carlsbad.

Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria continues to remain at Carlsbad. He is constantly guarded by large suites, among whom are a number of Russian police. He tells his adherents almost daily that it is his intention to start for Sofia immediately, but he doesn't start.

Lived in Seclusion.

On his previous visits to Carlsbad his time was spent on the promenades, at the theatres and in indulgences in whatever gaiety there was going. Upon this occasion he has been almost invisible. He is never seen on the promenades and he did not go to the springs, as he always did before. The only times he was known to go out were early in the morning when he would go to a cafe in the suburbs and sit there moodily surrounded by his suite.

Again Appears in Public.

His every action and attitude suggested that he was awaiting news of some event. After the murder of ex-Premier Stambuloff his behavior suddenly and ostentatively changed. As the reports received linked him with the crime and attributed his unwonted seclusion to his fear that he would be assassinated, he has made his appearance in public every day since Tuesday. He walks along the Sprudel promenade and shows himself at the Cafe Osthof and in the public reading room of the Cafe Pupp and elsewhere, always walking with a quick, nervous step, with his detectives close behind him.

Germany Threatens Bulgaria.

It is reported that Chancellor von Hohenlohe has instructed the German agent at Sofia to inform the Bulgarian minister of foreign affairs that diplomatic relations between Germany and Bulgaria will cease if an honest attempt is not made to punish the criminals concerned in Stambuloff's murder. In the meantime all of the diplomatic representatives in Sofia ignore the invitations of the foreign office to the official receptions.

The Empress' Health.

The delay of the empress in going to Sassnitz is due to advice of her physicians, who tell her that although her health is much better she must be extremely careful of herself for some time to come and for the present must not exert herself even in the way of taking light exercise. She will start for Sassnitz in time to meet the emperor on his return from Sweeden. The young crown prince and his brother, Prince Eitel Frederick, are making a tour of Southern Switzerland incognito, traveling as the Counts von Ravensberg.

The Baden Races.

The Prince of Wales is coming to Baden Baden to attend the races as the guest of Prince Furstenberg. The crown prince of Greece who is now the guest of ex-Empress Frederick at Krenberg, Prince George of Prussia and a host of German and foreign aristocrats are expected to be present at the Baden races.

Burglars Break Out of Jail.

Mifflintown, Pa., July 22.—Frank Evans and Joe West, two of the three men confined in the jail here charged with the Hertsler burglary, committed last May, broke jail about 1 o'clock Sunday morning. They made their escape by sawing the iron window bars of their cells and reaching the ground by ropes made of bed clothing.

Collision in New York Harbor.

New York, July 22.—The German oil tank steamer Helgoland from Nordenham, while steaming up the East river, ran into a New York & New Haven car float. The cars on the float were derailed and the float badly damaged. The steamer's bows were slightly damaged.

League Games Yesterday.

At Chicago—Chicago, 2; Brooklyn, 4. At St. Louis—St. Louis, 16; Washington, 8. At Louisville—Louisville, 5; Cleveland, 3. At Cincinnati—Cincinnati, 6; Baltimore, 10.

ANOTHER DRY SUNDAY.

Excise Law Again Rigidly Enforced in New York.

New York, July 22.—There was no doubt in the minds of most of the male population of this city yesterday that there are strict excise laws on the statute books, and also that the police are capable of enforcing these laws almost to the point of absolute observance. Never before in the history of the city, many people said, was the selling of beer and liquors so generally stopped.

Almost Absolutely Dry.

It was nearer absolutely "dry" in the city from the Battery to the annexed district, and river to river than ever before. There was no faltering in the earnestness of the police, as a number of saloonkeepers discovered early in the day. They meant business from the very start. They were determined that no liquors should be sold in violation of the law, and to determine it was almost to make that determination a fact.

Little Chance for a Private Trade.

Never before was there such a police watch over the usual places for selling beer and liquors. Every possible man on the force that could be used was put on excise duty. The men were in many cases made to undergo extra hours of duty so as to watch saloons. The policemen kept their eyes on all side doors to saloons, and to close was the guard that all chances of a quiet business was rendered impracticable.

Many Ruses Resorted To.

Many were the devices resorted to by saloonkeepers to carry on business despite the vigilance of the police, but only well-known persons were admitted. The sweltering weather was thirst creating, and especially in the tenement house districts there was great demand for beer.

Champagne Sold.

At some of the fashionable restaurants or cafes in the Tenderloin drinks could be easily obtained by those whose dress indicated that they were not spies. Champagne was sold and drank without meals. The bars in the big hotels were closed. The soda water fountains on the streets and drug stores were not molested and they did a big business.

BAPTIST YOUNG PEOPLE.

Close of Their Convention at Baltimore Last Night.

Baltimore, July 22.—Yesterday was the closing day of the great convention of the Young Peoples' Baptist union. The services included the convention sermon and the annual address of President Chapman. After the consecration services last night the convention adjourned sine die. Every session and meeting held since last Thursday morning, about one hundred in number, have been attended by large audiences and marked by an enthusiasm and earnestness which bode well for the future growth and prosperity of the union.

HER LEGS FULL OF NEEDLES.

A Cincinnati Girl's Severe Method of Doing Penance.

Cincinnati, July 22.—Nellie Thomas, aged 18, was taken to the city hospital last evening from the convent of the Good Shepherd. She seemed to be suffering from swollen feet which the examining physician first attributed to a needle he noticed protruding from the flesh. Closer examination disclosed other needles, and on being questioned the girl confessed that for penance she had forced the needles into her flesh. She said she had been doing penance of her free will for over two years.

Lord Sholto Sues.

San Francisco, July 22.—Lord Sholto Douglas has sued the Wasp, an illustrated paper, for $50,000 for alleged libel. His complaint states that the libel consists in a published phrenological analysis of Lord Sholte's cranium, stating that Lord Sholto is the "offspring of degeneracy, the outcome of moral depravity," and belittling his mental and moral qualities.

Prof. D. H. Robinson Dead.

Lawrence, Kas., July 22.—Prof. D. H. Robinson, who has held the chair of ancient languages and the Latin language and literature of the Kansas university for twenty-six years, or since the foundation of the school, died last evening at his home here of typhoid fever. He was a graduate of Rochester university.

Fierce Fight Over Religion.

Allentown, Pa., July 22.—Ex-Councilman McCafferty was stabbed and seriously hurt yesterday afternoon by Alexander McConaghy in a dispute over religion. McConaghy was also badly hurt, being kicked in the face and cut over the forehead and sustaining a scalp wound from a knife thrust. McConaghy is in jail.

Taken Ill in the Pulpit.

Cottage City, Mass., July 22.—Rev. D. E. Eddy, D. D., a Brooklyn, N. Y., clergyman; was taken sick in the pulpit of the Union chapel yesterday and was unable to continue the service. Dr. Eddy has not been in good health for some time, and his friends had cautioned him not to overwork.

Killed on a Toboggan Slide.

Providence, R. I., July 22.—William Greenwood, engineer on the Russian toboggan at Crescent park, was almost instantly killed yesterday afternoon. While oiling the machine he was struck by a car, throwing him to the ground, a distance of forty feet.

Reform in Armenia.

Constantinople, July 22.—The porte has appointed Shakir Pasha to supervise the reforms in Armenia. This is regarded as a concession to the powers, which are still asking for a more definite statement as to what reforms the porte proposes to carry out.

Successful at Last.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 22.—Alice Hegman, fifty-eight years old committed suicide yesterday by swallowing carbolic acid. It was her third or fourth attempt at self destruction. She had been in ill health for several months.

Drowned in Crompton Pond.

Providence, R. I., July 22.—William McGregor, a mill operative, was drowned in Crompton pond yesterday afternoon, while endeavoring to secure a pole that was adrift.

Shooting at Bisley.

London, July 22.—The Canadian riflemen won £120 in the shooting at Bisley for the City of London prize. Of this sum Hayhurst got £20 and Skelden £15

ALL ON BOARD LOST

Many Italians Go Down with a Steamer.

One Hundred and Seventy-Eight Passengers, Besides the Crew on Board the Ill-fated Steamer Ortigia When She Collided with the Marion P.—Thrilling Scenes.

Spezzia, Italy, July 22.—A terrible accident occurred near the mouth of the Gulf of Spezzia yesterday afternoon. The steamers Ortigia and Maria P ran into each other, and the latter was so badly damaged that she sank in a very short time. She had on board, in addition to her crew, 178 passengers from Naples, all of whom were drowned.

Terrible Scenes on Board.

The scene on board the sinking steamer defies description. The passengers were panic-stricken and rushed hither and thither, calling upon the saints to save them. The steamer, it is said, filled so rapidly that it was impossible to cast free and launch the small boats on board of her or on the Ortigia.

In the Dark of Night.

The night was pitch dark when the collision occurred and most of the passengers were asleep in their bunks at the time, and were awakened by the crashing of the steamer's plates, deck beams and deck planks. They were panic-stricken and rushed pell-mell on deck.

Some Jumped Overboard.

From the reports of the disaster received here it is impossible to determine whether any attempt was made by the Maria P. to clear away and launch her small boats, to attempt to rescue the passengers, but, judging from the accounts given by the excited survivors, it is surmised that the steamer went down too quickly to allow of this being done, though one boat got away. The blackness of the night added to the terror of those on board, and it is understood that some of the passengers, crazed with fear, jumped overboard.

A BLOODY PERIOD.

Several Murders Among the Mountains Around Sergent, Ky.

New York, July 22.—A special from Sergent, Ky., says: It seems as though the mountaineers around Sergent have murder in their hearts for the past forty-eight hours. For ten days the wildcat distilleries have been running in full blast. At Fish Trap John Mateny shot and killed William Thacker. Thacker was whipping his sister with a rawhide when Mateny interfered. Thacker then turned on Mateny. Mateny shot him dead. Mateny is out on $5,000 bond. Both men stood well in the community. Thacker was drunk when he made the assault on his sister.

Murder in a Ballroom.

At Quicksand, Friday afternoon, Dick Oliver stabbed Sam Fitzpatrick to death. They were at a dance and whiskey flowed freely. It seems that Oliver captured one of the young ladies from Fitzpatrick. By this time both becoming thoroughly drunk they met in the ballroom. There were but few words. Oliver drew a dirk from his bosom and stabbed Fitzpatrick, who died on the ballroom floor in ten minutes. Oliver escaped and is now hiding somewhere in the mountains. A large posse is in pursuit.

Two Other Murders.

On Peter Creek, not far from here, James Smith on Friday shot and killed Robert A. Coleman. It was the result of a feud which has been existing between the two families ever since the war. Smith gave himself up and is now in jail. At a picnic near here Friday William Tuey shot and killed Thomas Bailey. The cause of the last affray is not known.

FERDINAND TOO MERRY.

His Actions Since Stambuloff's Death Cause a Scandal.

London, July 22.—The Standard publishes a dispatch from Carlsbad confirming the stories of the merriment displayed by Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria since the assassination of M. Stambuloff. His actions have caused much scandal among the visitors at Carlsbad, and once he was hissed.

Mobbed the Umpire.

Quincy, Ill., July 22.—At the close of yesterday's Peoria-Quincy game someone yelled "Lynch the umpire!" and in an instant 500 men rushed upon the diamond. The Peoria players surrounded the umpire, Frank Heath, of Pontiac, Ill., and with their bats held the crowd off until the police arrived. Several blows landed on Heath, but they were not of a serious character.

Li's Probable Successor.

London, July 22.—The Standard will to-morrow publish a dispatch from Berlin saying that in the event of the early retiremen of Li Hung Chang, the Chinese statesman, it is probable that his successor will be Wang Wen Shon, Taotai of Hankow. Wang Wen Shon is an able and impartial official. He follows the policy of Li Hung Chang.

Ericsson's Second Victim.

New London, Conn., July 22.—David Cody, the second victim of the Ericsson disaster, died at the Marine hospital yesteaday. His wife, father and mother were with him. Cody came from Worcester, but he married in Jersey City where he has one child.

Quiet Sunday at Chautauqua.

Chautauqua, N. Y., July 22.—Yesterday was an ideal Sabbath, both in weather and in "goings-on." However it may have been in other places in the state, not a shave could be had upon the grounds, and not even "soft drinks" could be had.

$800,000 Oil Fire.

Chicago, July 22.—Mill 4 of the National Linceed Oil company, at Canal street and the Burlington railway tracks, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday, entailing a loss of nearly $800,000.

Call for Republicans.

Binghamton, N. Y., July 22.—To-day Geo. E. Green, president of the republican state league will issue the official call for the state convention of republican clubs to be held here Sept. 4 and 5.

MERITED REWARD.

SALES OF LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND.

Unequalled in the History of Medicine. Honesty, Excellence, Faithfulness Fitly Rewarded.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Never in the history of medicine has the demand for one particular remedy for female diseases equalled that attained by Lydia E. Pinkhams Vegetable Compound and never in the history of Mrs. Pinkhams wonderful Compound has the demand for it been so great as it is today. From Maine to California, from the Gulf to the St. Lawrence, come the glad tidings of woman's suffering relieved by it; and thousands upon thousands of letters are pouring in from grateful women, saying that it WILL and does positively cure those painful

Ailments of Women.

It will cure the worst forms of female complaints, all ovarian troubles, inflammation and ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb, and consequent spinal weakness, and is peculiarly adapted to the change of life.

Every time it will cure

Backache.

It has cured more cases of leucorrhœa by removing the cause, than any remedy the world has ever known; it is almost infallible in such cases. It dissolves and expels tumors from the uterus in an early stage of development, and checks any tendency to cancerous humors.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills work in unison with the Compound, and are a sure cure for constipation and sick-headache. Mrs. Pinkham's Sanative Wash is frequently found of great value for local application. Correspondence is freely solicited by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., and the strictest confidence assured. All druggists sell the Pinkham's remedies. The Vegetable Compound in three forms,—Liquid, Pills, and Lozenges.

STUDENTS IN DANGER

Fear the Bannocks Have the Princeton Boys.

Not Believed That They Have Been Massacred as the War Department Would Have Been Notified—The Students Not Near the Place of Battle of July 4.

Denver, Col., July 22.—It is feared here that a party of Princeton students have fallen into the hands of the Bannock Indians. Nearly two weeks ago the students forming the geological expedition went through Union Pass and since telegrams have been received here for them without finding any means of delivery. They were on their way to National park and were due on their return trip about the end of July. They are in a dangerous country and if they are alive the fact remains that the government has recently been stirred to great activity, as orders were received yesterday at Fort Washakie for the sending of an expedition of troops.

Only 43 Men at the Post.

There are only forty-three men at the post and the expedition cannot be very formidable, but it is the best the army can do. Reports from Jackson Hole say there are fully 300 Indians assembled there and of that number there are fifty Shoshones from the Wyoming reservation.

Escaped by Strategy.

Another report from Fort Washakie says that the two Indian police and judges who were sent to Jackson Hole nearly two weeks ago have returned. They were forcibly detained by the Bannocks and had to escape by strategy.

Sure the Students Are Safe.

Gov. Richards to whom the messages of inquiry were sent is sure that no harm has befallen the students. The fight between the settlers and the Bannock Indians took place on July 4 in the Jackson Hole region, near the western Wyoming line directly south of the Yellowstone National park. On July 5 the Princeton students were in Landers, over 100 miles from the trouble and they remained for several days. The country over which they were to travel is comparatively well settled and is within easy reach of Fort Washakie, where there are two companies of United States infantry and a number of Indian police.

Massacre Story Discredited.

It is believed here that there is no truth in the reported massacre of the students as the war department would have been so informed, and the executive of the state notified that troops had been ordered out. A definite report is expected to-day from Adjt.-Gen. Stitzer, who is in the Jackson Hole region making an investigation of the troubles.

SODA CYLINDERS EXPLODE.

They Sail into the Air and Play Havoc at Hudson, Mass.

Hudson, Mass., July 22.—Five soda cylinders charged carbonic acid gas, which were lying in the yard back of Seymore's block exploded yesterday afternoon. They were the property of T. F. Mahoney. Pieces were blown to a height of 100 feet coming down from 400 to 500 feet from their starting place.

Sailed over a Cupola.

The roofs of the Fitchburg railroad depot and J. P. Russell's grain store were pierced and several people narrowly escaped being struck. One cylinder which sailed over the cupola of Houghton's shoe factory struck between two little girls. Mr. Mahoney was standing in the yard a few feet from the cylinders but was uninjured. Nearly all the glass in the rear of Seymore's block was broken, and the building was otherwise damaged.

FATAL CYCLONE IN OHIO.

Two Persons Killed at a Camp Meeting at Zanesville.

Zanesville, O., July 22.—A fatal windstorm, accompanied by a heavy rainfall burst upon the campgrounds near Roseville, Ohio, yesterday afternoon, while services were being held in the tabernacle. A large tree was blown over, demolishing one corner of the tabernacle, instantly killing Mrs. Clement Wilson, of Zanesville, her skull being crushed in. Partrick Deselm of Zanesville, was caught by the falling tree and his breast crushed. He died an hour afterward. Miss Clea Ansel of Saltillo, had her left leg crushed; Lydia Jenkins, aged 16, of Zanesville, was struck on the head by flying timber and seriously injured. Several other persons received slight injuries. The dead and injured were brought to this cit last evening.

CASHIER AND $30,000 MISSING.

The Williamantic Dime Savings Bank Found To Be Insolvent.

Williamantic, Conn., July 22.—John L. Walden, treasurer and cashier of the Dime Savings bank, is missing. Upon examination it has been discovered that the bank is insolvent by about $50,000. Cashier Walden has probably left for parts unknown, taking with him about $30,000. He leaves behind a wife and a young son.

Colored Republicans.

New York, July 22.—A well attended mass meeting of prominent colored republican voters was held yesterday in this city. The meeting decided to hold a state convention at Saratoga, August 16th and 17th next. Delegates from the various republican organizations in all the counties will be invited to take part in the convention.

Not Bones, Chemists Say.

Chicago, July 22.—Chemists who have examined the body found in the stove in Holmes' house at No. 701 Sixty-third street said last night that in their opinion the so-called bones are not bones at all. A further examination will be made.

Four Killed at a Crossing.

Williamstown, Mass., July 22.—Nelson Trudeau, Peter Roche, Tatro and Oliver Dudley, were run down and killed at the Dugaway crossing yesterday afternoon by a freight train.

Wage Increase Promised.

Lowell, Mass., July 22.—Notices have been posted in the Lowell cotton mills promising a general advance in wages to go into effect on August 5.

LEE JIM MUN'S FUNERAL.

Odd Ceremony Over the Remains of the Chinese Free Mason.

Pittsburg, July 22.—Lee Jin Mun, treasurer of the Chinese lodge of Free Masons No. 8, Chee Kong Tong, who died at Derry, Pa., last week, was buried here yesterday with all the pomp and ceremonies of Chinese Masonry. While Lee Jin Mun was only a humble laundryman he was a mason of the high celestial sort, and his countrymen testified to this by a befitting burial. After the ceremonies at 303 Grand street, which lasted over an hour, the body was deposited in the casket. A table was spread on the walk with the provisions which are to sustain the spirit in its new home.

Provisions for the Spirit.

These were a big slab of fat roast pork, another of raw pork, two chickens, cooked with the heads on, and all kinds of fruit and sweetmeats. At one end of the table was a box of sand in which burned colored candles and joss sticks. Before this the officials knelt and said their prayers. Grand Master Dan Do, of New York, performed the principal part of the ceremonies. Toilet articles were then placed in the coffin, and all was ready for the start to Uniondale cemetery, Allegheny.

With Flags and Banners.

At the head of the procession was a horseman with a triangular red banner, painted with Chinese characters. Then followed the grand master and Lee Tom Ma, grand missionary, who is known in Cincinnati under the Christian name of Rev. G. B. Thomas. The marine band followed, then the members of the lodge with flags, banners and paper lanterns. There were about twenty carriages in line. All the way to the cemetery tom-toms were beat, terrifying the horses and exciting much profanity among the drivers. There were at least 8,000 people at the cemetery when the ceremonies began.

Placed Endwise in the Grave.

After deciding to place the coffin endwise in the grave Lee Tom Ma delivered the funeral oration. Candles and joss sticks were again burned and small brass coins scattered on the ground to keep the devil busy picking them up so he will let Lee Jin Mun rest in peace. Then the worldly possessions of the deceased were placed in two piles at each end of the coffin and burned; the grave was filled up and Lee Jin Mun has gone to join the household of Joss.

CROWDS AT CONEY ISLAND.

Yesterday Was Another Big Day at the Old Resort.

New York, July 22.—The biggest day since July 4, 1892, was yesterday at Coney Island. More than 150,000 visitors were there which is an increase of 40,000 over the Sunday previous. The boats and trains were inadequate for the large crowd and there was the greatest kind of bungling in handling the people during the rush hours. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the crowd was so large in the Sea Beach depot that it become unmanageable and a squad of police had to be sent for to drive the toughs in line who attempted to push through the turnstile without giving up their tickets.

Injured in the Crush.

On the old iron pier the crowd was of enormous proportions and it is reported that several babies and children were badly injured in the crush. The concert halls on the Bowery were not troubled by the police and the largest quantity of "weiss" beer dealt out in these amusement places since McKane left the island was sold to-day.

DEATH OF REV. WM. DAY.

He Fails To Survive a Surgical Operation.

Rutherford, N. J., July 22.—The Rev. William Day, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Rutherford, died yesterday as the result of an operation to remove a fungus growth in the lower stomach. A few days ago he visited a physician in Patterson to consult about his trouble. The doctor performed the operation at his office, and the minister undertook to make his way back to Rutherford alone. He traveled on the Erie railway, and then walked half a mile to his house. He was put to bed at once, but his case rapidly grew worse, and his congregation were told yesterday that he could not live. Mr. Day was about 70 years old, had been over forty years in the ministry and had been pastor of churches in Newark, Jersey City, Orange, Passaic, Plainfield, New Brunswick, Dover and Rutherford. He came to Rutherford in 1894, and became extremely popular. He leaves a widow.

PLOT AGAINST HAWAII.

Orders To Look Out for Filibusters at Port Townsend.

Port Townsend, Wash., July 22.—A sensation has been caused in customs circles by the receipt of cipher orders from the treasury department to exercise the closest scrutiny of all vessels clearing from the sound for Hawaii and not to issue clearance papers to any vessel bound there until the same has undergone a minute inspection by treasury officials.

Against Dole Government.

The orders result from secret information sent to the Hawaiian government to the effect that another filibustering expedition is being fitted out on the sound for the purpose of overthrowing the Dole government.

DECISIVE BATTLE IMMINENT.

Campos in a Critical Position at Bayamo.

Madrid, July 22.—A dispatch from Havana states that Gen. Navaro, with 2,000 men, has arrived at Bayamo and relieved Captain-General Campos, who was in a critical position in that city. Col. Aldans, with a battalion, is expected to arrive at Bayamo shortly. A decisive battle is imminent.

Sunday at Asbury Park.

Asbury Park, N. J., July 22.—Asbury Park and Ocean Grove were full of religious enthusiasm yesterday. In Asbury Park Bishop Newman preached in the auditorium in the morning and Rev. Dr. John L. Scudder, of Jerser City, addressed large audiences, giving an account of his recent visit to Jerusalem.

Killed by a Trolley.

Newark, N. J., July 22.—Thomas Henry, aged 25 years, of Passaic avenue, was instantly killed last evening, on Market near Adams street, by a Newark and New York trolley car. The car had to be overturned in order to extricate the body which was terribly mutilated.

FIRED ON THE CHILDS

The Tug Held by Customs Officers at Key West.

She Was Trying To Steam Away and Refused To Obey Signals To Come About, When the Revenue Cutter McLane Sent Two Solid Shots and One Shell After Her.

Key West, Fla., July 22.—This city was greatly excited yesterday afternoon by hearing reports of cannon and it was soon learned the revenue cutter McLane was firing at the tug George W. Childs, which left yesterday morning. Soon after leaving, the collector of customs, upon information of the Spanish consul, ordered the McLane to overtake the Childs and bring her back to port. It is rumored that a deck-hand by the name of William Lynch, who was shipped at Jamacia, had furnished the consul with information to the effect that she was bound on a filibustering expedition.

Solid Shot and Shell.

Lieut. Hay of the McLane says that signals were set for the Childs to heave to, but no attention was paid to them, and seeing no chance of overtaking her, two solid shots and one shell were fired before she came about. She was boarded by a crew from the cutter with Lieut. Hay in command and brought into port about 3 o'clock.

The Captain Indignant.

Captain Swain of the Childs, is very indignant at having been fired upon and states that he knows of no reason why such action should have been taken against him. He says that he was properly entered from his trip from Jamacia and while some slight irregularities did exist in his crew list, it was owing to the fault of his brokers in Philadelphia and had been settled at the custom house.

The Captain's Story.

He said yesterday he cleared his tug for New York, having first surrendered his register and taken out enrollment and coasting license and that shortly before leaving the assistant engineer reported to him that he saw a party offer Lynch some money and he was informed by Lynch that it was $200 to corroborate what the fireman reported. His answer to the party was that he knew nothing and could say nothing. The captain sent one deck-hand, shipped at this port, to find out the party. He returned, stating that Lynch was then talking to the Spanish consul. The entire Cuban population turned out to visit the Childs.

The Manzanillo Battle.

Havana, July 21.—Further details have been made public of the recent battle between the insurgents and government troops between Mansanillo and Bayamo. Captain-General Martinez Campos left Manzanillo for Bayamo with 1,000 troops. On July 13 this force was ambushed by 7,000 insurgents near Valenzuela. The Spanish troops were under the actual command of Brig.-Gen. Santocildes, who was the military commander of the Manzanillo district. The Spanish troops fought fiercely, again and again repelling the fierce charges of the rebels. It was thought that the principal object of the attack was to capture Gen. Campos.

To Protect Campos.

The troops formed a hollow square about him, thoroughly determined that he would not be taken unless it was over their dead bodies. The battle lasted seven hours. During one of the charges Gen. Santocildes was killed. Gen. Campos then took command of the troops and finally succeeded in defeating the rebels. The insurgents left 500 dead and wounded on the field. Among the dead were the leaders Rabi and Moncada. The government loss was seventy-two killed, including two officers, and a number wounded.

FOURTH EXPEDITION READY.

Cuban Filibuster Leaders Having Trouble To Purchase a Steamer.

New York, July 22.—The Herald published the following: The Boston trip of Senor Cespedes, the son of the famous old Cuban insurgent general of that name, has resulted in a failure, it is reported. He went there for the purpose of purchasing an iron hull steamer represented as being capable of making fifteen knots an hour. When Cespedes reached Boston the vessel was not to be found, although the persons who affirmed that they had her in possession were positive they could produce such a boat as the insurgents are seeking.

Could Not Find a Steamer.

It had been represented that a steamer of small tonnage, but swift and stanch for her size, was under repairs at Loring's iron works in City Point, South Boston, Mass., and that she could be purchased by the insurgents. Senor Cespedes tried to find her, but without success. After visiting all the yacht and ship agents along Atlantic avenue and Broad street, Boston, and those of East Boston and Charlestown, he gave up the chase and returned to this city.

Fourth Expedition Almost Ready.

Ex-Consul Borden, of Fernandina, Fla., is in Bridgeport, Conn., trying to find a steam yacht of heavy tonnage and good speed. An expedition is almost ready to start. It will be the fourth big demonstration of a filibustering character that will have been made against Cuba, if it gets away. It will carry 15,000 rifles, more than a million and a half rounds of ammunition and several thousand pounds of dynamite.

Men, Arms and Provisions.

General Rafael de Quesada will have personal command of this prospective expedition, and he will be accompanied by a staff of trained military men. There will be fully two hundred and fifty well drilled and fully equipped soldiers in the expedition. Men and arms, ammunition and provisions are ready in a neighboring city. It was expected that the vessel to be procured in Boston would be ready to depart several days ago, but it may be ten days or more before the expedition is under way.

Probably a Filibuster.

New York, July 22.—Among the vessels sailing from this port yesterday was the steamer Cauca, recently fitted out at Erie basin. She carried the French flag, and on Friday got her clearance papers for Carthagena. It is believed that she is off on a filibustering expedition to Cuba. The supposition is that she will have arms put aboard by some sailing vessel out from the coast of Florida.

And still Holmes' murder list grows. Eight is now the total. Such a fiend this country has never harbored before.

With the bicycle and the trolley the horse is not getting along as well as he might. It is estimated that the latter has displaced 500,000 horses.

Here is the word that the Metuchen Courier heads its bicycle notes with: Cyclopedestrianistical. Its dollars to doughnuts that the Courier editor cannot pronounce it two times alike.

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore says that Maria Barberi, the convicted New York murderess, should have been tried by a jury of her peers, and then qualifies her statement by stating that they should have been women. Poor man!

The Summit Record is severely criticising Assessor Hicks for adding $416,000 to the assessed valuations of the township, whereby, The Record asserts, Summit will be compelled to pay $3,300 additional to the county without any increased benefits.

The very odd report comes from Denver, Colorado, that it is feared that a party of Princeton students, who were hunting for geological specimens in the Bad Lands, have been captured by a band of Bannock Indians. The correspondent who sent that report is evidently not acquainted with the Princeton student. If there has been any capturing, it is the red skins who are the captives.

A year and a half ago Jesse Warren, a nine-year-old Jersey City boy, threw a stone which struck and ultimately killed another boy. Young Warren was tried and convicted, and a short time ago was sentenced to a long term in the Reform School. It was one of the cases where law does not recognize youth as a mitigator of an act laid down as a punishable crime in the statutes. But withal this the act was one of youthful indiscretion rather than of maliciousness, and such as every man has committed in boyhood, though possibly not with such fatal result. The Jersey City News, as soon as sentence was passed, immediately began agitating the justness of urging the Board of Pardons to release the boy from his judicial punishment. The case will be brought before the Board and a favorable action is looked for. The intent of the law under which the Board of Pardons exists is doubtless to reach and remedy such morally innocent and only technically guilty cases as this one.

Will Ask the Freeholders to Pay.

While Ernest Barrett was driving a valuable horse across the Clinton avenue bridge at Greenbrook last Friday, the animal caught one of her feet in a hole, caused by a broken plank, which resulted in a bad strain. The horse is unable to work. Mr. Barrett has called the attention of L. E. Barkalew, who represents the borough in the Somerset county Board of Freeholders, to the matter, and will ask them to pay the damages.

To Go Into Business in New York.

Joseph L. Weil, for the past few months prescription clerk with G. W. V. Moy, of Park avenue, has bought a store on Wall street, near the Stock Exchange. Mr. Weil will be greatly missed by the many friends he made while with Mr. Moy, and there is no doubt of the success which lies before him as a New York druggist.

Plainfield's Tennis Players Lose Every Match to Orange's Experts.

The Plainfield tennis cracks were not in the game with the players from the Orange Tennis Club, Saturday afternoon, at the latter place. The Hillside Tennis Club sent C. S. West, R. A. Beebe, C. F. Walz and F. W. Walz, to contest in a tournament against four other men from the Orange Club. The Plainfielders did not even win a set to say nothing of a match. Carl F. Walz appeared to do the best of the visitors.

The scores of the different matches are as follows:

C. A. Gould, Orange T. C., beat C. S. West, Hillside T. C., 6—0, 6—2. C. A. Gould, Orange T. C., beat R. A. Beebe, 6—1, 6—1. Holcombe Ward, Orange T. C., beat R. A. Beebe, Hillside T. C., 6—0, 6—1. His Presence of Mind Saved It.

There was a narrow escape from an accident in Roberts' stable, yesterday, and that it did not happen is due to the quickness of Chief T. O. Doane, of the Fire Department. Twelve hundred bushels of oats had just been placed in the oat bin, and the strain on the timbers was too much. The chief heard them cracking and giving, immediately taking in the situation, and with the help of several of the men in the stable procured some joist from a nearby lumber yard and strengthened the fast giving way structure.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Charles Conover, of Elmwood place, rode his wheel to High Bridge yesterday, returning last night.

A young colored girl in bloomers attracted considerable attention in Plainfield, Saturday afternoon.

A. H. Barnett, of Westfield, won an elegant gun at the National Cycle Meet at Asbury Park. The gun is valued at $150. Barnett is riding for the Stearns Bicycle Co.

Albert Woltmann, of West Seventh street, Meredith Dryden, of West Seventh street, and William Thiers, of Somerset street, went on their wheels to Asbury Park yesterday morning, and will remain there for a week.

Charles L. Angleman, Wilbur F. Cornwell and Arthur H. Serrell took a bicycle ride Saturday afternoon. They started for Somerville, but returned over the county roads to New Brunswick and then went on to Metuchen and Boynton Beach, from which they returned to Plainfield as the sun was settiag.

F. L. C. Martin has just received the latest novelty in the bicycle trade. It is a very small, but perfect in every way, Crescent wheel. The wheels are twenty inches in diameter and the gear 45¼. It is just the wheel that many Plainfield fathers have tried to get for their young sons. It is a beauty in every way.

In the bicycle races at the Manhattan Beach track Saturday afternoon, Plainfield did not get entirely left. A. H. Barnett got third in his heat in the one mile scratch race for Class B riders. And in the one mile handicap, he secured second place, starting from the 85 yard mark. E. L. Blauvelt, of Elizabeth, 125 yards, won by three quarters of a length. Walter Sanger won the one mile professional race in 1.59 2-5. He was paced by a "quad". This is a track record.

The trouble with professional racing, so far, seems to be that the class brought out to date savors of the horseflesh which tried to run in the early days of Guttenburg and Clifton. To be successful, the professionals must be able to do bttter racing than that done by Class A and Class B men. They have not done this to date. Johnson, Zimmerman, Wheeler and Tyler are badly needed to help Sanger out. Sanger so far outclassed his field on Saturday that the races in which he started were processions.

An Officer's Opinion.

A Daily Press reporter in conversation with Policeman Giese Saturday learned that on Sunday morning, July 14th, he saw two Italians or Hebrews—he could not tell which—pass through Elm place in the early morning carrying a large trunk. They were going toward the mountain, but Mr. Giese had heard nothing of the missing trunk and in consequence thought nothing particularly strange of it. However, he is of the opinion that the trunk is in North Plainfield and not far away.

John McMurtry Hurt This Noon.

John McMurtry, who works for W. J. Conroy at his blacksmith shop on Somerset street, met with a very painful accident today noon. He had placed a two-inch square axle on a bench so as to drive a clip through it when it slipped and fell on his left foot. Three toes were crushed terribly and the blood came through the shoe. He went to a nearby house and had his foot dressed. The pain is intense and he is unable to walk.

They Will Catch Them All.

George W. Rockfellow, Andrew Vanderbeek and R. M. Stelle started out this morning armed with fishing tackle, baskets and everything for Seawaren, where they expect to capture every fish for miles around.

Larned Wins the Cup.

The tennis championship of Seabright was won Saturday afternoon by W. A. Larned, of Summit, who is well-known here, after a most exciting contest. The score was 7-5, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2, and the victory gives Larned the Seabright Challenge Cup for good.

Policemen on Vacation.

Policemen McCue and Flanagan commenced their vacation today. Policemen Cooney and Vanderweg will perform day duty until they return.

Mission Work.

A woman missionary from the tenement district in New York, will make an address at the Warren Chapel on Tuesday evening.

Large Crowd From Plainfield.

A large crowd from Plainfield attended the picnic at Metuchen on Saturday, given by the St. Patrick's Alliance. O'Reilly furnished the music.

A Bad Scald.

Mrs. A. M. Vanderbeek, of Duer street, was badly scalded on the foot last Friday.

ELECTRICITY IN THE HOME.

Some Useful Contributions to Comfort and Health.

When Bulwer wrote his novel, "The Coming Race," in which he described the electric light before it was invented, he served as prophet—novelists and poets often do. But the comprehensive character of this prophecy has hardly been appreciated. In perfecting his marvel working Vrill, in a work of fiction, for the purposes of heating, lighting, locomotion through air, defence in war, and especially in making the house independent of servants, Bulwer was, indeed, looking far ahead.

With the general application of electricity to household affairs, the world is rapidly approaching Bulwer's ideal. Until quite recently its scope was confined mainly to the business and industrial centers of modern life. Now the Vrill of science has invaded that last domain of conservatism where "the old way" is so often held to be better than the new—the private houses.

It is a matter of considerable interest and undoubted importance to trace the history of the change. Undoubtedly, the opening wedge was Mr. Edison's invention of the incandescent electric light. Those who could afford it had it; those who could not afford it wanted it. Viewed from a narrow viewpoint, the electric light was to be expensive. However an important economic factor was lost sight of. The power necessary to illuminate the house was equally available (with all the appliances which have been wanted) to make that house a sort of an earthly paradise, with regard, at least, to health, comfort and convenience.

Yet even here there was an intermediate step. The fuel reform movement which banished coal from so many apartment houses and substituted gas for heating and lighting educated the progressive housekeeper up to the electric stove and heater.

For if the gas stove was good the electric stove is better. Nothing could be simpler in principle. It is merely an insulated wire merged in a plate, which by mere resistance to the flow of the electric energy gives off heat. Obviously, there could scarcely be a more convenient form of lighting and heating. If you wish hot water in your bath-tub, just drop in a plate. If you want heat for your shaving mug, for your chafing dish, just turn on the switch.

The temperature can be delightfully regulated by the electric stove, as there is no consumption of oxygen and the consequent giving off of carbonic acid gas.

"Yield Not to Misfortune."

I was afflicted with catarrh last autumn. During the month of October I could neither taste or smell and could hear but little. Ely's Cream Balm cured it. Marcus Geo. Shautz, Rahway, N. J.

I suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since a boy, and I never hoped for cure, but Ely's Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many acquaintances have used it with excellent results. Oscar Ostrum, 45 Warren ave., Chicago, Ill. Cream Balm is agreeable.

Shiloh's Cure, the great cough and croup cough, is in great demand. Pocket size contains 25 doses, only 25c. Children love it. Sold by all druggists.

Captain Sweeney, U. S. A., San Diego, Cal., says: "Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy is the first medicine I have ever found that would do me any good." Price 50c. Sold by all druggists.

Karl's Clover Root will purify your blood, clear your complexion, regulate your bowels and make your head clear as a bell; 25c, 50c and $1. Sold by all druggists.

YOUR SCALP!

During the heats of summer does it become irritated and invite an occasional friendly scratch? To wash it is well, but not too often, lest your hair become "brash" and stiff. But treat it twice or thrice a week with our Petroleum Hair Tonic—a little rubbed in with your finger ends, and you will find the feeling of comfort and coolness truly delightful. Positively nothing equals it as a balm for the woes of your scalp. Sprinkler bottles 50c. Only at

THE FLOWING SOURCE.

BY A. T. QUILLER COUCH.

(Copyright, 1895, by Irving Bacheller.)

I.

Master Simon's inn, the Flowing Source—"Good Entertainment for Man and Beast"—leant over the riverside by the ferry, a mile and a half above Ponteglos town. The fresh water of Cuckoo River met the salt Channeltide right under its windows, by the wooden ladder where Master Simon chained his ferry-boat. Fourteen miles inland, a brown trout-stream singing down from the moors, plunged over a ledge of rock into the cool depths of Cuckoo Valley. Thence forward it ran by beds of sundew, water-mint and asphodel, under woods so steeply converging that the traveler upon the ridges heard it as the trickle of water in a cavern. But just above Master Simon's inn the valley widened out into arable and gray pasture land, and the river, too, widened and grew deep enough to float up vessels of small tonnage at the spring tides. In summer, from the bow-window of his coffee-room, Master Simon could follow its course down through the meadows to the church tower of Ponteglos and the shipping congregated there about the wharves, and watch in the middle distance the sails of a barge or shallow trading-ketch moving among the haymakers. But from November to March, when the floods were out, the Flowing Source stood above an inland sea, with a haystack or two for lesser islets. Then the river's course could be told only by a line of stakes on which the wild fowl rested. The meadows were covered. Only a few clumps of reed rose above the clapping water and shook in the northerly gales. And then, when no guests came for weeks together, and the salt spray crusted the panes so thickly that looking abroad became a weariness of the spirit, Master Simon would reach down his long gun from the chimney-piece and polish it, and having pulled on his wading boots and wrapped a large woolen comforter round his throat and another round his head, would summon his tap-boy, unmoor the ferry-boat, and go duck shooting. For in winter birds innumerable haunt the riverside here—wild duck, snipe, teal and widgeon; curlews, field fares and plovers, both green and golden; rooks, starlings, little white-rumped sandpipers; herons from the upper woods and gulls from seaward. Master Simon had fine sport in the short days, and the inn might take care of itself, which it was perfectly well able to do. Its foundations rested on sunken piles of magnificent girth—"as stout as myself," said Master Simon, modestly—and on these it stood so high that even the great flood of fifty-nine had overlapped the kitchen threshold but once, at the top of a spring tide with a northwesterly gale behind it; and then had retreated within the hour. "It didn't put the fire out," boasted Master Simon.

He was proud of his inn, and for some very good reasons. To begin with, you would not find another such building if you searched England for a year. It consisted almost wholly of wood; but of such wood. The story went that on a blowing afternoon in the late autumn of 1588 two Spanish galleons from the Great Armada—they had been driven around Cape Wrath—came trailing up the estuary and took ground just above Ponteglos. Their crews landed and marched inland, and never returned. Some say the Cornishmen cut them off and slew them. For my part, I think it more likely that these foreigners found hospitality, and very wisely determined to settle in the country. Certain it is, you will find in the upland farms over Cuckoo Valley a race of folks with olive complexions, black curling hair, and Southern names—Santo, Hugo, Jago, Bennett, Jose. * * *

At all events, the Spanyers (Spaniards) never came back to their galleons, which lay in the ooze by the marsh meadows until the very birds forgot to fear them, and built in their rigging. By the Roles d'Oleron—which were, in effect, the maritime laws of that period—all wrecks or wreckage belonged to the Crown when neither an owner nor an heir of the late owner could be found for it. But in those days the king's law traveled through Cornwall with a halting foot; so that when, in 1605, these galleons were put up to auction and sold by the Lord of the Manor—who happened to be High Sheriff—nobody inquired very closely where the money went. It is more to the point that the timber of them was bought by one Master Blaise—never mind the surname; he was an ancestor of Simon's, and a well-to-do wool-comber of Ponteglos. This Master Blaise already rented the ferry rights by Flowing Source, and certain rights of fishery above and below; and having a younger son to provide for, he conceived the happy notion of this hostelry beside the river. For ground rent he agreed to carry each Michaelmas to the Lord of the Manor one penny in a silk purse, and the lord's bailiff, on bringing the receipt, was to take annually of Master Blaise and his heirs one jack of ale of the October brewing and one smoke-cured salmon of not less than fifteen pounds' weight. These conditions having been duly signed, in the year 1606, Master Blaise laid the foundations of his inn upon the timbers of one galleon and set up the eln, keelson of the other for his roof-tree. Its stout ribs, curving outward and downward from this magnificent balk, supported the clincher-built roof, so that the upper half of the building appeared—and indeed was—a large inverted hull, decorated with dormer windows, brick chimneys, and a round pigeon-house surmounted by a gilded vane. The windows he took ready-made from the Spaniard's bulging stern works. And for signboard he hung out between two bulging poop lanterns a large bituminous painting on panel, that had been found on board the larger galleon, and was supposed to represent the features of her patron, Saint Nicholas Prodaneli. But the site of the building had always been known as Flowing Source, and by this name and no other Master Blaise's inn was called for over two hundred years.

By this time its timber roof had clothed itself with moss upon the north side, and on the west the whole framework inclined over the river, as though the timbers of the old galleon regretted their proper element and strained toward it tenderly, quietly, persistently. But careful patching and repairing had kept the building to all appearance as stout as ever; and any doubts of its stability were dispelled in a moment by a glance at Master Simon, the landlord. Master Simon's age by parish register fell short of forty, but he looked at least ten years older; a slow man with a promising stomach and a very satisfactory balance at the bank; a notable breeder of pigeons and fisher of eels. He could also brew strong ale, and knew exactly how salmon should be broiled. He had heard that the world revolves, and decided to stand still and let it come round to him. Certainly a considerable number of its inhabitants found their way to the Flowing Source sooner or later. Marketers crossed the ferry and paused for a morning drink. In the cool of the day quiet citizens rambled up from Ponteglos with rod and line, or brought their families by boat on the high evening tide to eat cream and junket and sit afterward on the benches by the inn door, watching the fish rise and listening to the song of the young people some way up stream. Painters came, too, and sketched the old inn, and sometimes stayed for a week, having tasted the salmon. Pigeon breeders dropped in and smoked long pipes in the kitchen with Master Simon, and slowly evolved bets and matches. And once or twice in the summer months a company of pilgrims would arrive—queer literary men in velveteen coats, who examined all the rooms and furniture as though they meant to make a bid for the inn complete; who talked with outlandish tongues and ordered expensive dinners, and usually paid for them next morning, rather to Master Simon's surprise. It appeared that there was once, in the time of Master Simon's grandfather, a certain pot-boy at the Flowing Source who ran off into the world and became a great poet; and these pilgrimages were made in his honor. Master Simon found this story somehow very creditable to himself, and came in time to take almost as much pride in it as in his pigeons and broiled salmon. Regularly after dinner on these occasions he would exhibit an old pewter pint-pot to the pilgrims, and draw their attention to the following verse, scratched upon it—as he asserted—by the poet's own hand:

"Who buys beef buys bones
Who buys land buys stones
Who buys eggs buys shels'
But who buys ale buys nothing els."

And the pilgrims feigned credulity according as they valued Master Simon's opinion of their intelligence.

But most welcome of all were the merchant captains from Ponteglos, among whom custom had made it a point of honor to report themselves at the Flowing Source within twenty-four hours after dropping anchor by Ponteglos Quay. When or why or how the custom arose, nobody was old enough to remember, but a master mariner would as soon have thought of sailing without log or lead-line as of putting in and out of Ponteglos without tasting Master Simon's ale—"calling for orders," as they put it. Master Simon had never climbed a sea-going ship except to shake hands with a friend and wish good voyage and return to shore with the pilot. But the teak walls of his parlor were lined with charts of such very remote parts of the world, and his shelves with such a quantity of foreign china and marine curiosities, and he spoke so familiarly of Gallapagos, Batavia, Cape Verde, the Horn, the Straits of Magellan and so forth, and would bring his telescope so knowingly to bear on the gilt weather-cock over Ponteglos church tower, that until you knew the truth you would have sworn half his life had been spent on the quarter-deck. And while the sea captains—serious men, attired in blue cloth, wearing rings in their ears—sat and smoked canaster and other queer tobaccos in painted china pipes, and talked of countries whose very names conjured up visions of parrots, and carved idols, and sharks, and brown natives in flashing canoes, Master Simon would put a shrewd question or two and wag his head over the answers as a man who hears just what he expected. And sometimes toward the close of the sitting, if he knew his company very well, he would reward them with his favorite and only song, "The Golden Vanitee:"

"A ship I have got in the North Countree,
And I had her christened the Golden Vanitee;
O, I fear she'll be taken by a Spanish Gal-a-lee,
As she sails by the Lowlands low." * *

In some hazy way he had persuaded himself that the Spanish galleon of the ballad was the very ship whose timbers overarched him and the audience; and for the moment, being himself inverted (so to speak) by the potency of his own singing, he blew out his chest and straddled out his thick calves and screwed up his eyes, quite as if his roof-tree were right-side-up once more in blue water, and he on deck beside the weather-rail. But the mood began to pass as soon as he locked the front door behind his guests, and Ann the cook poured him out his last cup of mulled ale and withdrew with the saucepan. And another noon would find him seated under his leaning house-front, his eyes half-closed, his attention divided between the whisper of the tide and the murmur in the pigeon-cots overhead, his body at ease and his soul content. His was a happy life—or, had been, but for two crumpled rose-leaves. To begin with, there were those confounded pot-boys. It puzzled Master Simon almost as much as it annoyed him; he paid fair wages and passed for a good employer; but he could not keep a pot-boy for twelve months. As a matter of fact, I know the river to have been at the bottom of the mischief—the river, and perhaps the talk of the ship captains. It might satisfy Master Simon to sit and watch the salmon passing up in autumn toward their spawning beds, and rubbing, as they went, their scales against his landing-stage to clear them of the sea-lice; to watch them and their young passing seaward in the early spring; to watch and wait and spread his nets in the due season. But for the youngsters this running water was a constant lure—the song of it and the dimple on it. It coaxed them, as it coaxed the old galleon, to lean over and listen. And the moment that listening became intolerable, they were off. Only one of them—the poet before mentioned—had ever expressed any desire to return and revisit—

"The shining levels and the dazzled wave
Emerging from his covert of green woods,
Old heronries, and tales mysterious,
Lost between uplands where the harvesters
Pause in the swathe, shading their eyes, to watch
Some little trader stealing up from sea;
Themselves in sunset, she a twilight ghost
Parting the twilit woods. * * *
Ah, loving God,
Grant in the end this world may slip away
With whisper of that water by the bows
Of such a bark, bearing one home—thy stars
Breaking the gloom like kingfishers, thy heights
Golden with wheat, thy waiting angels there
Wearing the dear rough faces of my kin!"

I doubt if he meant it, any more than Virgil meant his "flumina amem silvasque inglorius." At any rate, the public knew what was due to itself, and, when the time came, gave the man a handsome funeral in Westminster Abbey. Among his pall-bearers walked the Prime Minister, the Commander-in-chief, the President of the Royal Academy of Arts, and (as representing rural life) the Minister of Agriculture.

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freemyer House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for any kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. It May Do as Much For You.

Mr. Fred Miller of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a Severe Kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called Kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure all Kidney and Liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c for large bottle, at L. W. A POPULAR PRINCE.

IF ENGLAND WERE A REPUBLIC HE WOULD BE ELECTED PRESIDENT.

Practically at the Head of the Government Now. Popular With All Classes From the Aristocrary to the Populace. Victoria Queen Only in Name.

"If Great Britain were to adopt a republican form of government to-morrow, and if there were to be a popular election for President of the British republic, the Prince of Wales would easily receive a majority of all the votes in the United Kingdom over any other candidate who could be named."

These words from one of the leading public men of England himself anything but a royalist in principle and temperament, fairly reflect the views of the most experienced and astute judges of public opinion in Great Britain. The undiminished popularity of the Prince of Wales among the all classes of the people, inexplicable as it is to most Americans, is not surprising to those who have followed closely the career of that most painstaking, patient, unwearied and amiable of public functionaries.

For a score of years the prince has practically performed all the social and public duties of a British monarch, while holding the position and receiving recognition only as the first of the queen's subjects. On the whole, he has done it well. He has made some errors, but they have not been serious errors. He has had to satisfy a great many people, widely differing in temperament, education, politics and religion, and yet possessing a certain common instinct of nationality, an insulate prejudice, a respect for established institutions and traditions quite unknown to cosmopolitan people like the Americans. So it is that, when the prince speaks so felicitously at the dedication of some new philanthropic or religious institution, most non-conformists readily forgive his sporting tendencies, while all but the ultra-Jacobins among radical workingmen forget his royal blood when he strides democratically among the horses in the saddling paddock on Derby Day. In short, the Prince of Wales satisfies the tastes, ideas and prejudices of the average Englishman better than any member of his royal house has yet succeeded in doing, and the cheers that invariably greet his every public appearance are the echo of a spontaneous and general popular regard—heightened, of course, by the respect and affection inspired by the character of his lovely and estimable wife.

It is this feeling, undoubtedly, which has given rise to the rumor of the queen's abdication upon the occasion of the celebration of her 76th birthday on the 24th inst. The rumor is not a new one. A good deal was said about it during the Jubilee year, 1887. Each succeeding year, as the queen's infirmities have grown upon her and she has taken less and less interest in public affairs and more persistently withdrawn from all social duties, there has been more or less talk of the same character.

A Woman's Use of Photography.

One of the temperance papers tells the following story: "One woman determined that her husband should know how he looked when he was drunk. She knew how he looked well enough and needed not that any man should tell her. Her children also knew by sad experience, but the man himself had a very imperfect idea of the state of the case. So once when he came home and fell into a maudlin slumber she sent for the photographer to come forthwith, and on his arrival she set before him his work. She ordered the photographer to photograph her husband as he sat in the chair. The photographer did his work and did it well; and when the photograph was finished and laid beside the husband's place at breakfast it was a revelation, and the sobered gentleman experienced a decidedly new sensation. There was no need of explanation; the thing explained itself. There was no chance for contradiction; the sun tells no lies. There was no room for argument.—Tit-Bits.

It Didn't Stop the Music.

A dog was advertised to play on a piano in a circus. When the time came for the dog to perform he got on a seat and began playing. Suddenly a wag in the crowd shouted "Rats!" upon which the dog bounded off the seat. But the piano kept on playing.—Minneapolis Free Baptist.

Back to First Principles.

The fair girl graduate may close her school days with Greek, but when her returning shadow falls athwart the threshold of the old homestead, she lets the puffs out of her sleeves and prepares to cook in dialect.—Atlanta Constitution.

AN ORATOR'S MEMORY.

It Sometimes Troubles Him, as Mr. Depew Can Testify.

Few of our greater orators have had good verbal memory. Mr. Depew complains that it is the most embarrassing of his intellectual weaknesses, with a memory which is marvelous for events, and which carries in great detail things which have happened years ago; nevertheless Depew finds it a very severe, sometimes an almost impossible intellectual task, to commit even brief passages to memory. Conkling's verbal memory was not, at least at all times, to be depended upon, although some of his speeches he committed upon three or four readings of them. William H. Seward had a marvelous verbal memory; having written a speech it was firmly fixed in his mind after one reading, and that capacity President Cleveland also possesses.

The perfect preparations of a speech was, in Wendell Phillip's view, that one in which the mental operations were assisted in no way by outside aid. Only two or three times in his life did he prepare with pen and paper an address, and he always felt that these two or three speeches were the poorest of his efforts. He was constantly studying the art of oratory. In his daily walk or in his reading, metaphors and similes were suggested, which he tucked away in his memory, and he even studied action as he watched the muscular movement of men whom he saw in public places.

He believed that a perfect speech could be prepared after intense mental concentration. Of course the mind must first be fortified by such reading as provided facts. Having thus saturated his mind with information, he would frequently lie extended for hours upon his sofa with his eyes closed making mental arrangement of the address. In fact, he used to write his speeches mentally, as Victor Hugo is said to have written some of his poems. A speech thus prepared Phillips thought was always at the command of the speaker. It might vary upon every delivery in phraseology. It might be longer at one time than at another, but it would always be practically the same speech.

This method of preparation explains what has been a mystery to many persons. The several reports of his famous lecture on "The Lost Arts" differ in phraseology and even in arrangement. His oration upon Daniel O'Connell has been printed by different publishers, no two of them agreeing either in form or diction, and yet the speech is practically the same. Only one of his orations is left exactly as he delivered it, for he only delivered it once. That was the Phi Beta Kappa oration at Harvard a few years before his death. Mr. Phillips never read one of his speeches in print, and therefore never revised one. He was firmly of the belief that the printed thought and the spoken thought should be expressed in different form, and that the master of one form could not be the master of the other.

FOR RELICS OF ADAM AND EVE.

The Garden of Eden Being Carefully Explored by an American Scientist.

The spade of the explorer has at last been struck into the historic soil of the Garden of Eden. At last the scientist and archæologist have begun to study the famous plateau which has long been agreed upon as the undoubted location of the Paradise of the Bible.

Perhaps there is no more wonderful spot on earth than the plateau—the real Garden of Eden. As the recognized cradle of the human race, it is of overwhelming interest, but it is of the very utmost interest, too, to the scientist and naturalist for entirely different reasons. From this remote and almost inaccessible corner of the earth, for instance, came originally nearly every one of our domestic animals.

The Bible says, in the Book of Genesis: "The Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden." And, indeed, if ever there was a spot which seemed to have been specially created and clothed with marvelous richness of foliage, of climate, and of diverse species of birds and beasts, with its verdant valleys and luxurious plains, framed by an encircling range of snowy mountain peaks, it is the wonderful Vale of Cashmere.

Here it was that Adam was created—the first man. And here, too, Eve was created as his companion. The serpent tempted them and sin entered the world—all in the beautiful earthly garden spot of the Vale of Cashmere.

Little, very little, has been known of the curious people who live on this great plateau. And now that the exprorer has begun work among them the possibilities of the work of research and discovery are almost boundless.

Who can foretell what may not develop in digging in the very ground where Adam and Eve trod? Who can say but that here, in this divine garden spot, the Creator may not have left relics of the first man and woman, to be carefully preserved for the explorers of the year 1895?

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the diseases for which it is intended and he knows it. It is for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues. T. Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared, and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. Marlow, M. D., Tamaroa, Ill. CARRIAGES IN COLLISION.

Hackman Guinee Has the Back Axle of His Hack Bent.

North avenue got its share of excitement yesterday afternoon at about half-past five when a carriage, driven by Mrs. James Buchanan, of West Seventh street, ran into the hack belonging to Con Guinee. The whole affair was entirely accidental and was due to the numerous carriages that gathered about the North Avenue station. Mrs. Buchanan had come from the direction of Park avenue and started to turn around. To escape running into a passing carriage she drove too close to Guinee's hack and the wheels came together. The back axle was bent and the wheel tipped partly over on one side. Mrs. Buchanan agreed to pay for all the damage she had done and Guinee started for a repair shop.

THE TROLLEY TO SPRINGFIELD.

Silas D. Drake's Effort to Boom the Line Enthusiastically Received.

Silas D. Drake recently issued a circular declining to be a candidate for Governor, as his ambition was to develop Union county, and to that end open up a trolley line between Elizabeth and Summit. The scheme is well received, says the Journal. The Summit papers indorse it, and yesterday morning Mr. Drake received from N. C. Cox, the postmaster at Springfield, a letter stating that Springfield wished him God-speed in his efforts, and wishing him success all along the line.

Preferred Death to Separation.

The young elopers, Miss Florence Manning, of Rahway, and J.E.Adams, of Newark, have, it is feared, committed suicide. The last seen of the couple was just before the storm Sunday night. They were then at Boynton Beach. Early yesterday morning a hat was found on the beach which resembled the one worn by Adams. The couple have been wandering about Woodbridge since last Thursday, and have not as yet found anyone who will marry them on account of their age. They threatened to jump into the water unless some one tied the knot.

Seated Too Quick.

As the 8:44 train to New York was pulling out from the North Avenue station this morning, Rev. Mr. Johnstone, of the Church of the Redeemer, attempted to jump on. He caught a hand-rail with his left hand, and was completely turned around, landing on the step, facing his audience. Those who saw the episode were very much afraid a serious accident would result. Mr. Johnstone was in the station deeply absorbed in his newspaper and did not realize that his train had arrived, hence his haste in catching it.

Repairs for Borough School.

At a recent special meeting of the Borough Board of Education the proposed improvements to the High School were discussed and decided upon, and Hummer Bros., of Stone street, North Plainfield, were given the contract for the carpenter work, which includes new floors, steps and landings for the latter. The plumbing contract will be given out in a few days.

Contemplated Excursion.

At a meeting of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., last evening, John Morton, John Becker and E. C. Morse, were appointed a committee to investigate and report to the lodge on the matter of running an excursion to Lake Hopatcong sometime during next month.

A Sad Affliction.

Rev. W. A. Alexander, the pastor of Bethel chapel, whose family have been west for sometime, has received the sad intelligence of the sudden death of his son Thaddeus. This sorrow is very keenly felt as he had become the family's favorite.

Lost in Plainfield.

A man evidently not possessed of his right mind attracted the attention of the people on Somerset street yesterday afternoon by turning his horse and wagon incessantly around in the street. He did not seem to know for awhile where he was at.

Mr. Kirk Gets Another Contract.

Wm. Kirk, of West Seventh street, received the contract last Saturday from the Somerset County Board of Freeholders to build a bridge at Harlingen, which is about five miles from Somerville.

Reformed Elizabeth.

The several raids made by the police on people who carried pails of beer along the streets on Sunday in Elizabeth have effectually checked the custom. No arrests were made Sunday.

NOT WHAT THE NAME IMPLIES

TEA OF GERMAN REFORMED CHURCH NOT SO WARM AFTER ALL.

Delightful Midsummer Event, the Outcome of Which is the Formation of a Church Society of Young People.

A tea usually suggests something warm to drink, but at the pink and white tea held in the church parlors of the German Reformed church last evening, the cold delicacies took the lead. The tea was arranged by the young women of the church to assist in securing funds for a parsonage. Although there is no regular society, a temporary organization was formed and Miss Sadie Blimm elected president, Miss Josie Fritz, secretary, and Miss Lizzie Scheeline, treasurer. These young women worked their hardest to make the tea a success, and last evening showed that their efforts had been signally rewarded.

The room was prettily draped in pink and white bunting, while all the booths were decorated with an artistic combination of ferns, greens and bunting. The decorating was done by Miss Sadie Blimm, Miss Josie Fritz, Miss Lizzie Scheeline, Miss Kate Blimm, Miss Nettie Kreitling, John Utzinger, Fred Vanderweg and Rev. G. Hauser.

The tea table was under the care of Miss Sadie Blimm, assisted by Miss Etta Blatz and Miss Carrie Fritz. The aids in charge of the cake table were Miss Josie Fritz and Miss Jeanette Simpson. The lemonade well was cared for by Miss Catherine Blimm, assisted by Miss Lottie Fritz. Miss Nettie Kreitling, assisted by Miss Nellie McGinnis, sold the home-made candies. The chief of the refreshments was Mrs. Utzinger. The waitresses were the Misses Bessie Trambelith, Lillie Zeisz and Annie Doeringer. John Utzinger received the tickets at the door, while Fred Vanderweg took in the money.

During the evening there were instrumental solos by Miss Nettie Kreitling, Miss Bach, of New York, and Miss Lillie Zeisz. Robert Clark, Jr., gave a vocal solo entitled "Sunset Memories." A most delightful evening was enjoyed, and by no means the least delightful was the ice cream furnished by Tier.

The tea will be continued this afternoon and evening.

AN ITALIAN EPISODE.

The Horse Would Not Stop Until He Fell in the Road.

Three Italians whose names could not be learned, and who live near Mt. Bethel, drove to town yesterday afternoon—that is they started for Plainfield, but did not reach here. While coming down Somerset street their horse became frightened and was unmanageable. He was covering the ground a good deal faster than the occupants of the wagon desired he should, but they were unable to stop him. When in front of Edward Mundy's home the runaway animal stumbled and fell in the roadway, cutting himself severely.

The wagon was also a wreck, but luckily the men escaped without injury.

Jacob Sheppard, who was nearby, caught the horse before he could get away.

The wagon was taken to W. J. Conroy's blacksmith shop and repaired, and the animal finally became quiet and peaceable.

Pulpit Supplies.

Pulpit supplies have been arranged as follows for the Crescent Avenue church during the vacation of Rev. Dr. Richards: July 28th.—Rev. R. J. Service, D. D., of Detroit; August 4th.—Rev. J. O. Murray, D. D., of Princeton; August 11th.—Rev. R. J. Service, D. D., of Detroit; August 18th.—Rev. James McLeod, D. D., of Scranton; August 25th.—Rev. James McLeod, D. D., of Scranton; September 1st.—Rev. George T. Purnes, D. D., of Princeton.

May Now Break the Deadlock.

Mayor Williamson, of New Brunswick, has called a meeting of the Common Council for Wednesday night. The purpose of the meeting will be to take action on the application of the Brunswick Traction Company for more privileges, payment of the city officers' salaries and to revise the tax assessment list. The Mayor did not know whether an organization would be effected or not. It is thought that the deadlock will be broken.

Red Men on the War Path.

District Deputy Grand Sachem Charles M. Ulrich and staff go to Rahway this evening to raise the chiefs in the Rahwack Tribe, No. 165, I. O. R. M. The party will go in a wagonette.

A WEDDING ANNIVERSARY.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Martin Have Been Married Sixteen Years.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace J. Martin, of Fairview avenue, celebrated their sixteenth wedding anniversary at their home last evening. The affair was a thoroughly enjoyable one and the evening was spent in sociability. Excellent refreshments were served during the evening.

Those present were: Mrs. J. C. Runyon, Miss Elma Runyon, Miss Addie Runyon, Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Moore, Mrs. Rhoda Martin, J. C. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Steiner, Miss Mabel Van Middlesworth, Herbert Moore, Edward Clark, Plainfield; Mrs. Charles Foster, Miss Lillian Foster, Harold Foster, Jersey City; Miss Fanny Cooper, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Martin, Newark; Mrs. E. S. Miles and Miss Nettie Miles, Newburg.

A UNIQUE WILL.

Each Member of Connor's Family Willed Rooms in the House.

Middlesex county has had its share of peculiar wills, but never one to surpass in eccentricity of that made by Nelson Connor, of Washington, D. C., recently filed.

In it the testator leaves each member of the family one or more rooms in the house. His wife gets the two front rooms, the shop and the room over it. A daughter is left the dining room and one room on the third floor. The back room upstairs and the kitchen are given to a grandson.

Connor expresses a wish that all live together in peace and love. The lawyers say that while the will is one of the strangest on record it will hold.

THE TELEPHONE WAR.

A Writ of Certiorari Granted to the Old Company.

Application was made to Judge Van Syckel at his summer home in Mantoloking on Saturday for a writ of certiorari in the suit of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company against the Mutual Company, to take up the ordinance passed last March by the Elizabeth Council, granting to the Mutual Company the right to erect poles and wires in the streets. Mr. Bergen represented the old company and Judge Gilhooly the Mutual Company. The writ was granted, and operates as a stay of proceedings.

In the meantime the parties identified with the new company are pushing their proceedings to reorganize under the telegraph act.

Pleasant Surprise Party.

A surprise party was last night tendered Master Frank Sprague at his home, 216 Spooner avenue, by a few of his young friends to celebrate his fourteenth birthday. They had a very pleasent time. Refreshments were served. Among those present were the Misses Ella Griep, Flo Roseberry, Minnie Hartfelder, Mable Ayers, Annie Schilck, Lulu Miner; Masters David Adelman, James Gray, Frank McComas, Charlie Gulick, Irvin Dehart and John Sprague.

To Investigate Leonard's Death.

An inquest has been order by County Physician O'Reilly to be held on the body of Theodore Leonard, the painter, of Rahway, who died so suddenly last Friday night after eating his supper. The dead man's father demanded that the inquest be held, despite the objections of Theodore's wife. The autopsy was performed at one o'clock yesterday afternoon by Dr. Mravlag, of Elizabeth, assisted by Mayor Daly and Dr. O'Reilly. Coroner Holmes, of Rahway, will preside at the inquest.

Were They Both Drowned?

Two young men, whose names are unknown, hired a boat from Frank Hoplock, at Elizabethport, Sunday afternoon, and said they were going out for a sail. Nothing has been heard of them, and yesterday a boat was picked up off Staten Island in the bottom of which was a coat. The boat was the one that the missing young men hired from Mr. Hoplock. It is feared that they were caught in the heavy squall that swept over the Kills Sunday evening and were drowned.

Too Much Heat for the Horse.

A horse belonging to Mr. Wise, of Grandview avenue, was overcome last evening about six o'clock with the heat and fell down in the road. After much effort the horse was taken to the owner's barn and cared for.

An Infant Son Dead.

Harry B. the infant son of Charles and Theresa C. VanNest, died at the home of his parents, 216 New street, yesterday.

WHAT WILL RATES BE?

New Electric Light Company Keeps the Boroughites Guessing.

The fact that there is a probability that the Citizens Electric Company, recently organized in Union county, has purchased the North Plainfield Electric Light Company's plant is causing considerable discussion in the borough among citizens who keep well posted in borough matters.

It is true, and even admitted by Dr. Cooley, that he has not the time to attend to the company's business as it should be.

The plant is said to be a paying one and can be made more so, which is no doubt realized by those whom it is thought have made the purchase.

Some are inclined to believe that the sale may make a difference in the contracts which are held by the borough when they expire, and that the rates may be higher to the individual consumer as well as to the borough. But of course, this is only a supposition, and even should the rates be slightly increased to be uniform with the present city rate, the better service would be worth it.

The Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Co., are building extensively and adding room to their present building, which is assurance that they are going to increase their lighting facilities. In addition to the improvements heretofore mentioned in The Press, a powerful Corliss engine will be put in the plant.

THE WHEEL CAME TO GRIEF.

But Its Rider, Will Van Eps, Escaped Without a Scratch.

Another bicycle rider came to grief this morning by being kicked by a horse, only in this case, it was the wheel, and not the rider, that was injured.

Will Van Eps, of Park avenue, was coming down on the right hand side where he belonged. A delivery wagon belonging to Demarest was standing in front of Foote's candy store, when the driver came out on a run. He spoke to the horse who started ahead immediately, and the driver jumped in. The horse turned out a little and Van Eps, who was coming in the opposite direction, seeing there was no room to go to the right, tried to circle around to the left of the horse which had just started. But the horse turned out too much and brought his foot in contact with the wheel. Van Eps fell over backward and got out of the way leaving the wheel to its fate, which proved a sad one, for after the horse had finished walking on it the wheels took a turn at the work of destruction. The driver tried to stop, but the cycle was badly wrecked before the horse stopped. The frame was badly dented and twisted, and the spokes bent.

A HELPFUL SERVICE.

Trinity Reformed Endeavorers Hear From Their Great Convention.

The Christian Endevor meeting at Trinity Reformed church last night was a very interesting one, and was in charge of Joseph Fuller.

Miss Lizzie Dunn, the delegate to Boston, gave an admirable report of the convention, and O. W. Dunham read an excellent account of the great gathering which was prepared by Miss Jennie Quick, who was also present.

An additional feature was President F. E. Smith's remarks which consisted of points obtained from the delegates who rendered reports at Bound Brook on Sunday last. The service was a very helpful one.

WANT ANY BEER?

A Plainfield Fisherman's Experience With a Floating Dispensary.

Plainfield fishermen who have been out fishing in the Kills have had a strange experience. A strange catboat heads straight for the boat of the fishing party, and appears about to cut it in half, when suddenly the bow is brought around, and the two boats are lying side by side. Then the sonorous voice of the stranger calls out, "Want any beer?"

This illegal liquor trade has been going on for some time, and there are several boats engaged in it.

Funeral Services.

The funeral services of the late Mrs. J. J. Giddis took place today at the Mt. Horeb M. E. church, and were largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. Mr. Rhodes conducted the services.

Did You Ever Visit Saybrook?

A small place called Saybrook, located about two miles north of Elizabeth, near Lyons Farms, has been founded, and a number of buildings are erecting. About fifty dwellings will soon be completed.

NOT A KILKENNY FIGHT YET.

GOSSIP ABOUT THE REPUBLICAN SITUATION IN UNION COUNTY.

Some Think that Kean Has the Best of the Fight So Far as Elizabeth and Plainfield Are Concerned.

The Newark Advertiser published the following on Saturday:

It is not a Kilkenny fight yet in Union county. There are still two candidates, but they are on good terms, and their friends have not started to eat each other up. The fight is on in earnest. Mayor John Rankin is going to humor his intense hatred of John Kean by doing all he can to get the Elizabeth delegates for Senator Foster M. Voorhees. Mayor Rankin broke out two weeks ago in a manner that was so intensely aggressive that some of the disinterested lookers on thought it was "all day" with Br'er Voorhees, and, if the truth be known, the "Deacon" himself felt like saying "Save me from my friends."

John Kean was mad clean through, and he grit his teeth and made a formal declaration of war. He has, however, modified it, for he kept his knife in his girdle and Union County goes along without any disturbing feature. Some of Senator Voorhees' friends have sat up with the beligerent mayor and reasoned a bit with him, and he is going to temper his speech with moderation, and his acts are to be more neighborly. There are some who believe that Mayor Rankin is so thirsty for the gore of John Kean that he would sacrifice Voorhees or any other friend to get square with him.

As far as Voorhees and Kean themselves are concerned, they are willing to let it drift along until the primaries are held, and let the people make an expression, and both to abide by the result; to urge the people to attend the primaries, but go no further. While this may be agreeable to the two principals, it is thought that there are some of "the boys" on both sides who will force things a little. Some think that Kean has the best of the fight so far as Elizabeth and Plainfield are concerned, but that Voorhees has the most strength outside of the cities. The fight is bound to be close. There are only forty delegates from Union county, and as it stands now, they are about equally divided between the two candidates. The principal fight will be made in the cities. Voorhees's friends claims the delegates from Rahway.

Down to the Ocean.

It is becoming quite the thing to to take a trip to Europe this summer, and quite a number of Plainfielders have gone. The Trinity Reformed Sunday-school is not going to Europe, but are going to Asbury Park, where the ocean can be seen and enjoyed as much as on a trip to Europe, without the roughness and the subsequent effects. The yacht, Emma B, gives a sail to the ocean, while surf bathing, that is not to be found at sea, is free to all. The excursion goes on Thursday morning, starting from the North Avenue station at eight o'clock. The return is made at seven o'clock, giving two hours longer at the beach than most excursions.

He Threatened to Shoot His Wife.

The new ordinance about carrying concealed weapons bore its first fruits this morning, when Joseph Green was fined $20 by Mayor Gilbert for carrying a pistol without a permit. He was arrested on complaint of his wife who claimed that he threatened to shoot her. She was detained as a witness, and this morning denied her statements of the evening before, but she could not save her husband.

Saw the Trunk, But Where is It.

J. E. Townsend, of the Somerset street marble works, says that he saw the trunk which Policeman Geise mentioned in last night's issue of The Daily Press, but like the latter knew nothing of the circumstances of the case and it passed from his memory till he saw an account of its disappearance in this paper.

Summit Boy Drowned.

A lad named Charles Fair, who came from Summit last Saturday to spend a few days with his friend, Harry Baker, was drowned in the Raritan River at noon yesterday while fishing. He lost his foothold on the bank and slipped. Young Baker tried to save him by jumping into the water, but was unable to do so.

Everybody Saw It.

The special sale of buttercups at Tier's, Saturday, advertised exclusively in The Daily Press, was a great success. Out of the ten thousand buttercups made, scarcely a dozen were left. Good goods and good advertising bring success to the business man.

THE FATAL GLASS OF RED RUM.

It Put the Horse Thief to Sleep and Effected His Capture.

The horse thief who escaped from the Plainfield police yesterday morning was captured in Westfield in the afternoon. Charles Miner, one of the law-breakers, was arrested and taken to the station house, while it was supposed that Andrew McCriekner, the other thief, walked to Netherwood and there took the train, but he did not. He started down the county road all right, but instead of boarding a train, got a ride on a beer wagon as far as Westfield. Here he bought a ticket to Roselle, but being somewhat of an imbiber of fermented liquids, he stopped at a saloon and went in to take a drink.

Chief of Police Grant had in the meantime sent a description of the escaped horse thief all along the railroad, and an officer in Westfield captured him asleep in the saloon in which he went to get a drink.

Constable Otto Wertsinger, of Roselle, brought the crestfallen man to Plainfield where he with his accomplice were brought before Justice Nash who turned them over to the justice in Roselle, to whose court they were soon sent.

For Sunday Closing.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—

Will you kindly publish the following facts why the barbers ask the Common Council to enforce the law:

Some years ago the barbers signed agreement to close their shops on Sunday, and almost all signed; but those who were the first to sign were the first to break it.

Again two or three years ago they signed agreements to close shops at 8 p. m., and those who were the principal movers in that movement, after two nights closing, had their shops open again until 9 and 10 p. m. So you can readily see agreements don't go. That is the reason the barbers ask that the Common Council enforce the law.

I for one am in favor of Sunday closing and always was.

Wm. Claassen.

Funeral of Charles Greder.

The funeral services of the late Charles Greder were held from the house on Somerset street yesterday afternoon. There was a large attendance of friends and relatives. The service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Rodman. There were three very beautiful floral tributes—one a large pillow from Warren Engine Company with the words inscribed "Warren 3," a cross from the children and a wreath from friends. The bearers were Rudolph Spiegel, Wm. Schaeffer, Jacob Voehl, Theodore Zeller, Charles Giese and Andrew Huff. Interment was in North Plainfield cemetery.

Runaway on Madison Avenue.

The horse owned and driven by W. H. Brokaw became frightened on Madison avenue this noon, and turning suddenly around threw Mr. Brokaw to the ground, slightly injuring his hip. The horse then ran as far as the electric light station, where he was stopped. The wagon was slightly damaged.

A Wheel Came Off.

Miss Lizzie M. Gavin, of Columbia avenue, while driving her pet thoroughbred racer, Harry, to town this morning, attached to a light road wagon, one of the wheels came off on Greenbrook road. A passer-by righted the same and Miss Gavin continued her trip to town.

A Good Plan.

Work on the sewer trenches in the neighborhood of Orchard place went on very fast yesterday, the men working as late as ten o'clock at night to open the street.

Anniversary Exercises.

The members of Minerva Temple, Rathbone Sisters, wish to remind all Knights of Pythias that they are invited with their families to their anniversary exercises this evening.

Where Fun Will Be.

Extensive arrangements are being made by the Grocers Association for their annual outing at Boynton Beach, Labor Day.

Before Justice Mosher.

The case of Scribner against Johnson, on contract, is returnable in Justice Mosher's court July 29th, as is also the case on contract of McCurdy against Cornett et als.

Growing Popular.

Crescent Division, No. 13, Uniformed Knights of Pythias, will meet tomorrow evening. There are a number of applications to be voted upon.

Look the Same as Ever.

The gypsies have come back to their old encampment on Park avenue. They look the same as ever.

NOT NEAR THE INDIANS

Word Received from the Princeton Students.

They Were Seventy-five Miles from the Scene of the Bannock Troubles on July 14 and Fast Increasing the Distance—Indians Swarming into Jacksons Hole Country.

Philadelphia, July 23.—Apprehension in this city for the safety of the Princeton student geological exploring party has been dispelled by the receipt of a postal card from L. Frederick Pease, a member of the party, by his parents in which he stated that the students are well and have had no trouble from the Indians.

Far from the Indians.

The parents of Mr. Pease reside in Germantown and the postal card received was dated Dubois, Wyo., July 14, and contained the following: "Am going through to Yellowstone park, where we arrive Friday, and crossing the park, John Otheman and I return to Chicago via Northern Pacific from Cinnabar, Mon. We will arrive home about the same time as formerly expected. Am well, as are all. The mountains are covered with snow, and we have to cross through it. Don't worry about the Bannock Indian troubles. They are seventy-five miles from here, and we are daily leaving them far behind. Goodby till Friday."

No Fears for Their Safety.

Mrs. Pease stated to-day that she had no fears for the safety of her son. "We have received letters from Fred at regular intervals since his departure. This postal, if nothing else, would dispel any fears that I might have, had for the safety of my son. His plan was to leave the party on their arrival at Yellowstone park, where they were to have arrived on the 19th inst. and in company with Mr. Garrett and Mr. Otheman travel through Yellowstone park in advance of the party so as to get home on the 26th, as he sails for Europe on the 31st. The rest of the party will not get home until August 1, and this would be too late for my son."

After the Settlers Only.

Washington, July 23.—From letters received in Washington from the party of students now in the Bannock country it is learned that the party were safe two days after the Indian troubles began, and were heading for the Yellowstone park. Three members of the party, L. F. Pease, of Germantown, Pa.; John Garrett, of Baltimore, and the third, name unknown, have left the party for New York city en route to Europe. Commissioner of Indian Affairs Browning said to-day that the Indians would not molest the students. The settlers who were preventing their hunting were the only people the Indians were after.

TROOPS IN READINESS.

Indians Swarming into Jacksons Hole Country.

Omaha, Neb., July 23.—The Wyoming militia have been ordered to hold themselves in readiness to move into Jacksons Hole country at short notice. The Indians are increasing in numbers rapidly and a general uprising is feared.

FLOODS AT CONNELLSVILLE.

Houses and Bridges Washed Away and Coke Ovens Drowned Out.

Connellsville, Pa., July 23.—The heaviest rain within the memory of the oldest inhabitants visited here last evening. The streets were flooded. Next to the Youghiogheny river here and in New Haven over one hundred houses are flooded. Thousands of Coke ovens were drowned out by the torrent of water and at many mines extra pumps had to be put to work in order to keep the workings from being flooded. At Broadford, two miles west of here, several houses were washed away. Two bridges of the Mount pleasant branch were swept away and traffic is blocked. The damage to crops is great.

Atlantic City Casino Disaster.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 23.—The report of city council's investigating committee which officially proted into the circumstances surrounding the inlet casino disaster, is an evasive document, blaming no one. It merely states what the public is already aware of, that the cause of the floor collapsing was due to a rotten post and overweighting.

Lost in the Storm.

Goderich, Ont., July 23.—The schooner M. A. Hall, of Port Dover, Ont., became water-logged during Sunday night's storm on Lake Huron and is a total loss. The crew drifted about in the storm in a small boat for several hours when they were picked up in an exhausted condition by life savers.

New Industry for Franklin, Pa.

Franklin, Pa., July 23.—C. W. Mackay last evening finished his task of securing $100,000 of subscriptions necessary for the location of the Lone Star Automatic Coupler works of this city. The construction of the plant will begin at once. It will give employment to 400 men.

Killed by a Trolley Car.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 23.—Richard Paulson, a butcher, 27 years old, was killed last night by a trolley car of the Jackett street line. He was killed while cutting the traces of a team of horses that had fallen to the ground. He leaves a widow and two children.

New Trolley Line Opened.

Mount Holly, N. J., July 23.—The new trolley line of the Pennsylvania railroad between Burlington and Mount Holly was formally opened yesterday to the public and scored a success. As a steam road the line has never paid.

Little Falls' New Police Force.

Little Falls, N. Y., July 23.—The new police force went on duty last night by order of the police and fire board. The old force yielded quietly but will appeal from Judge McLennan's decision to the general term in October.

Wrecked Steamer To Be Sold.

Halifax, July 23.—The wrecked steamer Nerito recently towed here from Sable island will be taken to New York and offered for sale.

EX-GOV. RICE DEAD.

Passes Away at a Boston Hotel Yesterday of Paralysis.

Melrose, Mass., July 23.—Alexander H. Rice, ex-governor of Massachusetts, died at the Langwood hotel here last evening of paralysis.

Alexander Hamilton Rice was born in Newton Lower Falls, Mass., on Aug. 30, 1818, and received a business training in his father's paper mill at Newton and in a mercantile house in Boston. In 1844 he went to Union college where he was graduated, and afterwards started in the paper business in Boston. His first public office was on the school committee. Then he became a member of the common council, of which he was elected president, and in 1855 and 1857 he was elected mayor of the city.

Elected to Congress.

During his administration the Back bay improvements were begun, the Boston city hospital was founded, and the management of the public institutions was entrusted to a board composed in part of members of the common council and partly of private citizens. For several years he served as president of the board of trade, and was the head of many financial and educational institutions. In 1857 he was elected to congress by the republicans, and served for four successive terms.

Governor Three Terms.

As chairman of the committee on naval affairs during the war he introduced many important measures. In 1876 he was a delegate to the Loyalists' convention at Philadelphia, and in 1868 to the republican national convention. In 1876 he became governor of the state and was elected to the same position in 1877 and 1878, discharging the duties with marked ability and conscientiousness.

ALLENTOWN'S MANY VISITORS.

Opening Last Night of the Third Annual Saengerfest.

Allentown, Pa., July 23.—Allentown is crowded with delegates and societies to the third annual saengerfest of the united singing societies of Pennsylvania which opened last night. Stores, and residences are in gay holiday attire and welcoming signs are everywhere conspicuous. The earliest arrivals include the Arion society, of Brooklyn; the Phoenix, of Newark; the Jung maennerchor and Allemania, of Philadelphia; the Liederkranz, of Trenton; the Froh Sinn, of Altoona; the Liederkranz, of Reading; the Friedrich Gluech quartette club, of Brooklyn; the Frank Barth quartette club, of Brooklyn; the Lustige saenger, of Philadelphia, and the Lancaster maennerchor.

KILLED IN A PRIZE FIGHT.

Schmidt's Opponent and the Spectators Then Skipped Out.

Milwaukee, Wis., July 23.—A young Milwaukee pugilist named Schmidt was killed as the result of a mill held near North Milwaukee Sunday night. It was a private affair and quite a number of sports were present. Schmidt was hit and fell forward. The crowd saw he was dangerously hurt and ran away. A doctor was summoned and the man brought to Trinity hospital, where he died in the morning. It is not known who his opponent was. No marks of violence can be found on the body, and it is supposed the man died from shock.

SILK RIBBON WEAVERS' STRIKE

No Signs of a Speedy Settlement of the Trouble at Paterson.

Paterson, N. J., July 23.—There seems to be no immediate settlement of the silk ribbon strike in Paterson, unless the manufacturers concede the demands of their employes, and there is no present hope of that. The strikers are better organized than they ever were before. It has been decided that there is to be no sympathetic strike.

Death of Mrs. Cynthia Smith.

White Plains, N. Y., July 23.—Mrs. Cynthia Falconer Smith, died at Elmsford yesterday, aged 102. Mrs Smith's greatgrandfather, Gen. John Falconer, was an aide-de-camp to Washington. She was born at Tarrytown, of French descent; one of her ancestors was Admiral De Coligna, a French naval officer and leader of the Protestant party in the religious excitement of the sixteenth century.

Big Furnaces To Resume.

Bethlehem, Pa., July 23.—Officials of the Thomas Iron compay went to Philadelphia yesterday to consult with President Harris of the Reading railroad in reference to a coal rate, preparatory to lighting up their blast furnaces at Hellertown. Their workmen look forward to an early resumption of these large furnaces with great rejoicing.

McAdoo Returns to Washington.

Washington, July 23.—The dispatch boat Dolphin, with Assistant-Secretary of the Navy McAdoo on board, reached the Washington navy yard last evening from Gloucester, Mass. Mr. McAdoo has been away about a month inspecting the naval militia forces of the Atlantic coast states.

Two Boys Drowned.

Baltimore, July 23.—George Miles, aged 14, and James Hickey, six years old, were drowned in the swimming pool at Gwynn's Falls last evening. The younger boy slipped from a rock into the water and Miles heroically sprang to the rescue. The little fellows sank together. There bodies were recovered.

To Revise Harbor Lines.

Washington, July 23.—The secretary of war has ordered a board composed of Lieut.-Col. C. L. Gillespie, Capt. W. L. Fisk and Lieut. William E. Craighill, all engineer officers, to convene at Norwich, Conn., to consider and report upon revised harbor lines.

Militiamen Overcome with Heat.

Troy, N. Y., July 23.—The 12th battalion of New York state militia which left West Sand Lake this morning, where the temporary camp was made last night, for Sand Lake, the permanent camp. Four men were overcome by heat on the way.

Burgess and Smith Matched.

London, July 23.—Dick Burge and Jem Smith have signed articles to fight twenty rounds in London for £200 a side.

Prof. Babington Dead.

London, July 23.—Professor Charles C. Babington, professor of botany at Cambridge university, is dead.

CHOLERA IS SPREADING

Marine Hospital Authorities On the Alert.

Russia and Austria Take Action To Prevent the Plague Crossing Their Borders—Many New Cases and Deaths Reported by Our Consul in Asia Minor.

Washington, July 23.—Asiatic cholera is beginning to attract the attention of the marine hospital authorities. The United States consul at Hiego cables that cholera is spreading there. Consular reports from Mersine, Asia Minor, shows that for the week ending May 25 there were 20 cases and 15 deaths in Tarsus; week ending June 1, 450 cases and 300 deaths in Tarsus; 50 cases and 39 deaths in Adana. For the week ending June 8, 500 cases and 350 deaths in Tarsus; 200 cases and 100 deaths in Adana. Week ending June 15 250 cases, and 180 deaths in Tarsus and 350 cases and 200 deaths in Adana.

Efforts of Russia and Austria.

A complete understanding has been reached by Russian and Austrain authorities for the control of the disease should it arise in the neighborhood of the Russo-Austrian frontier. The Russian government, fearing that cholera may be carried into that country from Japan, has sent six physicians to Vladivostock, with orders to use all possible means of protection. In the month ending June 22 130 cases of cholera were reported in the government of Velyn, 40 of which proved fatal.

HOLMES' CHICAGO RESIDENCE.

More Secret Rooms and Passageways Discovered.

Chicago, July 23.—The police inspector in charge of the search of the Holmes residence here has found a rope with a running noose. He says he is not yet ready with an opinion as to what use Holmes or any of his accomplices had for the rope found in the cellar. The theory that the former druggist strangled Minnie Williams and Howard Pietzel with it by hanging them down the elevator shaft, the inspector admits as being possibly correct, but beyond that he will not commit himself.

More Secret Rooms.

From the knowledge already possessed of the wiley Holmes and his schemes, the theory is scarcely tenable. More secret rooms and passageways were discovered in the house to-day by newspaper men. A trap door in the floor of one of the upper rooms when opened disclosed steps leading to a secret door entering Holmes' office. A letter directed to Holmes and marked "personal" was found in a rubbish pile on the second floor. It is from the mother of Mrs. Connor expressing auxiety as to the whereabouts of her daughter. Mrs. Pietzel has an agent in the house looking for a vault that has not yet been discovered.

Admits Mrs. Connor Is Dead.

Philadelphia, July 23.—It was learned this evening that Holmes has admitted that Mrs. I. L. Connor, the Chicago woman who is supposed to have been another of his victims, is dead. Where, when or how she died is not known, as beyond the mere fact of having admitted her death none of the particulars of Holmes admission could be learned. Nothing is known of what became of Mrs. Connor's 12-year-old daughter, who is thought to have been made away with by Holmes at the time he killed her mother.

SHOT HIS DEBTOR'S WIFE.

Then Balingona Put a Bullet in His Own Brain.

Chicago, July 23.—Draidde Balingona went to the home of Mrs. Rosalie Davidesa, on 115th street, yesterday and drawing a razor from one pocket and a revolver from the other asked her which way she prefered to die. The terrified woman did not reply and Balingona opened fire. The first shot struck the woman on the right side of the head; a second one went through her neck. Balingona then turned the weapon on himself, firing a bullet into his own brain, dying almost instantly. The woman will die. Last winter Davidesa, who is a laborer, had little work and not sufficient money to support his family. Balingona loaned him money from time to time and helped the family through the winter. For a month or more he has been urging Mr. and Mrs. Davidesa to repay the loned money.

Think They Have a Desperado.

Hornbrook, Cal., July 23.—Deputy Sheriff Engles, of Clamouth county, Oregon, arrested Watt Eldridge at Pokegama yesterday. He is charge with the series of stage robberies committed on the Agre-Lakeview stage route durthe past year. The police think that they have the man for whom $900 reward is offered.

Started Up After Five Years.

Gloucester, N. J., July 23.—After extensive alterations and repairs the Argo mills started yesterday. The Argo mills were former the Washington mills and ran continuously for over thirty years, the very life of Gloucester city. The plant fell behind the age of progress, and as a result closed down entirely about five years ago.

Valkyrie's Atlantic Trip.

Glasgow, July 23.—The sailing of Valkyrie III. for New York has been postponed until Wednesday next. She has been docked and her hull is being cleaned. She will leave for Gourock bay to-morrow morning where her compasses will be adjusted, preparatory to starting on her transatlantic trip.

George W. Green Dead.

New York, July 23.—George W. Green, who was one of the most active promoters of the New York and New Jersey bridge to be erected over the Hudson, died in a private hospital on Forty-sixth street yesterday. He was born in Orange County, N. Y., about 65 years ago.

Utica Gold Mine Burning.

Angels Camp, Cal., July 23.—The interior of the Utica mine, the greatest gold producing mine in the United States, is on fire. It will require about 18,000,000 gallons of water to reach it, and it will then take about three weeks to pump it out.

HIS FORCE DESTROYED

Campos and a Few Others Only Escaped.

The Spanish General Wounded—Insurgent Report of the Battle Near Bayamo — Campos' Policy Condemned in Spain—Accused of Being Too Lenient.

London, July 23.—The Times prints a Havana dispatch saying that, according to information from insurgent sources, Gen. Campos's force was completely destroyed in the battle near Rayamo. Gen. Campos and half a dozen others of his best mounted officers alone escaped. Gen. Campos was wounded. The report of the capture of Antonio, Maceo, the insurgent chief, according to the same authority, is not true. The officers with Gen. Campos, the dispatch says, display much discontent over his conduct of the operations.

Campos' Policy Condemned.

Madrid, July 23.—The newspapers here display ill humor because of the action of general Martinez Campos in frequently exposing himself in engagements with the Cuban insurgents. The papers also condemn the lenient policy of Gen. Campos and his leaning toward Cuban autonomy. The public shares largely the views of the press, and ask that the government adopt stern and decisive measures for the suppression of the insurrection.

K. OF T. CONCLAVE.

The Presence of an Immense Gathering Expected in Boston.

Boston, July 23.—Thick and fast the itineraries are arriving at the headquarters of the grand commandery, knights templar of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, from all parts of the United States giving the details of commandery pilgrimages to the triennial conclave to be held in Boston, August 27-30. Great enthusiasm is everywhere manifested and the presence of an immense gathering, probably the largest in the history of the order, is assured. It is a noticeable feature of the arrangements made by western and southern commanderies for their visits that nearly all of them, at some stage of their pilgrimage, go to the White mountains. Recognizing this fact the state of New Hampshire will establish headquarters at the top of Mount Washington and at Fabyans, and be prepared to receive and refresh the many weary pilgrims traveling from afar. Already arrangements have been made with the Boston & Maine railroad officials for 1,600 sir knights to ascend Mount Washington and large additions will be made to that number during the coming weeks.

NOT A DECENT BURIAL.

No Pay for Burying Soldiers Remains in Potter's Field.

Washington, July 23.—Assistant Secretary of the Interior Reynolds has decided that a municipal corporation which cares for a sick soldier and buries him as a pauper in Potter's field has no right to reimbursement under the pension laws. Had the corporation cared for and buried him decently then the claim would have been allowed. The case in point was that of Edwin Haskins, of company F, 33d New York infantry, who died in jail at St. Cloud, Minn., where he had been confined, the result of a spree. He left no property and the city buried him as a pauper and asked the interior department to reimburse it. Judge Reynolds disallowed the claim.

MRS. FARRALL ARRESTED.

Accused by Her Former Lover of the Larceny of a Ring.

Washington, July 23.—Mrs. Belle Farrall, recently acquitted of the charge of poisoning her husband, after a long trial at La Platta, Md., was arrested by the Washington police last night charged with larceny by her former alleged lover, Eugene Hall. Mrs. Farrall came to Washington with her two children yesterday, and two hours later was arrested at the home of her sister. Hall claims she took from him a gold ring valued at $10. She left $20 collateral, and the case will come up for hearing to-day.

WORKING FOR MARIA BARBERI

Letters in Her Behalf Pouring in on the Governor.

Albany, July 23.—Letters are received at the governor's office with every mail in behalf of Maria Barberi. One was sent by Col. Robert G. Ingersoll and a short appeal from Austin Corbin. One comes from a church congregation and two or three from associations, while some people have clipped editorial articles from newspapers and sent them. Gov. Morton is at Ellerslie, and the letters are all sent there for his perusal.

Petroleum Market in Greece.

St. Petersburg, July 23.—A treaty has been concluded between Greece and Russia, by which a fixed import duty has been set for Russian cereals, and by which Russia is given the monopoly of importing kerosene into Greece. It is expected that this will have the effect of driving American petroleum from the Greek market.

The Macedonian Troubles.

Constantinople, July 23.—Advices received here from Salonica state that a body of 125 Macedonian insurgents has had an encounter with a detachment of Turkish troops near Strumitza. It is added that the insurgents were dispersed, took to flight and sought refuge in the Malesa mountains.

Broom War Promised.

Amsterdam, N. Y., July 23.—The American Broom and Brush company has made another reduction in the wholesale price of brooms, and several of the Mohawk valley firms have already met them, and there promises to be a fight in the broom market.

THE WILLIMANTIC SCANDALS.

The Dime Savings Bank's Assets. No News of the Missing Cashier.

Willimantic, Conn., July 23.—There is a good deal of excitement here over the defalcation and disappearance of Cashier Walden, of the Dime Savings bank, and nothing but rumors regarding his whereabouts. The vaults at the bank were opened yesterday and a search was made for securities and cash. This resulted in placing the deficit at $26,900, at the least calculation. Railroad bonds amounting to $11,000, mortgage bonds of $6,500, a cash deposit of $4,400, and $5,000 additional are all gone. When the First National bank failed, Walden opened an account at the First National bank in Hartford. He deposited there $46,000 in securities and drew $25,000 in cash for use at the Dime Savings bank. Later he returned to the National bank of Hartford $20,000 and retained $5,000, which has disappeared with him. The bank is closed. It is learned that the bank has a deposit of $8,000 at the Windham National bank in this city and a large deposit at the Hartford Trust company, both of which are safe and will materially swell the assets.

A 12-YEAR-OLD MURDERER.

Raymond Barnes Shoots Ward Camp, Aged 11, at Winsted.

Winsted, Conn., July 23.—Ward, the 11-year-old son of L. L. Camp, a prominent business man here, was shot by Raymond, the 12-year-old son of William Barnes at the latter's home yesterday afternoon. Barnes aimed a 32-calibre revolver at Camp and pulled the trigger, the bullet entering Camp's head over the bridge of the nose and lodged in the base of the brain. The doctor says there is little hope of the boy's recovery. After Barnes did the shooting he ran and hid, but was found later. The neighbors say the Camp boy was climbing a ladder in the Barnes yard and Raymond told him to get off the ladder. Ward refused and Raymond went into the house, got his father's revolver and, after shooting, said: "Take that." The Barnes boy is very reticent and says he did not know the weapon was loaded.

TRAGEDY AT A DANCE.

A Moonshiner Shot Dead and a Man and Wife Mortally Hurt.

St. Louis, July 23.—A special from Gallatin, Tenn., says that there was a dance given at Speakville, in the northern portion of the county, Saturday night. Wes Dixon and his wife attended. They were disliked by the people there and were ordered from the grounds and withdrew to a wagon nearby. Here Dixon was attached by Bill Davidson, a moonshiner, and shot the latter dead. Dixon and his wife then ran into the bushes, pursued by seven or eight men, firing as they ran. Dixon fell with five bullets in his body. His wife received a bullet in her hip that will likely prove fatal, while Dixon is expected to die.

New Union Depot for Poughkeepsie.

Pougkeepsie, N. Y., July 23.—Superintendent D. B. McCoy, of the Central-Hudson road, and General Manager E. C. Rand, of the Poughkeepsie & Eastern road, were in this city yesterday looking over the ground at the junction of the two roads on Spruce street, with the view to the erection of a union passenger depot by those companies. The proposed new depot will be 125 feet in length and will be handsomely equipped.

Elder North Placed Under Bail.

New Haven, Conn., July 23.—Presiding elder Rev. Crandell J. North, of the New Haven district, arrived here yesterday afternoon and was at once put under arrest in the contempt proceedings brought against him in the city court. Bail was furnished, and the reverend gentleman will appear in the court to-day.

Prof. McGee Drowned.

Burlington, Ont., July 23.—Dr. McGee, of professor medicine at Toronto university, was drowned in Hamilton bay while bathing early yesterday afternoon. Professor Parks, a lecturer in the university, went to the assistance of Dr. McGee and was rescued unconscious, but he will recover.

Boy Murderer Surrenders.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 23.—Pomps Demorcia, the 16-year-old Italian who shot and killed Gaston Cheranto, on North Second street Sunday night, walked into Bedford avenue police station yesterday and surrendered himself. The boy admitted that he shot Cheranto, and said his insults caused him to do it.

To Exterminate the Elm Beetle.

New Haven, Conn., July 23.—The work of exterminating the elm beetle was continued yesterday with great energy, and the virtue of the kerosene emulsion is already demonstrated.

Killed His Mother for a Burglar.

Delevan, Wis., July 23.—Chas. Chappell last night shot and killed his mother, mistaking her figure in the dark for a burglar.

KEEL BOATS THE BEST

Defender Has Probably Demonstrated This.

The Vigilant's Defeat Yesterday Was Accomplished with Ease. Outsailed in All Points by the New Boat—Mr. Willard Claims That Yachting Rules Were Violated.

New York, July 23.—Although Mr. Willard expressed himself as not entirely satisfied with the race yesterday he admits that the Defender in a great boat. From what other yachtsmen say, however, if there was any doubt of the Defender's superiority over the Vigilant after Saturday's race it was dispelled yesterday. The new aspirant for the international championship ran away from the old champion on every leg and defeated her handily over the thirty-mile course by 9 minute and 17 seconds.

It Was a Handsome Victory.

The start and finish were at Scotland lightship. The first side of the triangle was a broad reach half way with the wind light from west southwest and a slight change in the wind made it a run free with spinnakers the rest of the way. The second side of the triangle was started as a close reach, but the second change in the wind made it a beat to windward. This change happened to come at a time when it gave the Defender the most advantage. The last side of the triangle was a reach with wind abeam. Defender made gains and the net result of the race was a handsome victory for the new boat.

Vigilant Not in It.

Vigilant sailed a beautiful race, but only a few moments did she appear to have any kind of a chance with the keel boat. It was when the wind, which was light at the start, died down to a fair zephyr that the centre-boarder crept upon her rival, remained by her side a few moments, and then inch by inch moved ahead.

Victory for the Keel

There were yachtsmen on the club steamer who said that great American institution, the centerboard, was about to be vindicated, and the hated keel type placed in the rear. But the Vigilant did not show more than half her length before her rival's bow. The wind freshened a trifle and the peerless new boat made a wonderful response. Like a thing of life she glided forward, parting the waters cleanly and leaving scarcely a speck of foam in her wake.

Best in All Points.

She walked past the Vigilant and continued to leave her during the rest of the run—the close reach, the beating to windward and the reach home. In all points of sailing the new boat demonstrated her ability to defeat the Vigilant in the light air which prevailed off Sandy Hook.

Vigilant's Protest.

Mr. Willard entered a protest for the Vigilant just after the start, but out of courtesy to the regatta committee declined to make public his charges. He said, however, that all rules of yachting were violated.

Not Decisive Races.

The races yesterday and Saturday were preliminary races only, and while the Defender has displayed her worthiness to meet Lord Dunraven's Valkyrie III., it will not be until the trial races are sailed, about the middle of August, that the cup defender is officially named. Under the conditions of the deed of gift of the America's cup, the trail races must be held open to competition by any American built yacht of the requisite dimensions. Three races will be sailed on alternate days over practically the courses of yesterday's and Saturday's races.

Trial Races Next Month.

In all probability the trial races will be in the week beginning August 11. Meanwhile the Defender and Vigilant will meet in races off Newport for the Goelet cup, and at Glen Cove and elsewhere. Every opportunity will be taken advantage of to stretch sails and tune up the Defender. The Vigilant will also tune up for the trial races, and, as she has only been beaten by the Defender in light winds, there may be some lively races in stronger winds and with a better showing for the Gould boat.

THE BRITISH ELECTIONS.

Sir E. T. Reed and Tim Healy Returned with Increased Majorities.

London, July 23.—The polls yesterday showed a gain of two seats for the conservatives. Fortarshire followed the example of the Brigg division of Lincolnshire by reversing the verdict of the election in November, 1894, and giving Martin White, the liberal candidate, a majority of 441. Sir E. T. Reed, attorney general under Lord Roseberry's administration, has an increased majority in Dumfries burghs. T. M. Healy, who represented the nationalists in Louth, also had an increased majority. Four liberals and two conservatives show gains over the votes by which they were returned at the previous elections.

Philadelphia's Loan.

Philadelphia, July 23.—Mayor Warwick has accepted bids at par and accrued interest for $150,000 of the $1,200,000 three per cent. city loan. As but $233,500 of the bonds had previously been taken, there still remains $813,900 of the issue unfloated. The mayor is somewhat disappointed at the failure to float the loan.

Greenwich's Harbor Line.

Washington, July 23.—Secretary Lamont has appointed lieut.-col. George L. Gillespie, captain W. L. Fisk and lieutenant W. E. Craighill, of the engineer corps, a board to visit Greenwich, Conn., to consider and report on the harbor lines of that port, over which there has been some dispute.

The Pope and the Belgian Strikes.

Rome, July 23.—The pope has addressed an encyclical letter to the bishops of Belgium urging them to aim at ameliorating the strained relations existing in that country between capital and labor, by conciliating the respective interests.

Killed in a Bicycle Collision.

Erie, Pa., July 23.—G. Stranahan, a student at the Buffalo Medical college, son of Dr. W. C. Stranahan, was instantly killed last evening in a bicycle collision.

Thanks, awfully, for this breeze.

The barbers deserve a Sunday rest.

Not a word is said about an ice-cream trust.

"Outfooted" is the way the Paterson Press described the defeat of the Vigilant.

Baby Marion will touch the button that will set the machinery of the Atlanta exposition in operation.

Let the friends of Poor Lo rest easy. The Princeton students have been heard from and not a scalp have they.

The Russian volunteer fleet is rapidly becoming a very powerful and useful auxiliary flotilla to the imperial navy.

The Democratic State convention will be held in Trenton September 28th. And the Democrats are doing but mighty little talking.

The trial of Colonel John T. VanCleef, who was indicted in connection with the alleged State house frauds, has been put over the term.

Let the New York dog catcher who took Mayor Strong's poodle to the dog pound have some greater honor thrust upon him than a handshake.

Chancellor McGill is off for Europe next Monday. But whether he is on or off the gubernatorial trip is just at present more interesting to Democrats than his voyage across the sea.

"Barnes said he did not know the revolver was loaded." And his comrade was killed. The question of just what punishment should be meted out individuals of the Barnes stripe is a puzzling one.

When the thermometer is ninety-five degrees in the shade as it was yesterday, and the middle classes are at a loss for a shady and cool nook to visit, the benefit of a small sum of money expended in making the city park something else than an eyesore to the beauty of the city, would seem apparent.

A formidable movement is under way in New York to organize a national association of merchants whose object will be protection from bad debts. The organization will endeavor to influence legislation in States and in Congress in favor of greater uniformity of laws referring to credits and collections, and especially bankruptcy legislation.

The overloading of steamboats running out of New York to seaside resorts, as was the case last Sunday, is a violation of navigation laws that should receive a searching investigation and severe penalties by the authorities. To put the lives of 2,000 people in jeopardy of a watery grave is not something to be passed over by a mere reprimand.

A Newark woman had seventy dollars stolen from under her pillow. She avers that her husband committed the theft and therefore had him arrested. The law says that theft cannot be committed between husband and wife, and the husband was discharged. Then she implored a friend to swear that a portion of the cash belonged to him. The Newark woman evidently believes that "where there is a will there is a way."

A man and wife who keep a small shop in London have avoided paying taxes for fourteen years. The husband goes to jail every year to serve out the legal term for unpaid taxes, while the wife takes charge of the shop. —Tribune.

If the London authorities really desire to have this man pay his taxes let them send to Plainfield and get a plan of the city rookery. Then build after the plans and there will be but little question but what the miser will pay his taxes.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—A movement is on foot to organize a battalion of naval reserves in Elizabeth.

—The most critical eye delighted with the variety of choice embroideres at Peck's.

—All day Wednesday Rogers will sell weakfish for six cents a pound, not delivered.

—The work of cleaning out the old First National Bank building is progressing rapidly.

—Through the month of August Rev. G. K. Newell will be at home, 445 West Fifth street.

—John Naylor, Jr., moved yesterday from East Front street to 923 West Second street.

—A new roof is replacing the old one on Warren Engine Company's house on Somerset street.

—The monthly shoot of the Climax Gun Club will be held at their grounds in Fanwood this afternoon.

—Wm. Mullon has just finished painting the sign for the Delmonico oyster house and restaurant.

—The Exempt Firemen's Association will hold a meeting on the evening of Wednesday, July 31.

—E. E. Marshall has received the contract for papering a new house on Martine avenue owned by J. B. Mills.

—James Totten is on duty this week as special policeman. He is located in the neighborhood of West Fifth street.

—The Little Joker Sea Food Market on Park avenue, opposite North, is selling blue fish for seven cents per pound.

—The fire, water and lamps committee of the borough will give out the contract for 1,500 feet of fire hose in a few days.

—Charles H. Hand announces that the Crescent academy on Watchung avenue is to let for balls, parties, and public meetings.

—Justice Mosher has issued a summons in the case of Canapo against Vetramolo on contract, which is returnable July 26th.

—The regular weekly meeting of the Christian Alliance will be held this evening at eight o'clock at 317 East Front street. All are welcome.

—White's advertisement tells the reason why they have no dull season to complain of. It's selling new, desirable goods at half their real value that makes business, and that is what they are doing.

—If the work of enlarging the galleries in the Crescent Avenue church should compel the closing of the main audience room for August 11th and August 18th, the services for those Sundays will be held in the chapel.

Sea Power in History.

Captain Alfred T. Mahan, since the appearance of his "Sea Power in History, has been declared by European authorities the first among naval taticians. In the August Century he draws some "Lessons from the Yalu Fight, based upon an account of the battle appearing in the same number and written by Commander McGiffin, of the Chen Yuen. Captain Mahan's conclusions bear upon problems that confront the constructors of ironclads for every maritime power. He says that the battle proved that armor is actually a far better protection to vessels than is indicated by trials of the testing-ground, where, for purposes of extreme proof, all the off-chances are given to the gun.

A COMMON CAUSE OF SICKNESS.

In Warm Weather Nothing So Dangerous as Decayed Foods.

Every one knows or ought to know that decayed foods are poisonous. Boards of Health seek to prevent their sale.

We now have in mind the results which follow the decay and decomposition of foods after they have been eaten, for unless digestion occurs within a reasonable time after meals, decomposition sets in.

If dyspeptics will stop and consider for a moment some of the symptoms of their trouble, such as disagreeable breath, eructations of gas or bad taste in the mouth, they will understand that they all must come from foods that ought properly to have been absorbed into the system.

Spots before the eyes, dizziness, sleeplessness, dyspeptic headaches are but a few of the effects following the absorption into the blood of poisions developed from decomposing and undigested food that lies in the stomach.

It was a recognition of this important fact that caused the Mount Lebanon Shakers to devote so much of their time to the preparation of a remedy for dyspepsia, and nothing is more efficient than the Digestive Cordial which they have recently placed on the market.

The importance of their invention will be appreciated when we realize what a proportion of the community are victims of some form of stomach trouble. Thousands of pale, thin people have little inclination to eat, and what they do eat causes them pain and distress.

Its action is so prompt that relief frequently follows the very first dose. It restores the appetite and increases the weight. Plumpness and strength take the place of weakness and that care-worn expression which points out the dyspeptics in every community. The local druggists are now giving away interesting descriptive pamphlets.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Horace J. Martin sold two new wheels yesterday.

Walter Martin rode on his wheel to South Beach Sunday.

Miss Annie Hasbrook, of Grove street, has a new wheel.

Roy Wheeler, of LaGrande avenue, is the proud possessor of a new wheel.

Edward P. Doane, of Orange, a prominent bicycle dealer, rode over to Plainfield yesterday on business.

Ed. White, Burt Demarest, John J. Kenney, Ed Soden, and Mr. Cannon, went to Coney Island on their wheels Sunday, and spent the day there.

The F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company, has just received a supply of Crescents with twenty-inch wheels for which they have received several orders.

B. R. Force and J. VanEps, who were to ride to Asbury Park yesterday, postponed it until today on account of the mud. They started at about six o'clock this morning.

Victor Lorton and Harry Fuller went to South Beach Sunday on their wheels. They went by way of Perth Amboy, but on their return took the train to Elizabeth and rode home from there.

STEALS AND GETS MARRIED.

Young Wilkinson Confesses and Is Anxious to Be Punished.

Freehold, July 22.—Wilbur A. Wilkinson, a young man, is in the county jail, charged with robbing Misses Melissa and Bessie Hoffman, daughters of the landlady of the house in which he boarded. Saturday morning he went away, saying he was going to Manasquan for Sunday. Instead, with a Miss Reid, who was visiting here, he went to her home in New Egypt, where they were married that night.

In the evening members of the Hoffman family found that three pocketbooks in a bureau drawer in the bedroom had been rifled of nearly $45. Justice Hulse issued a warrant, and Wilkinson was arrested Sunday morning at his bride's home, New Egypt, and brought here that afternoon. He admitted his guilt and restored a part of the money taken.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

John Bolsterli, in the employ of Councilman V. L. Frazee, has returned from his vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank DeCamp and children, of Linden avenue, are visiting John Sebring at Greenbrook.

Mrs. Voorhis Laing and family, of East Front street, are expected home from the Adirondocks in a few days.

Miss Fanny and Miss Nettie Mattison, of Church street, expect to go to Ashville, N. C., very soon, to live. Their goods were shipped yesterday.

BY THE WAY.

—Dr. Zeglio is moving into his house on Somerset street today.

—Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, Knights of Pythias, will meet Friday evening.

—W. R. Mosher and family have moved from 416 East Fourth street to 407 New street.

—Joel D. Hedden will move into his new house on Somerset street the latter part of this week.

—R. G. Laggren, the awning-maker of Elizabeth, has established a branch at 126 Park avenue, with Wm. Mullon the sign painter.

Died in Plainfield.

Rev. William McDowell, who for many years was pastor of the Second Reformed Presbyterian church, Brooklyn, died suddenly on Sunday at Plainfield, of neuralgia of the heart. Mr. McDowell was seventy years old. He came to this country from the North of Ireland forty-five years ago. He was the founder of the church in which he worshiped. He held the pastorate of the church from 1873 to 1884. Until three years ago he had charge of the West Side chapel, attached to the Fourth Presbyterian church, of this city. His residence was at 85 Lee avenue, Brooklyn. A widow, a son and two daughters survive him.—New York World.

A Government Contract.

William T. Banks, of East Second street, secured the contract for painting the letter boxes and is now doing the work. He receives fifteen cents for each box, which receives two coats of paint and one of varnish.

Karl's Clover Root will purify your blood, clear your complexion, regulate your bowels and make your head clear as a bell; 25c, 50c and $1. Sold by all druggists.

AMBULANCE RULES.

Government Laid Down for the Black Angel.

The following rules have been laid down for the use of the Muhlenberg Hospital ambulance:

Permission to use the ambulance may be granted by any member of the Board of Governors or by any member of the Medical Staff of the hospital, or, in emergency, by the Superintendent of the hospital, by the Chief of Police, or by the station master of the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

No cases of contagious disease will be carried in the ambulance.

The hospital must be notified in every case before the ambulance leaves the stable.

For a patient taken to the hospital from any part of Plainfield or North Plainfield the charge will be two dollars if the patient is able to pay. If the patient is unable to pay the service will be free.

For other than hospital cases the charge will be for any time less than an hour, two dollars; for one hour, or longer, at the rate of two dollars an hour.

Payments for use of the ambulance must be made to the superintendent at the hospital or to the treasurer of the hospital.

"You Can't Play in Our Back Yard."

Two little girls on East Third street indulged in a quarrel last night and threw stones at each other. One of them hit a horse belonging to Mr. Seader, which was standing nearby. The horse started to run but was caught before he had gone very far.

Farewell Meeting.

A farewell meeting in honor of the departure from this district of Adjutant Wood will be held in Salvation Army Hall Tuesday evening, July 30th, at eight o'clock, to be followed by an ice cream and cake festival.

New Bridge at Cranford.

The contract for building a new bridge over the Rahway river at Eastman street, Cranford, was awarded yesterday to Wm. Kirk, of this city.

The span will be seventy-seven and a half feet, and the sidewalk will be six feet wide. Mr. Kirk has ninety days in which to complete it, and the cost will be $2,390.

Karl's Clover Root, the great blood purifier, gives freshness and clearness to the complexion and cures constipation; 25c, 50c, $1. Sold by all druggists.

Mrs. T. S. Hawkins, Chattanooga, Tenn., says: "Shiloh's Vitalizer saved my life; I consider it the best remedy for a debilitated system I ever used." For dyspepsia, liver or kidney trouble it excels; 75c. Sold by all druggists

Shiloh's cure is sold on a guarantee. It cures incipient consumption; it is the best cough cure, only 1c a dose; 25c, 50c, $1. Sold by all druggists.

"Yield Not to Misfortune."

I was afflicted with catarrh last autumn. During the month of October I could neither taste or smell and could hear but little. Ely's Cream Balm cured it. Marcus Geo. Shautz, Rahway, N. J.

I suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since a boy, and I never hoped for cure, but Ely's Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many acquaintances have used it with excellent results. Oscar Ostrum, 45 Warren ave., Chicago, Ill. Cream Balm is agreeable.

II.

What else disturbed the placid current of Master Simon's cogitations? Why, this: he was the last of his race, and unmarried.

For himself, he had no inclination to marry. But sometimes, as he shaved his chin of a morning, the reflection in his round mirror would suggest another. Was he not neglecting a public duty?

Now there dwelt down at Ponteglos a Mistress Prudence Waddilove, a widow, who kept the Pandora's Box Inn on the quay—a very tidy business. Master Simon had known her long before she married the late Waddilove; had indeed sat on the same form with her in infants' school—she being by two years his junior, but always a trifle quicker of wit. He attended her husband's funeral in a neighborly way, and a week later put on his black suit again and went down—still in a neighborly way—to offer his condolence. Mistress Prudence received him in the best parlor, which smelt damp and chilly in comparison with the little room behind the bar. Master Simon remarked that she must be finding it lonely. Whereupon she wept.

Master Simon suggested that he, for his part, had tried pigeon-breeding, and found that it alleviated solitude in a wonderful manner. "There's my tumblers. If you like, I'll bring you down a pair. They're pretty to watch. Of course, a husband is different——"

"Of course," Mistress Prudence assented, her grief too recent to allow a smile even at the picture of the late Waddilove (a man of full habit) cleaving the air with frequent somersaults. She added, not quite inconsequently:

"He is an angel."

"Of course," said Master Simon, in his turn.

"But I think," she went on, "I would rather have a pair of carriers."

"Now why in the world?" thought Master Simon. He kept carrier pigeons, to be sure. He kept pigeons of every sort—tumblers, pouters, carriers, Belgians, dragons—the subdivisions, when you came to them, were endless. But the carriers were by no means his show-birds. He kept them mainly for the convenience of Ann the cook. Ann had a cunning eye for a pigeon, and sometimes ventured a trifle of her savings on a match; and though in his masculine pride he never consulted her, Master Simon always felt more confident on hearing that Ann had put money on his bird. Now when a match took place at some distant town or flying ground, Ann would naturally be anxious to learn the result as quickly as possible; and Master Simon, finding that the suspense affected her cookery, had fallen into the habit of taking a hamper of carriers to all distant meetings and speeding them back to Flowing Source with tidings of his success. Apart from this office—which they performed well enough—he took no special pride in them. The offer of a pair of his pet tumblers, worth their weight in gold, had cost him an effort; and when Mistress Prudence, ordinarily a clear-headed woman, declared that she preferred carriers, she could hardly have astonished him more by asking for a pair of stock doves.

"Oh, certainly," he answered, and went home and thought it over. Women were a puzzle; but he had a dim notion that if he could lay hand on the reason why Mistress Prudence preferred ordinary carriers to prize tumblers, he would hold the key to some of the secrets of the sex. He thought it over for three days, during which he smoked more tobacco than was good for him. At about four o'clock in the afternoon of the third day a smile enlarged his face. He set down his pipe, smacked his thigh, stood up, sat down again, and began to laugh. He laughed slowly and deliberately—not loudly—for the greater part of that evening, and woke up twice in the night and shook the bedclothes in to long waves with his mirth.

Next morning he took two carriers from the cote, shut them in a hamper, and rowed down to Ponteglos with his gift. But Mrs. Waddilove was not at home. She had started early by van for Tregarrick (said the waitress at the Pandora's Box) on business connected with her husband's will. "No hurry at all," said Master Simon. He slipped a handful of Indian corn under the lid, and left the hamper "with his respect."

Then he rowed home, and spent the next two days after his wont; the only observable difference being the position of his garden chair. It stood as a rule under the shadow of the broad eaves, but now Master Simon ordered the tap-boy to carry it out and set it by a rustic table close to the river's brink, whence, as he smoked, he could keep comfortable watch upon the pigeon cote.

"You'll catch a sunstroke," said Ann the cook. "I hope you're not beginning to forget how to take care of yourself!"

"Well, I hope so, too," Master Simon answered; but did not budge.

On the morning of the third day, however, he saw that which made him step indoors and mount to the attic under the cote. Having opened with much caution a trap-door in the roof, he slipped an arm out and captured a carrier pigeon.

The bird carried a note folded small and bound under its wing with a thread of silk. Master Simon opened the note and read:

"If you loves me as I loves you,
No knife can cut our loves in two."

He had prepared himself for a hearty chuckle; but he broke out with a profuse perspiration instead. "Oh, this is hustling a man!" he ingeminated, staring round the empty attic like a rabbit seeking a convenient hole. "Not three weeks buried!" he added, with another groan, and began to loosen his neck-cloth.

While thus engaged, he heard a flutter above the trap-door, and a second pigeon alighted, with a second note, also bound with a silken thread.

"Lor-a-mercy!" gasped Master Simon.

But the second note was written in a different hand, and ran as follows:

"I could die of shame. It was all that hussy of a girl. She did it for a joke. I'll joke her. But what will you be thinking of me?—P. W."

Master Simon rowed down to Ponteglos that very afternoon, and the two carriers went back with him. Happiness seemed to have shaken its wings and quite departed from Pandora's Box; but a twinkle of something not entirely unlike hope lurked in the corners of the waitress' eyes—albeit their lids were red and swollen—as she ushered Master Simon into the best parlor.

"What can you be thinking of me?" began the widow. Her eyes were red and swollen, too.

"I've brought back the pigeons."

"I can never bear the sight of them again!"

"You might begin different, you know," suggested Master Simon, affably; "some little message about the weather, for instance. Have you given that girl warning to leave?"

"You see, I'm so lonely here."

HE SLIPPED HIS ARM OUT AND CAPTURED THE CARRIER PIGEON.

Some three months after this, and on an exceptionally fine morning in September, Master Simon put Harmony, his celebrated almond hen, into her traveling hamper, and marched over to the cross-roads to take coach for Illogan, in the mining district where the matches for the championship cup were to be flown that year.

Now Ann the cook had ventured no less than five pounds upon Harmony. Five pounds represented half of her annual wage, and a trifle less than half of her annual saving. Therefore she spent the greater part of the following afternoon at her window, gazing westward in no small perturbation of spirit.

It wanted a few minutes to five when a carrier pigeon came traveling across the zenith, shot downward suddenly, and alighted on the roof. Ann climbed to the trap-door and put out a hand. The bird was preening his feathers, and allowed himself to be taken easily.

In circumstances less agitating Ann had not failed to observe that the thread about the messenger's wing was not of the kind that Master Simon used. But her eyes opened wide as they fell on the handwriting, and still wider as she said:

"It is all for the best, perhaps. If only people have not begun to talk.—Prudence."

A second messenger arrived toward evening with word of Harmony's success. But the news hardly relaxed Ann's brow, which kept a pensive contraction even when her master arrived next evening, and poured out her winnings on the table from the silver challenge cup.

She wore this frown at intervals for a fortnight, and all the while maintained an unusual silence which puzzled Master Simon. Then one morning he heard her in the kitchen scolding the tap-boy with all her pristine heartiness. That night, after mulling her master's ale, she turned at the door, saucepan in hand, and coughed to attract attention.

"Well, Ann, what is it?"

"You've been philanderin'."

"Hey! on my word, Ann——"

Ann produced the Widow Waddilove's note and flattened it out under Master Simon's eyes. And Master Simon blushed painfully.

"Are you goin' to marry the woman?" Ann demanded.

"I think not."

"I reckon you will."

"Well, you see, there has been a hitch. She won't leave the Pandora's Box, and I'm not going to budge from the Flowing

HER EYES OPENED WIDE WHEN THEY FELL ON THE HANDWRITING.

Source. If a woman won't put herself out to that extent—— Besides, she cooks no better than you."

"Not so well. You wasn't thinking, by any chance, o' marrying me?"

"Ann, you're perfectly brazen! Well, no; to tell the plain truth, I wasn't."

"That's all right; because I've gone and promised myself to a young farmer up the valley."

"What's his name?"

"I shan't tell you; for the reason that I've a second to fall back on, if I find on acquaintance the first won't do. But first or second, I'll marry one or t'other at the month end, and so I give you notice."

Master Simon sighed. "Well, well! I must get on as best I can with Tom for a while." Tom was the tap-boy.

"Tom's going, too. I bullied him so this morning that he means to give notice to-morrow; that is, if he don't save himself the trouble by running off to sea."

"The twelfth in five years!" ejaculated Master Simon, stopping his pipe viciously.

"And small blame to them. Married man or mariner—that's what a boy is born for. Better dare wreck or wedlock than sit here and talk about both. Take my advice, master, and marry the widow."

Ann carried out her own matrimonial program, at any rate, with spirit and determination. Finding the first young farmer satisfactory, she espoused him at the end of the month, and turned her back on Flowing Source. And Tom the tap-boy fulfilled her prophecy and ran away to sea. And the old inn leaned after him until its timbers creaked. And the autumn floods rose and covered the meadows.

Master Simon sat and smoked, and made his own bed, and accomplished some execrable cookery in the intervals of oiling his duck gun. Even duck-shooting becomes a weariness when a man has to manage gun and punt single-handed. One afternoon he abandoned the sport in an exceedingly bad temper, and pulled up to the jaws of Cuckoo Valley. Here he landed, and after an hour's trudge in the marshy bottoms had the luck to knock over two brace of woodcock.

He rode back with his spoil, and was making fast to the ferry steps, when a thought struck him. He shipped the paddles again, and pulled down to Ponteglos. The short day was closing, and already a young moon glimmered on the floods.

* * * * * * *

The woodcock were cooked to a turn; juicier birds never reclined on toast. The waitress removed the cloth and returned with a kettle; retired and returned again with a short-necked bottle, a glass and spoon, sugar, a nutmeg, and a lemon; retired with a twinkle in her eye.

"To fortify you," said Mistress Prudence, rubbing a lump of sugar gently on the lemon rind.

"The night air," Master Simon murmured.

"Against the damp house you're going back to," the lady corrected.

"You talk without giving it a trial."

"As you talk, in your parlor, of deep-sea voyages."

"As a ship's captain you would respect me, perhaps?"

"No, for you haven't the head. But I should like your pluck. If I saw you setting off for sea in earnest, I would run out and give you a chance to steer a woman instead of a ship. You would find her safer."

Master Simon emptied his glass, rose, and wound his great comforter about his neck. The widow saw him to the door.

"You're a very obstinate woman," he said.

"YOU'RE A VERY OBSTINATE WOMAN."

And with this he unmoored his boat and rowed resolutely homeward. A strong wind came piping down on the back of a strong tide, and Master Simon arched his shoulders against it.

"Married man or mariner," it piped, as he rounded the first bend.

"I know my own mind, I believe," said Master Simon to himself; "there's as good fish in the sea as ever came out of it, and for salmon Flowing Source will beat Christchurch any day, I've always maintained."

"Married man or mariner," piped the wind in the words of Ann the cook.

Master Simon pulled his left paddle bare, and rounded the second bend.

"Married man or mar——"

Crash!

His heels flew up and his head struck the bottom boards. Then, in a moment, the boat was gone, and a rush of water sang in his ears and choked him. He saw a black shadow overhanging, and clutched at it.

Mistress Prudence stood in her doorway on the quay, as Master Simon had left her. In the room above, the waitress blew out her candle, drew up the blind, and opened her window to the moonlight.

"Selina!" the mistress called.

Selina thrust out her head.

"What's that coming down the river?"

A black, amorphous mass was moving swiftly down toward the quay.

"I think 'tis a haystack," Selina whispered, and then, "Lord save us all, there's a man on it!"

"A man?" cried the widow, shrilly. "What man?"

A voice answered the question, calling for help out of the river—a voice that she knew.

"What is it?" she called back.

"I think," quavered Master Simon, "I think 'tis the roof o' Flowing Source!"

Mistress Prudence ran down the quay steps, cast off the first boat that lay handy, and pulled toward the dark mass sweeping seaward. As it crossed ahead of her bows, she dropped the paddles, ran to the painter, and flung it forward with all her might.

The Pandora's Box Inn stands on Ponteglos Quay to this day. And all that is left of Flowing Source hangs on the wall of its best parlor—four dark oak timbers forming a frame around a portrait, the portrait of a woman of middle age and comfortable countenance. In the right-hand top corner of the picture, in letters of faded gold, runs the legend: Uxor bona instar navis.

THE A. B. C. OF THE SILVER CURRENCY QUESTION.

Prof. Parish Exposes the Fallacies of Free Silver Idea as Expounded by the Western Statesmen. An Original, Entertaining and Instructive Treatise.

How to become rich! I have a secret by which anybody can become rich—and I am going to give it away.

You can do it now; you must first vote for unlimited coinage of gold and silver. What does this mean? It means that by law the United States Treasury shall coin into dollars all the gold and silver brought to it. But this is not enough. You must vote the coinage at 16 to 1. This means that for every 23.2 grains of gold that you bring to the Treasury the Government is forced to give you back one gold dollar, and for every 371 1-4 grains of silver you bring it must give you back one silver dollar.

But 371 1-4 grains of silver, uncoined, will buy only about 12.8 grains of gold, uncoined, whereas at the present day a silver dollar buys a gold dollar anywhere.

Now, here's the secret. As soon as the Silverites have gotten the 16 to 1 forced coinage laws passed just take a lump of silver, say 371 1-4 grains to the Treasury and receive back one silver dollar for it. Now go to the banker or the money broker and get one gold dollar for your silver dollar.

For the gold in your gold dollar any mine owner, money broker or jeweller will give you 742 1-2 grains of silver. Again take this silver to the Treasury and you get two silver dollars for it. Again go to the broker and get two gold dollars. Again go to the mine owner and get 1,485 grains of silver. Now go to the Treasury and get four silver dollars.

And so on. By repeating the process often enough you can become as wealthy as you please. Here's the secret of wealth! Vote for unlimited coinage at 16 to 1 and carry your silver in quantities to the Treasury to be exchanged for dollars at twice what the silver is worth.

But how to get the silver to start with? That's not my affair. A day's labor, a piece of furniture or a sheep cannot be sold for twice what it is worth. I have told you the secret of becoming rich, provided you have silver to start with. If you have no silver to begin with and cannot get wealth, I am not to blame. The mine owners have plenty of silver. You can do the voting; they'll do the rest.

But if everybody tries to get 742 1-2 grains of silver for one gold dollar, what will be the result? The whole country wants to get gold dollars with which to buy silver. Every man, woman and child goes around trying to exchange one silver dollar for one gold dollar. And no one is willing to work it the other way. The poor man must pay out his dollars of all kinds for food; the rich corporations pay out the silver ones and keep the gold.

The result is evident. Gold disappears; it is shipped to other countries to buy silver or to buy goods to be sold for silver.

In foreign countries you can buy (as soon as the United States coins unlimited silver at 16 to 1) twice as much for a gold dollar as for a silver dollar. The foreign countries do not care about Uncle Sam's monogram on the coins, but take them for just what they are worth.

J. WESTON PARISH.

The Legislator's Rabbit Dog.

Among the amusing discussions during the legislative session at Tallahassee was that on a bill of Sullivan's, of Escambia, providing for the prompt slaughter of rabid dogs. The reading clerk had just read the title when an old gentleman, a representative from one of the interior counties, arose, and with great gravity and dignity, said:

"Mr. Speaker, I am opposed to that bill. I'm opposed to it because I don't see why rabbit dogs should be killed any quicker than any other kind of dogs. I've got a rabbit dog. He ain't much on looks, but I tell you, when that dog gets on a hot trail in the broom-sedge, and a little later you hear his voice a-yelpin' in a high key, and the yelps a gettin' fainter and fainter, till by and by you just can hear 'em down in the holler and you go there, and you see the little bench legged yaller rascal barkin', his eyes bright and his forehead wrinkled with excitement, under a sartin tree, jes' get you a long pole and meat is your'n for dinner."

There was breathless silence during this eloquent appeal on behalf of the rabbit dog. When it had been concluded others rose up and paid glowing tributes to the qualities of rabbit dogs they owned, until one would have believed that a thing necessary to a man's candidacy for the Legislature in the State of Florida is a first-class rabbit dog.

The bill, by the way, was killed by a large majority.—Florida Times-Union.

Labored With the Cigar Store Dummy.

There are people who when they get an idea in their heads keep it there forever. An old Portland lady has been talking against the tobacco habit for years and never loses an opportunity to impress upon unfortunates the folly of the habit. She is a bit nearsighted, and she nearly convulsed lookers on yesterday when she stopped in front of the old little figure at the door of Fish's cigar store and began to argue with it about the harmfulness of smoking. The explosion came when, in her zeal, she reached out and tried to take the mock cigar away from him that she might throw it into the street.—Portland Express.

Oil Wells in California.

The Santa Ana Evening Blade says: The oil wells at Puente are supplying the Chino sugar factory with [illegible] barrels of oil a day. A considerable [illegible] the ordinary cost of fuel is saved [illegible] probably a [illegible] [illegible] sugar [illegible] [illegible] and also [illegible].

THE SURPLUS HORSE.

Another Account Says Horse Meat is Not to Be Canned.

A novel enterprise is being projected near Portland, Ore., by a number of energetic men. It is a manufactory for utilizing the vast number of horses of the Northwest by turning them into oil, glue and fertilizing material, extracting the superior tallow and preserving the hair and skin for use in various ways. To this end a corporation known as the Western Packing and Fertilizing Company was organized about a month ago, a factory is now in progress of construction, and it will be in full operation by July 1. The managers expect to kill between fifty and sixty horses a day. They say that the introduction of electricity and the bicycle throughout the country has curtailed the need of horses so that large bands in Oregon and Washington have almost no value. The railroads refuse to ship them to the East unless the freight is paid in advance, fearful that they will not there bring enough to pay the freight bill. The only way, therefore, to reduce the large numbers grazing on the great ranches, each eating about as much as two head of more valuable cattle, is to grind them up. The company has bought between 5,000 and 6,000 head, at a cost of $3 each on the ranches, and they believe they can get a great many more at about the same price. These horses used to readily sell at $50 each. But prices have fallen so low lately that one band of between 1,000 and 1,100 head, grazing partly in Oregon and partly in Idaho, was sold lately for the lump sum of $2,000. It would probably cost as much more, however, to "gather" them, to use the colloquial term of the drovers and dealers.

At this new manufactory what is termed as the "tankage" is to be used as a fertilizer. This tankage is the meat of the horses, cooked by steaming and reducing to a mass very suitable for all kinds of fertilizing purposes. The fertilizer is to go to Hawaii, where it will be used on the sugar plantations. The owners have closed no contracts, however, though they say that they would be willing to do so at one cent a pound. They would sell to anybody at that rate, always making it clear, however, that it was horse meat, and on no other understanding. However, to furnish meat for consumption is not their object. A small quantity, however, may be sent to Europe as an experiment, as in some parts of Europe horseflesh is being used for food.

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freemyer House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for any kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. AN EVENT OF REAL PLEASURE

FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF MINERVA TEMPLE, RATHBONE SISTERS.

A Large Number of Friends Gather in Knight of Pythias Hall and Enjoy a Splendid Programme.

An event of real pleasure was the celebration of the first anniversary of Minerva Temple, No. 4, Rathbone Sisters, which was held last evening in K. of P. hall on West Second street. Mrs. Andrew Cox presided in her usual excellent manner and after the singing of the opening ode by the members of the Temple, Past Chief Mrs. Benjamin Moore in a few well chosen words welcomed the very large audience to the happy event in the history of the Temple.

Mrs. Wyckoff then gave an amusing recitation. A vocal selection, "Hush Thee My Baby," by Mrs. Westphal, Miss Maggie Page, H. J. Martin and Bert Tallamy, were heartily encored. Mrs. Fred Canfield was the accompanist.

John Carney appeared and in his style, which is particularly his own, put the audience in very good humor with his German sayings. Jack is always a favorite and the person who is not always glad to hear him is scarce. A comical dialogue was then introduced. Miss Marsh was Cousin Pauline; Mrs. Edward Bowman, Melinda Jane Hopkins; Mrs. Cox, Aunty; Frank Splain, Cousin Timothy, and Mr. Higham, Alonzo, the Sparker.

The plot of the dialogue was that Cousin Pauline was trying to win the heart of Cousin Timothy, who was already pledged to Melinda Jane Hopkins, and failing in this she returned to her former lover, Alonzo, the Sparker. She was fault-finding, which the aunt did not like, and in consequence the $5,000 that was to be divided between Pauline and Melinda, was all given to the latter, and worse of all she also lost both suitors.

The parts were all well acted and thoroughly enjoyed.

A recitation was given by Mrs. Charles Steiner. Violet Hallard followed with a recitation that came in for a share of applause. District Deputy Mrs. Morrison, of Elizabeth, then gave a short sketch of the order, in which she said it was seven years old, and had a membership of 25,000. She spoke of the mottos of the order, purity, love, equality, and fidelity, and closed with an enthusiastic recitation on the knight.

A vocal solo by Mrs. Wm. Westphal was heartily received. Frank Splain was again introduced and recited a character recitation with the Irishman as the leading character. It was admirably given and well received. Recitations by Nellie Arthur, and Lillie Harberle, were also appreciated.

In conclusion a novel feature was presented. The members of the Temple, gowned in the colors of the orders, red, white, blue and pink, marched in the room and gave an excellent drill. Every movement was executed with precision and frequently hearty applause was given by those present, especially the Knights of Pythias. Mr. Higham was the accompanist.

At the conclusion Mrs. Cox thanked all for their attendence, and introduced the members who served ice cream and cake.

Previous to the anniversary exercises the officers-elect were installed by Supreme Deputy Mrs. Cox, of Minerva Temple, asssisted by Supreme Senior Mrs. A. D. Pope, and Supreme Manager Mrs. Mattis.

After the installation Mrs. Cox was presented with a past chief's jewel by member of the Temple.

Crop Reports.

The weekly bulletin of the New Jersey weather service has the following reports from Union county:

Plainfield—All crops looking well; crops that were partially damaged by the storm of the 13th are recovering nicely; in some sections, where the hail was heaviest, accompanied by wind, there was a total loss of corn, oats, potatoes and tomatoes, they being cut clean to the ground. Rainfall, 1.37 inch.

Elizabeth—Hay mostly housed, crop an average one; oats ready to cut; corn very forward and likely to be a good crop; potatoes making good growth; extreme heat on 21st, followed by a heavy shower, was very beneficial to all growing crops. Rainfall, 0.50 inch

Cahill Will Contest.

The contested will of Sylvester Cahill, the wealthy founder of the town of Cranford, came up for argument this morning in the Union County Orphans' Court at Elizabeth before Judge McCormick. The contestant is Sylvester Cahill, of New York, a nephew of the testator.

A Cooling Article.

An ice cream festival will be held on the lawn of Mr. Morris, at the corner of Front and Liberty streets, tomorrow night for the benefit of the First Church of Christ.

MEN OF GOOD AIM.

Monthly Shoot of the Climax Gun Club Makes Fine Sport.

The members of the Climax Gun Club turned out in goodly numbers yesterday to participate in their regular monthly shoot, no less than eighteen shooters taking part in the main event, which was the club handicap. In addition to this event, several sweepstakes were shot, all of which were at Empire targets. The scores of the day were as follows:

Club handicap; scratch men shooting at 25 targets, thrown at unknown angles—T. H. Keller, scratch, broke 24; N. Apgar, scratch, 24; F. VanDyke, scratch, 24; Grieff, scratch, 21; C. Smith, scratch, 20; N. Astfalk, scratch, 19; Hebbard, scratch, 19; L. Short, allowance 1, broke 23; D. Terry, allowance 1, broke 22; A. Woodruff, 2, broke 24; J. M. Taylor, 3, broke 25; J. Zeglio, 4, broke 16; "Williams," 4, broke 18; "Edwards," 5, broke 23; Swody, 6, broke 24; J. Darby, 7, broke 17; Singer, 10, broke 28; Mack, 10, broke 14.

Sweepstake No. 1—Ten Empire targets, no allowances: C. Smith, 10; Grieff, 10; Woodruff, 10; Parke, 10; Apgar, 9; Keller, 9; Hebbard, 9; VanDyke, 8; Astfalk, 8; Edwards, 7.

Sweepstake No. 2, same conditions—Apgar, 10; Edwards, 9; VanDyke, 9; Short, 9; Keller, 8; Smith, 8; Hebbard, 8; Woodruff, 8; Astfalk, 8; Parker, 8.

Sweepstake No. 3, conditions the same—Keller, 10; Van Dyke, 10; Hibbard, 10; Grieff, 10; Astfalk, 10; Parker, 10; Short, 10; Apgar, 9; Smith, 9; Singer, 9; Woodruff, 8; Edwards, 5.

Sweepstake No. 4, unknown traps and angles—Smith, 10; Apgar, 9; Keller, 9; Hebbard, 9; Van Dyke, 9; Parker, 9; D. Terry, 8; Short, 8; Edwards, 7; Astfalk, 6; Woodruff, 5; G. Squires, 2.

The Climax team won at the last competition for the State championship, and hope to score another win tomorrow at Guttenberg where the State League clubs are to meet. The team will consist of N. Apgar, C. Smith, T. H. Keller, D. Terry, and T. Brantingham.

ALL IS PEACEABLE IN THE BOROUGH.

There Will Be No Clashing Between Justice and Magistrate.

The appointment of W. E. Mattison as a justice of the peace in the borough will not cause any great trouble, as it was only made to fill one of the two vacancies made by S. Taynor and Fred Brown, who did not qualify. The borough is entitled to four justices, and they only have three at present.

Justice Crosley will continue his work as heretofore, and the fact that Mr. Mattison was appointed will not affect him any more than Justice Sperry does, and they have always lived peaceably in the borough.

Three For Murphy.

In the court of Justice Newcorn Monday, the case of VanSickle vs. Mulford on contract, came up and a judgement was rendered for the plaintiff of $21 and costs. Clarence L. Murphy represented the plaintiff.

Yesterday, summons were issued in the cases of Kline vs. Dunham, landlord and tenant, returnable July 27th, and Swalm vs. Lines on contract, returnable on August 1st.

In the afternoon, Justice Newcorn rendered judgement in the following suits; George W. Eddy vs. Mrs. Martin Geagen, on contract, a judgement of $200 and costs.

George W. Eddy vs. Charles McIntosh on contract, a judgement of $19.85 and costs.

Clarence L. Murphy acted as counsel for the plaintiff in both cases.

A Question Often Asked.

The question is often asked, when should glasses be worn? To this answer should be, that as soon as discomfort arises for need of them, they should be adopted. If your eyes are causing you anxiety, or if the glasses you are wearing are not suited to your eyes, call on Leech, Stiles & Co's eye specialist, who will be at 107 East Front street, on Thursday from ten a. m. to 5 p. m. Examination free.

Mr. Boehm's Exchange.

I. H. Boehm, the dry goods man of West Front street, has traded off his property at 104 and 106 Manning avenue with K. Goodman and brothers, for the house and property owned by them at 192 Somerset street. The trade took place about two weeks ago, but Mr. Boehm will occupy his new house today.

For a Change it is Sweet.

Another street piano on wheels made its appearance in North Plainfield yesterday and discoursed sweet music much to the delight of the children.

AN ADMINISTRATOR REMOVED.

Ancillary Letters Issued to W. K. McClure as Administrator of Pooler Estate.

On the petition of Counsellor William K. McClure, administrator of the Pooler estate, and upon filing an exemplified copy of the proceedings of the Orphan's Court of the county of Union at Elizabeth for the removal of Auguste Saltzman as executor of Eliza Pooler, deceased, together with the order for his removal signed by the judges of said court, the Surrogate of the city of New York last week revoked the ancillary letters issued by said surrogate to Auguste Saltzman, executor, etc., before his removal by the Orphans' Court of this county, and issued ancillary letters to William K. McClure, the present administrator.

This move was made because of the assumption of said Saltman that he was still executor in New York, notwithstanding his removal here, for cause, his ancillary letters taken out in New York not having been revoked.

The present admistrator when he received his appointment, to save expense to the estate, did not have the ancillary letters issued to Saltzman revoked, and ancillary letters issued to him, as it was not necessary to do so, but Saltzman's assumption compelled such action, and put the estate to an expense that could easily have been avoided.

SYMPATHY FOR GENTLE WILLIE.

He is Sprinkling Paris Green Instead of Playing Ball.

City Missionary Swan visited the Brooklyn jail in Windham County, Conn., the other day and saw "Gentle Willie" Murphy, the well-known ball player, who is incarcerated there. "Gentle Willie" was industriously sprinkling Paris green on potato vines in the jail enclosure.

Mr. Swan shouted out to him "play ball" and "Gentle Willie" was so startled by the familiar sound that he dropped upon a hill of potatoes with the same convulsive momentum that made his base sliding such a feature in old-time Norwich ball games.

There is a movement on foot to raise money to pay Murphy's fine so that he may be released. He has plenty of admirers among the baseball enthusiasts in Norwich.—Norwich, (Conn.,) Bulletin.

Senator Voorhees Receiver.

Senator Voorhees, of Elizabeth, was yesterday allowed $200 by Vice-Chancellor Emery for services as receiver for the Royal Arc Electric Company. The corporation was organized under the laws of this State, and in its articles of incorporation it proclaimed the fact that it proposed to do business throughout the universe. After a short existance, however, the concern went into the receiver's hands. Its liabilities were found to be $17,900, while only $716 assets were discovered.

Chief Doane at Asbury Park.

Among the distinguished visitors this week was Thaddeus Doane, Chief of the Plainfield Fire Department. He was a guest of Fire Chief Leggett. Mr. Doane was one of the witnesses of the fire yesterday, and he complimented Chief Leggett on the efficiency of the department. The Plainfield department is part paid and part volunteer. The amount of the appropriation is $21,000.—Asbury Park Journal.

West End Park Bought by Mr. Moore.

A big land deal was consummnated a day or two ago when Councilman W. H. Moore, purchased the half interest of Charles E. Rocap in West End park. This plot consists of thirty fifty feet lots, finely situated at Grant avenue and West Front street. A number of substantial and pretty residences have already been built in the Park, and it is the intention of Mr. Moore to boom the property as a residential place.

They Reached Shore All Right.

The four young men who borrowed a boat from Thomas McNair at Elizabethport and were supposed to have been lost in the Kills during the squall Sunday night are safe. When they found the squall almost upon them they headed the boat for the Staten Island shore and reached it when the storm broke.

Only Tonight.

The pink and white tea in the German Reformed church will be continued tonight. A very pleasant evening was spent there yesterday. An informal programme occupied part of the evening.

Jewell's Slayer Seriously Ill.

Frank Freehill, the tramp who murdered Special Policeman Alfred E. Jewell, of Rahway, is seriously ill in the Union county jail, at Elizabeth, and fears he will die before he is tried. He says he is getting worse every day.

THE FIRST FIRE FOR WEEKS.

Barns and Outbuildings of James McCarthy Destroyed.

The barn and outhouses belonging to James McCarthy on his property located at 1,322 West Front street were totally destroyed by fire this morning at 11:40. An alarm was sent in from Box 48, but the first register was 21, the second 36, and the third time the right number was blown.

The fire department responded quickly and, though it was a two-mile run, they were at the scene of the fire in less than twenty minutes.

No. 2's engine was taken to the pond near Coriell's hat factory and a line of hose laid. A considerable amount of time was lost in getting water, as the facilities for that article in that part of town are very poor. The buildings were about destroyed when water was secured.

The only thing saved was a horse owned by Mr. McCarthy. The barn was filled with hay, three wagons and several other things and the corn crib was filled with corn.

The fire was started by Mrs. Nolan's little six-year old boy who was playing with matches, and was first discovered by neighbors, who alarmed Mrs Nolan, who was watching the house for her father and mother as the latter went on St. Mary's excursian to Glen Island today. The intense heat endangered nearby houses and barns, and it was only by the personal application of pails of water that they did not catch fire. The buildings were insured with J. C. Fope & Co., for $500. The loss is estimated at $2,000. It was an hour before the fire was extinguished, and the recall was sent in at 1:15.

TEMPERANCE MEN IN SESSION.

Grand Division of Sons of Temperance in Session in this City.

The quarterly session of the Grand Division, Sons of Temperance, of New Jersey, convened this morning at ten o'clock in Reform Hall. There were about sixty delegates present from various parts of the State.

Grand Worthy Patriarch Ross Slack, of Trenton, is the presiding officer; Past Grand Worthy Patriarchs A. G. VanAken, grand scribe, J. H. Hoagland, grand treasurer, Mrs. M. S. Vickery, of New Brunswick, chaplain, A. P. Sutphen, of Somerville, and E. Coxen, of Jersey City, as sentinals Several candidates were initiated in the Grand Division.

This morning's session was devoted chiefly to the hearing of the officer's reports. An interesting feature was the report given by Grand Worthy Patriarch Ross Slack of the late session of the National Division held at Cleveland, Ohio, setting forth that the order is being thoroughly awakened in the necessities of the hour in the cause of temperance. The afternoon session is being devoted to business transacted during the past three months.

Caught Midway.

Janitor Scriven, of the Babcock building, got caught between heaven and earth, as the expression is. He was coming down in the elevator and was midway between the first and second floors when the fuse burned out and the electrical hoisting apparatus refused to work. After a short stay in this position he succeeded in reaching the ground and rapidly repaired the fault.

A Dangerous Fall.

To fall from the top of a six-foot ladder with an open knife in the hand is a rather dangerous thing to do but Oliver Hill, of East Sixth street, did it yesterday morning and escaped with no other injury than a very sore back. He was trimming grapevines from the top of a ladder when he lost his balance and fell striking on his back.

Reports of the Boston Convention.

Miss Emily Coriell and Miss Alice Woodland, who attended the Christian Endeavor convention at Boston will make their reports at the meeting in the First Baptist church, Friday evening.

Go Down, Moses.

Moses Carey, of this city, when driving down hill near New Market in his carriage, had a little accident. For some unknown reason the spokes of one of the wheels gave way and the wheel collapsed.

A Sprained Ankle.

Harry Conklin, who is at Conklin, N. Y., sprained his foot while playing tennis at that place a few days ago. The mishap has detained him longer than he expected to stay.

Field Captain.

The Young Men's League of Hope Chapel have elected John H. Cose, field captain of the athletic team which is going to compete with the Monroe Avenue, August 31st.

A NEW BURGLAR ALARM.

A Resident Warned By His Dog of an Intended Robbery.

Householders would do well to see that all of the outside doors are kept locked during the evening as there appears to be a number of sneak thieves at work in the city.

William L. VanDeventer, of East Fifth street, was their next intended victim on Monday night. It was about nine o'clock in the evening and Mr. and Mrs. VanDeventer and their little daughter, Margaret, were sitting on the piazza when they heard their little pet dog bark, at which Mrs. VanDeventer walked around to the back of the house to see what was the matter. Just as she had almost reached the cellar door, a man who had been kneeling or sitting down, sprang to his feet, jumped over the side fence and run up Franklin place. She screamed and Mr. VanDeventer hurried back to see what was the matter. Mrs. VanDeventer was very much frightened, but investigation showed that the man had not been able to effect an entrance, thanks to the vigorous alarm that the dog gave.

COLORED CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS.

New Development in the Fillmore Avenue Baptist Church.

The second colored Christian Endeavor society in the city was organized last evening with twenty members in the Fillmore Avenue Baptist church. The society will meet again next Tuesday evening and it is expected that the membership will be largely increased. Application will be made to the Local Union for membership.

The Sunday school of that church, which has gone down very much since the departure of Rev. Mr. Mitchell, was entirely reorganized by J. W. Jeffress, the new pastor, with a membership of thirty. This number will also be greatly increased.

Since the arrival of Mr. Jeffress, the welfare of the church has been greatly better and the outlook, at the present time, is very bright. Vigorous efforts are being made to raise the $800 necessary to pay off the claim on the church. The entertainment on August 8th for that purpose, will consist of recitations, singing and instrumental music by local talent.

They Will Start Together.

One of the strangest flowers in all the vegetable kingdom that is to be seen in Plainfield is a flower called the evening primrose or seven o'clock. At seven o'clock the flowers, which are a pretty yellow, pop open suddenly and remain so most of the evening. Tomorrow evening as these flowers are opening, the Trinity Reformed Sunday-school excursion will be leaving Asbury Park, for it does not leave until two hours later than most of the excursions. The excursion leaves the North Avenue station tomorrow morning at eight o'clock and affords a splendid opportunity to visit the ocean once more.

St. Mary's Well Represented.

Delightful breezes and a cool day made the excursion of St. Mary's church and Sunday-school to Glen Island a large one. Sixteen cars were supplied, but even that number could not comfortably hold all the crowd of happy excursionists that thronged the platforms at the North Avenue station. At a few minutes after eight o'clock the train pulled out for Jersey City where its passengers were turned over to the steamer Lenox and the barge Queen City, for the ride up the East river.

City's Turn to Clean the Brook.

At the meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Health last evening a resolution was adopted asking the Plainfield Board of Health to have Greenbrook cleaned out where it runs through the city. North Plainfield had it done last year and they now think it's Plainfield's turn. A new code of rules and regulations were discussed, but nothing decided upon.

Conference of Railroad Magnates.

B. A. Hegeman, of this city, traffic manager of the D. L. & W. R. R., is at Manhattan Beach in attendance at a conference of railroad officials representing the principal trunk lines east of the Mississippi river.

Three Days in a Sweat Box.

Walter Ingram, of Washington Valley, for being drunk add disorderly is spending three days in the borough lockup. He prefered this to paying a fine of $3.

A Summer Festival.

The Victor Wheelmen will give a festival in T. A. B. Hall on the evening of the first Thursday in August.

Lots of Work.

Walter Scott's Printing Machine Works are now employing about 400 men.

LIFE IN THE CITY TENEMENTS

AN ASSISTANT OF DR. PARKHURST TELLS OF HER WORK.

Miss Malken Engaged in a Work of Sacrifice Among the Poor and Down Trodden Classes of New York.

Life and work among the tenements in New York was the theme of Miss Nellie Malken's talk last evening before the Christian Endeavor society of Warren chapel. The meeting was led by John Herman, president of the society.

In the early part of the meeting Miss Malken and Miss Paulsen, a volunteer worker, sang a duet, and later in the meeting there were two solos by Miss Malken.

She then gave a simple talk on the condition of the people in the tenement houses, and some of the different kinds of work that had to be done. She told how the houses are packed in together and the rooms in them small and without scarcely any sunshine or fresh air. Three to six families live on one floor and often five or six people in one room. The rooms are bare, containing nothing but the most necessary articles, and seldom a carpet is seen. These people obtain their clothes from peddlers of scraps at the street corners. The condition of the children was dreadful, she said, and told how they wander all over without any care, playing on the roofs or in the street, the only places for them, or going to the docks for fresh air. She then spoke of a mission started in a back room of a tenement, and how the little children came two and three hours before the time of meeting to wait for the doors to open. The older people, too, came after a time on Sunday afternoons. Miss Malken next described to her interested audience the house-to-house work and of the labor among the sick and suffering. The mothers' meeting is another way in which the poor women of the district are aided. The Sunday afternoon outdoor meeting was described, and she told how a band of workers with their little organ would gather on the steps and sing and testify; she also told of persecutions, of different articles thrown at them, and said "But we do not mind that, for we are only too glad of a chance to testify for the Lord."

Miss Malken is one of the workers in the Sea and Land church, which is under the care of Dr. Parkhurst, although his assistant, Mr. Denison, has the direct control of it at present.

DRAGGED DOWN HIS COUSIN.

Young Phair Is Drowned, and Mr. Brown Saves His Son.

Charles Phair, of Summit, went fishing with his uncle, Albert Brown, and a twelve-year-old cousin, in a small stream near Bound Brook yesterday afternoon. Young Phair fell from the embankment into twelve feet of water. He was alone at the time and could not swim. His cries for help were heard by his companions, but when they reached him he had gone down. Both jumped into the stream to rescue him.

Young Brown was caught about the legs by the drowning youth and pulled under the water. Then began a desperate struggle. The older Brown made frantic efforts to rescue both boys, but was unsuccessful. The struggles of young Phair finally ceased and young Brown came to the surface and was rescued by his father.

Phair's body was taken from the water an hour later and removed to his parents' home in Summit. Phair had been spending his vacation at the home of his uncle in South Bound Brook.

Wants to Be Pound-Keeper.

Amos Stites has applied for the position of pound-keeper in the new pound for horses and cattle which is about to be established in the borough, and its quite likely that he will get it. The new pound will probably be located on Grove street near Greenbrook road.

Marshals to Have Vacations.

The borough marshals soon commence their vacations. Marshal Doud has from August 1st to the 10th, Marshal Lines from the 11th to the 20th, and Chief Van Horn from the 21st to the end of the month.

Black and White.

Henry DeMott, the Somerset street undertaker, has just purchased two very handsome hearses, one white and the other black. He has also purchased a well-appointed undertaker's wagon.

A Morgue Needed.

One thing very much needed in North Plainfield is a morgue where people who die and have to be examined by the county physician can be taken.

ARRESTS TO BE MADE

Willimantic Bank Scandal Grows Darker.

Sensational Disclosures Promised During the Next Few Hours—Prominent Men Said To Be Implicated—W. G. Morrison, of the Morrison Machine Co., Missing.

Willimantic, Conn., July 24.—New matters are gradually coming to light in the Dime Savings bank affair which tend to involve some prominent men of this city. W. G. Morrison, of the W. G. & A. R. Morrison Machine company, has been missing since Sunday. The Morrison company recently went into the hands of a trustee, and when the property was sold at public auction it was purchased by attorney Thomas J. Kelley. It has for some time been supposed that the missing treasurer of the dime bank was the real purchaser and that Kelley was merely acting as his agent.

Cash Deficit Accounted For.

At an informal meeting of the directors of the bank yesterday afternoon Mr. Kelley said that he acted as agent for Walden in the purchase of $4,400 worth of machinery which he sold to Sutton & Bain, of Allentown, Pa., for $9,800, receiving $2,000 in cash, the balance to be paid in monthly installments of $500. He assumed that the transaction was for the Dime Savings bank. The above transaction accounts for the $4,400 deficit in cash.

Morrison Skipped Out.

It is supposed that as soon as Morrison learned of Walden's departure he left for parts unknown. E. B. Sumner and Thomas J. Kelley have gone to Allentown to look after the machinery transaction.

Sensational Arrests To Be Made.

It was stated to a press representative by good authority that several sensational arrests would probably be made during the next twenty-four hours. The missing treasurer and his father had built up an extensive fire insurance agency. Representatives of several of the companies from New York and Boston were in town yesterday examining their accounts.

Insurance Books in Bad Shape.

Their insurance books are in as bad a condition nearly as the books of the bank. It is supposed that most of the missing money was invested in the Morrison Machine company. It has been learned to-day that $10,000 of Staten Island railroad bonds, which were in the bank at the examination make June 15, were missing at the examination on July 11 and have not been seen since.

CONDITION OF CROPS.

Weather Bureau's Weekly Bulletin for Eastern States.

Washington, July 24.—The weather crop bulletin for the week ended July 22, issued by the weather bureau gives the condition of crops and prospects in eastern states as follows: New England—Too dry in northwest; potatoes slightly diseased in south; pears, peaches and blackberries good. New York—Much oats cut green for fodder and to save from grasshoppers. New Jersey—Frequent showers and warm sunshine greatly stimulated growth of all crops. Pennsylvania—Vegetables and staple crops doing well, but many sections need rain badly; fruit crop better than anticipated. Maryland—Wheat and hay yields somewhat below average; truck doing well, except tomatoes.

SLATER YACHT AT 'FRISCO.

The Connecticut Party Have Nearly Encircled the Globe.

San Francisco, July 24.—The steam yacht Eleanor, in which William A. Slater, the Connecticut manufacturer, his family and friends are making a tour of the world, has arrived here. The yacht left New London, Conn., on October 27 last, and has nearly encircled the globe. Besides a crew of fifty men under command or Capt. C. W. Scott, the yacht carries eleven passengers. The Eleanor will remain at San Francisco for three weeks, and will then proceed to Alaska and call at the places of interest along the shores of the Bering sea. Then she will follow the coast down to Cape Horn and return home, stopping at many of the cities along the Atlantic side.

Secretary Carlisle at Work.

Washington, July 24.—For the first time since early in May, Secretary Carlisle and his three assistants, Wike, Hamlin and Curtis, are all at their desks in the treasury department. The latter returned yesterday from his trip to London in connection with the delivery of bonds to the Rothschilds.

Smith and Ryan Matched.

New York, July 24.—"Mysterious" Billy Smith, of Boston, and Tommy Ryan, of Chicago, welterweight pugilists, have been matched to fight at Dallas on Nov. 1. The winner will receive $3,759 and the loser $1,250. The contest will follow the Corbett-Fitzsimmons fight.

Drowned in the Connecticut River.

Northampton, Mass., July 24.—Martin Lucey, aged 22, of Holyoke, was drowned in the Connecticut river, near Mount Tom, last evening. He, with two companions, started in a boat early in the afternoon to fish, but later went bathing.

After Four Years of Idleness.

Easton, Pa., July 24.—Bethlehem stack No. 11 of the Thomas Iron company at Hellertown was lighted yesterday after an idleness of four years. The works when in full blast give employment to 150 hands.

Odd Fellows' Temple Dedicated.

Albany, July 24.—Odd Fellows' temple in this city was dedicated by grand master Sidney W. Rowland of New York, last evening. The building was erected last year at a cost of $100,000.

German Cruiser for Tangiers.

Berlin, July 24.—The German cruiser Marie is due to arrive at Tangiers on Monday next. The total German naval force in Moroccan waters will then number 1,450 men.

UNCLAIMED BANK BALANCES.

Some Curious Accounts in Several Institutions in Canada.

Montreal, July 24.—There are several hundred thousand dollars of unclaimed balances in various Canadian banks awaiting owners. Some of these accounts are very interesting, and date back over half a century. The oldest accounts are with the bank of Montreal and the bank of British North America.

Oldest Account of All.

The oldest account of all seems to be that of J. McCrae, who on November 23, 1825, had a balance of $100 in the bank of Montreal, and he can have it yet. He has, however, lost seventy years' interest, which at 4 per cent., without compounding, would amount to $280. W. Douglass, who did business with the bank of Montreal in 1832, appears to have forgotten a balance of $6.97.

Other Sums Forgotten.

The Montreal board of health seem also to have done business with the same institution sixty-two years ago, as on February 2, 1833, their balance was $256.77, and they do not appear to have done any business since. The London, Ont., board of health seem also to have a surplus of money, as they have had a balance of $17.60 since August 16, 1854.

YACHT ONEONTA LAUNCHED.

She Is a Handsome Vessel and Resembles a Torpedo Boat.

Chester, Pa., July 24.—The Oneonta, a beautiful steam yacht, was launched yesterday at Roach's shipyard. She was built for F. C. Dinniney, of New York. The Oneonta was modelled by William Gardiner, and in appearance resembles a torpedo boat rather than a steam yacht, but she is pronounced by critics to be a beauty, and is said to be the only yacht of the pattern ever built in this country.

An Eighteen Knot Boat.

She is of 800 horse-power, is 180 feet on the water line, 189 feet over all, with 18 feet beam and 6 feet draught. A triple expansion engine, with a "Thornycroft" patent tubular boiler, having a pressure of 250 pounds to the square inch, will be the propelling power, and she will make about 18 knots an hour. The Oneonta is rigged with only one mast, which is situated abaft the engine room. Her deck fittings, instead of being of brass, as is usual, are of white metal, so as to be perfectly rust-proof.

GEYER GOES TO INDIANAPOLIS.

Gives Up His Search in Detroit for the Missing Howard Pietzel.

Detroit, Mich., July 24.—Detective Geyer, of Philadelphia, gave up his search for the missing Howard Pietzel in Detroit last evening, and left in response to telegrams received about noon, calling him to Indianapolis, where, it is said, certain developments have been made in the case. Before leaving he said he had found no positive evidence that Howard Pietzel over came to Detroit. He had learned many things of value in the prosecution of the cases against Holmes for murder, but nothing that he could divulge and nothing relating to the probable fate of little Howard. "There is one thing certain," said Mr. Geyer, "if Howard Pietzel ever came to Detroi the was destroyed in the furnace at the Forest avenue house, and the indestructible portions of his clothing were carried away by Holmes."

TRIED TO KILL A REPORTER.

An Ex-Baltimore City Commissioner Stampedes a Crowded Car.

Baltimore, July 24.—A. Leslie Duvall, ex-assistant city commissioner, yesterday stampeded a carload of passengers on the Traction line by waving a revolver and threatening to kill William D. Burroughs, a reporter on the Morning Herald, whom he mistook for an Evening World reporter, which paper severely handled him before Duvall was removed from office because of an investigation into his department by a committee appointed by the city council. Had the conductor not restrained Duvall, Burroughs would probably have been shot.

SOCIETY SCANDAL AT CAMDEN.

An Aged Broker Sued by a Young Wife's Husband.

Camden, N. J., July 24.—David B. Hallinger, a Philadelphia broker and living in Camden, has been made the defendant in a suit for $50,000 damages, for the alleged alienation of the affections of Mrs. Henry W. Snow, of Merchantville, and he was placed under $500 bail on a criminal charge. The affair has created a sensation in Camden, where Mr. Hallinger was a respected citizen and pillar in one of the churches in Merchantville, where Mrs. Snow is one of the town beauties. Hallinger is past sixty years of age, while Mrs. Snow is but 22.

PRICE UNLAWFULLY HANGED.

By Parties, However, Unknown to the Coroner's Jury.

Denton, Md., July 24.—The coroner's jury in the Price lynching case returned the verdict that was expected, that the murderer of Sallie Dean was unlawfully hanged to a tree in the court house square by persons to the jury unknown. The jury expresses the belief that Sheriff Berry did the best he could under the circumstances to protect his prisoner from the mob's violence.

SEVERED HER INTESTINES.

A New York Woman's Horrible Attempt at Suicide.

New York, July 24.—Mrs. Baty Brown, 40 years old, attempted suicide last night, inflicting a severe wound upon her abdomen with a knife. She had attacked herself so fiercely that a small part of the intestines had been cut off and lay on the floor. She was removed to Bellevue dying.

To Enforce the Liquor Law.

Manchester, N. H., July 24.—The leaders of the State Law and Order league, who are insisting that the police commissioners of Manchester shall enforce the prohibitory law, this morning stated that within two weeks every saloon in this city must be closed.

Jumped Overboard and Drowned.

Marcus Hook, Pa., July 24.—While the steamer British Princess was proceeding down the river yesterday a seaman jumped overboard and was drowned. It is believed to be a case of suicide.

HARCOURT IS ELECTED

Pulls Through at Last On the Temperance Issue.

Tom Mann and Clem Edwards, Labor Leaders, Defeated—Conservatives Have Elected 309 Seats; Unionists, 55; Liberals, 129; McCarthyites, 56, and Parnellites, 9.

London, July 24.—This morning the standing of the various parties in the house of commons is as follows: Conservatives, 309; unionists, 55; liberals, 129; McCarthyites, 56; Parnellites, 9. In yesterday's voting the conservatives gained three seats, the unionists one and the Parnellites one.

Tom Mann Defeated.

Among the defeated candidates are the labor leaders Tom Mann and Clem Edwards, who shared the fate of many of their fellows. Mann ran as an independent labor candidate in the Colne valley district of Yorkshire, and had as opponents Sir J. Kitson, the liberal representative, and Harold Thomas, unionist. The liberals won with a smaller majority than they had in 1892, and Mann was third in the race with 1,245 votes.

Harcourt Pulls Through.

Sir William Vernon-Harcourt, who was defeated in Derby, has been returned for West Monmouth by a majority of 7,243—23 less than the liberal majority there three years ago. Mr. Warmington, who resigned his candidacy in favor of Sir William on the latter's defeat in Derby, was to have stood without opposition. Sir William, notwithstanding his experience in Derby, persisted in declaring in this speeches in West Monmouth, that temperance was the chief plank in his platform.

PROTEST TO THE PRESIDENT.

His Attention Called to the Proposed Bull Fights at Atlanta.

New York, July 24.—The following letter, signed by William Moses Ballou, vice-president of the American Humane association, has been addressed to President Cleveland at Buzzards Bay:

Protests Against Bull Fighters.

"I enclose herewith duplicates of letters to the honorable secretary of the treasury, in regard to exhibition of bull fights at the Atlanta exposition. You will note that the troop of bull fighters can only come into this country by express permission and license to each one personally by the secretary, and that is clearly his duty to refuse such license to them, as the object of their coming is a misdemeanor in the state of Georgia.

Rests with the President.

"Permit me to express the hope that you will interpose your good offices to avert a national scandal, as the administration will be clearly responsible, now that its attention is directed to the law, if the interdicted bulls and the contract bull fighters are admitted into the United States."

NEW YORK'S POLICE SHAKE UP.

Two Famous Detectives Transferred to Wall Street.

New York, July 24.—The famous detectives Phillip Reilly and Jacob Von Gerichten have been transferred from the district attorney's office to the Wall street bureau to-day. The change was said to have been made on account of the application of Von Gerichten to be retired on a pension and the need of a man of Reilly's ability in Wall street. Reilly and Von Gerichten had been detailed at the district attorney's office for about fifteen years, and in that time they had made many difficult arrests. Their duty was to catch men who had been indicted, and it was often necessary for them to go to all parts of the world to effect a capture.

INCREASE IN IMMIGRATION.

Return of American Prosperity Affecting All Classes.

New York, July 24.—According to Dr. Senner, the commissioner of immigration at this port, the number of immigrants landed in New York from January to July, 1895, exceeds by nearly 60,000 the number landed during the corresponding period of 1894. Many of the newcomers, said Dr. Senner today, are Italian women and children, who are coming to rejoin their husbands. These went back home last year where living was cheaper. Their return, Dr. Senner thinks, indicates that the renewed prosperity of the country has affected all classes, even Italian laborers.

League Games Yesterday.

At Chicago—Chicago, 9; Brooklyn, 6. At Cincinnati—Cincinnati, 3; New York, 7. At St. Louis—St. Louis, 8; Boston, 10. At Pittsburg—Pittsburg, 5; Baltimore, 4. At Cleveland—First game, Cleveland, 9; Washington, 8. Second game, Cleveland, 7; Washington, 3. At Louisville—Louisville-Philadelphia game postponed on account of rain.

New Paving Material.

Syracuse, N. Y., July 24.—A company has just laid in this city a block of sheet pavement which resembles asphalt but is produced at half the cost. The pavement, it is claimed is not injured by frost, ammonia, etc. It can be used for electrical subways, and if successful, will revolutionize the paving business of the country.

Miners Will Demand More Pay.

Pittsburg, July 24.—The Pittsburg district miners' convention decided to demand an advance in wages, beginning Aug. 1. The price to be asked is 69 cents a ton where a store exists and 64 cents a ton where the operator pays in cash. If the demands of the miners are not granted a strike will probably take place.

Bridge Jumper Callahan.

New York, July 24.—Patrick Callahan, who jumped from the Brooklyn bridge yesterday on a wager, is reported much better by the hospital attendants. Callahan is the nineteenth man to make the dangerous jump, seven of that number losing their lives.

A Little Girl Charged with Murder.

Brooklyn, N. Y., July 24.—Mary Lentz, 13 years old, was arrested last evening on a charge of homicide. She kicked Genarie Conavallo, 17 years old, on the shin, and blood poisoning followed, causing his death.

MANY WOMEN SUFFER

FROM LACK OF INFORMATION.

Doctors Are Too Reserved. A Woman Should Be Dealt With Openly.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Women are often allowed by their physicians to suffer much from lack of information and anxiety.

Many medical men are vaingle for them and it is a struggle for them to acknowledge that they do not understand acase. Women do not investigate; they have faith in their doctor, and often wreck their lives through this unfortunate confidence.

In the treatment of female diseases men work from theory; and it is not to be expected that they can treat as intelligently those complaints from which they have never suffered, as a woman can who has made the organism and diseases of her sex a life study.

Women afflicted with female diseases are wise in communicating promptly with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. Their distressed condition is due to womb trouble, and their symptoms tell the story.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the one remedy that removes the cause, and restores health, courage, and happiness. The druggists sell more of it than all other female medicines. Why?

The following short letter speaks for itself. Mrs. Parker is a very young wife; only twenty-one years old. She was suffering untold misery when she wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice. See the result.

Can evidence be stronger than this? "I deem it my duty to announce the fact to all my fellow-sufferers of all female complaints that your Vegetable Compound has entirely cured me of all the pains and suffering I was enduring when I wrote you last May. I followed your advice to the letter, and the result is wonderful."—MRS. CHAS. PARKER, Little Falls, Minn. Any druggist has it.

THE INDIAN WAR IS ON

Three Whites and Six Redskins Killed.

Settlers Leaving Their Ranches and Gathering for Mutual Protection.

Further Bloodshed Believed To Be Inevitable — One Hundred Bucks Missing from Reservation.

Pocatello, Idaho, July 23.—The Indian war has broken out in earnest. Bannock Indians have killed a settler, his wife and child in the Salt river valley, and the white men, pursuing the murderers, killed six of the redskins. The excitement among the settlers in northwestern Wyoming is growning more intense every day. They are leaving their ranches in large numbers and gathering at favored points for mutual protection in case the irate Indians return to seek vengeance for the death of their brother braves. The story of the killing of the three whites and six Indians is spreading alarm at rapid rate.

Seventeen Indians Slaughtered.

Market Lake, Idaho, July 24.—Three days ago thirty men left Jacksons Hole to arrest all Indians breaking the game laws of Wyoming. In Hoback canon they surprised a camp of eighteen Indians, and took them all prisoners and started with them for Jacksons Hole. In the canon they tried to escape, and all the Indians were killed except one papoose, who was brought into the Hole. There were 133 fresh elk skins in the camp.

Every Settler Will Be Butchered.

John N. Carnes, a squaw-man, and the oldest settler in Jacksons Hole, has gone over into Idaho, and says that every settler in Jacksons Hole will be butchered. There were 300 Bannock warriors on Hoback river when Carnes was there, and he says that all the squaws have been sent away, and the bucks are daily joining the main band. The Jacksons Hole settlers are now entrenched awaiting an attack.

Bloodshed Certain.

Pocatello, Idaho, July 24.—At the Bannock Indian agency it is feared that the trouble in Jacksons Hole country cannot possibly reach a final settlement now without more bloodshed. The rumors current here last night regarding depredations of a returning band of Bannocks and their killing of three white settlers cannot be further confirmed. Not more than fifty Indians have returned to the immediate vicinity of the agency, and they will not talk.

Other Clashes Feared.

Although the rumors of danger in this immediate neighborhood are without foundation, it is confidently believed, from the advices brought daily by the Indian police from the scene of the recent trouble in northwestern Wyoming, that there will be other clashes there between the Indians and settlers and tough characters in the Jacksons Hole country. From the most trusted police it is learned that many of the Indians who are apparently returning to their homes have quietly said that they were taking squaws and papooses home to the reservation, and then would return to see the white men of the Jacksons Hole country.

Will Not Give Up the Ground.

These clashes are of yearly occurrence, and there seems a determination on both sides to settle the question as to whether Indians have a right to hunt in that country regardless of state game laws. The Indians will not give up their old ground without a struggle, and the settlers are inclined to give the Indians such severe treatment that they will not return next year.

Bucks Absent from the Reservation.

At least 100 bucks are absent from their reservation, and nearly all of their leaves of absence expired some time ago. Agent Teeter has begun a thorough investigation of the trouble, and is making a trip through the Jacksons Hole country on horseback. He is expected back today, and authoritative statements can be secured then, although even he cannot foretell just what will be done by the Indians who are plotting to return to their disputed hunting grounds unencumbered with their families. It is the general opinion at the agency that the Bannock braves cannot be brought back without the use of federal troops.

Princeton Students Near Duboise.

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 24.—Definite news has been received at Lander, Wyo., of the Princeton geological expedition. The entire party is at the ranch of Eugene Amoretti, near Duboise, Wyo., one hundred miles from the scene of the Indian troubles. The party has been in the mountains fishing and hunting, and knew nothing of the anxiety for the safety of its members.

GEN. HARRISON'S VACATION.

He Goes a-Fishing and Will Make a Speech at a Flag-Raising.

Old Forge, N. Y., July 24.—Ex-President Harrison and little Ben fished in Moose lake yesterday. The afternoon was spent in camp. A trip through Fourth lake will be made to-day by the party. On Saturday General Harrison will make a brief speech at the flag-raising at the Forge house.

Jail Delivery Frustrated.

Erie, Pa., July 24.—An attempt to break jail was frustrated last evening by one of the prisoners, James Brown, who was to be strangled to death for refusing to join the conspiracy. The gang, nine in number, desperate criminals, had the bars sawed and were only awaiting for darkness when they would make the the break. They were armed with iron bars and bludgeons.

Will Not Modify the Contract.

Washington, July 24.—Secretary Carlisle has declined to modify the contract of Benjamin Hyde, of Chicago, Ill., for constructing the temporary public building at Chicago. Mr. Hyde, because of delay in the selection of a site, sought to have an additional allowance made him. The contract calls for the construction of the building for $124,930.

Vanheest-Marshall Fight a Draw.

Washington, July 24.—"Johnny" Vanheest of Buffalo and Jerry Marshall of Australia, fought a 21-round draw last night before the Eureka athletic club of Alexandria county, Virginia, opposite this city.

HORSELESS CARRIAGES.

Our Consul at Havre's Report on the Recent Race in France.

Washington, July 24.—The department of state has just received a report from Consul Chancellor, at Havre, on "Horseless carriages in France," which also gives the results of the recent race in that country between the several classes of these vehicles.

Petroleum Probably the Best.

"The time seems approaching," the report says, "when automatic road carriages propelled by steam, electricity, or petroleum, will come into general use, and take away from the horse the worst part of his daily toil. The odds at present seem to be in favor of petroleum. In a race of this kind held in France, the winning carriage was propelled by gasoline and its maintained rate of speed was about fifteen miles an hour.

Hills Too Much for Electricity.

"The distance was 358 miles and back again between Paris and Bordeaux. The speed of fifteen miles an hour was regarded as an extremely creditable performance, the hills being taken into consideration. These hills appear to have been too much for electrically propelled carriages, only one of which succeeded in getting through to destination, the other having abandoned the contest.

Too Many Stops with Steam.

"One of the steam carriages was stranded and the other lost much time by its stops for coal and water. The petroleum machines carried enough material for a twenty-four-hour run, and on the return journey the winner made the run without a single stop.

Petroleum Bicycles.

"A cycle propelled by petroleum is also in use, and is attracting much attention. Half a dozen of such machines started in the race, one of which held its own among the larger vehicles. It is believed that light petroleum bicycles and tricycles will soon be in general use."

4,000 MILES ON A BICYCLE.

A Fort Hamilton Artilleryman Starts on a Long Journey.

New York, July 24.—Herman G. Frantz, an artilleryman attached to Battery A, First artillery, of Fort Hamilton, N. Y., started at noon on a bicycle for Fort Snelling, Minn. He has been granted a three months furlough, and will spend that time in traveling on his wheel to Fort Snelling and back, a distance of 2,000 miles each way.

Will Sleep Under a Tent.

He took with him a small tent, two blankets and a revolver besides half a dozen unofficial letters written by General Miles and directed to the commanders of the several army posts between here and his destination. Frantz will deliver the letters and take receipts. Frantz will camp at night under his tent, but will eat at farm houses and hotels.

HUGH DINNIN DEAD.

He Was at One Time an Influential and Wealthy Politician.

New York, July 24.—Hugh Dinnin, the oldest and at one time one of the most influential residents of the first ward, died of Bright's disease in the basement of the building 35 New street yesterday afternoon. He was born at 12 Trinity place about fifty-eight years ago. At one time he was worth $100,000. He lost all this, and for years has been considered poor. Dinnin was president of the Tammany regiment veteran association up to the time of his death.

K. of P. Elect Officers.

Catskill, N. Y., July 24.—The following were elected grand officers of the grand lodge of K. of P., state of New York, at its session here: Alonzo Bedell, of Haverstraw, grand chancellor; H. J. Kanski, of New York city, grand vice chancellor; Charles W. Hinson, of Buffalo, grand prelate; John J. Acker, of Albany, grand keeper of R. and S.; Charles G. Goodrich, of Newburgh, grand I. N. of E. The sessions are secret.

Republican Campaign in Ohio.

Columbus, O., July 24.—The republican state executive committee decided last evening to hold a meeting of the campaign at Springfield on Sept 10. Senator Sherman was chosen to preside and speeches are to be made on the occasion by Governor McKinley, ex-Governor Foraker, General Bushnell and Gen. Jones, candidates for governor and lieut.-governor.

Taylor Will Not Hang.

Washington, July 24.—The president has commuted the death sentence imposed on Thomas J. Taylor, who was to be hanged Friday for the murder of his wife. It is asserted that Taylor was driven to the deed by his wife's unfaithfulness.

Movement of Our Naval Vessels.

Washington, July 24.—The cruiser Detroit sailed yesterday from Shanghai for ports on the Yangtse Kiang river and Kinkiang. The Amphitrite has arrived at Brunswick, Ga., to take out the Georgia naval reserves.

MANY WERE KILLED

Another Terrible Defeat for the Spaniards.

Sanchez's Forces Routed and Mowed Down by Insurgents Under Command of Rabi—Puerto Principe Besieged by Gomez—Work Stopped on Plantations.

Santiago de Cuba, July 16, via Key West, Fla., July 23.—On the 12th inst. an encounter took place in Cacao, district of Manzanillo, between the Spanish troops under Commander Sanchez with 800 men, and the rebel leader Rabi with 300 followers.

Hanged the Messenger.

Commander Sanchez learned where Rabi was encamped and sent a messenger to Colonel Aimaz, notifying him of the location. The messenger was caught by the rebels, and after his dispatches were read he was hanged.

Spaniards Routed and Many Killed.

The rebels then sent a taunting message to Sanchez informing him of the fate that had overtaken his messenger. Commander Sanchez and his men lost no time in moving on the rebel camp and a severe battle followed. It ended in another terrible defeat for the Spaniards, they being routed and put to flight after many were killed and wounded.

Campos Goes to Bayamo.

Marshal Martinez Campos has gone from Manzanillo to Bayamo on horseback, accompanied by a strong column. It is said that the object of this trip is to investigate the true state of affairs there in reference to the reported bad treatment of soldiers.

Puerto Principe Besieged.

Maximo Gomez has Puerto Principe besieged, not allowing anyone to enter with provisions. On the 13th instant, the insurgents caught a milkman, who had previously been notified not to carry milk to the city, and hanged him by Gomez's orders.

Country People Terrorized.

The country people of this district are stricken with terror, as the soldiers are committing many outrages. Houses are entered and despoiled of their contents. Furniture is destroyed while clothing and other articles are carried away, leaving the poor people without a bed to sleep in.

Stopped Work on Plantations.

The owners of sugar plantations in Camaguey district were about to begin to grind cane when they received orders from Gomez to postpone operations. The order was accompanied by the threat that if it was not obeyed he would set fire to the plantations and hang the employes. The latter became afraid and all left their places. They had no money to pay their fares to Puerto Principe, so the government, fearing they would join the rebels, bought their tickets to the city.

Many Deaths from Yellow Fever.

The health of the city continues very bad. During the first fortnight of the present month there were 400 deaths, a great many of them caused by yellow fever. The disease has also developed among the soldiers in the country. This was unexpected as it is generally confined to the seaports. The military hospital is crowded with sick soldiers, and the hospitals or infirmaries in the country are also crowded.

THE STORM AROUND DUNBAR.

Late Reports Show the Damage Worse Than First Supposed.

Dunbar, Pa., July 24.—Reports of Monday night's flood and storm are much worse than first supposed. Lightning played havoc in many places. The Presbyterian parsonage was struck and partially destroyed, and many buildings were badly damaged. Telegraph poles along the Baltimore & Ohio road were blown down and the track between Dunbar and Uniontown washed out for more than a half-mile. The bridges over the Dunbar creek, which runs through the centre of the town, are all swept away. The mines and coke works in this section are flooded.

One Mine a Total Wreck.

The Ferguson mine is a total wreck, and at the works of the Dunbar Firebrick company the loss will amount to thousands of dollars. Many houses along the banks of Dunbar creek have been swept away, but as far as known the occupants escaped to the mountains. A heavy hailstorm has worked destruction to farm lands hereabout. It is estimated that the damage in this section will amount to $40,000.

RUSSIA TO MOVE TROOPS.

Sixty-eight Thousand To Be Placed on Mantchurian Frontier.

London, July 24.—A dispatch from St. Petersburg, via Eydtkuhnen, Prussia, on the Russian frontier, says that preparations are completed to place 68,000 Russian troops in two army corps on the frontiers of Mantchuria and Corea, besides sending 12,000 men by transport service to Vladivostock. West Siberian and Turkestan divisions will be ready within a month to operate on the frontier of Mantchuria.

Riot at a Social.

Huntington, W. Va., July 24.—A riot occurred at a country social last night on Union Ridge, this county, and a number of young men were probably fatally injured. Floyd Daily was cut in the abdomen and Gordon Bryan had his throat cut. Roscoe Bryan and Wash Holly had to be carried to their homes on account of injuries produced by clubs, and Holly has been unconscious ever since.

Inspecting Pennsylvania Militia.

Saratoga, Pa., July 24.—Gov. Hastings and Maj.-Gen. George W. Snowden have been here for the past two days inspecting the regiments of the first brigade now in camp here. It was announced that Gov. Hastings had reappointed Gen. Snowden as commanding general of the Pennsylvania national guard.

Death of an Old-Basket Maker.

Northampton, Mass., July 24.—Lucien D. Williams, head of the Williams Basket company, died at his home last night. He was the pioneer maker of baskets by machinery and had the largest factory in the country.

Newark's tax rate this year is $1.98.

Tammany and harmony are attractive words for New Yorkers just now.

Philadelphia is not so slow after all. Ice cream trolley cars are the latest.

A man who is compelled to go ten miles for a drink is not likely to stop at one, says the Sun.

Can it be that a band of methodical and professional sneak thieves are working in Plainfield? It is an interesting question.

St. Louis is the centre of the peanut trade of this country, but repudiates the distinction of being a centre of peanut politics.—World.

Senator Voorhees, has given up the idea of going into the woods of Maine on a fishing trip. He prefers to stay home and continue fence building.—Newark Advertiser.

And what is the sense of arresting a man who jumps from the Brooklyn bridge. It only makes him more valuable to the museum of which he becomes a living curiosity.

Judge Gilbert is quite as efficient as Mayor Gilbert. When the Mayor-Judge fined a man $20 yesterday for carrying a pistol without a permit he did something that was commendable.

The paid members of the city fire department get ten days vacation. So do the borough marshals. But the city police are alowed but seven days recreation. The police are just as deserving.

There is no city in the State where the bicycle craze has gained a stronger foothold than in Elizabeth.—Elizabeth Herald.

Yes there is. Plainfield has 18,000 population and it is estimated that there are 3,500 wheels in use.

Extend the trolley. A German scientist has discovered that destruction by lightning has materially diminished since the adoption of the trolley. Protect the city and assist the man who has not got twenty-five cents for a cab.

It is said that ex-Congressman George Hires, of Mercer county, is a candidate for Governor in the interest of John Kean's candidacy. There are so many things said, though, now-a-days anent this question that it is hard to tell what is true.

There is a great deal of talk in New York about the "pull" that is said to have no existence. M. J. Callahan, an ex-Assemblyman, was charged with disorderly conduct and resisting an officer yesterday. He was fined the sum of $5. A $5 fine in this case looks as though the "pull" was not as dead as it is said to be.

The Wichita, Kan., city council have repealed all ordinances relating to liquor saloons, and now everybody can go into the business without paying a license. The officials say that they do not propose to bankrupt the city by attempting to enforce odious laws that cannot be enforced. It is evident that Wichita does not possess a Roosevelt. But perhaps he has not been discovered.

In the Horr-Harvey money debate at Chicago, Mr. Harvey defined bimetallism as follows:

(1) Free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver; these two metals to constitute the primary or redemption money of the Government.

(2) That the silver dollar of 371¼ grains of pure silver (with us) is to be the unit of value, and gold to be coined into money at a ratio to be changed if necessary from time to time, if the commercial parity to the legal ratio shall be affected by the action of foreign countries.

(3) The money coined from both metals to be legal tender in the payment of all debts.

(4) The option as to which of the two moneys is to be paid in the liquidation of the debt to rest with the debtor, and the Government also to exercise that option when desirable in paying out redemption money.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed in the spring, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. Only 50c per bottle at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

WARNED BY A SHADOW.

Three Plainfield Young Men Have an Experience at New Market.

Three young men from Plainfield went swimming in New Market pond the other evening, and had quite an experience. They went down in a carriage and left their clothing in it. The night was dark, but one of them saw a form moving near the horse. They were then almost in the middle of the pond, but swam quickly to shore. An investigation showed that the suit of one of the young men had been searched, and forty-five cents in change stolen. The watch had been securely fastened to the coat, and the thief did not have time to break the chain. In the pockets of the clothes of one of the young men that was not searched there was over $15 in cash and a handsome gold watch.

This is not the first time this little accident has happened to swimmers, and some of the sufferers think they have a clue to the thief.

A WAR DANCE.

Red Men Raise Up Their Chiefs in Elizabeth.

The chiefs of the Omene Tribe, No. 107, I. O. R. M., at Elizabeth, were raised up in great shape last evening. District Deputy Great Sachem Charles F. Ulrich and his staff, John H. Carney, E. H. Neal, Wm. Newcorn, H. C. Runyon and Wm. A. Westphal, performed the ceremony and enjoyed themselves while there. After the raising up, an elaborate collation was served.

The plan had been to go to Rahway as stated in the Daily Press, but at the last moment it was decided to go to Elizabeth, as the Red Men there do not meet as often as those of Rahway, but did meet last evening.

EARLY INTELLIGENCE.

—Unity Lodge, No. 102, Knights of Pythias, meets tomorrow night.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness, caused by catarrh, that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

W. H. Terry returned home Monday after spending several weeks with John Terry at Newton, Conn.

SEAGOING TORPEDO BOATS.

They Must Have the Remarkable Speed of 26 Knots an Hour.

The navy is to have three seagoing torpedo boats with the almost incredible speed of 26 nautical miles per hour. By an act of Congress, approved March 2, 1895, provision was made for the construction of these vessels, not to exceed in cost $175,000 each. As Government superintendence, preparation of plans, and the providing and installing of ordnance ontfit must be compassed by that appropriation, the bidding basis will be somewhere near $150,000, and the present cheapness of material makes it possible to get them constructed within that margin.

The boats will have twin screws, each actuated by its own triple expansion engine working in a separate water-tight compartment. These engines will be of the vertical inverted cylinder, direct acting, triple expansion type, each with a high pressure cylinder 14 1-2 inches diameter, an intermediate pressure cylinder 23 inches diameter, and two low pressure cylinders, each 25 3-4 inches diameter; the stroke of all pistons being 18 inches. The indicated horse power of the propelling engines will be about 3,200 when the engines are making 395 revolutions per minute, which it is estimated will give the vessel a speed of about 26 knots.

Beyond Repair.

He entered the agency agitated and perturbed.

"Isn't this the firm I bought a machine of," he asked.

"Yes, sir, it is," replied the salesman.

"Well, didn't your man leave this card?"

"Yes, sir, what can we do for you?"

"That's just what I came to find out. My typewriter has eloped with a chewing gum drummer."

And he sat moping his head with his handkerchief while they gently broke it to him that they could do nothing for him under the circumstances.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Carpenter Kane has just purchased a new lady'y wheel for his wife from F. L. C. Martin.

Mrs. Warren Marsh, of Second place, is now the owner of a new ladies Alladin bicycle.

A special meeting of the Crescent Wheelmen will be held at their clubhouse tomorrow evening.

F. L. C. Martin and Volney F. Green spent Sunday at South Beach, going and coming on their wheels.

James Voorhees, of Madison avenue, is the owner of a new Relay Special wheel. With its coat of maroon enamel it is very pretty.

J. C. VanDyke, of East Front street, has just purchased a new 26½-inch frame Columbia. He finds it of great use in his business of a traveling salesman.

T. A. Cuming, of Putnam avenue, left for Asbury Park on his wheel this morning. He will return in the afternoon. Friday he leaves for a wheeling trip to Lake Hopatcong.

Orville T. Waring, of Willow avenue, and Arthur Peck, of Myrtle avenue, went on their bicycles to Morristown yesterday. They had a very pleasant ride, but found plenty of hills.

Mr. Egel, of Bound Brook, rode to Plainfield on two wheels yesterday, that is in riding over a stump of a tree he broke his wheel and then borrowed a friend's to conclude his journey.

The Eldridge Bicycle Company received yesterday one of the prettiest wheels Plainfield has seen for some time. It is the latest 19-pound bluerim Columbia racing wheel and it is a beauty.

Monte Scott did his share of the work in the race meet at Williamsport, Pa., yesterday afternoon. In the two-mile handicap, starting from the eighty-yard mark, he secured second, and in the two-mile open finished fourth.

Not the Blame of the Gong.

The irregularity of the fire-gong in blowing the right box this morning was owing to the fact that when the tests were made last week two batteries were disconnected and through an error were not reattached to the wires, thus failing to generate enough power to blow the gong. The difficulty has been remedied.

The Dog Still Lives.

Leslie Tingley, of Orchard place, is suffering with an injured arm caused by trying to annihilate a dog while riding on his wheel near Dunellen yesterday.

—John Neighbor and A. B. Dunavan went to New York yesterday and met the New Haven boat on which was a beautiful young pony billed to Marion S. Ackerman. They drove him to Plainfield, arriving here about midnight.

—The fish in the water at Lambert's Mills suffered yesterday afternoon for three expert anglers, J. Hervey Doane, Clarence Teel, and Dick Stevens, spent a few hours at the place, and succeeded in landing a large number of the finny tribe.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with pneumonia succeeding la grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.

Shiloh's Cure, the great cough and croup cough, is in great demand. Pocket size contains 25 doses, only 25c. Children love it. Sold by all druggists.

Captain Sweeney, U. S. A., San Diego, Cal., says: "Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy is the first medicine I have ever found that would do me any good." Price 50c. Sold by all druggists.

Karl's Clover Root will purify your blood, clear your complexion, regulate your bowels and make your head clear as a bell; 25c, 50c and $1. Sold by all druggists.

ENGLISH PRISONS.

OSCAR WILDE LANGUISHES IN ONE AND DOES TREADMILL WORK.

The Remarkable Transformation in the Erstwhile Esthete. Ill-Dressed, Shaved and Shorn. He Will Have to Do Labor Equivalent to Climbing 11 Miles.

Who would have thought not long ago that Oscar Wilde, the apostle of dainty estheticism, the wit and poet, feted everywhere, and even worshiped at times by people of position and discernment, would come to sweating on a prison treadmill? Yet there he is, shaven and shorn, rough clothing chafing his flesh that once knew only the softest fabrics, the associate of vulgar and brutal criminals.

The rules about communication with the outside world are exceedingly severe. He can neither write nor receive a letter from his friends or family until three months of his sentence have been served, and then he may write and receive one letter a month, and be visited for twenty minutes by three friends.

The treadmill is the great bugaboo of the English convict. It is almost barbaric in its severity, and savors somewhat of the torture inflicted upon unfortunates 500 years ago. It is shaped somewhat like the wheel of a stern-wheel steamer, or the paddle-wheel of a ferryboat, except that the treadmill is considerably wider than they are. For the accommodation of the many involuntary workers at a height which a man of ordinary physique can easily reach is a long bar of wood. When all is ready the prisoner jumps upon one of the steps of the wheel and grasps the bar with his hands. The steps are called floats in the far land of Pentonville. The weight of the men turns the wheel and as they sink down on one foot they must step up to the next float when it comes round. It is much like climbing a particularly nasty flight of steep stairs with no ending at the top.

What is more, there is no dodging or shirking the work. When the float comes round, Oscar Wilde, like all his brother felons, must step on it, otherwise he will get an ugly knock on the shins by the ever-turning wheel, which will peel the bark off from the knee to the instep. It is not pleasant work by any means. It is the kind that completely takes the heart out of the most hardened criminal. At the end of a long day of ceaselessly stepping from float to float there is nothing to show for it. Each man is nothing more than a very insignificant section of a huge mass of machinery. The work of the convicts in America is play in comparison with it. In Pentonville all that the workers of the treadmill have to look forward to is the short breathing spells permitted by the prison regulations.

The food of Pentonville Prison is not what Wilde has been accustomed to by any means. On week days the prisoners get a dish of "skilly" for breakfast. Skilly is not very palatable, being a species of tasteless mush, but it is said to be healthy. Dinner consists of a tin bowl of broth, heavily charged with grease, and a chunk of bread as heavy as the traditional lead. Supper is a very light affair, consisting of bread and milk, the milk being extremely thin and of a light blue shade, indicating an intimate acquaintance with water.

The Best Parrot Yarn Yet.

A man whose niece had coaxed him to buy her a parrot succeeded in getting a bird that was warranted a good talker. He brought it home, and, after putting it in a cage, stood before it and said: "Say uncle, Polly!" The bird did not respond, and after repeating the sentence a dozen times or more with no better success, the uncle put his hand into the cage and, grabbing the bird by the neck, shook him until his head wabbled around, all the time yelling to him: "Say uncle, goll darn you, say uncle!" The bird looked limp and lifeless, and, disgusted with his purchase, the old fellow took the parrot out into the yard where he had a coop of thirty chickens. Thrusting the half dead bird in with the chickens, he exclaimed: "There, by gosh! You'll say uncle before you get out!" Next morning the uncle went out to see how the parrot was getting on. Looking into the coop he counted twenty-nine dead chickens and in the center of the coop stood the parrot on one foot, holding the thirtieth chicken by the neck and shaking it till its head wabbled, and screaming: "Say uncle, goll darn yer, say uncle!"—New Bedford Standard.

In the Lion's Cage.

Menagerie lions are treated to strange and sometimes attractive spectacles nowadays. In Paris the serpentine dance has been frequently performed in the cages of the supposed monarchs of the desert, exhibited at fairs. At Tallins, in the Isere, two barbers and a shoemaker entered a cage of lions, accompanied by the tamer, in order to win a wager. One of the barbers sat down in a chair, was lathered by his colleague and shaved by the shoemaker, who wielded the razor with the most consummate coolness and skill. The trio were enthusiastically acclaimed as they emerged from the cage and won the wager.

The Bicycle Era.

As an evidence of the grip which the bicycle has on this community—if any evidence were necessary—a gentleman in Englewood tells this: "I had arranged to have a new walk laid in front of my house, and it was necessary to do some other work in connection therewith. The morning the work was to commence the contractor arrived—on his wheel. A few moments later the plumber came—on a wheel. Then the carpenter arrived—on a wheel. And next the foreman of the gang—on a wheel."—Chicago Tribune.

What a pity it is that loafing isn't paid for just as hard work is. But there would be a good many grumblers even then.

ODD FACTS ABOUT BALDNESS.

Hair as a Sign of Intellectuality and Some New Stories About Shining Pates.

A French doctor, who has been studying the subject for many years, says that out of a hundred people from twenty to thirty years of age, taken at hazard, twenty-seven will be found to be bald. Women conceal such a deficiency with great cleverness, and are not often detected, but while the loss of hair is not so prevalent among them as among men yet if the proportion of the fair sex whose heads are as smooth as doorknobs could be accurately learned the results would undoubtedly be startling. Between the ages of thirty and forty the percentage of bald heads raises to forty-seven.

The critical period, however, is between forty and fifty years. Out of a hundred chance subjects, but twenty-five had a fairly good growth of hair, the other seventy-five being almost destitute entirely of capillary covering. When the sixtieth year is past, this French doctor asserts, it is rare to find a man who has enough hair on the top of his head to make parting possible.

It is consoling to know, however, that this affliction is an almost certain sign of intellectual activity, for brain workers are most liable to it. On the other hand, people of the laboring classes, who gain their bread with their hands, are generally exempt from baldness until they have passed beyond the sixty year mark.

Why the average workingman, who takes no particular care of his head thatch, should be able to preserve it longer than the man who spends much time in having it brushed and shampooed is a mystery not yet explained.

Among horses it has been remarked that the mane of the thoroughbred is thinner than that which ornaments the neck of his humbler brother who drags a dray or a horse car.

Another curious thing is that a strong growth of hair is generally indicative of longevity. Most centenarians have extraordinary heads of hair.

There is no rule without its exception, however. Bismarck is an octogenarian of wonderful vitality, but almost utterly bald.

A FIGHT FOR PRINCIPLE.

Like Most Such Encounters, It Cost More Than It Came to.

"Now you have cut my hair," said the shorn countryman to the barber, "kindly collect the hair from the floor, wrap it up in paper and hand it to me."

"I shall do no such thing," the barber replied firmly, "that hair belongs to me. I cut it off, didn't I? That makes it mine."

The customer got excited.

"Don't you know," he exclaimed hotly, "that under the common law of the land anything that grows on my head is as much mine as are the contents of the head? In every copyright case it has been settled that the product of a man's brain is his? Don't you know that?"

Now it was the barber's turn to get mad.

"If hair is the product of your brain," he shouted, "I guess it is about all it does produce. What do you want the blamed hair for? I don't need it myself, but I'm fighting for a principle, and I'd spend my last cent to do you out of that hair."

"None of your business what I want it for," howled the countryman. "Perhaps I need it to stuff pillows with, and perhaps I'm a wholesale manufacturer of wigs. That's none of your business. I'll admit that I don't need the hair. What then? I'm fighting for principle, too. Gimme my hair."

They shook their fists in each other's faces. It took a policeman to separate them. The barber was so upset by the scene that he went out and got drunk, while the countryman, thoroughly aroused and reckless, dashed up the avenue and got buncoed by the first man who sighted him, and then grew muddled and was run over by a cable car. Such are the ills of life. For these trifles do men wildly battle.

Really the Author's Fault.

Farmer Hodge (reading novelette)—I'm out of all patience with that Gladys Fitzillwyn in the story—the way she's abusing her beautiful eyes. She doesn't deserve to have none.

Mrs. Hodge—What's she been doing now?

Farmer Hodge—This book is full of it. First she threw her eyes up to the ceiling, and then let them drop on the floor; then she darted them down on a long corridor and rested them on the cool waters of the lagoon. Then she must have called them back somehow, for it says she bathed them in sad, salt tears, wiped them and swept them with long lashes. Once she was fool enough to rivet them on the dome, and when I left off she was fixing them on a mantelpiece.—Pearson's Weekly.

Just Like a Woman.

A young and well dressed woman entered Charing Cross telegraph office the other day and wrote out a dispatch to be sent to Manchester. She read it over, reflected for a moment, and then dropped it on the floor and wrote a second. This she also threw away, but was satisfied with the third and sent it off. The three telegrams read:

First—"Never let me hear from you again!"

Second—"No one expects you to return!"

Third—"Come home, dearest—all is forgiven!"—Pearson's Weekly.

A Case of Cents.

Jigley—You said you would never go and see your girl again until she sent for you. And now I hear you sent to her.

Wigley—I don't care a cent who sent. I sent to see if she'd sent, and she sent to say she had not sent, but would have sent to see if I'd sent if I had not sent to see if she'd sent first.

What is poetry? It is not a matter of p[illegible] but of [illegible].

YOUNG LIONESS FOR A PET.

Mrs. Callahan Has One Which is Playful and Obedient.

The pet of the household of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Callahan, of Bridgeport, Conn., is a nine months old lioness. She and her inseparable companion, a Mexican hairless dog, romp about the house, play in the yard like frolicsome kittens, and if the front gate happens to be open they take a run about the streets.

The name of the lioness is Maud S., and the neighbors think that some day she will make a record, and a few of them are begenning to pity the dog. Mrs. Callahan, however, has no fear of the dog, as the animals show a real affection for each other. They sleep together but do not eat together.

When Maud S. eats her lion nature asserts itself and her growls assure her a wide berth. A few days ago she and the dog had a slight difference of opinion as to which should occupy a certain spot in their joint bed.

Maud S. growled and snapped, and so did the dog, which got real angry, and took her by the nape of the neck and shook her into submission. Then Maud S. went to sleep with the dog's head on her shoulder.

Maud S. was brought up on a bottle. At a tender age she was left an orphan, her mother dying after eating Maud S.'s brother. About five months ago meat was first given the lioness, and with her meat came growls.

When she is hungry she will follow Mrs. Callahan about the house until she gets her meat. If Mrs. Callahan does not notice her she will pull her dress. If she is annoying Mrs. Callahan will raise her voice, and Maud S. will scamper out of the house or to her bed.

She was running about the street yesterday when Mrs. Callahan went to the front gate and called "Maudie! Maudie!" She was some distance from the house, inspecting an empty tomato can, but as soon as she heard her name she straightened out her tail and ran toward Mrs. Callahan, who ordered her into the back yard. And she went.

The children of the neighborhood have not yet attempted any familiarity with her. They gather about her, inspect her with interest and pinch her tail if they want to hear her growl.

Mr. Callahan has taught Maud many tricks and says that it was not much trouble. She is very intelligent, seems anxious to learn, and once she gets a thing into her head she never forgets it.

She weighs at least sixty pounds now, and is as fat as a pug dog. She is now old enough to have dangerous looking teeth, and her claws would work much harm if she used them. She has all the traits of her family, a finely developed head, and Mr. Callahan, who is an authority on lions, says she promises to make a splendid specimen of her sex when full grown.

She now runs about the house at will and will be allowed to do so until a year old. Then she will probably begin to get ugly and it will be necessary to chain her up.—New York Herald.

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freemyer House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for any kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

It May Do as Much For You.

Mr. Fred Miller of Irving, Ill., writes that he had a Severe Kidney trouble for many years, with severe pains in his back and also that his bladder was affected. He tried many so-called Kidney cures but without any good result. About a year ago he began use of Electric Bitters and found relief at once. Electric Bitters is especially adapted to cure all Kidney and Liver troubles and often gives almost instant relief. One trial will prove our statement. Price only 50c for large bottle, at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the diseases for which it is intended, and he knows it. It is for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

The Ideal Panacea.

James L. Francis, Alderman, Chicago, says: "I regard Dr. King's New Discovery as an Ideal Panacea for Coughs, Colds and Lung Complaints, having used it in my family for the last five years, to the exclusion of physicians' prescriptions or other preparations."

Rev. John Burgus, Keokuk, Iowa, writes: "I have been a minister of the Methodist Episcopal church for fifty years or more, and have never found anything so beneficial or that gave me such speedy relief as Dr. King's New Discovery." Try this Ideal Cough Remedy now. Trial bottle free at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared, and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. Marlow, M. D., Tamaroa, Ill. For sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

Chamberlain's is the best of all. Vincent S. Barkl, of Danbury, Iowa, has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy whenever in need of a medicine for coughs and colds, for the past five years and says: "It always helps me out. If anyone asks me what kind of cough medicine I use, I reply, Chamberlain's, that is the best of all. 25 and 50c. bottles for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues, T. S. BREACH OF PROMISE CHARGED.

Mrs. Allen Says McInerney Agreed to Marry Her.

Patrick McInerney, aged twenty, was arrested in Passaic yesterday on a charge of breach of promise made by Susan Allen, a widow, of Summit. She went before Justice Jacobs, of Elizabeth, and swore the prisoner betrayed her under promise of marriage. She said she became acquainted with McInerney last May in Ireland, where she had gone on a visit, and paid his passage to this country.

He has two sisters living in Passaic, and when they heard, by a letter from their mother, that he had sailed for New York, they went to Ellis Island to inquire for him, and learned he had landed the day before and went away with his cousin. Then the sisters traced him to Summit. They persuaded him to accompany them to Passaic.

One of the sisters and her brother-in-law were in Elizabeth yesterday afternoon. They saw Justice Jacobs, who told them they would better consult a lawyer. They said Mrs. Allen was scheming to get a young husband, and they felt confident that their relative was the victim of a plot. They promised to return to Elizabeth today to secure his release.

Excise Prosecution Compromised.

The Rahway City Council at its meeting last night made a compromise with the eleven hotel and saloon men who were accused of violating the Sunday law. The men agreed to give a bond to the city that in case the Supreme Court rendered an adverse decision in the test case of George Lambert, which has been certioraried before that body, the other dealers would all pay the fine of $20 each and costs, which the ordinance imposes for Sunday selling. The contention of Lambert is that the ordinance is defective.

Open Barber Shops Boycotted.

The Journeymen Barbers' Association of North Hudson has decided to boycott all the barber shops in Union Hill adjacent towns that are open after eight o'clock in the evening. The barbers paraded the streets at night and distributed circulars calling upon the citizens to aid in the early closing movement. They intend to keep up the boycott against the shops that that refuse to close until they are successful.

The Baby Parade.

The babv parade at Asbury Park is scheduled for the first or second week in August. Last year the parade was in charge of Senator Bradley's niece. Who will manoeuvre the babies this year is still an open question. One thing, however, is practically agreed upon—the brick path instead of the board walk. This will enable the thousands to witness the procession without the use of the bleachers.

A Musical Run.

About twenty-five of the cyclists of the New Brunswick Y. M. C. A., came to Plainfield last evening, on a club run. After stopping for a few moments at the Y. M. C. A. building, the party adjourned to Tier's Lake House where they enjoyed some of his delicious ice cream. The riders then started back for New Brunswick. One of the party furnished music on a bugle.

He Took the Hub.

A young cyclist from the borough had a narrow escape from being run over by a trolley car yesterday afternoon. He was caught between a wagon and a car on East Front street, and preferred to run into the hub of the wheels instead of the car. He escaped with a bruised hand.

Can't Stay Away From Plainfield.

Meyer Liechentritt, formerly of this city, but lately of Newark, moved back to Plainfield yesterday with his family, and has taken Mrs. Neal's house on Central avenue near Front street. He now represents Sternberg, of Newark, and will have an office at his residence.

The Church's Vacation.

Next Sunday will be the date of the last services in the Congregational church until September. During August the church will be closed for repairs and the new carpets will also be laid.

After the Count.

"Count" J. K. Van Ness is still confined to his home by illness, and Constable W. R. Mattox is keeping close watch as he has a warrant for his arrest, which will be served as soon as he is able to go out.

Evening Court.

The case of Hughes against Moore on contract will be tried before Justice Newcorn this evening at eight o'clock.

TURMOIL OF EXCITEMENT.

PROMINENT CITIZENS INVOLVED IN THE SOMERSET BANK TROUBLE.

Subpœnas Served On Well-Known Men Who Were Members of the Board of Directors—Bitter Feeling Aroused.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, N. J., July 2t5h.—Somerset county was thrown into a turmoil yesterday when Sheriff George A. Dilts served twenty of the most prominent men in the county with subpœnas. All the gentlemen served were members of the Board of Directors of the defunct Somerset County Bank, and the suit in Chancery was brought by Receiver Johnson for the benefit of the stockholders to recover monies, which the bill charges were lost by the illegal and fraudulent conduct of the directors. The bill charges also that the directors discounted notes of irresponsible parties in sums footing up to $50,000.

It is alleged that J. N. Pidcock, and the companies in which he was largely interested, were allowed to borow $60,000 from the bank upon paper of little value; and that the directors, as custodians of the stockholders money, are responsible for the losses. Most of the directors are men of unblemished reputation, and their friends claim that they were misled as to the worth of the endorsements, and that they have become involved in the present difficulty because of their confidence in a few of the directors who controlled the management of the bank affairs.

Among the defenders who were summoned today are Calvin Corle, a rich farmer of Neshanic, J. Nelson Pidcock, John B. Voorhees, Abraham S. Cox, Hon. John D. Bartine, Judge of the Common Pleas of Somerset county, ex-Congressman Alvah A. Clark, Alexander G. Anderson, a large lumber dealer of Somerville, Geo. S. VanArsdale, Stephen K. Large, James H. Wilson, James P. Major, Job C. Kenyon, owner of a big foundry at Raritan, August Miller, John V. Davis, William A. McMurtry, ex-Senator William J. Keys, Larue Vredenburgh, Jr., and Hugh K. Gaston, as administrators.

Owing to the prominence of the parties involved, the very bitter feeling now existing between the directors and the stockholders and the fact that many of the directors feel bitterly toward each other, the taking of testimony promises to be the most sensational in the history of this county.

HE WAS NOT ASKED.

The Slight Was Too Much and the Horse Lay Down.

There was one who was not invited to go on the excursion this morning, and evidently felt the slight, and that one was the horse attached to W. S. Ayers' express wagon. Soon after the excursion train pulled out, when the horse found out that he had been neglected, he lay down where he was on the street leading to the freight house and wept. Some say that he tripped over a stone and fell, but to those who could see the scalding tears run down his face, the reason was very apparent. A shaft was broken by his fall.

A Haymaker Delegate.

At the regular meeting of Paugh-Caugh-Naugh-Sinque Tribe, I.R.O.M., last evening a new team was appointed who will meet next Monday night for practice. The Haymakers Association met afterward and Deputy President John H. Carney installed the officers-elect. Charles I. Young was elected representative to the National Association of Haymakers which meets at Trenton in August.

A New Bridge Needed.

The old bridge over the Elizabeth river at South street, Elizabeth, is one of the county's charges that is at present occupying a part of the attention of the Board of Freeholders. This old structure is scarcely adequate for the travel that daily passes over it, and there is a strong movement on foot to have it replaced by a bridge of modern construction and ample capacity.

Plainfield's Experts.

Carl Walz and F. K. Fish, Jr., of the Hillside Tennis Club of this city, go to Westfield Saturday to contest in a match for doubles against the tennis experts of Westfield and Elizabeth.

Two By Two.

Frank L. C. Martin, the popular dealer in bicycles, has one of the bars by which two wheels are fastened together and run as one wheel, something like a tricycle.

Acting Chief Marshal.

During Chief Marshal VanHorn's vacation Marshal Mark Doud will be acting chief.

POOR FIRE PROTECTION.

Clinton Avenue Has Not Adequate Water Supply for Fires.

The urgent need of an adequate water supply in the vicinity of Clinton avenue was never shown to better advantage than at the McCarthy fire yesterday. The citizens in that part of the city are obliged to pay their tax to the city and also a higher rate of insurance, simply because they have no water for fire protection. It was found necessary at yesterday's fire to lay 1,500 feet of hose from Coriell's pond to the burning barn, and then they were not able to get water until the buildings were destroyed. There are a large number of houses in that locality that would under most circumstances burn down before any quantity of water could be obtained to extinguish the flames.

The residents should apply at once to the City Council for fire hydrants before a more serious fire occurs and destroys a greater amount of property.

A PLAUSIBLE DEFENSE.

A Novel Claim Will be Set Up to Save Freehill's Neck.

It is reported that a novel and yet seemingly effectual and common sense defense will be made by the counsel of Frank Freehill, the man charged with the murder of Special Officer Jewell, of Rahway, last March. It is well-known that in many of the small inland towns officers, and particularly special officers, are not uniformed and do not generally even display their badge when they desire to make an arrest, preferring to cow their man into submission by a degree of officiousness that is as aggravating as it is uncalled for.

But whether or not Jewell was possessed of this disposition when the raid was made on the hobos it is known that he appeared in citizens clothes. It will be maintained that when Freehill was being run down by the officer, for really no serious crime, he had no knowledge of Jewell being an officer, and fearing that he would receive injury from the man, if they came in contact, he turned and shot him in self defense.

The Chief's New Brougham.

The Asbury Park Journal published the following about a well known man in Plainfield a few days ago:

Chief Leggett was in Ocean Grove last Friday when the alarm was rung for the fire on Main street and First avenue. He knew if he walked over to Asbury Park he would be late, and as for running all the way—well, the Chief couldn't stand it. Near by was a garbage wagon. He climbed on the seat and bribed the driver to bring him over to Asbury Park with all possible speed. The Chief was one of the early arrivals at the fire, but few knew how he had hustled, and under what difficulties he covered the ground.

Prevented Another Fire.

During the progress of the fire at James McCarty's yesterday the wind carried the burning sparks to the house occupied by Mr. Carver, 500 feet away, and ignited the roof. Several carpenters working for Jeremiah Manning on Chapot's chamois skin factory hurried to the structure and extinguished the flames. Samuel Karney heroically climbed up the side of the house on the lightning rod.

Best Batters in the League.

The batting averages of the players in the National Baseball League published yesterday show that the average of Keeler, of Baltimore, is 406, and Turner, of Philadelphia, 402. These are the only two in the league who average over 400. This is especially gratifying to Plainfielders, as they commenced their ball careers in this city.

May Be He Stole to be Light.

Complaint was made to Chief Van Horn yesterday by Henry Windham at the Manhattan Hotel, that Henry Vanderveer, colored, had stolen an electric light lamp from the hotel and refused to return it. Vanderveer was seen and promised to promptly bring back the same.

In a Critical Condition.

George Dealman, of North avenue, who has been very ill, grew worse yesterday and his cries of agony attracted the attention of passersby. Dr. Zeglio was called and relieved the man's suffering. He is in a very critical condition.

She Knew It Was Comfortable.

Passers-by on West Front street were amused yesterday afternoon at Lederer's cat, who climbed into the hammock which was on exhibition and went to sleep there until she was unceremoniously turned out.

Don't Fail to Stop.

Don't fail to stop at the ice cream festival to be given by the Sunday-school of the First Church of Christ this evening, on the lawn owned by Mr. Morris, corner of Front and Liberty streets.

THROWN FROM A WAGON.

The Turn was Too Sharp and Dunavan Dislocated His Shoulder.

It often happens that the most careless men escape from an accident without injury, while the careful man receives a serious injury and so it was with D. S. Dunavan, the tinner of East Front street. Yesterday he was riding in his wagon up East Third street and attempted to turn into Church street. The turn was sharp and the wheel passed under the body of the wagon but the load brought it very low and just at the wrong moment the wheel caught and the wagon was overturned. Dunavan, who is a very careful driver did not see what had happened until he felt himself shot into the air. He struck the ground heavily with part of the load on top of him and when he tried to move he found his shoulder had been dislocated.

The young boy who works in Dunavan's shop was in the wagon with him and was thrown out but sustained no serious injury. Dunavan was also badly bruised but he managed to walk to his home at the corner of East Second and Church streets. The horse ran but was caught after going a block. Dr. D. C. Adams was called and the injured man repaired as much as possible. He is now getting along very well.

PROPOSED TROLLEY LINE.

Will Start from Trimbley and Connect With Trunk Lines.

A new trolley line is proposed in Union county. It will start from Trimbley, and, going across the county, touch Crawford and Linden, connecting at Cranford with the proposed trunk line of trolleys for Elizabeth and Plainfield, continuing across the county to Springfield and Summit. The line would thus connect with the following railroads: Long Branch division of the Central, Pennsylvania at Linden, Baltimore and Ohio, Lehigh Valley, and main line of the Central at Cranford, and the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western at Summit. By this course the county roads would not be used, but the right of way through farms, etc., would have to be purchased.

Wholesale Robberies.

Burglars entered the houses of Mrs. Stevens, O. P. Button, John R. Laggren and Mrs. Ande, in Elizabeth, on Monday night, and carried off about a wagonload of provisions. They also packed up the silverware in two houses preparatory to taking that also, but were frightened away before they could accomplish their purpose. The police knew nothing of the robberies until yesterday afternoon.

Most of Them Young People.

A cloudy sky kept many from going on the excursion of the Trinity Reformed church to Asbury Park this morning, but as it was the fourteen cars provided were all comfortably filled while several were crowded. There was an unusual proportion of young people that went on the excursion, of whom a number were from other churches.

The Little Joker Market.

Sam Frazee, at the sea-food market, Park avenue, is selling fish at the following prices for today and Friday: Weakfish, 6 cents; bluefish, 8 cents; halibut, 20 cents; Spanish mackerel, 12 cents; codfish, 10 cents; sea bass, 8 cents; all delivered.

Honors at Asbury Park.

The Asbury Park Evening Breeze publishes an account of a unique euchre party given at the Grand Central Monday evening, in which Mrs. W. A. Coddington captured the first ladies prize and Judge Coddington the second gentleman's prize.

Relics of the Red Men.

While working about his Highland farm a few days ago Henry Rogers found a Mohegan battle ax and spear head. They are now on exhibition in J. A. Smith's grocery storry.

Three Out of Six.

A new rule has been made at the Y. M. C. A. only allowing members the privileges of the gymnasium on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, during August.

Punished Enough.

A man named Gallagher, who spent yesterday in the rookery for being drunk and disorderly, was released last night by Mayor Gilbert.

His First Excursion.

Ex-Postmaster Wallace Vail went on his first excursion this morning with the Trinity church people to Ocean Grove.

Guarding the Bank.

Special Policeman McCormick is doing regular night duty at the First National Bank in the old post office building.

UNCLE SAM'S MAN MARRIED.

QUIET WEDDING OF MISS STORR TO JAMES MULLEN.

The Ceremony Performed in Their Own Home, Surrounded By a Few Near Relatives—Congratulations.

A very quiet but pretty home wedding took place last evening at the home of the groom in Manning's flats on West Front street, when Miss Kate Storr was married to Letter-carrier James Mullen. The ceremony was performed at 7:45 by Rev. G. Kennedy Newell in the presence of a few relatives. The bride was becomingly attired in a gown of pearl gray, with bangle trimmings, while the bridesmaid, Mrs. Frank Storr, wore a gown of white dotted swiss. The best man was Frank Storr. After the ceremony supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Mullen received many handsome and useful presents from friends along Mr. Mullen's delivery route. His fellow-carriers gave him an elegant dining room set of furniture, and among the other gifts were a plush rocker, banquet lamp, silver ware, cut glass, a box of choice cut flowers and five-hundred pansies.

The happy couple will enjoy their bridal tour a little later when Mr. Mullen gets his vacation. He received many congratulations this morning as he left mail on his route.

FELL OFF THE GANG-PLANK.

Miss Rose Tiquin Suffers An Accident on Her Return From the Island.

As the excursion boat which carried St. Mary's church of this city, to Glen Island yesterday made her landing at the Jersey City pier last night the excursionists were all anxious to get off the boat and in their haste Miss Rose Tiquin, who lives at the home of Mrs. Daniel T. VanBuren at 810 Central avenue, was crowded off the gang-plank and fell in the water, owing to the absence of guard-rails as protection.

One of the deck hands and Committeeman Patrick Diver very quickly rescued her. She received a thorough drenching and several cuts and scratches. When Plainfield was reached a local physician took several stitches in a gash in her head caused by the fall. Although Miss Tiquin was very much frighted there were no serious injuries as a result.

Water Melon Closed the Party.

Miss Mabell Force, of West Fourth street, entertained her school friends, Miss Bertha Thorn, Miss Etta Raybert, Miss Marion Edith Darby and Miss M. Alice Macdonald, of Jersey City, last evening, at supper. The evening was passed in a sociable way with college songs, music and recitations, in which Miss Raybert is a well-known success. Although this one being a dove party all expressed themselves as having just as good a time, especially with the water melon with which the evening closed.

They Understook Grant.

Two Arabs were arrested last evening for peddling on the Boulevard without a license. They were brought before Mayor Gilbert last evening, but as neither he nor any of the police could speak Arabic and the peddlers could not speak English not much was done. Sentence was suspended and the fact pointed out to them by Chief of Police Grant that they must leave town. They took the hint and went flying down the railroad as fast their legs could carry them.

Novel Sewer Test.

Constructing Engineer Gavett and assistants are this afternoon making a novel test of the Putnam avenue sewer main to find out whether it is clear of all obstructions and dirt. A hose is run into a manhole and the main filled with a heavy volume of water, and then a wooden ball six inches in diameter is dropped in. If carried through with the water to the next manhole, it proves the pipe to be clear. The mains throughout the city will be tested by that system.

Work on the Trolley Commenced.

The Brunswick Traction Company began work on the trolley road in New Brunswick a day or two ago. Two hundred men were put at work on the extension which is to run from the steamboat dock and join the present line at George street. The company expects to have the extension in operation with horse-cars by next Sunday.

Funeral of Rev. Mr. Day.

The funeral of the Rev. William Day, pastor of the Rutherford Methodist Episcopal church, was held yesterday afternoon at the parsonage in that city, fifty clergymen, including four former pastors of the Rutherford church, being present.

A TEMPERANCE DAY.

August Fourteenth Set Down as Such by New Jersey.

The afternoon session of the Grand Division of the Sons of Temperance yesterday was largely devoted to hearing reports of the different branches, all of which were very encouraging. Friendship Division, No. 205, of Camden, being in the ascendancy in numbers.

The entire number of delegates present were sixty.

It was decided to hold the next quarterly meeting in New Brunswick, Wednesday, October 23d, and August 14th was set as Temperance Day throughout the State. The sessions, both morning and afternoon, were very interesting and helpful, and Howell Division, of Plainfield, will no doubt receive many members as a result of the meetings.

A WALK TO THE ROCK.

A Party Bring Back Many Souviners of a Delightful Afternoon.

Washington Rock is a delightful point of observation as Washington himself discovered and so it is to be expected that the young people of this city and the borough should take advantage of it. And yesterday afternoon a party of North Plainfield young people enjoyed a delightful afternoon's outing in a walk to the Rock. The party started at about 2:30, and returned shortly after six, bringing with them many mementos of their trip. The gay party consisted of Miss Ethel Marsh and Miss Harriet Lounsbury, of Harlem, Miss Phyllis Gilmour, of Brooklyn, and Miss Josie E. Hall, Miss Fannie Western, Charles Hazeltine, Charles C. Western and Robert Turrill.

WARM RECEPTION AWAITS THEM.

Chief Grant Has His Eye on a Gang of Suspicious Characters.

The police have been after a gang of suspicious characters in the eastern end of the city for some time but without much success until last evening when when Chief Grant discovered a gang of men in a clump of trees near Leland and North avenues. Although all alone he started to investigate and the five or six men who were there took to their heels as fast as possible.

A carriage was passing and getting in Grant started in pursuit but they took to the fields where it was impossible to follow. A warm reception awaits the men when they appear again.

The Usual Way.

As is usual with the Courier-News when they try to tell a story, they mix it up generally. Last evening's paper stated that Assistant Chief Martin did not hear the alarm blown and consequently did not go to the fire. Mr. Martin went to the fire all right on the Alert Hose wagon, and after it was all over returned to his home and took a bath. Chief Doane was testing Box 13 after the fire was over, and for some reason the alarm in Mr. Martin's house was not shut off. Ding it went, and Martin did some pretty fast hustling and got over to the engine house, to find that his bath had been rudely stopped by a test, and not a fire.

A Costly Steal.

Dell Halliday, of Illinois, was stealing a ride on a coal train near Bound Brook, this morning when he fell off a car, with the result of his left foot getting in under the wheels and being crushed.

He was brought to Plainfield in the caboose, the ambulance was sent for and he was taken to the hospital. Dr. Long found it necessary to amputate several toes. He will soon be able to leave the institution.

Pushed Off By Tramps.

Michael Kilroe, of 761 Myrtle avenue, Brooklyn, while stealing a ride through Elizabeth yesterday afternoon on a Pennsylvania railroad freight train was pushed off the car by tramps who were riding with him. He fell from the trestle, nearly eighteen feet, to the sidewalk. He was removed to the Elizabeth Hospital, where he lies in a critical condition. He is twenty-three years old.

A Pleasant Morning.

Miss Fannie Western, of Washington avenue, Miss Ethel Marsh, of Harlem, Miss Harriet Lounsbury, of Harlem, and Charles C. Western, of Washington avenue, enjoyed a pleasant ride to Cranford yesterday morning, making several calls there.

Off to Boynton Beach.

A party of young people, including Miss Nora Williams, Miss Bertha Needham, Miss Josephine Fritz, Miss Fountain, Thomas Smith and several others, went to Boynton Beach today in Conover's stage.

DARKER FOR HOLMES

Coroner's Jury at Toronto Convicts Him.

The Dominion Officials Claim To Have Abundant Evidence on Which To Hang Him and May Ask for His Extradition—Important Discoveries at the Chicago House.

Toronto, July 25.—The coroner's jury late last night returned a verdict of wilful murder against Holmes, who is charged with the killing of the Pietzel girls. The authorities claim now to have abundant evidence to assure a speedy conviction of the accused, and they will ask the Pennsylvania authorities to turn Holmes over to them that they may deal with him. Some of the officials are in favor of not asking for the surrender of the prisoner at present in view of the fact that if he was convicted and executed here the authorities in the states would give up the work of tracing the other murders of which he is believed to be guilty, and should the Pennsylvania officers fail to establish a case of murder against him, then he could be brought here.

DEVELOPMENTS AT CHICAGO.

Several New and Important Disclosures Made by the Police.

Chicago, July 25.—There have been new and important developments in the Holmes case here during the past twenty-four hours. In the first place a number of human bones were dug up yesterday by the laborers who have for several days past been excavating in the cellar at the house on the corner of Sixty-third and Wallace streets. The bones found were apparently part of the trunk of a female child. There were nineteen ribs a number of vertebrae and a piece of much corroded bone which could not be assigned to any particular part of the body on account of it being in an advanced state of decay, apparently from the action of some chemical. This bone, however, is supposed to be a portion of either a hip or a skull bone. With the partial skeleton was found a piece of torn skirt or chemise which bore marks that may or may not prove to be human blood. The sleeves of this garment were too long for the arms of a child, and although this opinion prevails that the bones were undoubtedly those of a female child, the gown would seem to warrant the conclusion that they are a part of the skeleton of a woman, the more so as it is well known that the bones of many women are little larger than those of children.

Holmes' Old Janitors Located.

Besides the finding of the supposed remains the detectives are congratulating themselves on another matter which seems hardly less important. This is the finding of the two janitors who are believed to be more or less cognizant of the crimes of the insurance swindler. Word was sent to Joe Owens of Bluffton, Ohio, and Patrick Quinlan of Evanston, to come to the Holmes building at once. The word came from Chief of Police Badenoch and was imperative. Both men obeyed at once and in the afternoon they came to the Holmes building. They were taken down into the cellar where the bones were found and asked what they knew about the matter, but both stoutly maintained their complete ignorance of the whole affair. Quinlan acted as a man who was badly scared, but Owens did not seem much disturbed. Both of these men were employed at the Holmes building in 1893, the year the Williams girls are supposed to have been murdered. Owens was the regular janitor of the building while Quinlan was a sort of jack of all trades, turning his hand to any work which came up for him to do, and Holmes with his many queer schemes kept him constantly busy.

Owens Talks Freely.

While neither man was placed under arrest, on arriving at the building both were from that time on under police surveillance. At present the detectives have nothing to hold them by, save the strong suspicions they have that the men could tell considerable about the doings of Holmes if they cared to. An examination of the men was made. Quinlan would say nothing, but Owens talked rather freely. The object of the examination was to get a few statements out of the men and then compare with those made on the final inquiry in the hope that it might be in this way ascertained whether they were sticking to the truth or not. Owens was examined by Detective Fitzpatrick, a brother of the inspector, who had charge of the Chicago end of the case. In regard to the mysterious box which by many was supposed to have been used by Holmes as a receptacle for the body of one or both of the Williams girls, Owens said:

Entered a Plot with Holmes.

"I helped to carry the trunk to the third story with Holmes and Pietzel from the depot in August, 1893, about the middle of the month. In November, 1893, in conversation with me about the insurance, he told me he wanted to keep the Williams girl in hiding; that he did not want her to be seen by any of the insurance people and that he could telegraph and get $1,000 any time. About the last of November or December 1, 1893, I assisted Holmes to establish the firm of Campbell, Yates & company for the purpose of getting insurance on the building at the southwest corner of Sixty-third and Wallace streets, which insurance he received about November, 1894. I candidly believed that he had a certain amount of influence over me. While I was with him I was always under his control. I never received my back wages."

Probably Gertrude Connor's Bones.

The bones found yesterday are believed by the central station detectives to be those of Gertrude Connor, the daughter of Mrs. Julia L. Connor, who is now thought to have been one of Holmes' victims. Mother and daughter disappeared about the same time. The bones were found in a corner of the cellar. They were covered with quicklime, but were nevertheless in a fair state of preservation. Not far away from the spot where the bones were unearthed a rusty hatchet was found, but it is not believed it was used as an instrument of violence.

Stonelle Scratched at Goodwood.

London, July 25.—Stonelle has been scratched from the entries for the race for the Stewards' cup at Goodwood.

A CASE OF MURDER.

The Young Woman's Body Found in New York Identified.

New York, July 25.—The body of the 19-year-old girl which was found Tuesday on Washington Heights was identified as Lillie Low by her father, James Low, jr., of 141 West 34th street, this city. He said she left home early in March, alleging that she could not stand the cruel treatment imposed upon her, but the father denied having maltreated her in any way. He says Lillie on leaving her home went to live with a Miss Hanson, with whom she had been very intimate for some years. He had frequently tried to induce her to return to him but without success. Dr. O'Hanlon, representing the coroner's office, made an autopsy of the girl's body. He found marks of violence upon her body which would indicate a criminal assault. It was learned that the girl had a dispute with Miss Hansen on Monday afternoon and left the house without saying anything and never returned. The police are positive it is a case of murder or suicide to hide shame. The girl was very pretty. She was born in France and came to this country four years ago. Dr. Thomas J. Briggs, Henry T. Chatney and Miss A. K. Hansen were arrested last night on warrants issued by Coroner O'Meagher, on suspicion of having knowledge of the death of the girl.

AWFUL DEATH FROM RABIES.

Bulow Saved a Little Girl and Was Himself Bitten.

Chicago, July 25.—Charles Bulow, a laborer 44 years of age, is dead on Washington avenue after suffering all the horrors of hydrophobia for four days. Bulow sacrificed his life when he saved a child from the attack of a rabid dog several months ago at Perth Amboy, N. J. The beast was about to tear the little girl with his teeth when Bulow seized her in his arms and kicked the dog. Before the brute succumbed he fastened his fangs in Bulow's leg, inflicting a painful wound which was cauterized. Bulow had left his wife, who is a domestic in the family of L. L. Buchanan in this city, to seek employment at Perth Amboy. Saturday night he appeared at Mr. Buchanan's home on Washington avenue. The man could not talk coherently, and did not remember how he got here from New Jersey. A physician declared that Bulow had the rabies. The patient had to be strapped to the bed to prevent him from tearing and biting his flesh.

CORBETT BADLY HURT.

Thrown from His Bicycle While Practising at Asbury Park.

Asbury Park, N. J., July 25.—James J. Corbett, the champion pugilist, who is spending the season at Asbury Park, met with an accident yesterday that will prevent him from training for at least two weeks. He was spinning around, the athletic grounds track at a 2:30 gait, paced by a stranger whose name he does not know. Behind Corbett was his brother Joe. Suddenly the stranger fell and Corbett went over him and Joe tumbled over both. Corbett was badly bruised and is unable to raise his right arm. His leg was cut from the hip down, and it is neccessary to support him when he walks about.

WILLIMANTIC BANK SCANDAL.

Pinkerton Detectives Placed on the Trail of Walden.

Willimantic, Conn., July 25.—The bank officials are hard at work trying to find out the true condition of the Dime Savings bank but nothing new has been discovered. Pinkertons are in charge of the case and will have Walden located by Saturday night if he is in this country. The latest theory advanced, which is believed by most of Walden's friends, is that he is demented and is roaming about the country, or has done away with himself.

SECURED ABOUT $8,000.

No Clue to the Ohio Train Robbers. Numerous Arrests Made.

Toledo, O., July 25.—There is absolutely no positive clue to the eight masked and mounted bandits who early yesterday morning held up the Chicago express on the Lake Shore road near Archibald. Numerous tramps and strangers have been arrested on suspicion, but the officers are entirely at sea. It is now understood that the bandits secured about $8,000.

DRIVEN FROM CUBA.

Chief Engineer Kilpatrick Had Entertained Rebel Leaders.

Philadelphia, July 25.—Having been invited to leave Cuba by the Spanish government for entertaining the insurgents chiefs, Engineer Kilpatrick of Juragua Iron company's mines near Santiago de Cuba arrived in this city yesterday and left for his home in Pittsburg. Complaints may be lodged at the department of state against General Campos for his arbitrary course in this connection.

Floods in Kansas.

Dodge City, Kas., July 25.—The country east of Neposta to Lakin, Kansas, has been flooded by the heavy rains which have prevailed since last Sunday. Thousands of dollars worth of bridges and flumes are lost. The Santa Fe railroad bridge, a mile from La Junta, has been damaged so that trains cannot pass and all the flumes in this region are washed out.

Contests His Father's Will.

Pawtucket, R. I., July 25.—The will of the late Robert Sherman, ex-sheriff and a prominent citizen, has been filed for probate. An appeal was taken by his son Fred Sherman, a newspaper man, who was bequeathed $100, all the rest of the estate valued at $100,000 being left to the widow and daughter.

Died of His Self-inflicted Wound.

Philadelphia, July 25.—Joseph Conner, aged 26 years, who last week shot Kate Connelly at his home because she refused to marry him and then shot himself, is dead at the Episcopal hospital. His victim, who is in the same institution, is recovering and will soon be able to leave the place.

Vigilant Splits Her Jib.

Quarantine, N. Y., July 25.—The yacht Vigilant while out for a trial spin last evening split her jib from clew to luff while off Quarantine. The main sail was quickly hauled down and the yacht proceeded under forestaysail and a baby jib top sail.

Wages Increased 20 Per Cent.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 25.—The Buffalo Furnace company has increased the wages of its employes 20 per cent. The works are running night and day.

MISS WHITNEY TO WED

A. H. Paget of St. Paul the Lucky Man.

All Newport Astir Over the News of the Engagement of the ex-Secretary of the Navy's Daughter—The Bridegroom-To-Be a Descendant of a Famous English Family.

New York, July 25.—The latest social topic of conversation in local and Newport society is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Pauline Whitney, daughter of ex-Secretary of the Navy Whitney, and Almeric H. Paget, of St. Paul, Minn. Col. G. B. M. Harvey, the ex-secretary's representative in this city, who has offices at 82 Liberty street, is said to be authority for the announcement. Col. Harvey could not be seen, but his representative said he was authorized to confirm the statement. He did not know if a date had been fixed for the marriage.

He Is Young and Prosperous.

Almeric H. Paget is a young son of a well-known English family of that name. He has lived in the west since he came to this country about fourteen years ago, and is said to have accumulated a fortune there. For several years Mr. Paget has been managing representative for a very large English real estate company with headquarters at St. Paul, Minn. He is not much over 30 years of age, and Miss Whitney is about twenty. She is really a very handsome girl, tall and very winsome in her disposition and unusually well educated.

She Is An Ornament in Society.

While Mr. Whitney was secretary of the navy his daughter visited Washington only during the holidays at Easter and Christmas, but later on she became an ornament of fashionable society with her mother, who had no rival as the acknowledged leader in the winter of 1892-93. Her mother's death in February, 1893, caused here to retire from society. She went to Europe with her friends, and while there it was reported that she was about to marry George Vanderbilt.

TO FLOCK TO THIS COUNTRY.

Russian Hebrew Emigration to the Argentine Not Satisfactory.

St. Petersburg, July 25.—The formation of groups of Russian Hebrews for emigration to the Argentine republic has ceased. Many complaints reach Russia concerning the administration of the Hebrew colony in Argentina, the want of means by which the colonists could earn a livelihood, and also of ill treatment of the colonists. A movement is now under way looking to directing the flow of emigration to the more sparsely peopled districts in the western United States.

RHODE ISLAND'S POTATO CROP.

An Old Time Blight, Caused by Fogs, Prevails.

Providence, R. I., July 25.—Unfavorable news has been received from the potato farms of the state of the condition of the potato crop. In the larger portion of Rhode Island the crop will be reduced to 60 per cent. of the average. A regular old fashioned blight, such as has not been seen in a long term of years, has prevailed, and the loss is also attributed to fogs, which have been hanging constantly along the coast for several weeks past.

Big Log Boom Breaks.

Cincinnati, O., July 25.—The Licking river boom let go yesterday afternoon. It carried with it thousands of logs, empty coal barges, flats and other floating craft that was moored to the shore. There was fastened to the shore about $22,000 worth of logs. These rafts were torn asunder and started away on the top of the flood.

Says He Can Hang Him.

Assumption, Ill., July 25.—I. L. Conner, formerly a partner with Holmes in the Chicago drug store and whose divorced wife Holmes is believed to have murdered, keeps a jewelry store here. Speaking of Holmes, Conner said: "If I should tell all I knew about Holmes it would hang him. I have seen him do things that no man on earth could or would do."

Field Trip of 13th Battalion.

Troy, N. Y., July 25.—The field trip of the 13th battalion, New York state militia, has thus far been a pronounced success. The troops are in permanent camp at Sand Lake. The feature will be a sham battle this afternoon. The men will start for Troy to-morrow morning, arriving here Saturday afternoon.

Yellow Fever Scare at Brooklyn.

Quarantine, N. Y., July 25.—In regard to a reported case of yellow fever in Williamsburg, a suburb of Brooklyn, in the person of Carl Petersen, a passenger arriving on the steamer City of Para from Colon yesterday, Dr. Doty is inclined to put but little faith in the diagnosis, but will investigate the matter at once.

League Games Yesterday.

At Cincinnati—Cincinnati, 7; New York, 9. At St. Louis—St. Louis, 4; Boston, 5. At Pittsburg—Pittsburg, 9; Baltimore, 5. At Cleveland—Cleveland, 12; Washington, 8. At Louisville — Louisville-Philadelphia game postponed on account of rain.

Gold Shipment.

New York, July 25.—Nesslage, Colgate & Co. have increased their shipments of gold by the steamship Fuerst Bismarck to $150,000. Of this total the sub-treasury furnishes $100,000 and the balance is in gold bars recently consigned to the firm by its western correspondents.

Carpet Weavers' Strike.

Philadelphia, July 25.—The carpet manufacturers held another meeting last evening and were practically unanimous in their decision not to re-open their mills until December 1 unless the men returned to work at their present rate of wages.

Killed by a Bursting Emery Wheel.

Chester, Pa., July 25.—The bursting of an emery wheel at the edge tool works of H. B. Black & Co., yesterday caused the instant death of Frank Newman, an employe.

EXPECT A FIGHT TO-DAY

Troops May Not Reach the Scene in Time.

Settlers May Be Able To Defend Themselves Until Assistance Arrives—The Bannocks Are Misused. Their Right To Hunt, Guaranteed by Treaty, Denied Them.

Washington, July 25.—The secretary of war at the request of the secretary of the interior has issued orders to General Coppinger for the dispatch of troops to Jacksons Hole, the scene of Indian disturbances in Wyoming. The full orders telegraphed to General Coppinger are for him to issue the necessary orders for the movement of such a force of troops as he shall deem requisite for carrying out the orders of the department, to prevent conflict between the Indians and the white settlers and to return the Indians to their reservations. General Coppinger is instructed to proceed to the scene of the disturbance and to personally direct the operations of the troops. He is also advised that if he should desire the use of troops from other departments on account of their closer proximity, he shall indicate to the war department the special force desired.

Indians' Rights Interfered With.

Agent Seter wired from Fort Hall that he had investigated the troubles between the Indians and settlers in Wyoming, and advised that troops be sent there immediately to protect the law-abiding settlers. He added: "The lawless element seems determined to cause conflict with the Indians. The settlers have killed four to seven Indians, which has incensed the Indians, who have gathered to the number of 200 or 300 near Fall river, and refuse to return to their reservation. I find that the Indians have killed game unlawfully, according to the laws of Wyoming, though not unlawfully according to the treaty of the Indians with the United States, thus usurping the prerogatives of the settlers, which caused the trouble. Nothing but the intervention of soldiers will be able to settle the difficulty and save lives of innocent persons and the destruction of property." If the state of Wyoming had no right to make laws to conflict with the treaty, which is generally believed, then the Indians' rights to hunt are illegally interfered with.

May Fight To-day.

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 25.—The only official news from the scene of the Indian trouble received by Governor Richards last night was the following message from Adjutant General Stitzer of the state militia, who is stationed at Market Lake, Idaho, as the governor's representative to keep him informed of the situation: "Met Indian captain of police in Leton basin yesterday with thirty-five horses, hurrying out with all possible speed. Saw him again at 11 o'clock last night. He says he cannot control the Indians who will fight to-day."

Troops May Be Too Late.

Governor Richards says he thinks a fight between the settlers and Indians will occur before troops can get on the ground, that if the settlers are well provided with ammunition he thinks they will hold their own until aid arrives. There are sixty-five able-bodied men in the Jackson Hole settlement, all skilful in the use of arms and accustomed to the frontier. These with thirty-five women and forty children, are all at Marysvale, Wyo., the only town in the region. To reach this settlement troops will have to be taken in from Market Lake, Ida., overland a distance of over one hundred miles. Part of the way is through a very rough country.

FELL IN HYSTERICS.

Miss Davis Succumbs While Identifying Her Assailant.

Philadelphia, July 25.—Miss Davis, the lady who was murderously assaulted by a burglar while the latter was robbing her brother's house at Atlantic City two weeks ago, came to this city yesterday and positively identified William Brennan alias "Reddy" Larkins, who was arrested several days ago as her assailant. Miss Davis is still suffering from the effects of her encounter with the robber. When taken into Brennan's cell she at once exclaimed: "That's the man; I am positive." Then the memory of her terrible experience was revived and she sank to the floor in hysterics.

FIRED TWO SHOTS NEAR HER.

An American Vessel Stopped by a Spanish Man of War.

Delaware Breakwater, Del., July 25.—The American schooner Carrie A. Lane, Captain Quick, which arrived here yesterday from Cuban ports, reports that on the 14th inst., while off Cape San Antonio, Cuba, a Spanish man-of-war fired two shots near her, and when the Lane hove to sent a boat to ascertain what port she was from. He says the Spanish officer was courteous and was only performing his duty.

Panama Strike Situation.

Washington, July 25.—A telegram received by general Julio M. Rentifo, the charge d' affaires in Washington of the United States of Colombia, says: "Strike peaceful. The government has enough troops to give security and maintain order." The dispatch is signed by Gen. Arango, the governor of Panama.

Demand Semi-monthly Payments.

Shamokin, Pa., July 25.—Five hundred Union Coal company employes have demanded semi-monthly payments. In case their request is refused the state will be asked to enforce the semi-monthly pay law. The Union Coal company claims that the law is unconstitutional.

Gen. Harrison's Visitor.

Old Forge, N. Y., July 25.—Judge A. P. McCormack of Dallas, Tex., came 200 miles yesterday to pay his respects to General Harrison. He has been passing a portion of his vacation in Vermont and before he started for home he desired to call upon the ex-president.

New Bicycle Record.

London, July 25.—At Calford the bicyclist Weatherly covered a quarter of a mile with a flying start in 26 4-5 seconds, making a new record.

COLLINS GETS 20 YEARS.

The Negro Who Killed Student Ohl Sentenced.

Trenton, July 25.—John S. Collins, the negro who shot and killed Frederick Ohl, the Princeton student, and who was last week found guilty of murder in the second degree, was sentenced yesterday to twenty years' imprisonment at hard labor. The prisoner pleaded non vult to the indictment for atrocious assault upon Garret Cochran, the student who was with Ohl in the fracas, and got ten years more, but the sentences are to run concurrently and therefore only the first one counts. In pronouncing sentence Judge Gummere said that had the jury's verdict been murder in the first degree the court would have considered it a proper judgment. Collins smiled as he stood up to receive his sentence. His counsel having saved his life had nothing further to say.

TURKEY'S TROUBLES.

Reserves To Be Called Out All Along the Seaboard.

London, July 25.—The Standard prints a dispatch from its Constantinople correspondent saying it is reported that the council of ministers has decided to call out the reserves along the whole seaboard of the empire and in all European vilayets. This, the correspondent adds, will entail great financial sacrifices and can only be explained by an acute sense of the critical nature of the situation. The Daily News prints a dispatch from Vienna saying that Germany, Austria, Italy and England are in entire accord as to the course to be pursued in regard to Macedonia, and that Austria will take the leading part. Austria, as the first measure, will secure the road to Salonica against the insurgents. It is believed that Servia and Greece will join the movement.

MAY SAVE DURRANT.

W. F. Barrett Surrenders and Says He Killed the Two Girls.

Santa Cruz, Cal., July 25.—W. F. Barrett surrendered himself to the sheriff yesterday as the murderer of Blanche Lamont and Minnie Williams. He tells a straight story.

Durrant's Trial Begins To-day.

San Francisco, July 25.—The trial of Durrant begins to-day. Interest in the case has not diminished. There have been a great many applicants at the jail to see him, none of whom were gratified with even a glimpse. There is considerable money being spent on his defense though his father was not supposed to have much means.

Must Pay for the Trees.

New Haven, Conn., July 25.—The supreme court has handed down a decision in the case of Mrs. Caroline L. Bradley of East Haven against the Southern New England Telephone company, finding no error in the trial in the court below. Mrs. Bradley was awarded $800 for the cutting down of two trees on her property by telephone employes and the company appealed.

Pennsylvania's New Superior Court.

Harrisburg, Pa., July 25.—The new superior court met here yesterday afternoon. Lengthy orders relating to practice before the court were made and the following prothonotaries appointed: B. H. Bentley for Williamsport and C. H. Stephens for Scranton. The supreme court prothonotaries in Philadelphia, Harrisburg and Pittsburg will act for the superior court.

For Buffalo's New Public Building.

Washington, July 25.—Thirteen bids were opened at the treasury department yesterday for making the excavation for the $2,000,000 public building authorized to be erected at Buffalo. They ranged from $35,460 to $13,978, the latter by the Dast Buffalo Marbleithic company. The contract will be awarded within a week or two.

Movements of Our Naval Vessels.

Washington, July 25.—Movements of naval vessels have been reported to the navy department as follows: The cruiser San Francisco has left Christiania, Sweden, for Gravesend, England. The Mohican has gone out from Seattle to test coal.

Wages To Be Restored.

Rockville, Conn., July 25.—The Glastonbury Knitting company at Mancheitea Green has notified its 100 employes that beginning Aug. 5 the ten per cent. reduction in wages made March 12, 1894, will be restored.

Postal Clerk Arrested.

Washington, July 25.—Colonel L. D. Wheeler, chief post office inspector, has been notified by telegraph of the arrest at Louisville, Ky., of postal clerk W. F. Clark on the charge of stealing ordinary registered mail.

Only One Survivor.

London, July 25.—The German three-masted vessel Voilior has just landed at Dover a fisherman named Gretelle, the only survivor of the smack Celine Felice of Boulogne. Thirteen men were drowned.

SPAIN IS DESPERATE

Severe Measures Adopted for Parts of Cuba.

People Entering and Leaving Towns Must Be Provided with Passes. No Traveling Outside Cities After Dark—Arms and Machetes Must Be Handed Over.

Washington, July 25.—The Spanish authorities have adopted the severest measures for dealing with the insurgents in some of the Cuban provinces. An example of their character has been furnished the state department by J. J. Casanova, United States vice consul at Cienfuegos, who has transmitted to the state department a translation of a proclamation recently issued by the governor of Santa Clara. Its text follows:

Severe Measures Necessary.

"D. Augustin Ingue y Coca, brigadier general, governor of the province of Santa Clara, to the inhabitants of the same:

"The savageness of those who apply the torch, who steal and murder under the cry of "viva Cuba libre," and to the propagators who disgrace the Cuban people, recruiting partisans for the hordes commanded by incendiaries and highwaymen, compel me, with a most painful feeling, to adopt energetic measures which I frankly avow should be carried out to the extreme if the noble war made by our valiant army is responded to my murder and pillage. For the present I decree the following:

Travelers Must Have Permits.

"Article first—Every countryman on entering or leaving the towns shall be provided with his personal certificate and with evidence of his ownership of the horse he may be riding, and shall exhibit them to any agent of the government that may demand them.

"Article second—It is prohibited to travel in the country or in the outskirts of towns from sunset to sunrise, with the understanding that the patrols and forces in operation will detain and put at my disposal all persons infringing this rule if not provided with the proper permit which to said end shall be issued to them by the military chief of the district of which they are residents.

Must Turn in All Arms.

"Article third—All permits to carry arms, which are not countersigned by the military governor's office, are null and void. Residents in the country who are in possession of any kind of arms shall deposit them within the period of days with the posts of the civil guard or detachments nearest to their abodes, the chiefs of which shall issue them a proper voucher.

"Article fourth—It is only for agricultural work that working 'machetes' may be kept in their residences, and it is absolutely prohibited to carry the same outside of their residences.

Punishment for Disobeying.

"Article fifth—Those infringing these orders, as well as the agitators of opinion and those who abet and harbor them shall be indicted for the crime of rebellion, tried in accordance with the code of justice and punished with all the severity of the military laws.

"Article sixth—The municipal mayors and mayors of circumscriptions shall publish widely this edict and the said authorities as well as all civil and military authorities of this province I hold responsible for the full and punctual observance. AGUSTIN LUGUE."

ENFORCING LAWS OF 1794.

Philadelphia Merchants Fined for Doing Sunday Business.

Philadelphia, July 25.—Thirty-seven merchants, mostly Hebrews, who do business in a small way in the southern section of this city, appeared before Magistrate South yesterday in answer to summons charging them with violating the Sunday law of 1794. The full penealty, $4 and costs, was imposed upon the three. The costs were inflicted upon a number of others and a half dozen of the cases were held under advisement.

Wages Further Increased.

Bottstown, Pa., July 25.—The puddlers of the Ellis & Lessig Steel and Iron company have received notice of another increase in their wages, to take effect August 1. The advance is from $2.50 to $2.75 a ton. Three hundred men will be benefited, and this makes an advance of 60 cents a ton granted within a month.

Ravages of the Elm Beetle.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 25.—Park Superintendent Keith has called upon residents near Seaside park to assist him in the destruction of the elm tree beetle. The famous resort of which this city is so proud, now presents a sad sight owing to the ravages of this pest.

Bank Robber Connors Released.

Easton, Pa., July 25.—Wallie Connors, one of the men who stole $4,000 from the Easton national bank a few years ago, was released from the Easton jail yesterday after serving a sentence of three years and nine months. Connors left for New York.

Convention of Deaconesses.

Asbury Park, N. J., July 25.—The National Deaconesses' convention is being continued in Ocean Grove. Members of the new Methodist order, attired in the peculiar garb worn by them, are present in large numbers from the various states.

Promotion for Geo. V. Massey.

Philadelphia, July 25.—George V. Massey, district solicitor of the Pennsylvania Railroad company for the state of Delaware, has been promoted to the position of assistant general solicitor of the Pennsylvania railroad company.

Immigrants at Boston.

Boston, Mass., July 25.—The steamer Peruvian, at this port from Glasgow, brought 49 immigrants; the steamer Herrynia, from Hamburg, 58, and the steamer Boston, from Yarmouth, N. S., 30.

The Boy, Taylor, Must Hang.

Columbus, O., July 25.—Governor McKinley has refused to grant a respite to William Taylor and he will therefore be executed at midnight to-night. Taylor is a colored boy only 17 years old.

Collins, the murderer of a Princeton student, received a sentence of twenty years in State Prison. College students should learn a lesson from this sad affair that is not taught them by professors.

Chief Counsul Potter, of the League of American Wheelmen, proposes to bring to an issue in the courts the matter of whether or not railroads can be compelled to check bicycles the same as trunks. The law classifies bicycles as vehicles, and under a strict application of the statute, the case would involve a delicate point for the courts to decide.

Judge Ross, of the United States District Court, has rendered a decision declaring the Wright irrigation law unconstitutional. Under the Wright act bonds have been issued to the extent of $50,000,000 and over, and they are held all over this country and Europe. The decision invalidates $25,000,000 of bonds in irrigation districts in which confirmation proceedings have not been taken.

Veteran Tourists.

Bright and early Tuesday morning J. Van Eps, of Park avenue, and B. R. Force, of East Front street, started out on their wheels for Asbury Park. At Matawan, the riders lost their way, and wandered about trying to find it again. At last they succeeded and reached the Park after seven hours of riding. They put up at the Ocean House and took in all the sights of the place that evening. Yesterday morning they began the return trip and came home by the way of Rahway and Westfield, after a very pleasant journey, without an accident to wheels or tires. Neither of them is any the worse for their little jaunt.

Not Like Other Girls.

At their conclusion Mrs. Rhees and her son will go to Camp Pinafore, in the Adirondacks, to join the family of C. W. McCutchen.

WAR WITH BROOMSTICKS.

A Lively Time on Plainfield Avenue Between Colored Scrappers.

Assault and battery is the charge against David Hooper, colored, who Justice Nash held this morning for $500 bail to appear before the Grand Jury. The affair that caused all the trouble took place last Saturday evening at dusk. David Hooper came to the house of Mrs. Kline, colored, on Plainfield avenue, to borrow something. Mrs. Kline ordered him out of the house, and enforced her order by hurling a broomstick at his head, but the article did not come anywhere near his cranium, but it did arouse his ire, and, grasping it with both hands he returned and proceeded to pound the woman with it. But that was too tame so he dropped it and finished the job with his fists. At her complaint he was arrested and brought before Justice Nash who did as above stated.

Constable Moffett took him to the station house to allow him to remain until tomorrow before taking him to Elizabeth to let him secure bail if possible. So far he has not succeeded.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The Battle of Bound Brook.

The Washington Camp Ground Association, which is to all intents and purposes the historical society of Somerset county, has recently published in pamphlet form the story of the Battle of Bound Brook, fought on the morning of April 13th, 1777. This battle, of which hitherto but little has been known, was one of the most destructive, to the American forces, waged on New Jersey soil. Rev. T. E. Davis, who prepared the article, spent much time and labor in visiting libraries in Massachusetis, New York and New Jersey, to collect the necessary material. The result is that for the first time readers now have a complete and authentic account of this engagement. A copy will be mailed post paid on receipt of 25 cents. Address The Chronicle, Bound Brook.

The Sylvester Cahill Will.

Yesterday morning, in the Orphans' Court, Judge Bruce, of Cranford, representing several of the heirs under the will of Sylvester Cahill, made a motion to have it certified to the Supreme Court for a trial on the question of the distribution of the residue of the estate after the special bequests are made. There are believed to be heirs of first blood in California, and a commission will be necessary to secure the testimony.

Judge McCormick did not grant the motion of Judge Bruce, but referred the taking of testimony in the matter of proving the will to Surrogate Parrott, promising to hear Judge Bruce when the Surrogate filed his report.

To Show Cause.

Judge Rice, of Middlesex County, has ordered Prosecutor Adrain to show cause on Tuesday, July 30th, why John Rinber, a witness against George Stefanko, the alleged murderer of Stephen Nagy, should not be released from custody on his own recognizance. The witness has been confined since last January. He is not believed to be a very important witness. George Stefanko was one of the eight prisoners who escaped from the county jail a month ago, and has not been found.

Saloon-Keepers Indicted.

Twenty-seven saloon keepers, indicted by the Hudson County Grand Jury for violation of the Sunday Excise law, were arranged yesterday before Judge Hudspeth in Jersey City. They all gave bail for trial at the September term of court.

—Thomas J. Todd, of Dunellen, has had a pension reissued to him.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness, caused by catarrh, that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

LOOKED LIKE AN ELOPEMENT.

After Affidavits Were Made the Minister Performed the Ceremony.

Adolph Heiner, a barber of Woodbridge, came to Rahway Tuesday night in a coach accompanied by Anna L. Sinder, a pretty girl of seventeen. On the back of the coach in large letters were the words, "We are going to get married."

The vehicle was followed from Woodbridge by about twenty-five wheelmen as a bodyguard and the unique procession attracted much attention as it passed through Rahway to the residence of C. F. A. Klein, on Popular street, where the coach halted and the couple alighted and rang the door bell.

Rev. Mr. Klein, when informed of their mission, thought it a case of elopement, and at first refused to perform the ceremony. The prospective bride then showed the minister a note which she had from her legal guardian, Mrs. Phillip Lockhurst, of Woodbridge, giving her consent to the wedding. Still the clergyman doubted, and it was not until the couple made an affidavit that the signature on the note was genuine would he agree to marry them.

When the couple emerged, radiant with happiness, the cyclists greeted them with deafening cheers.

The procession was reformed and started back for Woodbridge. Many Rahway cyclists, whose attention had been attracted by the uproar, joined the turnout and helped to swell it to quite a demonstration. There was a big time at Woodbridge where a drum corps was in waiting to head the parade when it reached that place.

DIDN'T LIKE THE MULE.

Trader Broxmeyer Flees From the Tribe of Angry Gypsies.

The nomads recently arrived in New York from Brazil and bound for California are encamped at New Brunswick. They number about one hundred; a set of swarthy, gayly dressed and filthy wanderers, with twenty-two tents, numerous wagons and many horses. The vagabonds are under the leadership of a chief, reported to be fabulously rich, who spends his gold freely, and since, like all his followers he cannot understand the vernacular, he is often cheated.

A small riot started in camp over a dispute between the gypsy chief and John Broxmeyer, a horse-dealer, who had arranged to exchange a mule for a horse. When the mule arrived the chief refused to adhere to his agreement. Broxmeyer insisted and the chief expostulated with wild gestures. His people took a hand in the argument and the mule-owner fled for his life.

Two of the nomads attempted to steal the horse and carriage of Dr. Joseph Bradley, who caught up with the two men. They showed fight, but fled at the approach of the police.

INS AND OUTS.

On Saturday, August 3d, the Westfields will play at Madison against the Stars of that place.

The Orientals would like to arrange a series of games with the Y. M. C. A. of this city, for the championship of the city.

The Y. M. C. A. of Westfield will play the Cranfords. W. VanHorn has signed to pitch for the rest of the season for the Y. M. C. A.

The Orientals of this city will play the Raritans on Saturday. T. Lyons will cover short in his usual way. E. Wycoff will pitch for the Orientals.

The Westfield Athletic Club will cross bats with the Dunellen Club Saturday. The Dunellens are bound to win, as they have a crack battery from New York City.

More Trouble for Kiernan.

It looks as if Sylvester J. Kiernan, the young insurance agent who was convicted of stealing thousands of dollars from insurance companies and was sentenced to five months in the Union County jail, was not yet out of his troubles. His brother today asked the Court to order the Prosecutor to deliver up Kiernan's private books, but the Prosecutor refused, as, he said, the books were to go before the October Grand Jury, which would indicate that a new charge is to be made. Kiernan's term will expire in a few days. The Court said it had no right to order the surrender of the books.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimendale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with pneumonia succeeding la grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Chief Marshal Van Horn is thinking of purchasing a new wheel from H. J. Martin.

F. H. Martin, of Sandford avenue, enjoyed a ride to Somerville and back on his wheel yesterday afternoon.

H.G. Herbert and Frederick Cortell, of Bound Brook, rode to Plainfield yesterday afternoon to visit friends.

Tunis J. Carey returned yesterday on his wheel from Peapack where he has been spending his vacation. He returns today.

Herbert Martin, of Sandford avenue, is planning a wheel trip to Lambertville for Monday, where he will spend several days and return on his wheel.

Carlos C. Gallup and Arthur H. Serrell rode over to Morristown and Morris Plains on their wheels, yesterday. When at Morris Plains they were shown through the Insane Asylum there, but were allowed to return.

Rust should be guarded against, as it destroys the surfaces of nuts and cores, so that they will not fit perfectly, and this they must do to the hundredth part of an inch if perfect freedom is desired in the workings of the various parts of the wheel.

A decision of much importance to cyclists has been rendered by Judge Payne in Chicago, when he denied the petition of John H. Breckinridge to compel the Fort Dearborn building propietors to allow bicycles to be stored there by tenants. Breckinridge, who is an attorney, with offices in the Fort Dearborn sky-scraper, had attempted to leave his wheel in the basement during office hours, and upon permission being refused carried the matter to the courts. Judge Payne declared that bicycles are mere vehicles, and as much out of place inside a business block as a horse and buggy.

The Wheelwoman asks: "Why don't some firm or individual who is alive to the situation start in to make women's wheels? If only some one had been farsighted enough to have done this last winter and spring, there would not be so many women waiting for 'our next consignment,' and somebody might have made a fortune." Well, why "don't" some woman who is alive to the situation start in making women's wheels? Such a business would have the advantage of peculiar fitness, for it would be an enterprise of women, to or for women, and with, from, by or in women, and it would be a good chance to prove the prowess of the sex in business affairs.

Gored By a Bull.

Wm. Beardsley, of Montgomery avenue, Belleville, had several of his rib broken and was gored in the chest by an infuriated bull, which he was endeavoring to lead to pasture Tuesday afternoon. He was rescued by the neighbors, who armed themselves with heavy fence rails, and belabored the beast until it could no longer see Beardsley, who was then drawn from under its feet. Beardsley, who is an extensive dairy farmer, is in a critical condition.

An Old Sign.

The sign over the postoffice door at Bayonne is the same sign that hung for years over the door of the New York postoffice when the old Middle Dutch church in Nassau street was used by the government. The postmaster, Robert A. Ansart, of Bergen Point, secured it, and it has been regilded from time to time, and now swings, a well-preserved relic of old New York.

New Light From a Dark Face.

Hughey Dougherty, the black-face orator, is going to have something interesting to say about the recent reform movements during his engagement at Keith's Union Square theatre in New York two weeks hence. Mr. Dougherty's views are always unique and original. He may be expected to shed some new light on the subject.

TRACING GRAIN THIEVES.

Discovery of a Rig Believed to Belong to the Marauders.

The grain thieves who have been committing depredations on the farms throughout Union Township made their appearance again Monday night in the vicinity of Jonathan P. Miller's place. The thieves evidently intended to raid Mr. Miller's barn and grainery during the night.

His son happened to be on his way home across the fields at about eight o'clock, when he saw a horse and wagon partly concealed among some brushwood not far from the farm house.

Arming themselves with shotguns they sallied forth, and on reaching the spot where the rig had been standing found it had disappeared.

It was found in a small woods about an eighth of a mile from where the rig first was discovered. The horse was tied to a tree.

Young Miller drove to Elizabeth and notified County Detective Keron. Detective Keron took possession of the rig and took it to his stable in Elizabeth. Meanwhile a search was made for the owners, but no trace of them could be found.

Almost Cut His Tongue Off.

John, Jr., the five-year-old son of John Kiely, of Netherwood avenue, was last night child-like poking his head through the cellar window and slipping he fell on his face and almost severed his tongue. The boy was taken to a physician, but is suffering with agony, being unable to swallow.

Improvement in Field Cannon.

The improvement in field cannon has kept pace with that in small arms. It is doubtful whether troops can be held in column or mass formation within two miles of an enemy firing the present modern breech-loading field guns. The extreme range of these 3.2 and 3.6-inch-caliber field guns is over five miles, and when a suitable smokeless powder is found they may throw a projectile eight miles. Had McClellan had these guns when his lines were five miles from Richmond, he could have ruined the city. No troops can live in front of them when they are rapidly discharging schrapnel, two hundred bullets to the case; and they can defend themselves without infantry support, and can be captured only by surprise, or when their ammunition is exhausted.—Gen. Fitzhugh Lee.

A Personal Text.

There occupies the pulpit of a well-attended church a clergyman who still recalls, with mingled feelings, the sharpest rebuke that was probably ever administered to a person in public. He was at that time inclined to what his father—a much-respected rector and a Low Churchman—regarded as Ritualism, and, in order to prove that the High Church service was less sinful than the old gentleman appeared to imagine, he begged him to come and see and hear for himself. At first the rector declined, but ultimately consented on condition that he should be allowed to preach the sermon.

Permission was readily given. On the appointed day the Evangelical clergyman ascended the pulpit stairs, and to his son's chagrin gave out as his text the words: "Lord, have mercy on my son, for he is a lunatic."—London Telegraph.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed in the spring, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. Only 50c per bottle at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

YOUR SCALP! During the heats of summer does it become irritated and invite an occasional friendly scratch? To wash it is well, but not too often, lest your hair become "brash" and stiff. But treat it twice or thrice a week with our Petroleum Hair Tonic—a little rubbed in with your finger ends, and you will find the feeling of comfort and coolness truly delightful. Positively nothing equals it as a balm for the woes of your scalp. Sprinkler bottles 50c. Only at

THE DEFENSES OF CANADA.

An Army Officer Secretly Detailed to Study Them.

The War Department is about to make a third attempt to learn something of the topographical and geographical situation in Canada with a view of preparing to meet certain situations which may be presented should Great Britain attempt to invade the United States from the Canadian border.

If the two countries ever come to war, Canada will be the most probable base of operations for the British troops, and it is proposed to gather data showing the exact strategical importance of certain points in the Dominion which would be selected by Great Britain as the base of operations.

Three months ago the Secretary of War detailed an officer to go to Canada for this purpose, and he had just began to gather valuable information when an old Admiral of the navy, whose daughter he had married, gave away the fact that an officer was in Canada on a Government mission, and the result was that the officer was recalled for fear that his identity to the Canadian officials was known.

Later, a second detail was made, and this officer was promptly frustrated in his efforts through some friends, who mentioned the fact that he had been chosen to study the fortifications and military strength of Canada.

The War Department has now detailed a third officer, who will shortly be on his way to Canada, and it is believed that he will succeed in reaching there without the intent of his visit being known. This officer will travel incognito, and no one outside the War Department officials will know the purpose of his visit. The result of his investigations will be reported to the department, and it is expected that full particulars will be received of the real military situation which would be presented on the northern frontier should the United States and Great Britain again come to blows.

The Explanation of It.

A little Jap was on trial in the police court for defrauding an innkeeper. He had testified in his own behalf that he had paid his room rent for a month.

"How much did you pay?" asked the prosecuting attorney.

The little Jap sat and stared at his questioner.

The query was repeated.

"Quarter of 'leven."

Everybody glanced at the clock and observed that the time was correctly given.

"Yes, it's a quarter to eleven, but I want to know how much room rent you paid."

"Quarter of 'leven," repeated the Jap.

"You don't understand. How much money did you pay?"

"I tell you, quarter of 'leven."

The question was repeated in various forms, but that was the only answer the Jap would give, and he grew more vehement with every repetition.

He was locked in a padded cell in the Receiving Hospital and examined before the Commissioners of Insanity, when it was learned that he paid $10.75 for his room.—San Francisco Post.

An Old Soldier's Experience.

Speaking of grewsome things, an old soldier told me yesterday of the most affecting parting he ever had in his life. It was parting with himself, or rather a part of himself. He was in an engagement before Petersburg, and had the misfortune to come in contact with a piece of broken shell, which exploded near him, and which succeeded in shattering his leg.

Amputation was necessary, and shortly afterward he was lying in his tent. As he looked up he saw a cart piled up with legs and arms of others who had been unfortunate in the engagement, and right on top he recognized his own leg.

"It was a sad parting," he said "to see a part of you going away never to be returned again. I can never tell you what strange feelings came over me, and to this day I can see that fine black horse hauling my leg away to its last resting place."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

THE NEGROES SOUTH.

HOW THEY APPEAR TO AN INTELLIGENT TENNESSEEAN.

The Rev. Dr. E. E. Hoss, of Nashville, Tells in Boston the Results of Their Changed Conditions. He Knows of No Southerner Who Would Have a Return of Slavery.

The Boston Methodist Preachers' meeting was recently addressed by the Rev. E. E. Hoss, D. D., editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate, the official organ of the Church. His topic was "The Negro Problem as a Southerner Sees It." He was most cordially received with loud and continuous applause. He said he had been warned of the danger of coming to Boston to speak on a very delicate topic, but during the few days he had been in the city he had received nothing but the most cordial and generous hospitality. Any blunders he might make must be accepted as those of the head and not the heart. He was not a "trimmer" nor a professional lecturer, and he might, therefore, say some things that would not meet the approval of his audience. They were agreed that the sum total of all villanies was the African slave trade, and that the best thing that ever happened was when slavery was abolished. There was only one man in the South that the speaker knew of who was in favor of re-establishing slavery, "but we buried him," said Dr. Hoss, "and he has no successors."

A Voice—"I hope he may have no resurrection!"

"I am sure," replied the speaker, "he will meet me in the next world, but I am also sure he will by that time have changed his opinion." Continuing, Dr. Hoss said he did not wish to be understood as saying that the South accepted with complacency and without protest the manner in which slavery had been abolished. But when a man is thoroughly punished and submits to his punishment, it is not just brotherly to require him to smile and look pleased over his defeat, and thrash him again because he fails to do so.

The speaker showed a file of newspapers advocating abolition published in the South years before Garrison's Liberator was published, and said it "was hot as pepper," and it would be in existence to-day but for the invention of the cotton gin by a Yankee, which made slavery popular because it became profitable. "It was not profitable for you to be slaveholders," he said, "and so it was easy for you to be Abolitionists. It is easy to be virtuous when virtue consists in requiring another man to do without his cakes and ale."

The colored race in the United States, according to the speaker, is sure to continue a distinct race, notwithstanding the belief in the North that it is being rapidly wiped out. This may be true in the North, but it is not true in the South. While in New Hampshire 72 per cent. of the negroes are of mixed blood, in Mississippi the percentage is but 11, and in Tennessee 17.

Speaking of the relations existing between blacks and whites in the South, Dr. Hoss said they had greatly changed since the war. "I have been thoroughly thrashed," he explained, "by a colored boy more times than I have fingers on my hands and toes on my feet. (Good!" exclaimed the Rev. Dr. Trafton), and I don't know that it was more than was good for me," continued Dr. Hoss, laughing at the interruption. "But my boys don't submit to it as I did; and that pretty well explains the changed situation. There is more cold and exact justice meted out to the blacks than formerly, but not so much kindness. However, it is better to be just than kind. It is the ignorant and the poor whites who never owned a slave that are the most outraged at the elevation of the negro, and it is the ex-slaveholders and their sons who are the most tolerant. A lawyer told me that whenever he has to defend a negro in the courts he always tries to have a jury composed exclusively of old slaveholders or their sons." Dr. Hoss reminded his hearers that in their impatience at the slowness with which the negroes are becoming educated they should not attribute it wholly to the neglect of the whites or the 250 years of slavery. Back of that were 5,000 years of savagery which had been wiped out by the 250 years' contact with civilization, although it has been presented in a brutal and demoralizing way. He advised his hearers, before passing judgment on the treatment of the blacks by their former masters, to go South and see them.

"Experience," he added, "is a thing which soon swabs the conceit out of a man's head. You will find that the people of Boston, while very learned, have not corralled all the intelligence of the country. In spite of the terrible poverty that pervaded the South after the war, $50,000,000 has been contributed for the carrying on of colored schools, and sixty white men preach to the colored people in South Carolina alone."

In speaking of mob law, Dr. Hoss said he had no apologies to make. "I have always stood up squarely against all forms of mob law," he continued. "I have always contended that law is the breakwater of civilization, and that when it goes down, civilization will go down. I don't know a single one of our ministers who does not entertain the same views. In a great many cases in which mob law has done its work there has been no sufficient provocation, and in many cases the negroes have been innocent victims. In other cases the outrages have been such as to make the blood boil in a man's veins; and it sometimes seems to us that you have shown more sympathy for the fiendish perpetrators of crime than you have for their innocent victims."

Dr. Hoss was asked: "What is the prospect for a union between the Southern and Northern Methodists?"

"That is what I came to Boston to learn," he replied. "We Methodists in the South are so strong that we are conceited out of all proportion to our strength now, and there is a fear that if we should unite and make one church with the Northern Methodists, the country would not be large enough to hold us. There are 3,000,000 Methodists in the Southern States, and that is more than in all the churches of that denomination in the country combined. In some of our cities you cannot throw a stone without hitting a Methodist." In concluding, Dr. Hoss told of the growth of other denominations in the South, and made a plea for the largest Christian toleration. "I can say," he remarked, in closing, "I love every Christian man in the world, and a Methodist a little better than any other."—Boston Transcript.

"ESQ."

A Title Which Everybody Thinks He Owns.

What is an esquire? Not one in ten thousand of the people who daily make use of its abbreviated form in addressing letters have even the faintest idea of the real meaning and importance of the term; the majority of them, indeed, have probably never given the matter a thought—no more than they have to the title "Mr." or "Mrs." Still less is it understood by foreigners, to whom it is a never failing source of perplexity, and who, in their courteous anxiety to do the right thing, often add the word "esquire" in full to a name already adorned with the prefix of "Mr."

Strictly speaking, the word "esquire" is a nobiliary title, a fact which will doubtless astonish many of those worthy Americans who, while professing a truly republican contempt for such "gewgaws" as honorific distinctions, make a constant and daily use of the term. It is the English equivalent of the German "Edler" with the particle "von" of the French "gentilhomme," with the particle "de," of the Spanish "Hidalgo" and of the Portuguese "Fidalgo." Being a nobiliary title, only a limited number of people have a legal right thereto. They may be divided into two classes, namely, those who are esquires by virtue of inheritance and those who are esquires ex-officio. The latter comprise duly ordained divines of the Church of England, judges, deputy lieutenants of counties and commissioned officers of the army and navy, and lawyers. The nobility of these, being ex-officio, is of a purely personal nature and cannot be transmitted to their children, who have therefore no legal right to their father's title of esquire. The other esquires are either persons who have received from the Crown a grant of armorial bearings or who are the lineal male descendants, "legally begotten, of the original grantee of the coat of arms."

The aristocracy may be said to consist exclusively of persons who have inherited in a direct line from more or less remote ancestors the right to armorial bearings, originally conceded by some sovereign or other and duly registered by the various official colleges of heralds in Europe. Thus, there are a certain number of people in this country, citizens of the United States, who may justly be described as members of the English aristocracy, owing to their having inherited through lineal male ancestors the right to armorial bearings originally granted to the founder of the family by one or another of the English sovereigns. The longer the line of ancestry, the greater the degree of aristocracy, and mere titles weigh but little in the scale.

He Wanted Excitement.

"Any murders, to-day?" he asked of the sergeant at the desk in the Detroit Central police station at a late hour of the night.

"Not that I have heard of," was the reply.

"Anybody accidentally killed?"

"Haven't heard of any case."

"Anybody committed suicide?"

"No report of a suicide."

"Where would I go to see a row?" continued the man, as his looks proved his disappointment.

"Dunno."

"Could I get up a fight around here, do you think?"

"Not without going to a good deal of trouble."

"Um! Nice old town you've got here! What do you do for excitement here, anyhow?"

"Oh, the trolley slips off the wire now and then."

"Is that all?"

"About all."

"Then I'm going! Good night, sir—good night! You can take your quiet and peaceful old town, and your trolley and your police force and go to Texas! I'm going to Toledo—Toledo on the Maumee, sir—on the Maumee! Yes, sir, where something happens, sir, and you personally can go to grass, sir!"

Money in South Dakota.

A Yankton, (S. D.) man writes to say that the money famine in that section "is so great that business of all kinds is almost suspended." The chances are that the Yankton man went to South Dakota from a better State, that he had suffered from hot winds and cold waves, that he has nothing to give in exchange for money. There is no legitimate business in this country that wants for money if a reasonable amount of security can be put up. But if all the money in the world were dumped into South Dakota, it would not make the State blossom and flourish.—Davenport Democrat.

A NEW HYMN.

A Song Written by Dr. S. F. Smith, Author of "America."

A new song written by the Rev. S. F. Smith, D. D., author of "America," is entitled, "The Cross and Victory." The new hymn has been dedicated by Dr. Smith to the Christian Endeavorers, and it was most enthusiastically received. R. Chase Carrington composed the music. Dr. Smith's new hymn is as follows:

Arouse ye, arouse ye, O servants of God!
His right arm your strength, and your leader His rod;
Oh! haste from the North, from the South to His call;
His cause shall prevail; He shall reign over all;
Farewell to your dreaming; no longer delay;
Go tell the glad tidings; God's hand points the way;
Go forward! Go forward! to conquer or die;
God will make sure the victory.

CHORUS.

Haste and bear the banner forth,
East and West and South and North;
Haste to lift the cross on high,
The pledge of victory!
Haste and bear the banner forth,
East and West and South and North;
Haste to lift the cross on high,
The pledge of victory,
The cross and victory.

The morning has broken, the noonday is near;
Go forward with courage nor doubt ye nor fear:
Rely on His promise, His oath and His word,
His spirit your helper, His gospel your sword;
The Prince of Salvation is winning His way,
Bring crowns for His brow. Joy, joy! for the day!
Go forward! Go forward! to conquer or die!
God will make sure the victory.
Chorus:

THE TIDE CHANGED.

Curious Last Edition of the Vicksburg Daily Citizen.

The Vicksburg Daily Citizen of July 2, 1863, consisted of a single page of four columns, printed on a sheet of wall paper. The paper had been set up in type by the rebel printers and contained glowing accounts of the success of the Confederate arms. It said:

"General Lee is coming, elated with success, encouraged by a series of brilliant victories, marching to and across the Rappahannock, defeating Hooker's right wing, and thence through the Shenandoah Valley, driving Milroy from Winchester and capturing six thousand men and a large amount of valuable stores of all descriptions, re-entering Maryland, holding Hagerstown, threatening Washington City, and within a few miles of Baltimore—onward and upward their war cry—our brave men under Lee are striking terror to the heart of all Yankeedom."

But before the rebel printers could get their paper run off on the presses Vicksburg was captured by the Yankees—and the paper with it. There must have been some compositors in that Yankee army and characteristic American humor as well. Instead of "pieing" the form it was decided to print the paper just as it was found. And this was done, with the exception of the addition to the bottom of the last column of the following paragraph:

(NOTE):

"July 4, 1863.

"Two days bring about great changes. The banner of the Union floats over Vicksburg. General Grant has 'caught the rabbit,' he has dined in Vicksburg, and he did bring his dinner with him. The Citizen lives to see it. For the last time it appears on wall paper. No more will it eulogize the luxury of mule meat and fricasseed kitten—urge Southern warriors to such diet never more. This is the last wall paper edition, and is, excepting this note, from the types just as we found them. It will be valuable hereafter as a curiosity."

An American Business Week.

To the city of Springfield, Mass., belongs the credit of having an American week, when all the stores are decorated with American goods only, all the product and labor of Americans being placed on view with the idea of enticing customers to purchase only American goods. This is an excellent idea for more reasons than one, and it has already spread to other places. If successfully carried out, it will not only help the immediate sale of our own products and manufactures, but it should tend to create a lively subsequent demand for the same goods. In very many retail stores it is regarded as quite the proper thing to sell American goods as if they were of foreign manufacture, and their proper display upon their own merit will afford customers an opportunity of learning that they have not been in the habit of buying something that was English, French or German. All honor to Springfield for its idea. Let us have an American week in every city, town and village in the United States. Show American goods, buy American goods, wear American goods and eat American food. The first week in July, with its day of National independence, would be a fitting and a proper time for the occasion.—American Economist.

This Farmer Plows in the Shade.

Mr. George D. Orr, of Cincinnati, who is at the Louisville Hotel, said: "Though it is said there is nothing new under the sun, it seems that in my rounds over the country I am continually meeting with something new. Last Saturday I was coming down from Cleveland over the Big Four, and, while glancing out of the window, I saw a plow that was certainly a curiosity to me. Originally it had been a common plow, but the fertile genius of some farmer had been at work upon it. He had attached an upright frame to the plowbeam and had covered the top of this with a fancy colored cloth. This covering extended far enough back to allow him to walk under it and be completely protected from the rays of the sun."

CHAPTER I.
THE JOY OF DEATH.

By the accident of my presence in the New Holland Hotel at the moment when Holman Brand, the broker, met his strange fate, and by my acquaintance with the detective in the case, I obtained a knowledge of it which should enable me to add something of interest to the accounts already published.

Mr. Brand, it will be remembered, was of the firm of Brand & Avery, with offices on Pine street, near Broadway. When the New Holland was opened, a little more than a year ago, the firm established a branch office there, with an entrance from the avenue and another from the main hall of the hotel.

I was passing through the hall when the outcry consequent upon the sudden death of Mr. Brand rose discordant above the blending voices of the great house and the busy street. There were some hundreds of people within sound of that cry, and all of them, I venture to say, stood still, as I did, arrested in their various pursuits by the transcending interest of death. For there was that in the alarm which meant death, and no one could mistake it.

Immediately, a boy with a scared face rushed out of the broker's office into the hall. Catching sight of an elderly gentleman who chanced to be directly before the door, the boy cried out: "You're Dr. Bell, ain't you? They sent me to find a doctor."

THEY SENT ME TO FIND A DOCTOR.

"I am Dr. Bell," was the reply. "What's wrong?"

"Mr. Brand's dropped dead," replied the boy. "I saw him do it!"

Horror at the occurrence and pride in his share of it seemed to be contending in the youth's mind. I have observed the same phenomenon in many persons of mature years, including myself. We think better of ourselves when calamity takes us into her confidence. Indeed, I have seen a man saved from suicide by the new interest in himself that came from his chance witnessing of a distressing catastrophe.

Dr. Bell ran into the broker's office, and I, being conveniently near him, followed close upon his heels. Otherwise I should not have got in, for a policeman who had entered from the avenue immediately closed the door communicating with the hotel, and denied admittance to all save those who could give a better reason for desiring it than idle curiosity—as I could not.

A tall young man had just locked the street door, and was then engaged in pulling up the shades. Almost the whole of the front of the office was glass; and already there were a hundred people looking in.

There were not more than half a dozen persons in the office besides those who have been mentioned. Two of them were evidently employes. Another I recognized as Harold Brand, nephew of the broker, and his assistant in the management of the office. The others seemed to be players of the stock game.

The nephew stood beside a chair in which sat Holman Brand in an attitude so natural that I could not believe him to be dead. His handsome face, framed in abundant gray hair, showed not a trace of pain. On the contrary, its expression was eloquent of happiness. He was as one transfigured. If the bliss of heaven had been revealed to him in the moment when his soul put off its earthly vesture, thus and not otherwise should the mortal part have echoed the rapture of the spirit.

Dr. Bell had hurried to the dead man's side, but after a few seconds spent in the ordinary tests he had stepped back. When I turned to him I found him gazing upon the corpse with an interest equal to my own, but of a different nature. It was a scientific experiment to him.

The impressive silence was broken at last by Harold Brand, who asked if there was any hope.

"None whatever," replied the physician. "He is quite beyond recall."

"It was terribly sudden," said the young man, with a shudder. "Have you any idea what was the cause?"

"I have a very distinct idea," said Dr. Bell; "but it will be hard to get legal proof of it."

"Great heaven! Do you suspect——"

"Poison," said the Doctor, gravely. "There is every indication of it."

"Impossible!" exclaimed Harold Brand. "You must be mistaken."

"Did you see your uncle eat or drink anything just before he was stricken?"

"I remember that he drank a glass of water."

There was the ordinary water-cooler in a corner of the office. Dr. Bell walked up to it, and smelled the glass which stood beside it.

"I can detect nothing here," he said. "However, the glass should be saved for examination."

"Leave it there," said the policeman. "I'll see that it isn't disturbed. I think

"HE IS QUITE BEYOND RECALL."

Coroner Robertson will be here in a few minutes. He has been notified, and he lives near."

There was a pause, and then at Dr. Bell's request Harold Brand related the circumstances of his uncle's death. They were very simple.

He had been in the office about an hour, and had dictated some letters. Then he had written one. It lay sealed before him on his desk. I glanced at it, and read the address:

MARGARET BRAND
Cornwall, N. Y.

Dr. Bell also glanced at it.

"A relative, of course," he said.

"I never heard of her," replied Harold.

At this moment the coroner arrived. The tall young man whom I have mentioned as having locked the street door and pulled up the curtain admitted Dr. Robertson. Then he turned, and to my great surprise I saw that he was Horace Preble. I had not seen his face before, and had not recognized his figure in the single glance which I had cast upon it. He had a wonderful gift of making himself inconspicuous, as I had previously remarked.

He detained the coroner a moment by the door, and there was a whispered conference, at the close of which the coroner came forward, and said:

"I must request all of you except Dr. Bell and Mr. Brand to step into the inner office for a moment."

Two of the gentlemen present protested against detention, but on being assured that the time would be very brief they yielded, and walked toward the room designated by the coroner. Meanwhile I had made my way to Preble's side, and had hurriedly begged him to save me from the loss of so interesting a spectacle as the preliminary investigation of this remarkable case was sure to be.

"Certainly," he said, in a voice audible to the coroner; "there is no objection to your remaining."

Turning to Howard Brand, he asked for further details of the broker's death.

"He had just called to Walter," said Brand, referring to the boy who had run out into the hall of the hotel, as I have described. "He told him to mail a letter. Suddenly he half rose from his chair, and then fell back. He did not cry out, but only uttered a faint sound like a sigh, but rather of contentment than pain."

"Who was it that screamed?"

"Did you hear anyone?"

"Yes; I was just passing the door.'

"I think you must have heard the boy. He was frightened, of course."

"No; it was some one else. Was it you?"

"Perhaps I did. You see, I ran to his side and lifted his hand. It fell back lifeless. Then I think I cried out in terror. But I had forgotten. This terrible affair has nearly driven me out of my senses. For instance, I have not even asked who you are, and by what right you question me?"

"I am a detective, at present in charge of the case," replied Preble. "Now about that letter. It isn't stamped, I perceive."

"That's strange; I saw the stamp in his hand. I remember that he took it out of a letter on his desk."

"You were watching him?"

"I was waiting until he finished with his letter. I had something to say to him."

"And this was the letter which he took the stamp from?" said Preble, taking one from the desk.

It was addressed, in a feminine hand, to Holman Brand.

"Yes," responded Harold.

"Do you know its contents?"

"No."

"Perhaps we would better read it."

"Why? What bearing can it have on the case?"

"I will show you. If my theory is correct, it plays a considerable part in this tragedy."

He put his arm about the neck of the dead, and, with his hands, very gently forced the jaws to open.

"Look!" he cried.

We all pressed forward; and we saw, upon the tip of the dead man's tongue, one of the large postage stamps of the Columbian pattern.

"Poisoned!" exclaimed the coroner. "That should make the case clear. The writer of that letter is the murderess."

He took the letter from the envelope, and read aloud, as follows:

"Holman Brand: Why do you not answer my letters? I have written three and you have not noticed them. We are destitute. I care nothing for myself, but my mother—whom your brother married in affluence and has left in beggary—is dying for want of proper nourishment and the medicines which her illness demands. Whatever you may have believed at the time of that marriage, surely you will not let her die in this way, when so small a part of your vast wealth would save her."

At this point the coroner paused.

"The remainder of the letter was evidently added at a later period," said he, showing it to the detective. "The writing at this point changes. It is hurried, and nervous."

"'I will force you at least to answer this,'" he continued reading. "'I inclose stamp for a reply. Can you believe me that this stamp costs me more than I can afford? Do you know what such poverty as that means? You dare not, for shame's sake, refuse to answer me, though it be to tell me that we can expect nothing from you.' It is signed 'Margaret Brand.'"

"Can it be possible," the coroner continued, "that so good a man as I know your uncle to have been allowed his brother's widow and her child to suffer like this?"

"I know nothing about it," said Harold. "He never mentioned them to me."

"That letter," said Preble, pointing to the one which the broker had written, "will probably enlighten us on that point. I would suggest that you open it."

"I hesitate to do that," responded the young man. "It is addresed to her. Yet in such a case it is necessary, I suppose."

He tore open the envelope, and read as follows:

"My poor child: Before you receive this you will have had such help as money can give. Your letter, four days delayed, came to me this morning. I instantly telegraphed to Mr. Edward Morton, of Cornwall, one of the best of my friends. You will have seen him before you get this, and will have found out for yourself that I could have sent no better man to you. He has doubtless explained—so far as anyone can explain it—the mystery of this wretched affair. I have never received your letters. I did not know where you were. My last information was that you and your mother were in England, and comfortably provided for. I have tried to find you, but vainly. If I could have done so, you both would have had a home with me. I am childless and alone, and you would have been a thousand times welcome. So far from cherishing the old resentment, I have long repented of my behavior in regard to my brother's marriage. If there is to be forgiveness, it must come from your mother, not from me.

"The money which I think you grip so tightly will be yours and hers some day. For years, while I have prosecuted my fruitless search for you, my will has named you for the bulk of my fortune. But all these matters may be left until we meet. You will wonder why I have not come to you myself. There are excellent reasons, which you shall soon know. My friend will bring you to me—you and your mother—as soon as she can be moved. I wait with impatience to hear when that will be. It is not that I will make a home for you, but that you will make my desolate house a home for me, by your presence. Till then, good-by. My love to both of you."

"This is most extraordinary," said the coroner. "Can it be that this unhappy girl had learned about the will, and had sent poison to the man who would have done so much for her? What do you find there, Doctor?"

This last question was addressed to Dr. Bell, who during the reading of the letter had not been idle. Assisted by Preble, he had removed the stamp from the mouth of the murdered man, and had placed it upon a sheet of paper. Then he had made a second and much more careful examination of the body.

"There is but one point so far," he replied to the coroner's question. "The stamp exhales a faint perfume—a most unusual odor, extremely agreeable. It can be noticed also about the lips of the dead man."

"Gelothania," exclaimed the detective. "It is a poison discovered—and named—by a German chemist, who seems to have known more chemistry than Greek. He meant the name to signify 'The joy of death.'"

LIGHTS THE WORLD.

BRUSH'S PATENTS COVER EVERY METHOD OF ELECTRIC LIGHTING.

Has Made Millions, Yet Kept Out of Print. An Inventor When a Boy. Now a Physical and Mental Giant, With Wealth and Honor.

The streets of the biggest cities of every continent blaze at midnight through the genius of Charles F. Brush.

Still the world knows but little about him. With all his genius he is modest in the extreme. He early adopted the policy of keeping out of print. He has contributed little to scientific journals, and the world knows him only through his work. It has no idea of the man, and there are few who appreciate his wonderful character and the wide extent of his achievements. His big mansion on Euclid avenue, Cleveland, is one of the finest houses in the United States and one of the most comfortable homes. It is located in the best part of the avenue, which is one of the finest streets in the world, and it is surrounded by seven acres of magnificent lawn, where the land is so valuable you have to carpet it with greenbacks to buy it. Looking into the grounds from the street makes you think of one of the old English estates.

CHARLES F. BRUSH.

There are ten tons of storage batteries in the house, and the power which charges these batteries with electricity is an enormous windmill which he has erected in the rear. Every breeze that blows produces light for this house, and the batteries are so large that if there should be a dead calm for a whole week they would still contain enough electricity to run all the lights.

"I was always experimenting with something, and while I was in the High School in Cleveland I made microscopes and telescopes, grinding the lenses and turning out some very fair instruments."

"When did you first appreciate that your electric light might have a commercial value?"

"I think it was about 1876," replied Mr. Brush. "It was at this time that I completed my first dynamo-electric machine. I showed this at Philadelphia the next year at the Franklin Institute, and it is a curious thing that Mr. Thomson and Mr. Houston, afterward of the Thomson-Houston electric system, were present at the time. The first arc lighting machines had to have one dynamo to each light. My invention was the first that proposed a series of arc lights working from one dynamo, and it was upon this that all the street lighting and all the arc lighting systems of the present day are based."

BRUSH'S RESIDENCE.

"Will we ever get electricity directly from coal?"

"I think so," replied Mr. Brush. "In fact I have already gotten it, but not in such a way as to make the invention commercially profitable. It is now twenty years since I succeeded in getting electricity directly from coal. It was in 1874. The fields of invention are vast. We stand just on the threshold, and there will be new inventions as long as man has mind to create and the will to investigate the great forces of nature and the possibilities of their combination.

"The electric force is still to a large extent a secret from us all. Of late years there have been few new fundamental inventions in electric lighting. There have been many improvements and modifications of the old ones. The light is steadily being made better, but it is the same light, just as, for instance, we have had locomotives drawing trains ever since we were born, but the locomotive of to-day is a far different machine from that of forty years ago. Still it embodies the same fundamental principles."

"Where is the chief work being done in electricity to-day?"

"It is in the field of thermo-electricity, or heat electricity. It is now thought, you know, that all light and heat are produced by electrical force, and it is in these branches that the best work is now being done."

Lost in the Wilds of Roselle.

Three charming young ladies of Plainfield and vicinity, who graduated from the High school, met with a provoking accident last Tuesday when they discovered, in their efforts to find Westfield, they had become lost. Although one of the number was well acquainted with Westfield, they got on the wrong road, and found themselves in Roselle. It was learned last evening that they had returned safely home, much to the joy of their friends and parents.

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freemyer House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for any kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the diseases for which it is intended and he knows it. It is for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

"Yield Not to Misfortune."

I was afflicted with catarrh last autumn. During the month of October I could neither taste or smell and could hear but little. Ely's Cream Balm cured it. Marcus Geo. Shautz, Rahway, N. J.

I suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since a boy, and I never hoped for cure, but Ely's Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many acquaintances have used it with excellent results. Oscar Ostrum, 45 Warren ave., Chicago, Ill. Cream Balm is agreeable.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared, and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. Marlow, M. D., Tamarcia, Ill. PRETTY LAWN FESTIVAL.

First Church of Christ People Make Money.

The lawn at the corner of Liberty and Front streets presented a scene of beauty last night, made so through the earnest efforts of the members of the First Church of Christ Sunday-school, who conducted an ice cream festival for the benefit of the excursion fund.

At different points about the lawn were large American flags and these, together with an artistic arrangement of Japanese flowers, gave the scene one of decided brilliancy.

During the evening a large number of people stopped and partook of the excellent ice cream, cake, and home-made candy that was offered for sale.

One very choice display was a collection of beautiful cut flowers that had been donated, and they were quickly disposed of.

The Sunday-school members were assisted in the worthy cause by members of the Christian Endeavor society of the church, who did much toward making the affair the success it was.

Those who planned the festival and assisted were: Rev. Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Hand, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Staats, Henry Van Middlesworth, the Misses Mabel Wilson, Mabel Van-Middlesworth, Emma Herman, Kittie Jessup, Lillie Ackerman, Lillie Sutton, Emma Bittell, Gertrude Jones, Etta Staats, Jennie Randolph, Lillie Epner, Fred Hoagland, William Kilpatrick, Charles Lewis, and John Russ.

ARCANUM'S PROMPTNESS.

The Insurance of the Late Ira F Riker Paid Nine Days After Filing.

Treasurer D.W. Littell, of the Royal Arcanum, yesterday afternoon received a check of $3,000 from the department headquarters in payment of the insurance of the late Ira F. Riker. The claim was only mailed nine days ago, and this is said to be the quickest that a return has ever been made, and gives evidence of the promptitude and responsibility of the Arcanum as an insurance order.

Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, was instituted October 4th, 1892, and since that date until July 1st, 1895, its members have paid into the Widows' and Orphans' Fund the sum of $35,457.71. The amount paid by the treasurer of Plainfield Council to the Supreme Council, is $35,111.38. This shows the healthy and flourishing condition of the Council which stands second to none in the country.

THEY'LL CATCH EVERYTHING.

A Party of Plainfield Young Men Going Camping at Barnegat.

Milton Millington, Tom King, Blanchard Randolph, Charles Randolph, Walter Manning, Allen Taylor, Harry Pound, Walter Arthur, Chauncey S. Burt and several others from Clinton avenue, are going camping at Barnegat. Charles Randolph, Millington, Taylor and Pound go there Monday to get the camp ready and will be joined by the rest of the party during the week. They have hired several tents and secured a bountiful supply of provisions and fishing tackle. Most of the time will be spent in sailing and fishing and the young men expect to capture everytning in the line of fish in Barnegat bay. They expect to stay two weeks.

Try and See if We Are Not Right.

The greatest craze in Philadelphia is a trolley and ice cream party in which the frozen delicacies are served on the fast moving car. Such a plan would certainly be a great success if Tier furnished the ice cream. His peach and coffee ice cream are simply exquisite and must be tasted to be remembered. He also sells ice cream soda of all flavors for only five cents a glass. His large assortment of candies is a treat to anyone.

THE PROPOSED BOND ISSUE.

THE WORLD PUBLISHES AN ARTICLE FROM CHARLES BULLMAN.

Supplemented by a Number of Interviews With Citizens Who Are Not Fully Satisfied With the Deal.

The New York World of this morning publishes an article from the pen of Charles Bullman in reference to the proposed bond issue for the payment of the sewerage system now in course of construction in this city. The article is introduced in a tone of criticism of the same kind that the Courier-News editor has seen fit to use. The purposes for which it was written show plainly on the face when it is observed that none but unfavorable criticisms are published. As a matter of news The Press publishes the article, which is as follows:

The recent action of Plainfield's City Council in voting to issue $100,000 4 per cent. sewer bonds, payable in gold, has created a stir in the so-called "Colorada of the East." Many of the townsmen do not hesitate to denounce the Councilmen, and the two local newspapers are filled daily with bitter criticisms upon either side. The Courier-News, a Republican sheet, has repudiated the doings of the Republican Councilmen, while The Press as vehemently upholds the cause of "progress." Wealthy taxpayers are talking about getting up mass-meetings and there are rumors of injunctions and other legal proceedings.

That Plainfield needs sewers is generally admitted. Vigorous efforts were made to secure the signatures of the owners of two-thirds of the assessed valuations of the city to a petition that would enable the Common Council to build sewers under the Act of 1890. The committee having charge of the petition, however, failed in their task. The sewer scheme seemed likely to fall through, when a Plainfield official went to the rescue. He secured the passage by the Legislature, in April, 1894, of an amendment that reduced the required number of signers from two-thirds to one-half, and gave the Common Council a clear field when once the signers of one-half of the assessed valuations had been secured.

The petition was finally presented, and the work begun. Of course the people knew that this would require money, but the Council did not take the public into its confidence. This is what has caused the present trouble. There was a decided sensation when it was found that the Council had quietly agreed to sell $100,000 4 per cent. bonds to Harvey Fisk & Sons, bankers, of 24 Nassau street, New York. Charles Fisk, a reputed member of the firm, is also a member of the Common Council.

It was said that the Mutual Life Insurance Company had offered to lend the city money at 4½ per cent. provided it was given an option on the 4 per cent. bonds issued. Harvey Fisk & Sons offered to lend the city $100,000 at 4 per cent. provided the city's notes would be exchanged as soon as possible for 4 per cent. bonds. The resolution accepting the latter proposition was put through despite the votes of Councilman Frazee, the sole Democrat in the board, and Councilmen Moore and Westphal, Republicans.

"I believe that the action of the Council was precipitate," said Councilman Frazee. "There is no necessity of selling the bonds at present, although they may not be delivered for a year or more. Mayor Alexander Gilbert was never authorized to arrange for the sale of the bonds, which are really worth more than par. I think, too, that the bonds should have been advertised and our own people given a chance to bid for the issue. Councilman Fisk was not present when the resolution was adopted, but I think it would have looked better if some other firm had taken the bonds.

Wilbur Fisk, another member of the family, obtained options on the two farms bought by the city for sewage filtration beds. These options were turned over to the city intact, but—well, it doesn't look well."

Several lawyers are of the opinion that the Council assumed undue risk in allotting the bonds to Fisk & Sons under the circumstances.

Postmaster Hetfield said: "The sale of bonds should have been advertised. I would have preferred to have had sewers constructed to tidewater, even if it would have cost more."

"I think our own people should have had a chance to bid for the bonds," said City Judge Coddington.

Counsellor Reed said he was opposed to the sewage filtration system, and believed it a backward step.

Mr. Angleman, lawyer, said he was opposed to secret or hidden action by the city's Common Council. He thought the bonds should have been advertised.

"I believe the bond transaction to be illegal," said Col. Sterling, "and proper action by the citizens will prevent its consummation. The filtration system is a humbug."

Editor F. W. Runyon, of the Courier-News, said: "The Council acted with unnecessary haste. The bonds would have brought a premium if thoroughly advertised."

Counsellor McClure denounced the unauthorized sale of the bonds as an outrage. Messrs. Laing, Kenney, Smith, Demarest and other merchants also expressed dissatisfaction with the course pursued by the Council in the disposal of the bonds.

Mayor Gilbert expressed regret that citizens had criticised acts they did not clearly understand. He claimed that the City Council was forced to borrow from New York parties. The City and First National Banks had asked about 5 per cent. upon a loan, and the Dime Savings Institution wanted 4½ per cent. The Mayor also said he had had thirty-eight years' experience in the banking business, and felt that Plainfield had made a wonderfully good bargain with Fisk & Sons.

RAN AWAY WITH TWENTY-TWO.

Children Returning from a Picnic Dropped Along a Roadside.

Twenty-two children of Westfield who had been to Echo Lake picnic grounds were returning yesterday afternoon, when their horse ran away. Harold Tice, ten years old, was driver. The horse ran down a steep hill, throwing a child out of the wagon every ten feet, until most of them were out.

The plucky boy driver stood firm to his post. When he reached the business portion of the town the horse ran against a building and upset the wagon, throwing the rest of the children on the hard stone walk. They were carried into the nearby houses and physicians summoned.

Buela Lightfoot, ten years old, was found by the roadside unconscious, soon recovered.

Mabel Tice, the ten-year-old daughter of G. W. Tice, a New York banker, was badly hurt. It is feared some bones are broken.

The others escaped with only a few scratches.

Early Santa Claus Talk.

I. A. Neely, of Edsall's Commercial Palace, is arranging to start on his vacation to Niagara Falls and Canada, sailing across Lake Ontario, thence by rail to Lake Huron. On the return trip Mr. Neely will visit the large toy factories through the east and make extensive purchases for the holiday trade. He has already placed import orders for foreign goods. They intend making their big basement the home of Santa Claus this year. Mr. Neely claims that variety and low prices will keep all hands busy at the palace this holiday season.

A Plainfield's Corporation's Smoke.

Among the offenders against whom the Civic Federation brought legal action in an effort to rid Chicago of the smoke nuisance, was the Potter Printing Press Company. The Company explained its offences by stating that they always used a smokeless coal until a few days ago, when on a fair representation they were induced to try a different coal that was claimed to be smokeless, but proved to be otherwise. The promise is made that there will be no further trouble on account of a smoking chimney.

The Great Iam's Paper.

The insinuation in last nights issue of the Courier-News that L. B. Woolston could not move in his new house last Monday on account of the steam pipes not being tested is entirely false. The heating apparatus is being put in by D. W. Littell, and Mr. Woolston is not having steam put in his house, and besides the painters and paper hangers are not yet through with their work. He expects to take possession next Monday.

Franklin Council Grows.

Three propositions for membership were received at the meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, J. O. U. A. M., last night. Under the good of the order excellent remarks were made by visiting brothers from Dunellen, New Market and Scotch Plains.

Victorious Monte.

At the bicycle races on the Hilltop track at Steubenville, Ohio, Monte Scott, of Plainfield, won the three mile lap race, Class B., in 8 min. 1 sec. defeating such riders as Titus, Suns and Maddox.

Mr. Hand Sues.

The case of Charles Hand against Samuel Merrill, on contract, will be tried before Justice Huff of Dunellen, August 2d.

BONES AND TAMBO HERE.

An Excellent Entertainment Given by the Young Men's League of Hope Chapel.

Over two hundred and twenty paid their admission fee to the entertainment at Hope chapel last evening, and a very pleasant time was enjoyed by all. The entertainment was divided into two parts, a minstrel performance was the first, and music and recitations made up the second. The endmen were William Nicholson and David Thompson, and were very good in that position. Fred Wharton was the interlocutor and the rest on the stage were James Penny, C. Wallander, Betram Tallamy, John Coes, Walter Mague and Cornelius Ackerman.

Owing to the failure of several of the singers to appear, the chorus singing was not as good as it might have been had they been present, but altogether the whole entertainment was a most creditable performance.

The programme opened with the chorus, "The Silent Tide," after which James Penny gave a vocal solo entitled, "I Love You All." David Thompson, as bones, next told one of his funny stories about two bootblacks and sang "The Whistling Coon," the chorus to which was whistled by all. Another chorus "Quite by Chance" followed and then tambo, William Nicholson, tried to find out who he was, and at last figured up that he was his own grandfather. "Down By the River Side," was his solo. He was loudly encored, and after another story sang "The Soldier's Tear."

Bertram Tallamy rendered the selection, "Give Him a Welcome Home" in a most excellent manner. The first part ended with a most ridiculous sketch entitled "The Kodak in which Walter Mague took Bones' picture with a syphon disguised as a camera and gave him a rather wet picture while Tambo came in for his share of the fun.

A vocal solo by Comerford opened second part, and then followed a duet by F. Wharton and T. Comerford, entitled: "The Minute Gun at Sea." A comic sketch, "Seeing Boston," was given by Mague and Thompson and George Lee recited "William Tell." A scene in a barber shop by Nicholson and Thompson brought the evening's entertainment to a close.

The last selection was a most amusing one.

The committee that arranged the entertainment consisted of Messrs. Wharton, Nicholson, Roseberry, Thompson, Penny, Davis and J. Randolph.

A DAY OF PLEASURE.

Trinity Church Excursionists Have a Hugh Time at the Park.

Fun and pleasure galore was enjoyed by the Trinity Reformed church excursionists at Asbury Park yesterday. The day was a beautiful one at the seashore, and only one incident occurred to mar the pleasure of anyone. Mrs. George W. Cole and little child, of West Second street, became separated in the crowd, and it was three hours before they found the little tot. However, as the excursionists arrived home in the evening, Mrs. John Yost and young son had a painful and narrow escape from severe injury. In getting off the train they walked off the depot platform near the United States Exress office and fell a distance of several feet. They received a severe jar, but after a few minutes rest were able to proceed home.

The manner in which Conductor Jackson handled the 600 pleasure seekers while on the train was commended on all sides.

The following is the committee who admirably managed the trip: Councilcilman E. H. Bird, W. F. Oliver, W. A. Woodruff, E. E. Anthony, H. W. Marshall, H. C. Van Emburgh, and E. J. Cooley.

The committee cleared enough money on the sale of tickets to pay all expenses and give each scholar and teacher a ticket free.

The Sound by Star Light.

The Fall River Line steamer Priscilla, will carry quite a party of Plainfield people this evening. The party will consist of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Horne, Miss Elsie R. Horne, George A. Horne and F. Roland Horne, of Willow avenue, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. McGee, Henry L. McGee, Raymond A. McGee and Donald A. McGee, of Orchard place, and the Misses Sherling and Geneveive Wildes, of Brooklyn.

The party take the boat to Fall River, from whence they go by train to Boston, and then to Baths, where they go by steamer to Mouse Island. The entire party will spend three weeks at the Samoset House there.

—Carney Brothers, the West Front street tinners, are putting a large new tin roof on the building occupied by Voehl, the baker.

ELECTRIC LIGHT CHANGES.

DR COOLEY TALKS FREELY ON THE CONSOLIDATION MATTER.

He Says the Edison Company Was Working Under Difficulties and Thought It Policy to Sell Out.

A Daily Press representative interviewed Dr. J. H. Cooley, of the borough, today, in regard to the sale of the North Plainfield Electric Light Company's plant, which was recorded in these columns last week. The Doctor talked freely and did not hesitate to tell the facts in the case. In part he said:

When the Brookside Sanitarium was completed I was very anxious that we should put in electric lights, as they would be much safer and more advantageous in every way. To that end I interested myself in the matter and together with Dr. Davis purchased stock in the company, and with Manning & Son, of Trenton, and Charles Sebring, who were already stockholders, we commenced to develop commercial lighting.

At Sebring's Mills there was a plant established and a considerable amount of the commercial lighting was done from there until various difficulties arose which necessitated the removing of their machinery to North Plainfield.

The members of the Council were not very friendly toward the company and instead of helping to make the service what it should be, were inclined to hinder its progress. Complaints were made that electric light globes were broken and that lights were out, and the company was severely scored, but the Council would not assist in the matter, and in consequence we worked at a great disadvantage.

There was a profit in the business but it was small, owing to the limited amount of business. Application was made to the Plainfield Council for permission to do business in the city, but the matter was tabled indefinitely.

During this time the Plainfield Electric Light Company were furnishing light to a number of borough residents which materially affected our business, and no steps were taken until recently to prevent them from doing business in the borough. Taking everything into consideration I decided that if the opportunity offered itself I would sell my stock, as I had other business which fully occupied my time, hence when the offer was made recently I accepted, as did also the other three members of the company, as Mr. Manning's son died last winter, leaving only four in the company.

The machinery which was brought from Sebring's Mills is now being taken back.

The transfer of the Edison property will probably be made about August 1st, but I am not prepared to say what the new company will do.

A PLAINFIELDER'S PROGRESS.

Herbert Murphy Now a Prominent Citizen in a Georgia Town.

Last month the Waycross, (Ga.,) Herald issued a trades edition, and among the portraits and biographical sketches of prominent citizens published is one of Herbert Murphy, a former resident of this city. Through the courtesy of John Rowland, of East Second street, the Daily Press is permitted to clip the following:

He came as a stranger among strangers, but in a very short while he found himself a friend among friends. He was a member of the northern branch of the Methodist church, but he transferred the membership of himself and family to the southern Methodist church, and has, and still continues to occupy a prominent place in the church. Mr. Murphy, though differing in politics with many of his friends, has always acted in harmony with the people of this section in local affairs, and is much appreciated. He was appointed Sanitary and Water Works commissioner in December, 1889, and elected chairman each successive year since. To his untiring efforts is greatly due the completion of the Water Works System, which stands second to none in the South. He is always ready to aid with money or work in any laudable enterprise of the city. Mr. Murphy was elected president of the bank of Waycross early in 1895, and fills the post with honor to himself and satisfaction to all.

Hudson May Be Next.

Senator Herbert, of Middlesex County, a member of the Senate investigating committee held a long conference at Elizabeth yesterday with Senator Voorhees, chairman of the commmitte. It is said the was the investigation in Hudson County

Dr. Coles Hurt.

Dr. Coles, a well-known physician, residing above Scotch Plains, is suffering from a severe sprain, which he received a few days ago by a frightened horse kicking him.

—Judging from the price list quoted in Fulper's advertisement in today's Press, tomorrow ought to be a busy day at his place of business on West Front street.

WING SHOTS SCORE HIGH.

Team Contest in the Series of the Trap Shooters League.

There was quite a gathering of crack wing shots at the grounds of the Union Hill Gun Club, Guttenberg, yesterday afternoon. It was the time fixed for holding the sixth monthly team contest in this year's series of the New Jersey Trap Shooters' League. The league is composed of the nine leading gun clubs located in different parts of the State. The conditions of the shoot are five men to a team, each to fire at twenty-five blue rocks, known traps, unknown angles, under the five-trap, rapid-firing system, while the rules of the American Shooting Association govern. The quintet from the Boiling Springs Fishing and Gun Club of Rutherford proved their superiority over seven rival teams, besides making a record score by breaking 115 out of a possible 125 blue rocks. The three remaining shoots of the series will be held respectively on the grounds of the Climax Gun Club at Plainfield, South Side Gun Club at Newark, and the Red Bank Gun Club. The scores:

Boiling Springs Fishing and Gun Club of Rutherford—McAlpin, 25; Grieff, 25; Huck, 22; Krebs, 22; Hall, 21. Total, 115.

Elizabeth Gun Club—Woodruff, 24; Parker, 23; Hobbard, 22; Williams, 21; Astfalk, 19; Total, 109.

Climax Gun Club of Plainfield—Smith, 23; Keller, 20; Apgar, 20; Terry, 19; Edwards, 18; Total, 100.

Maplewood Gun Club of South Orange—Van Dyke, 24; Drake, 23; Sickley, 20; "War" Smith, 20; Vanderstine, 12. Total, 99.

Union Gun Club of Springfield—Noel Money, 21; Sigler, 21; Miller, 21; Jackson, 19; Taylor 14. Total, 96.

Endeavor Gun Club of Jersey City Heights—Collins, 22; Proctor, 20; Engram, 18; Piercy, 18; Strader, 17. Total, 94.

South Side Gun Club of Newark—Hedden, 20; Thomas, 20; Geoffrey, 19; Herrington, 16; Terrill, 12. Total 87.

Union Hill Gun Club of Guttenburg—"Wanda," 22; Untereiner, 17; Hughes, 13; Buttenbaum, 11; Sullivan, 9. Total, 72.

Washingtonville Sociabilities.

Washingtonville was the scene of a merry party Wednesday evening, which took place at the home of Messrs. Davis and Will Robertson. The evening was spent very enjoyably with music and dancing.

Among those present were: Messrs. P. Williams, H. Baldwin, C. Baldwin, G. Baldwin, C. Meyers, G. Diehl, F. Titus, James Gunn, John Gunn, Geo. Kliener, Harry Kliener, L. Compton, J. Burnett, E. Burnett, Will Robertson, Davis Robertson, K. Frese, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Drew, Mrs. T. Randolph, and the Misses Jennie Baldwin, Lizzie Giddis and Kate Burnett.

What the Press Will Do.

Advertising in The Press brings results. Yesterday a gentleman advertised in the cent-a-word column for a set of blue prints which had been lost, asking that they be left at The Press office. In a little over an hour after The Press had made its appearance the lost article was returned to The Press office by Miss Margaret, the bright little daughter of Charles F. Deliele, and granddaughter of George Mehl. Results are what people want, and they know where they can get them.

Needs Another Light.

New electric lights have been put up on West Front street in front of Yaeger's furniture store, and on Madison avenue opposite the northern corner of the Babcock building. The lights are the result of a petition presented by West Front street residents asking that the dark space between Peck's and the corner of Madison avenue be illuminated. The signers of the petition think that one more light should be put directly in front of the dark territory.

On the Installment Plan.

Grocery clerks do not usually get much vacation, but Wilson F. Fulper, the West Front street grocer has arranged a way so that he does not lose their services for several days together and yet they have a weeks vacation. He gives it to them on the installment plan giving one day every week for six weeks. J. H. Johnson of that store took his first vacation yesterday.

Philadelphia Appeals to Plainfield.

A large gear on one of the Walter Scott presses in the Philadelphia Inquirer office broke down last night, and this morning George Bedford went to Philadelphia with a new gear, which he will put in the press.

A Paying Institution.

The Board of Directors of the City National Bank announce a semi-annual dividend of four per cent. out of the earnings of the past six months. It is payable after Tuesday, August 6th.

An Opportunity.

Lowest prices ever quoted in Plainfield for groceries. Don't miss such an opportunity as it only comes once in awhile. Look at Fulper's ad. and save money.

TORONTO CAN HAVE H M

Philadelphia Willing To Surrender Holmes.

Warrants Sworn Out for Him in Canada and Extradition Proceedings To Be Pushed—Holmes' Attorney Says His Client Is Not Afraid of a Trial in Toronto.

Philadelphia, July 26.—The chances are now almost beyond doubt that Holmes will be taken to Canada to stand trial for the murder of the Pietzel children. It is stated, however, that it will require at least two months before the accused can be extradited. It has been the intention of District Attorney Graham to have Holmes tried in any city where the evidence would warrant the most speedy conviction on the charge of murder, and the finding of the coroner's jury in Toronto makes it almost certain that every step will be taken to hasten the arraignment of the man in Canada.

Willing To Go to Canada.

Attorney Shoemaker, who represents Holmes, to-day declared that his client was not afraid to face any charge the Canadian authorities had to make against him. "The district attorney," said he, "should proceed slowly in this matter or the result will be that he will not have Holmes on even the charge of conspiracy to which he pleaded guilty and is now awaiting sentence. It must be remembered that the process of extradition is just as difficult from the Canadian jurisdiction as it is to get a man from the United States, and if the Toronto authorities fail to convict Holmes, which I am certain they will, there may be a big fight before the man is returned to this city."

Warrants Issued for Holmes.

Toronto, July 26.—Another step has been taken in the preliminary proceedings necessary before the alleged murderer Holmes, now in jail in Philadelphia, can be brought to this country to stand trial on the charge of killing the two Pietzel children. Crown Attorneys Curry and Dewart had a consultation as to what should be done in view of the findings of the coroner's inquest and as a result of their talk Detective Cuddy swore out two separate warrants charging Holmes with the murder of the two girls. The warrants were placed in the hands of Detective-Inspector Stark, who at once took the necessary proceedings to have Holmes extradited. The matter will be pushed as speedily as possible.

Possible Two More Victims.

Chicago, July 26.—Chicago detectives who are working on the Holmes case realizes that their only chance of convicting him of the murder of Mrs. Connor is to obtain collateral evidence in testimony which may be wrung from some of the persons who were associated with him at the time the crime was committed. In view of this they are closely questioning every one they can find who ever dealt with or knew Holmes. It is probable that two more murders may be added to Holmes' list. Eleven-year-old Cora Quinlin, daughter of the janitor of Holmes' house, whom Holmes had insured for $1,000, is missing as is also a Miss Cigrand, a girl from Indiana, who was seen with Holmes a number of times.

Holmes' Ready Explanations.

Philadelphia, July 26.—The tricky Homes, as usual has a ready excuse in explanation of the disclosures made at his Chicago residence. His lawyer says that Homes admits having buried the body of a child in the cellar of the Chicago house. He says the body was procured at a Michigan medical college and was to be used by himself and a Michigan man in connection with a plot they entered into, and which fell through, to defraud a life insurance company.

THE ATLANTA EXPOSITION.

Extraordinary Efforts of the Agricultural Department.

Washington, July 26.—The shipments of government exhibits to Atlanta for the Cotton States exposition will begin this week. The government board of management will move its headquarters in a few days to Atlanta, and will hold its next meeting at that place. Assistant-Secretary Dabney, chairman of the government board, is determined that the department of agriculture shall be well represented despite the limited appropriations. The appropriation for the exhibits of this department was only $23,000, and $9,061 has been already used. The weather bureau receives $4,000, the largest appropriation of any of the bureaus.

THE MACEDONIAN TROUBLES.

Troops Repulsed by Servians—Heavy Fighting Reported.

Constantinople, July 26.—A band of sixty Macedonians recently crossed the Servian frontier but were dispersed by the Servian troops with heavy loss. News received here from Salonica is to the effect that there has been severe and prolonged fighting between the troops and several insurgent bands. Reinforcements are being hurried to the scene of the engagements.

Miners on Strike.

Dover, N. J., July 26.—The men employed at the Mount Pleasant mine near Port Cram numbering about three or four hundred, are out on strike. They claim that the men in other mines are better paid and that some of them receive hardly enough to live on. They are determined.

The Income Tax Fiasco.

Washington, July 26.—The annual report of the commissioner of internal revenue shows a disbursement on account of the income tax collection of $88,789. The total amount paid into the treasury on this account was $77,150, and this has been ordered to be returned.

Speedy Victory for Strikers.

Tilton, N. H., July 26.—The strike in the Tilton mills proved to be a decisive and quick victory for the strikers. They demanded a 10 per cent. increase all around, and their demands were granted after they had been out twenty-four hours.

Cheese Factory Burned.

Watertown, N. Y., July 26.—Loucks cheese factory near Potsdam is in ashes. A month's product of cheese was also destroyed.

HERBERT'S VACATION.

The Secretary Will Spend It in a Tour of Inspection on the Dolphin.

Washington, July 26.—Secretary Herbert has disposed of all matters requiring his immediate attention and will begin his vacation to-day, turning the navy department over to the care of Assistant Secretary McAdoo at the close of business hours. He will leave Washington in the evening on the dispatch boat Dolphin for a tour of inspection of the Atlantic coast. Secretary Herbert will be accompanied by his son and Lieut. Reamey, his naval aide. While away he will visit New York, the Newport torpedo station, New London, Boston and Portsmouth. He will also see the president at Gray Gables.

ARKANSAS RIVER OVERFLOW.

Miles of Railroad Tracks Submerged in Western Kansas.

Topeka, Kas., July 26.—Reports to Santa Fe officials state that Arkansas river is rapidly rising and that many miles of tracks in western Kansas are under water. Men are working night and day in western and eastern Colorado. It was thought the work could be completed and the danger passed by yesterday evening, but the officials were disappointed and express the opinion that it would be doubtful if the track would be in condition for the operation of trains before Saturday. The Santa Fe is sending trains both east and west bound from Pueblo to Selkirk over the Missouri Pacific.

GEN. HARRISON TAKES A SAIL.

And Is Presented with a Nice Specimen of Landlock Salmon.

Old Forge, N. Y., July 26.—After the forest commission had left Dodds' camp yesterday Victor Adams, whom ex-President Harrison appointed postmaster of Little Falls, called and extended to the general and his party an invitation to sail in the handsome little yacht Olgie. Gen. Harrison accepted the invitation promptly and is enjoying the sail to-day. Forest Commissioner Lyman of Oswego sent to Gen. Harrison last evening a splendid specimen of landlock salmon, which he caught in Saranac lake Tuesday.

TAYLOR EXECUTED.

The 17-Year-Old Murderer Goes to the Gallows Smiling.

Columbus, O., July 26.—William Taylor, the 17-year-old colored murderer, was executed in the state prison here shortly after midnight. He showed remarkable nerve, acting upon the gallows in an almost frivolous manner. With a smile he greeted those in the apartment whom he knew, and stepped about with a Bowery swagger. Before the cap was drawn he was asked if he had anything to say, but his only reply was: "Goodby, Mr. Bowman (a guard), goodby, warden." He died in great agony of strangulation.

QUICK HAS NO RESENTMENT.

Captain of the Lane Makes No Fuss About Being Fired On.

Washington, July 26.—The case of the schooner Carrie A. Lane, which arrived at the Delaware Breakwater and reported that she had been fired on and made to give an account of herself by a Spanish gunboat off the Cuban coast, July 14, is not likely to prove another Allinaca affair. No official information or complaint on the subject has reached the state department, and, judging from the statement of Capt. Quick, the master of the schooner, none is likely to be made.

ITALY TO MAKE WAR.

Officials Say There'll Be a Conflict with Abyssinia.

Rome, July 26.—Government officials here openly declare that war with Abyssinia has been decided upon. Il Corriere confirms the news and adds that no doubt France and Russia are preparing to make their new alliance felt and wish to have England and Italy engaged in Africa, while they would be free to carry out their plans in the Mediterranean and in the east.

ECHO OF THE WILDE TRIAL.

Marquis of Queensberry Claims $3,335 Costs in the Action.

London, July 26.—A receiving order in bankruptcy has been issued against Oscar Wilde's property by the Marquis of Queensberry, claiming £677 costs in the debtor's unsuccessful action for libel.

Wheelmen Suspended.

Philadelphia, July 26.—Racing men are warned that to compete with the following will be followed by a prompt suspension from all track racing: For competing at unsanctioned races, J. C. Warr, Louis Kenney and John Tripp, Wareham, Mass.; Chester Weeks, Bourne, Mass., and Hurd, South Carver, Mass., are suspended from all track racing for sixty days from July 4.

To Manufacture Trade Watches.

Waterbury, Conn., July 26.—Waterbury men announce that they are prepared to organize a company with New Haven capitalists to manufacture at New Haven a cheap watch to be sold to a trade which will offer it as premiums. It is said that the long-wind Waterbury watch patents which are to expire shortly will be used Mills Burned at Swift Water.

Woodsville, N. H., July 26.—Fire in the village of Swift Water, seven miles from here, burned a saw mill and doby mill owned by Brydon and Sawyer, a grist mill owned by Noye and Clark, and blacksmith shop of Joseph Nutter, also a large quanity of dry lumber and logs.

Bidwell Acquitted of Cruelty.

Hartford, Conn., July 26.—State Attorney Eggleston has nolled the charge of cruelty against George Bidwell of East Hartford, the noted ticket-of-leave Bank of England forger. Judge Eggleston stated that there was not the slightest ground for the charge.

Cleveland's Coachman Stricken.

Washington, July 26.—William Willis, the president's coachman, was stricken with paralysis yesterday and is not expected to live.

CAMPOS BADLY HURT

Wounded in the Fierce Battle at Valenzuela.

Now in a Hospital at Manzanillo Surrounded by Insurgents—Reinforcements Going To His Aid—Efforts of the Government To Suppress News of the Defeat.

Jacksonville, Fla., July 26.—A cablegram from Key West says: A private letter received in this city last night per steamer Mascotte from Havana confirms the report of Martinez Campos' defeat at the battle of Valenzuela. Of the eighteen hundred Spanish troops that went into battle only three hundred escaped to Bayomo, where they are surrounded by six thousand Cubans under Maceo, Nasso, Quintin, Bandera and Coulet. The insurgents' loss at this battle was two hundred and eighty killed and wounded.

Campos Seriously Wounded.

Martinez Campos is now at Bayamo seriously wounded and surrounded by insurgents. Troops are being sent from all parts of the island to relieve him. After the fall of Santacildes Campos took command and ordered all horses and mules belonging to the officers killed to barricade themselves with and resist the terrible charges of the Cuban cavalry with machetes 3,000 strong. Three steamers with troops have left Santiago de Cuba for Manzanillo to reinforce Campos and bring him out.

People Are Terrorized.

The greatest excitement exists in Santigo. La Chambre has been sent to Spain. Maximo Gomez, on hearing of the battle, immediately left to join Maceo. The greatest excitement exists in Havana. The people are terrorized. The government is trying to suppress all details of this great battle, but it is known all through the island. The death of Amarador Guerra is not officially confirmed.

KILLED BY POLICE.

John Spellisy Dies While Resisting Arrest.

Jersey City, July 26.—John Spellisy of Union Hill was killed last night in his home by police officers. He was a desperate character and three officers went to his house to arrest him on a warrant sworn out by his wife charging him with threatening to kill her. The officers were forced to burst in the door, and as it flew open they were greeted with shots from a pistol in Spellisy's hand. The police then opened fire and a duel was begun which lasted until Spellisy fell dead with the chambers of his revolver empty.

ENTRIES FOR ENGLISH DERBY.

A Large Number of American Horses Will Be on the List.

London, July 26.—The entries for the race for the Derby stakes in 1897 will be published to-day. Americans will be largely represented. Besides eight horses by Hanover entered by Mr. Croker, Mr. Lorillard enters five, sons of sensation. Marcus Daly enters five horses, Charles Littlewood four, Mr. Belmont four, Mr. Madden two and Mr. Benson two.

THE FAIR WILL CASE.

A Special Administrator Offered $250,000 To Withdraw.

San Francisco, July 26.—Reuben F. Lloyd, attorney for the Fair estate, is authority for the statement that Special Administrator Goodfellow has been offered $250,000 to withdraw from the case. Mr. Goodfellow declined the offer. He refuses to tell who tried to induce him to resign his position.

National Banks of New York.

Washington, July 26.—The reports made of the fifty national banks of New York of the condition of business on July 11 show that they had outstanding $357,816,000 in loans and discounts, $142,739,000 lawful money reserve, of which $48,718,000 was in gold, and $311,754,000 in individual deposits. The reserve held then was 34.16 per cent. A loss of $6,700,000 in the banks holdings of gold was shown between May 7 and July 11.

Quicker Mails to Mexico

St. Louis, July 26.—Through the efforts of the St. Louis Spanish club and the American club of the City of Mexico the movement of mails between this country and Mexico has been accelerated. A gain of 24 hours is made. A delay of one full day was caused by red tape at the border, and it was at that point the efforts of the clubs were concentrated.

Union Traction Company.

Philadelphia, July 26.—The promoters of the Union Traction company, the concern which, when it shall be chartered with a capitalization of $30,000,000, will absorb the various passenger railways in Philadelphia, have selected Charles O. Kruger as treasurer. Application for a charter for the company will be made at Harrisburg probably to-day.

Big Fire at Ottumwa, Ia.

Ottumwa, Ia., July 26.—The business section of this town was swept by fire yesterday. Ten buildings including the bank of Melrose were entirely wiped out. The total loss will reach nearly $85,000; partly insured.

Sham Battle at Sand Lake.

Troy, N. Y., July 26.—About 5,000 persons witnessed the sham battle of the 13th battalion in camp at Sand Lake. Maj. Hilton of the third brigade congratulated Maj. Lloyd on the success of the field trip.

Connecticut National Guard.

Washington, July 26.—Secretary Lamont has detailed Major John B. Babcock, assistant adjutant-general to attend the encampment of the Connecticut national guard at Niantic from August 12 to 18.

No Change of Venue for Durrant.

San Francisco, July 26.—Judge Murphy has denied the motion for a change of venue in the Durrant case.

Bishop of Winchester Is Dead.

London, July 26.—The Right Rev. Anthony Wilson Thorold, D. D., bishop of Winchester, is dead.

A COMMON CAUSE OF SICKNESS.

In Warm Weather Nothing So Dangerous as Decayed Foods.

Every one knows or ought to know that decayed foods are poisonous. Boards of Health seek to prevent their sale.

We now have in mind the results which follow the decay and decomposition of foods after they have been eaten, for unless digestion occurs within a reasonable time after meals, decomposition sets in.

If dyspeptics will stop and consider for a moment some of the symptoms of their trouble, such as disagreeable breath, eructations of gas or bad taste in the mouth, they will understand that they all must come from foods that ought properly to have been absorbed into the system.

Spots before the eyes, dizziness, sleeplessness, dyspeptic headaches are but a few of the effects following the absorption into the blood of poisions developed from decomposing and undigested food that lies in the stomach.

It was a recognition of this important fact that caused the Mount Lebanon Shakers to devote so much of their time to the preparation of a remedy for dyspepsia, and nothing is more efficient than the Digestive Cordial which they have recently placed on the market.

The importance of their invention will be appreciated when we realize what a proportion of the community are victims of some form of stomach trouble. Thousands of pale, thin people have little inclination to eat, and what they do eat causes them pain and distress.

Its action is so prompt that relief frequently follows the very first dose. It restores the appetite and increases the weight. Plumpness and strength take the place of weakness and that care-worn expression which points out the dyspeptics in every community. The local druggists are now giving away interesting descriptive pamphlets.

ESCAPE AND MURDER

Daring Plot Discovered in Rhode Island Prison.

A Released Convict Was To Kill a Storekeeper for His Money and Then Procure Tools and Effect the Escape of Two of His Former Pals—One Weakened.

Providence, R. I., July 26.—One of the most remarkable plots that ever came to light in the Rhode Island state prison was revealed yesterday by convict George Elliott, a horse thief, who recoiled from the proposition to kill Patrick Dowd for his money. Murderer "Spiker" Murphy of Norwich and a fellow prisoner named John Heints, who is doing time for larceny and an assault, were alleged principals in the conspiracy. George Elliott was the "go between" and his mission was to transfer the written communication from plotter Murphy to Heintz. The letters are most remarkable productions, and they have resulted in "Spiker" Murphy being placed behind sheet iron doors in a dark cell for an indefinite time to come.

Outside Aid Was To Be Procured.

For several weeks Murphy and Heintz have been plotting to escape from the prison. The scheme was for the purpose of getting Murphy out of life confinement. Heintz was to work the plans from the outside after his liberation, which occurred yesterday because of the expiration of his sentence. Heintz was to ally himself with two friends of Murphy in the outer world and procure the tools. On the outside the friends of Murphy were to cut away the bars on the night of August 24 next. Everything was working nicely on this plot and Murphy and Elliott were hopefully awaiting the coming of yesterday.

Murder Was Planned.

At the last moment Murphy wrote another letter and gave it to Elliott to transfer to Heintz. This letter unfolded a scheme to murder Pat Dowd a grocer and saloon keeper in the town of Cranston, not far from the state prison, for his money. As soon as Murphy was liberated by his friends he was to visit Dowd's house and slay him in the night. He made it known in his letter that he preferred to do the "job" alone. Elliott, who had worked in harmony on the plot to escape, at this juncture concluded to go no further in any arrangements with Murphy, and he sought Warden Viall and made a confession of the whole scheme.

THANKS FOR W. P. HAZEN.

London's Prosecutor Grateful for His Aid in Convicting Howard.

Washington, July 26.—Baron Gough, charge d'affaires of the British embassy, has communicated to the state department, by request of Lord Salisbury at the instance of the home office in London, a letter expressing the thanks of the public prosecutor to W. P. Hazen, chief of the United States secret service division, Washington, "who was good enough to attend the recent trial of Mendel Howard and rendered great service to the department of public prosecution." This letter was conveyed to Mr. Hazen. Howard is the famous counterfeiter who was recently sentenced to eight years' imprisonment in England. He also operated in the United States, and Mr. Hazen attended his trial to testify in regard thereto.

STRICKEN ON HER WHEEL.

A Rochester Woman Falls from Her Bicycle with Apoplexy.

Rochester, N. Y., July 26.—Miss Helen F. Sickles of Rundel park was stricken with apoplexy while riding a wheel yesterday and died before medical aid could be summoned. She fell on the pavement on East avenue. She had frequently complained of pains in the region of her heart and had been advised to ride a bicycle in the hope that the open air exercise might be of benefit to her.

The Alabama Populists.

Birmingham, Ala., July 26.—The state executive committee of the populist party have given out resolutions to the press recommending fusion in the next state election with the republican party, but mentioning no candidate for governor. "Honest elections" and free coinage of silver at 16 to 1 are declared to be the main issues before the people.

Prisoners in London's Ferris Wheel.

London, July 26.—The great wheel at Earl's court, an imitation on a larger scale of the famous Ferris wheel of the world's fair of Chicago, stopped night before last and imprisoned crowds of passengers. Several hours elapsed before the wheel could be moved and the passengers released.

British Elections.

London, July 26.—According to the latest returns at hand neither of the parties have in the latest elections scored any noteworthy advantage. The unionists still maintain their lead, or nearly so, over their opponents, and it is believed will do so until the final closing of the polls.

Favors Fusion with Prohibitionists.

Columbus, O., July 26.—Capt. L. H. Webster, a prominent populist here, will offer a resolution in the populist state convention of fusion with the prohibition party on account of nationalistic plank in the state platform of the prohibitionists.

Chased into the Woods.

West Winsted, Conn., July 26.—The whereabouts of Frank Julian, an Italian barber of this place are unknown. He was chased into the woods Wednesday afternoon by enraged Italians with revolvers, they accusing him with assult on a little girl.

$10,000 Fire in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, July 26.—Last evening fire destroyed the waste mill of William J. Lloyd on Hancock street, and Delaney & Co.'s glue and curled hair factory at the corner of Hancock and Jefferson streets. Total loss about $10,000.

Germany's Receipts.

Berlin, July 26.—The Reichsanzeiger, official, states that the ordinary receipts of the empire for the year exceed the estimated receipts by 7,092,874 marks. There has also been a saving of 79,858 marks in the expenditures.

REV. MR. PESATURE MULCTED.

Must Pay Mrs. Dia $200 for Slandering Her Character.

Newark, N. J., July 26.—In the first district court yesterday the suit for damages brought by Vittoria Dia against Rev. Francesco Pesature resulted in a verdict for $200 for the plaintiff. The defendant is pastor of the First Italian Presbyterian church on Plane street, of which Mrs. Dia was formerly a member. The woman was expelled from the church November 18, 1894, and it is because of alleged libellous statements made by the pastor on that occasion that the suit was founded. In the affidavit filed by the plaintiff it was sworn to by Mrs. Dia that the pastor had openly accused her before his congregation of a woman of "impure character." In a supplementary bill filed Mrs. Dia asserted that her brother said she should be "expelled from the church for good reason."

TOOK THE PISTOL FROM HIM.

A Wounded Man Shoots and Kills His Assailant.

Brandenberg, Ky., July 26.—George Robinson, the keeper of the workhouse in this place, was shot and killed yesterday by Bland Shacklett, one of the commissioners of the institution. Shacklett and another gentleman were riding into town in a buggy and when within three miles of town Robinson rode out of a cross road and, it is said, began cursing Shacklett. Robinson soon began firing, and one bullet hit Shacklett in the mouth and lodged just behind the ear. Three others missed him. Shacklett although wounded took Robinson's pistol away from him and fired one shot into Robinson's right breast. The man fell and died in a moment.

TO ENJOIN THE LEAGUE.

Catcher Connors Asks the Court To Prevent the Collection of a Fine.

Cleveland, O., July 26.—Jack O'Connor, one of the catchers of the Cleveland baseball club, has begun suit in the common pleas court here against the National league and the Cleveland club, as a member of the lague, to enjoin the collection of a $25 fine imposed by Umpire Murray in Tuesday's Cleveland-Washington game. The petition alleges that Murray is an incompetent umpire, and that the fine was imposed without cause.

DRANK AND LOITERED ON DUTY

A Number of Letter Carriers To Be Dismissed at Several Cities.

Washington, July 26.—Acting Postmaster General Jones has forwarded instructions to the postmasters at Syracuse, N. Y., Toledo, O., and Indianapolis, Ind., to suspend or dismiss certain letter carriers in their offices. The work of the secret agents of the department was carried on in these cities and carriers were found to have drank and loitered while on duty.

MASSENA HARD ON THE ROCKS.

She Is the French Turret Ship Launched Wednesday.

Paris, July 26.—The new French turret ship Massena, 11,700 tons, which was launched at St. Nazaire Wednesday, went on the rocks at Tourteaux yesterday and as yet all the efforts made to get her afloat have failed. Six powerful tugs have been hauling on her, but she stays hard and fast.

Monument to British Soldiers.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., July 26.—In the presence of nearly 3,000 people the monument erected by the Canadian government to the British soldiers killed in the battle of Lundy's lane in 1814, was unveiled at Drummondville, Ont., yesterday afternoon. The occasion was the eighty-first anniversary of the historic battle.

Prof. Worthen Very Low.

Hanover, N. H., July 26.—Thomas S. D. Worthen, professor of mathematics in Dartmouth college, is critically ill with appendicitis. An operation was performed at the hospital in Hanover last night. His condition was found to be very serious, and his chances for recovery are about one to four.

Miners on a Sympathetic Strike.

Altoona, Pa., July 26.—The miners of the Frugality Coal & Coke company at Frugality, Cambria county, to the number of several hundred are out on a strike because of the discharge of check weighman Thomas Ragan by manager P. H. Walls.

Wanted at Vineland, N. J.

Wilmington, Del., July 26.—Walter Squirrel, alias Brown, colored, was arrested here yesterday at the instance of Detective Lore, of Vineland, N. J., on suspicion of being the man who brutally assaulted a little girl at that place on July 17.

Allentown Club Disbands.

Allentown, Pa., July 26.—The Allentown state league baseball club disbanded yesterday on account of financial troubles. The state league will continue with four clubs.

Communication with Jacksons Hole Entirely Shut Off—News from the Northwest Grows More Warlike and Alarming—Both Sides Shooting from Ambush.

Pocatello, Idaho, July 26.—"Excitement in the Jackson Hole country is at fever heat. It is not safe for ranchmen to leave their homes. The Indians are thoroughly aroused and are determined to seek vengeance for the death of the Indians killed two weeks ago by deputy constables," said Indian Agent Teter, speaking last night of the present uprising. "The settlers are thoroughly alarmed and they surely have good reason to be. The Indians look upon the killing of their warriors as nothing short of murder and are now undoubtedly preparing to avenge their deaths. There are no large camps of Indians at present in Jackson Hole proper, but I was reliably informed that there are from 240 to 300 camped in Fall River valley, thirty-five miles south.

Shooting from Ambush.

"There are Indians, however, scattered all through the country, and it is not safe for white men to go out alone. The Indians shoot from ambush at every white man who make his appearance, and the whites have adopted the same tactics toward the Indians. The settlers have congregated at several points to protect themselves. I urged them to prepare for an attack, but not to assume the aggressive toward the wards of the government.

Both Sides Anxious To Fight.

"The settlers are anxious to go out after the Indians and wipe them out. Both sides are now very determined. The settlers decided a year ago that if the Indians returned this summer they would break up their custom of hunting in this locality. The women are distracted with fear, and as there are not more than 200 settlers in the Jackson Hole valley, I considered it necessary to send in the call for troops, which I did immediately upon my arrival here. I don't think the settlers are in immediate danger, but if the troops are not sent at once they will be."

Settlers Hemmed In.

The news from the north grows more warlike and threatening with every message received. The latest information that is reliable is to the effect that within twenty-four hours 400 Lemhi Indians from the west have crossed the Union Pacific railroad in the vicinity of Market lake en route for Jacksons Hole. The Lemhi reservation is on the northwestern border of Idaho. News has also been received from the village of Market Lake that communication with Jacksons Hole is now entirely shut off. The latest messengers sent out have returned and say that all the mountain passes are heavily guarded by the Indians, who will allow no whites to enter.

Shawnee War Dance Begun.

Tulsa, I. T., July 26.—The Shawnee war dance has begun eight miles north of this place and will continue day and night until it is finished. Large numbers of members of neighboring tribes are also present and will also take part in the dance. These include no Cherokees, that tribe having abandoned the dance. A large number of officers are in the grounds to preserve order, but regardless of that fact it is expected that more or less trouble will occur, as two men were killed last year. The scalp dance, which will be performed every night around fires, represents the process of scalping, together with the burning of the body of the victim.

Says Twenty Men Were Killed.

Market Lake, July 26.—A mail driver says that a courier has arrived at Boxburg, Idaho, from Jacksons Hole with a report that a fight occurred on Tuesday evening, and that twenty white men were killed. There is no way of verifying the rumor.

INDIGNANT AT GREAT BRITAIN.

Her Occupation of Trinidad Severely Critisized by Brazilians.

Rio Janeiro, July 26.—The occupation of the island of Trinidad by the British continues to excite much indignation among Brazilians, who declare that the taking of the island is another instance of Great Britain's land-grabbing policy. In Sao Paulo, capital of the state of that name, the news caused much excitement. A crowd gathered in front of the British consulate and hooted the consul and the country he represented. Fortunately the disturbance went no further.

The Ericsson Disaster.

Washington, July 26.—The death of David Cody, the second fatality among the five men injured by the recent bursting of a steam pipe on the torpedo boat Ericsson in Long Island sound, was reported to the navy department yesterday. Lieut. Usher, who makes the report, says that he has forwarded the damaged piston to the department for examination by the experts of the engineer bureau.

Refused To Cut a Negro's Hair.

Boston, July 26.—Ferdinand Hantz, a Cambridge barber, was fined $15 under the new Teamoh law yesterday for refusing to cut the hair of a colored man. The complainant was a brother of W. H. Lewis, the colored Harvard student who recently figured in a similar action.

Atlanta at Havana.

Washington, July 26.—The unexpected arrival of the cruiser Atlanta at Havana caused some surprise among naval officers when the fact became known. Secretary Herbert would not vouchsafe any explanation of her presence there.

Hoke Smith at Columbus, Ga.

Columbus, Ga., July 26.—Hon. Hoke Smith spoke for two hours last night at the opera house here and was listened to with intense interest, being interrupted frequently by applause. A large audience was present.

Cost of the McLaughlin Trial.

New York, July 26.—Comptroller Fitch continues to receive bills incurred in the prosecution of ex-Inspector McLaughlin. So far the bills amount to over $36,000 and there are more to come.

Kansas has twenty women holding office as county superintendents of public schools.

It costs something to break a police officer in New York. Already the bills for the two trials of Inspector McLoughlin amount to $26,000 and still there are more to come.

The Daily Press opens its columns to Mr. Bullman for making public the repentance which followed his act of writing the prejudiced story which appeared in The World this morning.

It is well said that if Senator Rogers, the A. P. A. man, is nominated for Governor, he will stand on a crack instead of on a platform. His political views are so narrow he would be lost on a platform—Clinton Democrat.

Bread and water was the most effective argument the warden of the Passaic county jail could use when a number of prisoners went on a strike and refused to work on the county road. It is almost superfluous to say that they are working now.

After invoking Legislative aid and going to every other extreme, all of which failed, the New Brunswick Republicans finally gained control of the Common Council by the Democrats falling into a state of inocuous desuetude. This is bad on the Democrats.

Philadelphia is trying to float a $1,200,000 loan at three per cent., and so far has been unsuccessful. Bankers say they can do better with their money than to invest in bonds bearing such a low rate of interest. This is a pretty good sign of business activity.—New Brunswick Fredonian.

A new New York state law provides that overseers of the poor having charge in the several counties of the state, shall hereafter send to the Pasteur institute in the city of New York, all persons duly certified by regular physicians to have been bitten by rabid animals, or otherwise put in danger of infection with rabies.

The Great Iam Courier-News editor, who is said to be a college graduate, raised a great hue and cry yesterday in his sweat-shop sheet, about an alleged sensational story of the severe hail storm which he claimed was sent to New York papers from The Daily Press office. The Great Iam knows that such a statement is untrue. But the Great Iam editor will probably not state how he instigated the article in this morning's World in which he seeks to tell people who are thinking of coming to Plainfield that the city is badly governed. It may not be out of order to tell the Great Iam editor, who is said to be a college graduate, that the people will not tolerate him as a Boss.

An Enjoyable Day.

Conover's four-horse stage took a merry party over to Boynton Beach, yesterday morning, where they enjoyed a most delightful day. Among those who were of the party were the Misses Nora Williams, Laura Emmons, Alice Needham, Bertha Needham, Louise Holmes, Augustine Lesignola, Miss Perchon, of New York, Miss French, May Woodruff, Helen Boice, and Clarance Murphy, A. H. Serrell, Charles Angleman, Tom Smith, Will Corriell, Charles Hazeltine, Frank Martin, Howard Martin and John McLonghlin.

They returned about ten o'clock after many adventures.

Along Legal Lines.

Two cases came up before Justice Newcorn this morning, and both were adjourned. In the suit of Dr. H. H. Lowry vs. Charles McGinley, a jury was called and the case adjourned until Thursday at 2 o'clock. H. C. Runyon represented the plaintiff and S. S. Swackhamer the defendent. The case of Charles Hand vs. J. B. Higgins was adjourned until Friday at 10 o'clock. H. C. Runyon will act as Hand's counsel.

They Steal Chairs.

East Front street is quite worked up over the numerous cases of piazza chair stealing, which has been going on nights for some time, but it may be a dangerous experiment for the thieves as several of the residents of that thoroughfare are preparing for them.

People Can't Sleep.

If the city employs a dog-catcher it would be well for him to visit Front street between Liberty street and Plainfield avenue any night, and he could make a haul. The dogs howl incessantly almost every night and disturb those who would like to sleep.

WHERE ARE YOU GOING?

The Beautiful Hudson by Moonlight Accessible to All.

How sweet the moonlight sleeps upon the bank!
Here will we sit, and let the sounds of music
Creep in our ears: soft stillness and the night
Become the touches of sweet harmony.

When Shakespeare wrote that he must have been thinking of a trip up the Hudson some moonlight evening on one of the steamers of the People's Line, and what could be more enjoyable than sitting on the deck of one of those floating palaces, the Dean Richmond or the Drew, and watching the soft moonlight sparkle on the water, while on the left the mighty Highlands rear their majestic heads high above everything.

To the tourist bound for the Adirondacks or points on the D. & H. R. R., the N. Y. C. & H. R. R. R., or West Shore R. R., nothing can be more pleasant than leaving New York at six p. m., and arriving in Albany in time to connect with the through trains on those roads. Through tickets can be procured and baggage checked direct to any of the summer resorts in northern and western New York.

The boats themselves are veritable palaces, with electric lights and all modern conveniences to make them homelike and cheerful. Bountiful meals are served on the European plan in the grand dining saloon.

The people's Line is the only one on the river that has a Saturday night boat and it connects with all points north and west on the New York Central, the West Shore, and the Delaware & Hudson railroads.

Tickets are on sale at all the principle hotels and ticket offices or can be procured at Pier 41, (old No.), North River, foot of Canal street, and on the steamers.

Night lends an enchantment to scenery which on other times is anything but beautiful to the grand and historic scenery of the Hudson—well, go and see how it looks for yourself.

Dunellen.

Miss Lulu Adams is visiting relatives at West New Brighton, S. I.

Rev. A. I. Martine has gone to Nyack, N. Y., to visit his parents.

Miss Mary E. Martine is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Wyckoff, at Flemington.

William Terry and Miss S. Louise Gray leave today for a few days stay with friends at Lake Hopatcong.

The Dunellen M. E. Snnday-school will hold their annual picnic at Washington Rock, on Thursday, August 1st.

Rev. B. W. Hand will occupy the pulpit in the First Baptist church on Sunday morning in the absence of the pastor.

The Schubert Musical Club will picnic up the lake Saturday afternoon and will be entertained by Miss Irene Day at her home in the evening.

H. C. Gaskill, J. M. Dayton and A. R. Merrell have been appointed a committee to make the arrangements for a picnic of the First Baptist Sunday school.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Rand have the sympathy of the entire community in the death of their only child, Edward L., of cholera infantum, at the age of eight months yesterday morning about one o'clock.

INS AND OUTS.

M. C. A. at Dunellen; August 24th, Westfield at Westfield; August 31st, Cranford at Dunellen; September 2d, Raritan at Dunellen, (morning.)

—Ladies are again reminded that Alex Pargiter, Plainfield's new dry goods dealer, Park avenue, corner of Second street, is selling muslin underwear at New York city prices.

—Lewis, the man in charge of Lusardi's store, corner of Front and Somerset streets, who recently cut his left hand with a hatchet, still suffers considerable pain. He is obliged to have it bandaged and carries it in a sling.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

A MINER'S EXPERIENCE.

Incidentally the Experience of a Cricket Fuse Line.

The truth of the following tale cannot be vouched for. It ought to be true—probably it is, as it was told the other day to a small party in an uptown club by an old mining engineer just from Arizona who has always borne a reputation for veracity.

"You know," he said, "that one of the most troublesome qualities about giant powder which we use in our work in the mines is the fact that the concussion caused by one explosion explodes any other powder which happens to be near at hand. Fatal accidents are often the result.

"And yet this same quality allowed me to ascertain what I often desired to know—just how fast crickets migrated. They travel eight miles an hour, gentlemen. I found it this way.

"Last summer an old miner and myself were making our way across one of the plains near Prescott to a claim some miles distant. Night came on before we reached our destination, and we were compelled to build a fire on the trail and fix ourselves till daylight came. We had with us three sticks of giant powder, which, for safety's sake, we carefully laid on the trail about 100 yards from the fire.

"Toward 10 o'clock we began to be disturbed by a great number of those big Arizona crickets, which were following the trails across the plains. They came by thousands, solemnly walking in single file. We knew that it was no use to disturb them, and so let them pass by undisturbed. An hour passed and still they came.

"At length I reached out to throw a stick of wood into the fire, and as I did so I brushed a cricket into the flames. Instantly there was a loud explosion that scattered the ashes all over me. Then came another and another and another—bang! bang! bang!

"My companion and I jumped to our feet and gazed down the trail. It was simply a line of fire as explosion followed explosion. It kept up until we could no longer hear the reports but we could trace the devastation by the flashes of light. The last died away in about 20 minutes. We hurried back to where we had left our powder, and found but a small stick, all gnawed, left. Then we knew that the crickets had dined on it as they passed. The fire and concussion had done the rest.

"On the next day we kept along the trail and found it strewn with the legs and heads of dead crickets. The last corpse was found just eight miles from where we had camped. An hour had intervened between the arrival of the head of the line and the disaster. Hence my conclusion that crickets travel eight miles an hour."

Whispering Smith.

"Concerning Whispering Smith," said Judge Goggin, "he was a very remarkable and successful man, although he always seemed to be broke. He occupied the north half of the block, where the post office now stands. He spent $70,000 on a frame building and $30,000 on office buildings, and he had more business from '60 to '65 than all the other members of the Chicago bar put together. He was collecting lawyer for nearly every business house in the Eastern cities.

"All his clerks roomed in the big house he built for carrying on his business. He employed many of the best lawyers that lived in Chicago—Judge Magruder of the Supreme Court, Judge Noble, John W. Ela, Judge Butler, Egbert Jamieson, Doc Clyde, Hart and many others. Most of them are now dead or nearly so.

"When Jamieson kept his books Whispering Sinith used to make $75,000 a year; but he spent annually about $110,000. He delighted in spending money. Once, when they had a sanitary fair here, I knew him to lay five one hundred dollar bills on the table for chances. He had the best law library in the city; Van Higgins afterward had the next Smith prospered in business until the Baptist convention was held in Chicago in 1866.

"Mrs. Smith, a sincere Baptist, invited a large number of the preachers to stay at her house, in which there was about forty rooms. Smith raised a row one Sunday morning, saying he couldn't find a clean shirt in the house, that the preachers had stolen them all.

"He said that he was not running a Baptist missionary home. That broke up the family."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

CYCLING COMMENT.

A. H. Barnett, the cycle racer, was the guest of Clarence Teel yesterday.

Lawyer H. C. Runyon now rides a new Lyndhurst wheel which is a dandy.

Several young lady cyclists in town have adopted short skirts and knickerbockers for riding their wheels.

Charles Ridell, the racing man, purchased a new Columbia racer last night from the Eldridge Bicycle Company.

Maltby's track is becoming quite a resort for the local cracks. One of the most creditable performances this week was an unpaced mile by Peter Simmons in 2:29.

Two out of town cyclists riding in opposite directions on West Front street, near Clinton avenue, yesterday, run into each other with the result of breaking the handle bars on one of the wheels. There was no other damage.

An unknown cycler riding along East Front street last night slipped on the car tracks, throwing him to the ground. He struck on his head and for a few minutes was unconscious. A friend assisted him his feet and in a short time he was able to continue his journey.

Arthur Crane and Clinton Crane rode their wheels up and down Front street last night in true scorching fashion. Their make up was so deceiving that no one passing could detect who they were and passersby thought that two novel racers had struck town in search of a restaurant.

Lindley Hillman, of Sherman avenue, is riding a strange looking wheel as the front wheel has a steel rim and the back a wooden one. When riding up at Maltby's track the first of the week, the wooden rim on his front wheel gave way and the splintered part ran right through the tire. While waiting for his front wheel to be repaired he had substituted the front wheel of an old steel rimmed one.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with pneumonia succeeding la grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.

TIME, TWENTY-EIGHT SECONDS.

The Kent Fire Extinguisher Shows Its Effectiveness in a Test.

It is said that 70 per cent. of fires in cities are extinguished by chemicals, so it is to be seen that a successful fire extinguisher is a most important factor in the fire protection of large buildings. Joseph Hubbard, executor of the Babcock estate, has had in his possession a Kent fire extinguisher, and this noon Mariner J. Kent, the inventor of it, and general manager of the Manhattan Fire Extinguisher Company, gave an exhibition of its workings in the open space back of Babcock building. The test was successful in every particular, and all who saw it were enthusiastic in its praise. An oil barrel, open at both ends, was placed on bucks and filled with paper soaked with oil. The match was applied and in a moment the barrel was a mass of roaring flames.

The extinguisher did the work very effectively and quickly. Another trial was made, and an oil barrel filled with oil-soaked straw set on fire and allowed to burn several minutes. In just twenty-eight seconds after Mr. Kent started for the fire it was entirely out.

Like all the rest of its kind carbonic acid gas is formed, but in this case it is made instantly by reversing the can, by doing which the sulphuric acid, soda, and water are allowed to meet and the gas is formed. The advantage of the Kent extinguisher is that the gas is made instantly in that manner without any delay in uniting the chemicals which is done by a patent cap.

Among those that witnessed the test were: Assessor Joseph Hubbard, executor of the Babcock estate, Chief of the Fire Department Thaddeus Doane, Assistant Chief James A. Martin, J. Linn Edsall, J. P. Mosher, of the Sabbath Recorder, G. L. Van-Emburgh, and S. G. Wrentmore.

IN MEMORIAM OF SEYMOUR F. SMITH.

DIED JULY 8TH, A. D., 1895. "JESU MERCY."

With loving sympathy to his sorrowing parents and brothers, from his cousin, Rev. Harry E. Gilchrist, Priest.

I. DESPAIR.

Dead, you say!
No, no, it cannot be!
That child of promise so young and fair,
A father's pride, a mother's joy,
To brothers dear, so loved by all,
Struck down at manhood's dawn.
Oh, no, we cannot share
This darling one!

II. PERPLEXITY.

What does this mean?
What can it be?
Stretched cold and dead upon the bier,
But yesterday aglow with promise bright,
Today swept from earthly scenes.
The storms of grief do moan a requiem.
His pallid face washed by a tear?
O, God, explain!

III. INQUIRY.

What is this mystery,
Death—a twin to life?
Where shall we look for knowledge and for peace?
It seems so strange, so full of bitter pain,
To loving hearts, a dark cloud o'er the home.
A stone to give instead of bread;
Can this become a means of Grace?
Must we despair?

IV HOPE.

Human thought hath essayed,
Philosophy hath made its guess,
And still the mystic veil shuts out the light:
But one ray of light, we blinded fail to see:
From the Son Divine, in Holy Christ—in Holy Book.
It strikes upon the eye of faith:
And lo, in Paradise, 'mid angels bright,
Our child we see!

V. FAITH.

Ah now, we see!
Somewhat of this great mystery.
Our loved one was a loan from God:
His claim is higher than our own.
Back to his home, from whence he came,
To make a place for us he's gone.
He will welcome us where angels trod,
Our faith looks up to Thee.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed in the spring, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. Only 50c per bottle at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

A COMPLICATION.

Not to make a mystery of this story and thus harrow up the reader's feelings as we go along with the recital of the curious game of cross purposes at which Minnie Fleming and her husband played, I will state the facts of the case plainly at the beginning so that every one may understand the situation.

Minnie Fleming was a subdued, quiet little woman, with something like ten times the amount of brains her husband possessed, but she was not aware of it and would have been very indignant if any one had ventured to suggest such a thing, for she looked up to her husband with love, admiration and respect.

Knowing Jim Fleming well, it always seemed to me that his wife's adoration for him was entirely misplaced. This may be professional jealousy, for I have to admit that I never could read with patience anything Fleming ever wrote. His work seemed to me, not to put it too plainly, guff of the slushiest sort, and there is too much of that kind of writing in the world now. Jim Fleming is a big, gruff, somewhat good natured person with a thorough belief in his own abilities, which, as I have intimated, most of us do not think justifiable by facts. He is the editor of Pot-Shots, a London weekly that used to have a large circulation which is now generally understood to have fallen off on account of the tremendous competition there is in the journalistic business. It is a paper that offers £2,000 insurance money to the heirs of a man who is killed by falling out of a balloon, if at the time of the disaster he happens to have a copy of Pot-Shots in his pocket.

Now it happened that little Mrs. Minnie Fleming had literary ideas that were promptly crushed by her big husband. She possessed, as I have said, an amazing respect for his literary judgment, and with fear and trembling she had on several occasions submitted little stories to him, hoping that they might merit a place between the covers of Pot-Shots, but Jim ridiculed the stupidity of these yarns so severely that Mrs. Fleming, after having a quiet little cry all by herself, showed him no more of these efforts at fiction.

Nevertheless, she thought her stories, if not good enough for Pot-Shots, might be palmed off on other less well edited journals, so she took to sending her stories round to one after another of the London publications, getting them back as a general rule, but having one taken now and then; just enough success to keep up her courage. You may be sure that she took good care not to let her husband know anything of these excursions into the fields of literature, but she hoped to be able to earn something with her pen, with the humble desire of helping Jim out, if ever he wanted a little additional money.

She had read pretty little stories about wives who had saved a penny to-day and threepence to-morrow, storing the coins away so that when they were poured out, on the coming of a family crisis, they amounted to a wonderful fund that tided over all the difficulties. She soon found that her chief customer was the editor of the Family Bouncer, a weekly paper that went in strongly for fiction of all kinds. Her little stories seemed to suit the kind of readers who took that celebrated journal, and although the pay was small at first, the "crisis fund," as she called it, was constantly augmented.

At last she received a very nice letter from the editor of the Family Bouncer. He said he had been watching her little stories with interest for some time past, and he felt certain she could write a serial if she set her mind to it. Without making any definite promises, he wrote that he hoped she would try and that she would let him see the result. This letter filled the timorous little heart of Minnie with joy, and she set herself to work to write the long story.

Not to make too long a story of this long story, it may be said that it pleased the editor, was printed in installments and more than pleased the readers of the Family Bouncer.

Mrs. Fleming wrote under the name of Hilda "Markham," and the result of the appearance of her first long story was that Greig & Co., the literary agents, wrote to her and offered to place any stories she cared to write at as advantageous prices as the market would afford for a commission of 10 per cent. This offer she accepted, and the results were extremely gratifying to her, whatever they may have been to the editors who had to pay the increased prices.

And this brings us to the point where this story really begins. One editor generally knows pretty well which of his contemporaries, esteemed or otherwise, has the largest circulation, and which has not, and Jim Fleming saw with dismay that the circulation of his own paper was falling rapidly, and it was evident that his penny public was drifting over to the Family Bouncer. In investigating the reasons for this he quickly came upon the bald fact that the increase in his rival was largely due to the stories of the new writer, Hilda Markham. So he resolved to get a story from that lady at all hazards, and thus save his own circulation, which was coming down like a man falling from a balloon, eager to bestow the insurance money on his surviving relatives.

It was one of Jim's theories that women have no head for business, and that of all women in the world his wife had the least capacity in that direction. He made up his mind that he would go as far as £150 for a story by Hilda Markham, and he wrote a letter to her agent opening negotiations for a serial. As it happened, two other editors wrote with a similar object that same day, and the agents were in the delightful financial position of suddenly finding the demand greater than the supply. So they replied to each of the editors that Miss Markham's next story would be £500 for serial rights alone.

This price took Jim Fleming's breath away, especially as he had been accustomed all these years to fill the paper with his own stuff and with stolen matter from America. It seemed hard that an honest editor should be asked to pay away money to a mere writer. So he wrote to the agents, expostulating against the exorbitant terms, and was told in reply that they had two other offers for the story, and merely gave him the first chance because his letter happened to be the first one that was opened. The agent intimated that if he wanted the story he should have to make up his mind at once, so that the others might not be kept waiting. Then it was that Jim Fleming went home, worried about the matter, and he was never a man who concealed his irritation when he entered his own house. Poor Minnie Fleming was very much troubled to see her husband in the state of exasperation that now encompassed him. She asked him timidly to confide his woes to her, and perhaps she might be able to help him out—a suggestion which Jim received with lofty scorn.

"Is it a money trouble, Jim?" she asked.

"All troubles are money troubles," replied her husband. "There is no other trouble in this world except lack of money."

"Have you a payment to make?" she asked.

"Yes."

"How much?"

"Now, what the deuce good would it do you to know? Have you a banking account?"

"I have a small one," said his wife, trembling as she spoke, for she felt that her secret was in jeopardy.

Jim looked up at her quickly.

"A small one?" he said. "Can you tell me plainly how much money you have, if you have any?"

"You don't tell me plainly," she answered with more spirit than she had yet shown, "how much it is that you need."

"Very well," replied Jim gruffly. "I need £500. Have you got it?"

"No, I have not. How soon do you want it?"

"I want it now. That is, I want it to-morrow or the next day at the latest."

"Then," said his wife with dignity, "I will see if I can get it for you to-morrow or the next day."

After Fleming had left for London on the following morning his wife put on her best apparel and was in the city soon after her husband. She never called upon her agent before. All her negotiations had been carried on by letter. She walked three times past the office before she had the courage to go up the stairs. The demand she was about to make was so enormous, and she felt there was such a little chance of success, that had it not been for the sake of her husband she would not have ventured.

When the clerk showed her into the great man's room her courage nearly left her, but when the great man discovered that she was the rising young author, Hilda Markham, he was all genialty and smiles.

"I have brought you here," she said, her hands trembling as she undid the string, for she seemed to have a vague idea that if she showed him the writing she might have less difficulty to get along with him. "I have brought with me the complete manuscript of the latest novel I have written. I think it is better than the last."

"It is sure to be good," said the agent encouragingly.

"But—but——" stammered Mrs. Fleming. "I wanted to know if you could advance me £500?"

The agent looked grave.

"Do you mean that we are to ask that much for the novel?"

"Oh, no, no," said Mrs. Fleming eagerly. "But I promise to write you another one as soon as possible. I need the money for a particular purpose, and I must have it to-day if it is to do any good."

"Well," said the agent, "we sometimes advance money to authors, and if I could be sure of having all your work for the future, I think I might stretch a point in this case and let you have the money."

Mrs. Fleming gave a sigh of relief, and the great man, calling a clerk, wrote out a check for £500 and presented it to her. After she had signed the receipt, given him the manuscript and put her name to a contract, Mrs. Fleming hurried home to place the money in the bank, but that was one of the days when the bank closed at 2 o'clock, and she arrived there just five minutes too late. She was dismayed at this, for there was no place in their surburb where the check could be cashed, and she dared not give the check to her husband, or the whole secret would be out.

Meanwhile the agent as soon as she left the room, called his clerk to him and said:

"Write to James Fleming, of Pot-Shots, that we regret that we are not able to sell him Hilda Markham's story for £500. The author, tell him, has called upon us and refused to sell for less than £600, although, of course, you may inform him that if he had taken our offer when first made, we would have had to pocket the loss."

As soon as the letter was signed a messenger was sent with it to Fleming. The receipt of it nearly drove that good man wild. He had the announcement of the story in type and wanted to publish it in the next number.

He had such little faith in his wife being able to get the money that he actually forgot that she had promised to do so and he went home that night in even worse temper than the night before.

His wife said apologetically when he came in:

"I have got that £500, but would it make any difference to you if I did not give you the check for it until to-morrow?"

"What are you talking about?" he cried angrily. "If you have the money to-night why should I wait till to-morrow?"

"I have it in the form of a check," she answered, "and that check I wish to place in the bank."

"I warrant the check is not good for anything," said Fleming. "Let me see it."

"I would rather not do that," said his wife. "I will give you the check if you will ask no questions."

"Good heavens!" cried Jim. "I will ask no questions if you really have the money. Let me see the check."

He looked at it for a moment in amazement, and then at his wife. Forgetting his promise, he said:

"How in Heaven's name do you come to have a check from Greig & Co.? It is Greig & Co. that I have to pay £500; or rather if I had the money yesterday or to-day it would have been £500. Now they have raised me another hundred. They say that Hilda Markham came in to-day and refused to sell her story for less than £600."

"Hilda Markham!" cried his wife faintly.

"Yes, Hilda Markham. I am compelled to buy one of her stories or see our circulation go to pieces."

Fleming's wife sat down in an easy chair and there was a twinkle about her eyes that suggested laughter, which caused Jim to frown deeply.

"Jim, dear," said Minnie, "I know you are ever so much more clever than I am, but I really think you don't confide enough in your wife. It would have saved you a good deal of trouble if you had told me just what you wanted. I am Hilda Markham, and goodness knows you might have had all the stories I have ever written if you had wanted them; but now I have signed a contract with Greig for all future novels, and thus, you see, for want of a little confidence between us we shall be forever paying Grieg 10 per cent., merely that he may hand my stories to you. Jim, I don't believe you are nearly as wise a man as I always thought you were."—Luke Sharp in Detroit Free Press.

HOW TO DESTROY LEAF EATERS."

If Societies Are Formed They Can Spray Trees at Small Cost.

Lewis Collins, Secretary of the Tree Planting and Fountain Society of Brooklyn, says in regard to destroying "leaf eaters" and caterpillars:

"The subject of spraying trees to protect the foliage from the larvae of insects that devour it during the summer months is worthy of careful attention. There are certain mixtures which sprayed upon the leaves at the right time will destroy all worms that feed upon them. This can be done easily by one familiar with the process and is not expensive when a neighborhood unites and procures the apparatus and materials and hires the services of a competent man. Information relating to apparatus, mixtures and methods of applying can be obtained gratuitously by applying to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.; to the Cornell University Experiment Station, Ithaca, N. Y.; to the New Jersey Agricultural College Experiment Station, Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N. J.; from the advertisements in any leading horticultural or agricultural publications, or from any leading seedsman.

"The practice of spraying has become so well established and is so useful that it is difficult to believe that intelligent people are not acquainted with the process and its value. With a judicious use of insecticides, our foliage may be preserved from leaf eaters of all kinds."

Governor Upham's Story of Lincoln.

President Cleveland had a breezy and interesting caller at the White House the other day in the person of Governor Upham, of Wisconsin. "Just thirty-three years ago, Mr. President," said he, "I stood in this very room talking to the man who was then President of the United States. It was Mr. Lincoln. Senator Doolittle from my State brought me up here and introduced me, and told Mr. Lincoln I had just come from the rebel prison hospital in Richmond, where I had been for three months with a gunshot wound in my left shoulder. To my great amazement. President Lincoln asked me to take off my coat. Inasmuch as I was a soldier and he the Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy, I promptly but wonderingly obeyed orders. 'Take off your shirt, please,' said Mr. Lincoln, and I pulled off my shirt. 'I want to see your wound,' explained the President, and he stood me up by that window and looked closely at the spot where the bullet had entered my shoulder. He was as sympathetic as any woman could be, and said all manner of nice things to me. I suppose I am the only living man who was ever asked by a President of the United States to take off his coat and shirt in the White House."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Divorce in Burmah.

Divorce in Burmah is free. It can be claimed by either party for any good reason, such as incompatibility of temper, and carries no slur with it. No lawsuit is required. They go to the village elders, in a town to the elders of the quarter, and a divorce paper is drawn up that defines all arrangements as to property and children.

The law as to property is this. Each retains his or her own property, and all property acquired jointly during married life, as by trading, is divided equally. But the claimant of the divorce must leave the house and all the household goods to the other. If it be the woman, she may remove her loom; if it be the man, he may take nothing. Thus there is a certain penalty on claiming a divorce, but it is not a large one. —Blackwood's Magazine.

By Contrast.

"I didn't think your sermon this morning was up to your usual standard, Alfred," said his wife, as the two were on their way home from church.

"I know it wasn't, Caroline," replied the Rev. Dr. Fourthly. "It was not intended to be. I expect to make a special effort next Sunday morning, and I want it to seem brilliant by contrast."—Chicago Tribune.

STAMPS INCLOSED FOR REPLY

BY HOWARD FIELDING.

(Copyright, 1895, by Irving Bacheller.)

CHAPTER II.

A NATURAL INFERENCE.

"You are undoubtedly correct," said Dr. Bell. "I have suspected it from the first."

"I never heard of it," exclaimed Dr. Robertson. "What is it?"

"A new poison," responded Preble. "It was described in last Sunday's Globe. The chemist who discovered it is said to have experimented with it upon animals. The sensations which acompany death from it are so intensely agreeable as to produce a recognizable effect even upon the faces of dumb brutes. The story was that one of the doctor's assistants had committed suicide with it; and it was that case which gave the only knowledge which the world has of its effect upon human beings. It absolutely defies detection by analysis, and the odor and the remarkable expression upon the face of the dead are the only means by which it may be detected."

"You don't mean to say that such a poison as that was described in a newspaper," exclaimed the coroner.

"Its method of preparation was only hinted at," replied Preble. "But the hint was very broad. I was able to make it."

"What! You have actually prepared this substance?"

"I have; and I will tell you that it is done simply by disolving one of the new synthetic medicines—sold almost without restriction in every drug store—in chloroform. I should judge that a drop of it mixed with the gum on a postage stamp would kill a man in about ten seconds."

"But could this girl make it?" demanded the coroner.

"Anybody can make it," replied Preble. "The article in the paper was a mere ridicule. It did not require a chemist, but only a good guesser, to solve it."

"But her letter," I objected, "has been delayed four days. That leaves very little time."

"This is Friday," said Preble. "Her letter is postmarked Tuesday."

"I'll never believe it," I exclaimed. "The idea is preposterous that that girl——"

"But, my dear sir," interrupted Dr. Bell, "you forget that the stamp killed him, and that she undoubtedly sent the stamp."

"I want to send a telegram to this Mr. Adams in Cornwall," said Preble to me. "If I write it here, will you take it to the telegraph office in the west corridor?"

I agreed, and he wrote the dispatch. I went to the door communicating with the hotel.

"There's been somebody knocking here for the last half hour," said the policeman, "but I haven't paid any attention."

He opened the door for me, but before I could pass out another person pressed into the opening. It was a woman. The policeman would have thrust her back, but she resisted.

"Please let me in," she cried. "I must. I am his niece, Margaret Brand."

I was mute with surprise.

"By all means, let Miss Brand come in," said Preble. "And, by the way, that telegram will be unnecessary now."

The policeman stepped aside and the young woman entered. I caught only a glimpse of her as she hurried by me toward the opposite side of the room where her uncle's body had been laid upon some chairs placed side by side.

Her face possessed the element of beauty, but was disfigured by excessive leanness and the lines of care.

Without a moment's hesitation she removed the handkerchief which had been laid upon his face. She satisfied herself that he was dead by exactly the same means that Dr. Bell had employed, and apparently with the same technical skill.

"What was the cause of death?" she asked, turning to Bell and Robertson, who stood side by side.

It was evident that she knew at a glance that they were physicians.

"You should be able to answer that question," said the coroner. "You seem to have had medical training."

"I have," she replied. "My father was a physician, and I studied with him for years. But I do not see any indication here. If he has been murdered, the poison is one with which I am not familiar."

"It is a new poison," said Preble, striking in. "I will show you a description of it presently, for I have sent for a paper containing it."

The girl seemed to be bewildered under our eyes. We all stared at her, and for myself I will admit that her confession of a medical training had removed my prejudice in her favor. I believed that she had learned the nature of her uncle's will, and had sent the poisoned stamp.

"PLEASE LET ME IN," SHE CRIED.

"You show no grief," said the coroner, as if the words came without his volition.

"Why should I?" she replied. "I am his brother's child. He has permitted my mother and me to suffer destitution. Repeatedly I have——"

"Pardon me," said Preble, interrupting, "but time is precious. Why are you here?"

"What right have you to question me?"

"I am conducting the investigation of your uncle's death."

"Very well," she said; "I will answer you."

She opened a well-worn purse, and drew from it a scrap of paper, which she gave to the detective. It was a clipping from a newspaper. Preble started when he saw it. I was near enough to look over his shoulder, and my curiosity compelled me to do it.

The first word I saw on the paper was gelothania. The clipping contained the principal part of the description of that poison.

My mind was made up. The girl was mad. I expected that her next words would be maniacal boasting of her crime.

Preble turned from me, and I could not see what he was doing, but he seemed to be examining the clipping.

Just then there was a knock upon the door, and the policeman admitted a man whom I recognized by his demeanor as a member of "the force," though he was in plain clothes.

"Here is the newspaper you wanted," he said, handing it to Preble.

The detective examined it.

"I promised to show you a description of that poison," he said. "This is the paper which contained it, but unfortunately it has been cut out."

"What is all this?" exclaimed the coroner. "Mr. Preble, I am becoming utterly confused."

The detective passed the clipping to the coroner.

"Be careful of it," he said. "It will be essential in the case."

The coroner looked at it.

"I don't see anything but some advertisements of work for women," he said. "One of them is marked."

"Turn it over," said Preble.

Dr. Robertson did so, and he positively gasped with astonishment.

"Gentlemen," said Preble, "I want to ask you a question. What does a man do about ten seconds before he licks a postage stamp?"

We stared at one another, unable to understand what he meant.

"The article says," continued the detective, "that this poison works in about ten seconds. It produces no painful effect at first; indeed, to the best of my knowledge, it is not perceived except by reason of its taste, which is agreeable. But at the end of that interval the victim dies.

"Now you are all firmly persuaded that that postage stamp killed Mr. Brand, because it was found upon his tongue. But isn't that evidence that it did not kill him? Does a man hold a stamp in his mouth ten seconds? Certainly not.

"Imagine yourselves in his position. He has finished his letter, and directed the envelope. He seals the envelope, and about ten seconds later he wets the stamp. In view of these facts I say it was the envelope that killed him, and not the stamp."

There was silence for a moment. Then the coroner said:

"Your reasoning seems good, Mr. Preble, but where does it lead? What is your theory of the case?"

"Several facts are obvious," replied Preble. "In the first place somebody has been stopping Miss Brand's letters to her uncle. The last letter was held four days, and meanwhile it was opened, as an examination of the envelope will prove."

"That's true," said Dr. Robertson, after looking closely at the envelope; "but I'm still in the dark. Your theory is, of course, that the criminal held the letters in order to separate Miss Brand from her uncle. When he found a stamp in one of the letters this infernal plot came to him. But why didn't he poison the stamp?"

"Do you find any stamps on Mr. Brand's desk?" asked Preble.

"Yes; here are several. They seem to have been enclosed in the letters he opened this morning."

"Exactly. Now, are you sure that the one he used was that which was in his niece's letter?"

"No; that can hardly be proven."

"Of course not; and the murderer foresaw that if he had poisoned the stamp, he would not have been sure that Mr. Brand would use it at the right time. It might have lain upon his desk for days; it might have been lost, or given to somebody else. Whatever stamp Mr. Brand used was sure to seem to be the one his niece sent. Now see if you can find an unused envelope on that desk."

Roberstson and Bell searched, but without avail.

"Now there's a certainty," said Preble, with evident satisfaction. "The murderer didn't go upon guess work. He knew that Mr. Brand would write that letter before he attended to anything else. So he removed all the envelopes from the desk except that which was poisoned. He could control the matter of envelopes, but not the stamps, for some of them would be very likely to come in the morning's mail. Who has access to this desk?"

The question was suddenly addressed to young Brand. He turned white to the lips, and stammered:

"Several persons in the office."

"Who are they? Let every one who has a key to this desk produce it."

Every employe was called, and one key was found. It was Harold Brand's. He could not refuse to give it up, for all the clerks knew that he had it.

By this time we all saw how the current was setting, and we were not surprised when Preble continued:

"This clipping was a bold stroke. The murderer knew Miss Brand's poverty, and that she was trying to get work. It happened that the description of the poison was 'backed' by some advertisements of work for women. What a great discovery! The murderer cut it out; he marked one of the advertisements, and mailed the clipping to Miss Brand. Did you not receive it in that way?"

Miss Brand replied in the affirmative.

"Have you the letter that accompanied it?"

"No; I was told to destroy it. The letter said there were reasons. The writing resembled my uncle's, as I remembered it. I believed that he had sent me the clipping, and I was enraged. Yet I thought it best to follow the direction of the writer. The letter also told me to come to the city to-day to see about the advertisement."

"This is a wild story which you have put into her mouth," cried Harold Brand.

"I have something to back it," responded Preble. "This paper from which the description of the poison was cut was found in one of the great bags used for the collection of waste paper in the building where you live, Mr. Brand. The first thing I did on getting a view of this case was to send a man to look for that copy of the newspaper in that building. He not only found it, but he found the man who had the bag in the elevator early one morning when you came along and thrust the paper into it. Of course he cannot positively swear that it was that paper, but I'm willing to leave that point to the jury."

"You are mad to accuse me of this crime," cried Brand with trembling lips. "What do I gain by my uncle's death?—a paltry sum. This girl inherits much more than I."

"Not if she can be convicted of his murder," said Preble. "You know enough law for that. Gentlemen"—he turned to us—"so far as my investigation is concerned, it is practically closed. Harold Brand, you are under arrest."

The next instant Preble had sprung upon Brand, and the two went down in a corner with a crash. I was at a loss to understand this sudden and violent action till I saw Preble wrest something from his adversary's hand.

The detective sprang to his feet. He held before my eyes a little capsule which, in a moment, he burst by the pressure of his fingers.

"He was trying to anticipate his sentence," said Preble; "smell that."

I recognized the faint, delicious odor of gelothania.

IN AND OUT OF DOORS

TWO SUITS THAT ARE SEASONABLE JUST NOW.

In Paris the Skirts are Narrowing to Eight Yards Around. Blue in All Shades is Popular, but Royal Purple is Fashionable.

Some one has said that in the house a woman should wear colors to match her eyes, but upon the street colors to match her hair. The first gown shown is, therefore, particularly suited to blue-eyed women for housewear. The sleeves, and much of its entire bodice, are of hyacinth blue satin, which serves to bring out to good advantage all the azure within range. The skirt and over-bodice of the gown are of cream-colored canvas crepe. This over-bodice is, perhaps, the most distinctive thing about the costume. It curves about the shoulders not unlike an apron-bib, leaving the satin to show above it yoke fashion.

The satin also shows in drooping folds between the slashes of the lower part of the over-bodice. These slashes are laced across with heavy cream-colored cord. The sleeves consist of a big puff to the elbow, the French fashion of elbow sleeves having gradually gained favor elsewhere.

The choker collar rises high and plain from the satin yoke, being of the same material. The belt is of the cream-colored canvas crepe, and the godet skirt hangs full and untrimmed.

A gown is of the outing variety and has a distinctly nautical cut and finish. It is of white serge, with row upon row of narrow blue braid as trimming. The braid, half a dozen deep, bands the lower edge of the skirt. It also appears upon the belt, the cuffs, the choker collar and the surplice-like insertion at the throat, and is around the edge of the sailor collar. It likewise outlines the bodice-darts in a novel and graceful fashion. This bodice, by the way, is noticeable for not conforming to the customary blouse shape. It fits snugly to the figure, being almost double-breasted in front, and tucks under the belt at the waist line. The sleeve puffs terminate at the elbow. The hat worn with this suit is of mixed blue and white straw with a blue band.

If the newest Paris gowns are any indication of future fashion, there seems to be no likelihood of the dress skirt diminishing in width. Eight yards round has become a by no means surprising measurement, and many of the latest developments think nothing of nine and ten yards circumference.

Blue in all shades is popular just now. Beside the craze for cornflower, there is great demand for hyacinth blue, forget-me-not blue, and, lastly, "Alexandra blue," which really resembles royal purple much more than azure of any shade. It is, however, an excellent color by candle light, and is used not only for entire gowns, but also for trimmings, especially with pink.

Never has there been a more economical fashion than the Puritan, sailor and other collars that are at present in such spreading evidence upon every woman's shoulders. They transform many an ill-made or old-fashioned bodice, and make it possible for the same gown to appear wholly different upon different occasions.

A Martyr to Heredity.

"You have twice told me," said the benevolent Atlanta man to the wooden-legged mendicant, "that your leg was lost in the war?"

"Yes, sir."

"Now, I am sure you were too young to enlist at that time!"

"Well, sir, I can't deceive you; you are right. It was my father who lost a leg in the war, and the blamed thing runs in the blood. I simply inherit it. I am a wounded veteran by birth!"—Atlanta Constitution.

—I fail to see how you can laugh at such a silly remark.

—My dear fellow, I can't help it. I see the man a hundred marks.—Tagliche Rundschau.

Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared, and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. Marlow, M. D., Tamaroa, Ill. ASSAULT WITH INTENT TO KILL

GUSTAVE AMTHOR WILL HAVE TO ANSWER TO THE GRAND JURY.

Arraigned Before Justice Nash and Held in $500 Bail—The Boy Who He Shot on the Road to Recovery.

Gustave Amthor, of West Seventh street and Monroe avenue, was arrested last night by Sergeant Kiely on the charge of committing a felonious assault, with intent to kill, on Willie VanNest, the fifteen-year-old son of George VanNest, of Monroe avenue. Mr. Amthor appeared before Justice Nash and was held in $500 bail to await the action of the grand jury.

A. J. Woodruff, of West Seventh street, Mr. Amthor's partner in the custom house brokerage business, furnished the bonds.

The New York Sun this morning contained the following account of the affair:

Mr. Amthor is a Custom House broker at 19 Liberty street, this city, and is a son of the Treasurer of the German Savings Bank at Fourth avenue and Fourteenth street. He comes to town every morning and returns in the evening. On Tuesday he came to New York as usual. Before leaving he noticed Will VanNest, who is fifteen years old, and very small for his age, experimenting with a lawn sprinkling device which had recently been put in.

"You must not fool with that thing," Amthor said to the boy before leaving. "If you do you'll smash it first you know, and then you'll get yourself into trouble."

The boy dropped the machine and went out to the barn. There he helped his brother, who was at work, until Mr. Amthor had left, after which he returned to his experiments with the sprinkler. Presently the servant came out and told him to leave it alone.

"You know what you'll get if you don't," said she.

"Oh, you go to the devil," said the boy; "I know what I'm doing."

Much exasperated, the servant went in the house to tell Mrs. Amthor how she had been insulted. Mrs. Amthor came out and told the boy he must go away.

"You are making a lot of fuss over nothing," he replied. To hell with the old machine, anyway," and he threw down the hose attachment and turned away.

Mrs. Amthor says that he also called her a vile name. She is not in good health, and the matter so excited her that she became hysterical after she returned to tho house.

Mr. Amthor, on his return in the evening, noticed that she was in a very nervous condition. He asked her what was the matter, and she said that young Van Nest had insulted her. This was at dinner. Mr. Amthor had already dined in town, and felt more inclined to resent insults than to finish his meal. He immediately went upstairs, got his pistol, a 32-calibre revolver, and, without telling his wife where he was going, walked over to the Van Nest house to find Will. The boy was not at home, neither was his father, but Mrs. Van Nest was.

"Where is Willie?" asked Amthor, walking in with revolver in hand.

"What do you want him for?" asked Mrs. VanNest. Then, catching sight of the weapon, she cried:

"For Heaven's sake, Mr. Amthor, what are you going to do with that?"

"He's insulted my wife," shouted the visitor. "He called her a name that nobody can call my wife."

"Well, what did you call him once?" retorted Mrs. VanNest, with spirit. "Wasn't that just as hard on me as anything he could say about Mrs. Amthor?"

"I didn't mean any reflection on you, Mrs. VanNest," said the man, "but I want that little rascal. I'm going to find him, too. You're hiding him. You're trying to shelter him. Tell me where he is."

Amthor flourished his revolver about, and Mrs. VanNest says he pointed it at her. Much terrified, she disclaimed any knowledge of where her son was, and as she spoke she glanced out of the front window and saw Will at West Seventh street and Monroe avenue turning the trolley switch. He received a small compensation for doing this regularly. Involuntarily she gave a little exclamation of alarm, which caused Amthor to follow with his eye the direction of her gaze.

"There he is now!" he cried, and set out on a run, leaving the boy's mother powerless with fright.

A trolley car was coming down the track. Will had swung himself upon the car, which was occupied by one passenger, a young woman, and Conductor Nevin. None of them noticed Amthor until he was beside the car and shouted at the boy:

"Now I've got you, you little devil!"

Turning about, Will saw the pistol in his employer's hand. With a cry of terror he jumped from the further side and ran up the track calling:

"Don't let him shoot me. Help!"

Amthor also jumped from the car and fired. The boy shrieked, but it was only from fear, as the bullet missed him. An answering shriek came from the car, where the woman passenger had fallen back half fainting. Condutor Nevin ran to her, fearing that, in some way, the bullet had struck her. Again Amthor fired, and this time the young fugitive went down, rolling over and over. He stopped with outstretched limbs quivering.

"Oh, my God! I've killed him!" screamed Amthor, flinging his revolver to one side, and running up to the boy, he gathered him in his arms and ran back with him to the Amthor house, crying out upon his own deed. A messenger was sent for Dr. Jenkins, who found that the bullet had entered the right side of the abdomen and gone completely through, perforating the abdominal cavity in two places.

PLAINFIELD CAPITALISTS.

New Railroads In the South Being Built by Well-Known Men.

A new railroad 136 miles long which is now under construction and being built mostly by Plainfield capital, bids fair to be one of the important roads of the country. It will run from the West Virginia coal fields through Harrisonburg to the Chesapeake Bay.

The men now who are furnishing the capital are J. W. Reinhart, of Belvidere avenue, James Clark, of Seventh street and Central avenue, and E. C. Machen, of this city, and others. They calculate to have sixty miles completed by January 1, 1896, and the balance by July next.

There is also another line 100 miles long under construction for which charters have been granted, that will run from the Chesapeake Bay to Washington and connect with the B. & O. Railroad.

This will bring the city of Plainfield in direct communication with Chesapeake and that noted place, Fortress Monroe. That section of the country is one of great fertility and will no doubt reap large benefits to those locating there.

The officers of the company are:

President of the Railroad, J. W. Reinhart; President of Construction, Mr. Machen; Directors, James Clark, of Plainfield, Mr. Hodpyre, of Brooklyn, and ex-Secretary of Treasury Mr. Gillfilen, the latter being also the Vice-President.

A THIEF FOR A BEDFELLOW.

An Employe of Carl Kaerth Disappears With His Companion's Watch.

W. C. Stewart, who is employed by Carl Kaerth, had the unpleasant experience of waking up one night to find that his room-mate had skipped with his watch. Stewart and a man named Charles Davis, both of whom worked for Carl Kaerth, roomed together in Kaerth's house on East Second street, and last Friday evening Stewart retired rather early. When he woke up Davis was missing and so was his watch. Davis is a young man of middling height, smooth face, and walks rather lame. The police were immediately notified and measures were taken to capture the thief but up to this time no tidings of him have been received.

CUT BY THE SCRAPER.

Thomas Duffiey Badly Injures His Hand While Repairing the Scraper.

The street scraper got into trouble yesterday afternoon when it was being repaired at J. E. Flannery's blacksmith shop on East Third street, near Church. Thomas Duffiey, one of Flannery's assistants, was tightening up a nut with his monkey-wrench when the wrench slipped and Duffiey's hand came against the sharp edge of the scraper. A deep gash was cut in the fleshy part of the left hand while the top of one of the fingers was almost severed. The injured man went immediately to Dr. Clawson, who dressed the wounds. Duffiey was to work this morning with his left hand bound up.

Mystic Shrine Squad.

The American Field of this week contains a cut of the Mystic Shrine Squad who were at the big shooting tournament at Memphis in June. Thomas Keller, of this city, is a prominent figure in the picture.

Could Not Get Bail.

The colored man named Hooper, who was held in $500 bail to appear before the Grand Jury, went down to Elizabeth under the care of Chief of Police Grant yesterday afternoon, as he could obtain no bail.

LET THERE BE MORE LIGHT.

THAT IS THE EDICT OF THE CITY ELECTRIC LIGHT COMPANY.

Extensive Alterations Being Made at the Plant in Order to Provide for Increased Demands of Borough Lighting.

When the improvements which are now being made at the Plainfield Electric Light station are completed, the city will have one of the most complete and efficient plants in the State. For some time plans have been under consideration to increase the facilities for providing light for streets, houses, stores and power for motors, and the work is now progressing most favorably.

Two extensions are being built to the main building. One in the rear, twenty feet, and one on the side, fourteen feet. The whole will be thrown into one, as the rear and side walls to the present structure are being removed. Under the present system it is necessary to use two dynamos for the night work. This will be done away with and one dynamo, double the size of the present one, will perform the work. An entire new engine of the latest make and improvements will be a feature. One of the best changes, probably, will be a new switch board. The old one is not adequate to do the work as it should be done, and then besides it has reached the limit of its capacity, leaving no more room for additional circuits.

The new board will remedy in a great measure the difficulty complained of by consumers, that of the light blinking when a change from one switch to another is made.

A new 400-horse power boiler will be used to run the two dynamos, which will also give more power and better service.

The large dynamo and one of those at present used will do the work, and the others will be held in their present position as a reserve in case of an accident to the others.

Nearly all of the new machinery will be located in the new part of the building. The dimensions of the entire building, when the extensions are completed will be 100x80 feet giving ample room for carrying on the business. Of course the additional machinery will give facilities much in advance of the present needs, but the company expect to increase their business, and the improvements are made to meet the increase, which will of necessity follow at an early date when they illumminate the borough.

The changes are being made under the direction of Superintendent W. A. McClurg and will be strictly first-class, both from a business and scientific point of view, it being the object to give the very best service possible.

GREAT RELIGIOUS FORCE.

What the Christian Endeavorers Are Doing in the World.

The Christain Endeavor service at the First Baptist church last night was one of special interest. L. H. Biglow, Jr., was in charge, and conducted a fifteen-minute service of song, after which he read the first Psalm and gave a short talk on the subject of the meeting, "A Clean Life."

Miss Alice Woodland and Mis Emily Coriell then gave enthusiastic accounts of the Christian Endeavor convention at Boston. Statistics were given which showed that in the past ten years 40,000 societies were organized, and every country was represented in the 60,000 delegates at Boston, except Armenia. It has been thus far impossible to organize a society at that place because the natives fear unity. During the past twelve months there have been 1,800 conversions in the society.

Before Justice Newcorn.

The contract case of George W. Eddey against William Wright, was tried yesterday afternoon and judgment was rendered for the plaintiff. The case of George W. Eddey against Mrs. Patrick Ward, on contract, was also tried with a like result. Lawyer C. L. Murphy was counsel for Mr. Eddey in both cases.

Outlook for Fall.

The prospects for a big fall trade were never better—says Mr. White. Prices on cotton and woollen goods of all kinds have advanced twenty per cent and manufacturers throughout the country are advancing wages at the same rate. It all denotes a better feeling and shows that the country is getting back to its old-time prosperity.

More Aggressive Work.

The meeting of the Woman's Relief Corps was well attended last night, when plans for more aggressive work were discussed. After the business session Miss Ada Nash rendered a pleasing piano solo, and refreshments were served.

COULD NOT FOOL THIS MAN.

A SHARPER TRIES TO WORK A LAWYER FOR $15.

Claimed to Work at Somerville and Had a Sorrowful Tale to Relate—Skipped Before Detection.

A Swede giving the name of Charles Frank, Jr., came to town this morning and called on a lawyer. He said that he had been employed by George Morris, a cabinet-maker of Somerville, and that the latter owed him $315. Before leaving Somerville a telegram had been sent to him from Lowell, Mass., telling him that his wife was dead and wanting him to come at once. His employer received the telegram and destroyed it in his presence, whereupon Frank said that he hit him.

He then came to Plainfield and wanted the lawyer to take his case for him and sue for the $315, and at the same time loan him $15 to go to his home.

He stated that he had $5,500 in the First National Bank at Lowell, Mass., and he made out a check for $50 which he gave the lawyer in compensation.

The latter thought he had better make inquiries, so in company with Frank went to the telephone office on North avenue, and called up Lowell, and asked the bank officials if Frank had a bank account. They stated that he did not, and also that they had a check in their possession which he had given a person at Long Branch, which was no good.

During the time the lawyer was talking to Lowell, Frank skipped out of the office and made his escape.

The lawyer at once started after him but could find no trace of the man. Chief Grant was informed of the transaction and he is at work hunting up the sharper. Although the lawyer did not let him have the money it cost him over two dollars for his experience in telephoning to Lowell.

Frank is a very large man, wearing light trousers, dark coat, straw hat and had not been shaved in several days. He is a very smooth talker and had a most sorrowful story to relate.

Inquiry was made at Somerville by The Daily Press as to whether there was such a person as George Morris, who was a cabinet-maker, and it was learned that there was a George Morris but he is not a cabinet-maker.

The Cowardly Thief and the Bean Caller.

West Seventh street took the turn in having an attempted burglary last evening, and the thief chose the house of Mr. Dryden at the corner of Madison avenue as his objective point Unluckily for the thief, it happened that the cook had company and the two were sitting out doors. While sitting there, they saw a colored man creeping along the piazza as if trying to gain admittance through the door or window. Of course a young man is always brave when his sweetheart is around, so the caller started for thief who immediately took to his heels and left not a trace behind.

Can't Talk Through This Hat.

A. E. Hoagland journeyed to Lake Hopatcong yesterday to enjoy a vacation. He wore a straw hat. The hat came back this morning without Mr. Hoagland, and under rather unique circumstances. When it arrived at the North avenue station it was in care of a conductor who said that it had been left on the train at the Lake Hopatcong station. No word has been received from Mr. Hoagland, but it is supposed that he became so frustrated in leaving the cars that he forgot the headgear. The article was identified by a hat mark.

Thought He Was a Horse.

Blair's stable was the scene of a pitched battle last night between Edward Dooley and a man named Greenwood. Greenwood boards his horse in Blairs stable and came in to see the horse. He went to the stall and began to talk to him, but Dooley, who was loafing about the stable, thought the remarks were addressed to him and so started to punch Greenwood. A lively scrap ensued in which Greenwood was badly punished, his face being one mass of bruises.

Endeavor Rally.

A Christian Endeavor rally will be held in the Trinity Reformed church next Tuesday evening, which will be attended by all the societies in the local union. There will be a number of speakers who were in attendance at the Boston convention, and seven ministers will take part in the service which will commence at 7:45 followed by a fifteen-minute song service.

A New Church at Roselle.

Articles of incorporation have been filed at Elizabeth with the Clerk of Union County for a new Roman Catholic church at Roselle.

A CENTURY AND A HALF.

A Bicycle Run to Philadelphia and Return On August 10th.

Plainfield is to be the starting and finishing point for a novel kind of run and Plainfield cyclists are to be given a chance to try their endurance for one hundred and fifty miles. Unlike the usual century run the distance is to be a century and a half. The route is to be to Philadelphia and return. The date set for this run is Saturday, August 10th. The schedule has been adopted as follows:

Miles		Arrive a. m.	Leave a. m.
0	Plainfield, Crescent League Club House		4:00
12	New Brunswick, Palmer House	5:00	5:10
30	Princeton, Nassau Hotel	6:40	6:50
39	Trenton, United States Hotel	7:50	8:00
51	Breston, Cassins House	9:00	9:10
58	Torresdale, Red Lion Inn	9-40	9:50
75	Philadelphia, Hotel Brunswick, Twelfth and Market streets	11:30

And the return:

Miles		Arrive p. m.	Leave p. m.
0	Philadelphia, Hotel Brunswick		1:00
17	Torresdale, Red Lion Inn	2:30	2:40
24	Breston, Cassins House	3:10	3:20
36	Trenton, United States Hotel	4:20	4:30
45	Princeton, Nassau Hotel	5:30	5:40
64	New Brunswick, Palmer House	7:10	7:20
75	Plainfield, Crescent League Club House	8:10

A good steady pace will be set all the way and to those that go a pleasant day is assured. The hour and a half in Philadelphia will give a chance for a good dinner and perhaps a little glimpse of the city itself. To the riders that wish to be of the party application can be made to John Rickert, 108 North avenue. The entrance fee will be $2.50.

THROWN INTO CHANCERY.

Mrs. Sargent Has Applied For a Partition of the Frazee Estate.

There promises to be an exciting time over the estate of A. M. Frazee at the corner of Watchung avenue and East Second street.

The property was sold at auction some time ago by order of the court, and bought by Charles Gulberg for the heirs, Whitney Frazee, Mrs. Chas. Gulberg, George Frazee and Mrs. Esther K. Sargent. George Frazee afterwards sold his share to George W. DeMeza and, a few days ago, after a great deal of trouble, Charles H. Hand bought out the interest of Whitney Frazee and Mrs. Charles Gulberg, for which it is understood that $800 toward a house and lot on South avenue was given to each. The property was deeded to them and a mortgage given for the rest of its value.

Offers were made to Mrs. Sargent to sell out but she refused to do so except at an exorbitant price. She has now thrown the whole affair into the Court of Chancery and applied for a partition sale. Mr. Sargent, her husband, has been trying to induce her to sell out and he is also brought into court with the rest.

It has been the intention of Hand and DeMeza to tear down the old house and erect a large brick building on the site.

Painters Picnicing.

The men in the employe of Woolston and Buckle took possession of Wm. Hand's stage this morning and went to Boynton Beach to spend the day. The party was chaperoned by Foreman Charles Harris and consisted of E. Marsh, S. Terry, Sr., S. Terry, Jr., H. Waldron, A. Luthman, L. Coles, G. Benson, J. Morrison, H. Mollison, W. Hoagland, W. Shannon, C. Shannon, C. Waldron, L. Frazer, Omer C. Moore, W. Squires, C. Hook, H. Woolston, A. Squires, and P. Rafferty.

Particularly Sad Death.

A particularly sad death was that of James Henry Harold, brother of Miss Edith Harold, of this city, which occurred in Brooklyn Thursday night in the thirty-fifth year of his age. The young man has been ill for a year past. He was married a year and a half ago, and leaves a young wife twenty years of age. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from his late home in Brooklyn at two o'clock p. m.

Insurance Money Paid.

A. M. Rea, regent, H. A. Thorne, secretary, and D. W. Littell, treasurer of Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, called on Mrs. Ira F. Riker last night and presented her with the $3,000 check spoken of in these columns yesterday. Plainfield Council No. 711, Royal Arcanum was instituted October 4, 1882 instead of 1892 as reported yesterday.

On to Bound Brook.

Peter Roseberry took Potter's fishing brigade to Bound Brook today in search of victims of the finny tribe.

TROLLEY FROM ELIZABETH.

ELIZABETH JOURNAL VERIFIES THE DAILY PRESS PREDICTION.

Officers of the Consolidated Traction Company State They Will Run Cars to This City By December 1st.

At the time the application was made for a receiver of the New York and New Jersey Traction Company, The Daily Press exclusively stated that in all probability the Consolidated Traction Company now operating between Elizabeth and Newark would extend through to this city.

The Elizabeth Journal yesterday verified the prediction of The Daily Press by publishing the following:

And now it is promised that before the snow flies there will be trolley roads connecting this city with Plainfield and Summit and the pretty villages intervening on both routes.

The Consolidated Traction Company will build the road to Plainfield, and has already begun the steps toward securing the franchise. The route will be over the Morris avenue line, and, on leaving the city, possibly through Sayre street.

The work of construction will begin about August 1st, immediately upon the return of B. M. Shanley, the contractor, who is expected home from Europe on July 28th.

A representative of the Traction Company said this morning that a trolley road to Plainfield will be in operation by December 1st, and that cars will make the trip between Elizabeth and Plainfield in thirty-five minutes.

The success of the trolley in this city has been beyond the expectation of the Traction Company, and has given inspiration for extending the route through the country. These lines to the suburban towns will be important, not only in developing the country, by enhancing the value of property and increasing the population, but it is believed they will be of great advantage to this city.

The trolley is a progressive institution, and it is apparent in this city. In the few weeks since the electric cars have been running the city has seemingly advanced many years, and it is marvelous the changes that have taken place.

The opening up of the other sections of the county will be of still greater value to Elizabeth, as these suburban lines will tend to bring trade into the city. Every body realizes now what the trolley cars mean to a community, and the effort of the companies to extend their routes will meet with no opposition, but, it is belived, encouragement in all directions.

SCHOONMAKER WANTS BIG MONEY

Has Brought Suits Against Many Big Papers for Libel.

Francis X. Schoonmaker, formerly of Putnam avenue in this city, is keeping busy in Chicago looking after his various suits for libel. One of the Chicago newspapers three months or more ago printed a story that Mr. Schoonmaker was a fugitive from justice. Mr. Schoonmaker is now suing every journal that reprinted the article. His latest suit is against the Sterling Gazette, Whiteside Co., Ill., from which he demands $50,000. The Gazette published the story as an editorial, in conection with comments on Mr. Schoonmaker's prominence as a debater and speaker on the gold side of the money question. Suit is brought in the U. S. Circuit Court. Mr. Schoonmaker still claiming to be a citizen of New Jersey.

Thousands Upon Thousands of men are dependent for their means of living upon occupations which would be lost to them if their eyesight should fail them. How necessary is it, therefore, that they should take every precaution to avert this affliction. The only way to know positively if your eyes have the germs of disease is to have them examined. Such examinations are free to all at Collier's, 103 Park avenue, where a skilled optician may be consulted on any business day of the week.

His Leg Amputated.

Fred Milbenberg, of Bound Brook, who had two bones of the left leg fractured about a week ago by jumping from a moving train at Clinton avenue, was obliged to have the leg amputated, which was done at Muhlenberg hospital yesterday afternoon by Dr. Long. The operation was very successful.

They Wish to Thank You.

The young women who gave the tea in the German Reformed church during the last week, wish to publicly thank those who so kindly assisted them by donations and in other equally kind ways.

ONLY FAVORABLE SIGNS

Nothing Else Visible on the Business Horizon.

Scarcely Any Shrinkage Except That Which Comes Natural with Midsummer Heat—More Long Closed Works To Open—Large Demand for Cotton Goods.

New York, July 27.—Dun's weekly review of the condition of business will to-day say: It is not the season for the tide of business to rise, but there is perceived scarcely any shrinkage except that which comes naturally with midsummer heat. Lateness of spring trade threw heavy settlements into the second week of July, and clearing house payments are now almost a quarter smaller than in that week, but are 21.1 per cent. larger than last year, and only 6.0 per cent. smaller than the same week of 1892. The volume of new business is small compared with recent months, but large enough to encourage more opening of long closed works, and more advances in returns to labor. Important strikes show that the advance is not enough for some, but seem not more threatening than a week ago. The small shipments of gold count for nothing, and money markets are undisturbed. A graver cause of apprehension, if current reports were reliable, would be the injury to wheat, which has affected the markets more this week than at any other time since early in June, but, with reason or without, the reports are generally believed to be exaggerated.

Financial Situation.

The financial situation is not disturbed by gold shipments, nor by the large excess of treasury expenditures, amounting to about $12,300,000. Receipts are naturally better in July than in most other months, but expenses are also large. Money scarcely begins to go out for crop moving, and the demand for commercial loans is not as large locally as it should be. Failures for seventeen days of July show liabilities of $6,599,751, of which $1,998,528 were of manufacturing, and $3,924,881 of trading concerns. A year ago corresponding reports covered $6,317,696, of which $3,588,938 were of manufacturing, and $2,483,011 of trading concerns. Failures for the week were 202 in the United States against 249 last year, and 27 in Canada against 39 last year.

Iron and Steel Products.

Prices of iron and steel products still rise, the feature this week being the startling advance of 50 cents per keg in cut and wire nails, with new cards for various sizes which, it is stated make the advance actually greater than it appears. Angles are also a shade higher and other prices strongly maintained. Bessemer pig does not advance, although the Carnegie and one other company have been buying about 140,000 tons, which is supposed to foreshadow large contracts for rails. In the first half of 1895 orders for rails were 713,000 tons against 502,000 in the first half of last year, and a good many small orders appear at Chicago. Otherwise there is a distinct halting in a new demand, though nearly all iron and steel works are crowded with orders for some time to come. The prospect that other furnaces, with a capacity of 8,000 tons weekly at the east and as much at the south, will go into blast within the remaining months of 1895, hinders further rise in pig.

Textiles and Boots and Shoes.

Textile works have a better outlook with a larger demand, both for cotton and woolen goods, a shade advance in print cloths, and in most bleached goods, and a more hopeful market for light-weight woolens, which, if scarcely advanced beyond last year's prices, are on the whole selling better. Enormous sales of wool, 44,778,864 pounds in four weeks against 29,220,750 in 1892, far exceed actual consumption, but reflect belief that prices will not decline, and the few changes this week have been upward. Scarcity of domestic wool in eastern markets is in part due to heavy speculative withdrawals. The boot and shoe manufacture has before it orders for some week's work in most branches, though the new orders are at present scanty. Shipments from the east in four weeks of July have been 371,389 cases against 328,158 for the same weeks in 1892.

MISS ANTHONY ALL RIGHT.

The Report That She Died in Ohio Was False.

Toledo, O., July 27.—A report reached this city last night that Miss Susan B. Anthony, the renowed advocate of women suffrage, had died suddenly at Lakeside, O., during the afternoon, where she was in attendance on the summer assembly. The only foundation for the rumor, however, was the fact that Miss Anthony had been taken ill during the morning with fainting spells. Her indisposition proved to be nothing serious and Miss Anthony is now entirely recovered. She lectured at the evening session of the assembly, taking the place of Rev. Anna B. Shaw of Boston, who was unable to appear because of illness.

Captain Haff Is All Right.

Rome, N. Y., July 27.—Captain Henry C. Haff, of the yacht Defender, upon whom Drs. W. J. P. Kingsley & Son preformed an operation for the removal of a cancer a few weeks ago, was in the city yesterday to be examined as to the result. The doctors pronounced him cured.

Ship Raphael Lost.

San Francisco, July 27.—A dispatch from Port Townsend reports the arrival there of Captain Whitney of the ship Raphael, which sailed from here for Karluk, Alaska, April 24. Captain Whitney brings news of the total loss of his vessels at Karluk. No lives were lost.

Gold Coin for Canada.

New York, July 27.—Gold coin to the amount of $120,000 was withdrawn from the sub-treasury yesterday to be sent to Canada to-day. It was paid for in greenbacks and assay office checks.

Invitation for Chicago Business Men

Atlanta, Ga., July 27.—A public meeting of the business men of Atlanta was held to-day at which an invitation was extended the business men of Chicago to visit Atlanta during November.

NO MORE FREE SEEDS.

The Agricultural Department Abolishes the Useless Experiment.

Washington, July 27.—Secretary Morton's antagonism of the existence of the seed division of the agricultural department reached its logical conclusion yesterday in an order abolishing the division, taking effect October 1, by which date M. E. Fagan, chief of the division, by the same order is directed to have its work wound up. Secretary Morton says there is no doubt of the uselessness and extravagance of the gratuitous, promiscuous distribution of seeds through members of congress by the department of agriculture. The abolishing of the seed division will throw out of employment ten people besides the chief and will result in depriving fully 150 more of occupation during the busy season, the winter months, when it is customary to send out the bulk of the seeds. The chief has a salary of $2,000 a year. There are two clerks at $1,200 and eight at $840. The extra force employed in the winter season is paid at the rate of $1.50 per day.

BURNED AT THE STAKE.

Such Is Thought To Have Been the Fate of the Negro Johnson.

New Orleans, July 27.—Nothing definite can be learned as to what the mob really did with Tom Johnson, the negro accused of assault at Hattlesburg, Miss. When the men who composed the mob returned to Hattlesburg they spread the report that Johnson had escaped. They said they were walking along with him, when he suddenly broke loose from the two men who were holding him, and ran from the crowd and escaped into the swamp. They said they were afraid to fire as they might kill some of their own men. From all stories told of the affair Johnson was burned at the stake. The mob was fully 1,000 strong and the negro was securely bound, so it seems impossible that he could have escaped. Later it was learned that he was strung up in the woods and his body riddled with bullets.

ATTACKED THE TRAINMEN.

A Gang of Tramps Taken from a Freight Train by Police.

Wilmington, Del., July 27.—Shortly before midnight last night a squad of policemen captured twenty-six tramps on the Philadelphia, Wilmington & Baltimore railroad freight train at Landlith, a northern suburb of this city. The train was a fast freight and left Philadelphia at 8:40 in the morning. The trainmen discovered thirty tramps on the train and ordered them off. They refused to go and some of them secured coupling pins and attacked the trainmen, chasing them to the end of the train. No blows were struck but threats were made. One of the trainmen managed to get off and word was telegraphed here for help. The train ran without stopping at Landlith, where it was surrounded and the arrests made. The charge of trespass will be pressed against the men.

MEXICO'S CANNIBAL INDIANS.

Ranchmen Along the Coast of Sonora Fear an Attack.

Hermosillo, Mexico, July 27.—The Seris Indians, the cannibalistic tribe that occupies Tiburton island, are again becoming troublesome, and the ranchmen along the coast in the state of Sonoro, near the island, fear an attack. A party of the Indians made an attack on the ranch of Pasqual Encinas a few days ago, but were driven off by the ranch employes. The ranchmen have appealed to the authorities for protection.

PRINCESS HELEN ILL.

Made Seriously Sick as the Result of Drinking Iced Milk.

London, July 27.—A dispatch from Rome to the Central News says that Princess Helene of Orleans, who recently married the Duke of Aosta, a nephew of King Humbert, is seriously ill, the result of drinking iced milk.

Philadelphia Banks.

Philadelphia, July 27.—The forty-one Philadelphia national banks report to the comptroller of the currency that on July 11 they had $91,635,000 in loans and discounts; $21,050,000 in lawful money reserve, of which $7,989,000 was in gold, and $99,833,000 in individual deposits. The average reserve held was 34.18 per cent.

Lamont at Gray Gables.

Buzzard's Bay, Mass., July 27.—Secretary Lamont spent all day yesterday with the president at Gray Gables, except for about an hour late in the afternoon, when he took a short sail down the bay. What was talked over by the president and his secretary of war could not be learned.

Death of Charles J. Sheffield.

Cleveland, O., July 27.—Charles J. Sheffield, one of Cleveland's best known philanthropic citizens, died here yesterday. He was a son of the late Joseph L Sheffield, of New Haven, Conn., also a noted philanthropist.

MANY LIVES WERE LOST

Japanese Coast Swept by a Violent Hurricane.

Several Steamships and Sailing Craft Blown Ashore and All Believed To Be Totally Wrecked. Their Crews Perish—Fatalities on Shore Reported To Be Large.

Philadelphia, July 27.—A violent hurricane was reported yesterday afternoon by cable to the maritime exchange to have swept the coast of Japan, during which many vessels were wrecked and their crews drowned. The information of the loss of life was meagre. The cablegram was sent from Ruchinotzu. The German steamship Helen Rickmert and the Norwegian steamships Lyderhorn, Herman Wedol and Jaristurg, the British steamship Bentala and the ship Manuel Suchet from Philedelphia were all blown ashore and all are believed to have been totally wrecked except the Bentala. The loss of life on shore is reported to be large. The ship Manuel Suchet sailed from this port four months ago for Hiego, Japan, with a cargo of case oil, taken on board at Point Breeze. She was a first class iron vessel worked by a crew of twenty-seven. She had discharged her cargo and was getting under way for San Francisco when the hurricane struck her.

THE LILLIE LOW MYSTERY.

Did Dr. Biggs Enter the Woods with the Unfortunate Girl?

New York, July 27.—There was a development in the mystery surrounding the death of Lillie Low, the girl whose dead body was found on Washington Heights, which for the present at least places Dr. Biggs in an awkwark position at the best. Last evening a man who said he was Oscar Lipskar, a foreman in M. Vogel's bakery on Mott street, called at the West 30th street station, and asked to see Captain Pickett. He told the captain that he took a ride Saturday morning to 186th street and Amsterdam avenue. When he reached there he walked over to a soda water stand and purchased a glass of soda water. While he was drinking it a fine looking man accompanied by a young woman stopped at the stand and bought two glasses of soda water and after drinking them they walked into the woods. Yesterday morning when he read the story about the girl and saw the pictures of her and Dr. Biggs he became convinced that they were the people he had seen on Saturday at the soda water stand. He called upon the captain, and, after looking at the pictures of the couple in several of the newspapers the captain showed him, he declared that he was thoroughly convinced that Dr. Biggs and Lillie Low were the couple he had seen enter the woods last Saturday. He accurately described the doctor's appearance, stating that he wore a light suit of clothes and a white Alpine hat. He also accurately described the attire of the young woman, and his description, particularly that of the hat, answers that of the dead girl. Captain Pickett, when he had heard Lipskar's statement, summoned Detective McGovern and sent him with Lipskar to Dr. Biggs' house with instructions to try to have the doctor identified by Lipskar. The detective and his companion were informed at the doctor's house that the doctor was out, and although they called half a dozen times later, the doctor had not returned.

BIGGS WAS MARRIED.

He Secured a Divorce from His Wife in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, July 27.—The county records here show that Dr. Thomas A. Biggs, who is held in New York in connection with the suicide or Lillie Low, sued for a divorce from Lula A. Biggs, October 5, 1891, alleging fraud in the marriage contract and that she left him at Sault Ste Marie, Mich., sixty days after their marriage in 1891. She went to New York and did not oppose the divorce, which was granted December 23, 1891.

A Typewriter Loses Her Job For Donning Chicago Bloomers.

Rochester, N. Y., July 27.—Miss Mary E. Johnson, a typewriter in the employ of a well known firm of attorneys, appeared yesterday in a suit of bloomers and astirde a man's high geared wheel. She was completing some work in the office previous to her departure on a spin to the lake when the senior member of the firm entered. He was astonished to find so many of his gentleman clients present. He spied the girl with the bloomers and daunty cap and immediately ordered her to return home and not return. The young lady, who recently came from Chicago where such dress is common, spent much time in tears and declares that she will demand satisfaction. Her irate employer says her costume was disgraceful.

ENGINEER SERIOUSLY HURT.

Bad Collision on the Pennsylvania Road Near Hutchinson's.

Belvidere, N. J., July 27.—There was a wreck on the Belvidere and Delaware division of the Pennsylvanis railroad at Hutchinson's station last evening. Two freight trains came into collision. One of the engines was broken and several cars wrecked. Engineer Lauer of the second engine was badly hurt. Several other trainmen were slightly injured. One of the trains belonged to the Delaware & Hudson road. The track was blocked several hours.

LOOK IN THE CLOSET

SEE if you can't find some old clothes that you have put aside because of the worn-out look they have, or some clothes that are badly spotted.

We want you to bring any old clothes of that sort to us—or better yet—we'll send for them.

We propose to clean those clothes—or to dye them for you—either way to make them wearable. This is an economical suggestion.

We take out grease spots so they stay out, or we dye clothes with a color that wears. We charge as little as possible for the work.

Just a dollar or two—and you'll have a lot of new clothes.

AN UNUSUAL OPERATION

A Little Boy's Endurance Under the Scalpel.

Successfully Operated Upon for Appendicitis and Peritonitis—A Foreign Substance Removed from the Appendix—May Be Mistaken for Stomach Ache.

New York, July 27.—A very unusual and remarkable operation for appendicitis and peritonitis has just recently been performed in this city and proves to have been successful in every way as the patient is convalescent. The patient is Willie Schulter, who lives with his parents at 387 West Seventeenth street. The case is remarkable on account of the age of the patient, who is only six years old, and because the primary trouble, appendicitis, was so far advanced and rapidly progressing that perforative and active peritonitis had set in.

Treated for Stomach Ache.

On the 10th of this month Willie was taken on a Sunday school excursion by his mother, and while aboard the boat was taken ill with vomiting, and was promptly treated for seasickness. He continued ill after reaching home and was dosed with household remedies for stomach ache. He was sick all night and the next day, and in the evening of the 11th Dr. Albert Shunk of West Twenty-second street was sent for. He immediately diagnosed the case as appendicitis and the next morning found the patient worse and generating peritonitis. There was a lump and great pain at the right side of the abdominal region.

An Operation Performed.

The doctor advised an operation and performed it at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The boy's right side was opened and a quantity of pus was found. The intestines were pushed aside till the veriform appendix was reached. The appendix was kinked up peculiarly, the first half running up and the second half down, almost at right angles. The last half was putrid. In the bend in the appendix, just before the putrid part began, was found some foreign substance similar to a cherry stone. The appendix was cut off close to the intestines, the cavity was cleaned out, a drain was left in and the wound sewed up.

His Pulse Reached 144.

The operation required only 45 minutes from the time the boy began to take ether till he was returned to his bed. Great haste was necessary as the pulse was 144 and weak and feeble when the patient was put on the operation table. The vermiform appendix was unusually large for one in so young a child, being about two and a half inches long. Willie is out of danger, notwithstanding that he had a hard time of it for ten days after the operation. During that time he suffered from very active peritonitis and was given up a number of times by the nurse in attendance and by the family. When seen last night by a reporter he was sleeping peacefully and looked the picture of health.

More Common Among Children.

Successful operations for appendicitis and peritonitis so far advanced in one so young are extremely rare, if there are any at all on record. It is said by medical men that appendicitis is more common in children than is generally thought. At this season of the year there is much cholera morbus, the symptoms of which at the start are almost exactly the same as those of appendicitis. The afflicted child is treated by its parents, as they think the illness nothing unusual, until the delay has been so great that when the doctor is called it is too late as a rule to operate successfully if the case is one of appendicitis.

CLEVELAND AS ARBITRATOR.

The President To Decide the Italo-Colombian Dispute.

Washington, July 27.—One of the first matters of public interest to engross President Cleveland's attention after his return to Washington in October next will be a consideration of the dispute between the kingdom of Italy and the republic of Colombia, growing out of damages sustained by a subject of the former country during a revolution in Columbia in 1885. The amount of the claim is between $600,000 and $700,000. A voluminous correspondence has passed between the foreign offices of the two countries without any resulting agreement. It was finally suggested by Colombia that the dispute be referred to President Cleveland for arbitration. The Italian government at once agreed to the proposition and a protocal was shortly afterward signed. President Cleveland was asked in February last if he would fill the role of arbitrator, and after due consideration he gave his consent.

Connecticut G. A. R. Delegates.

Hartford, Conn., July 27.—The grand army delegation from this state to the national encampment at Louisville in September will leave Connecticut on September 7, and Jersey City, N. J., the next morning in a special train with the Rhode Island delegation via the Baltimore and Ohio railroad to Louisville.

Threatened Railroad Strike.

Philadelphia, July 27.—Nothing was known at the general offices of the Pennsylvania railroad company to-day regarding the reported impending strike for higher wages at Altoona by yardmen, switchmen, engineers and other employes. The officials here are inclined to discredit the rumor.

An Innocent Negro Lynched.

Ford, Ky., July 27.—It has developed that the negro, Bob Haggard, who was lynched here last week charged with having outraged Miss Elkin was entirely innocent of the crime with which he was charged.

Potomac River Regatta.

Washington, July 27.—The annual Potomac river regatta will be held in Washington on Aug. 24 next under the auspices of the Analostan, Columbia athletic and Potomac boat clubs.

British Elections Nearly Over.

London, July 27.—With all the constituencies, save two, heard from, the new house will consist of 333 conservatives, 70 liberal unionists, 164 liberals, 65 anti-Parnellites, and 12 Parnellites

BLUE LAWS AT RICHMOND.

Sunday Closing Question Awaiting Decision of the Case Appealed.

Richmond, Va., July 27.—Chief of Police Howard has issued a letter to the public on the enforcement of the Sunday law in which he says: "One citizen has been fined in the police court for selling a book from his store on Sunday. He has taken an appeal to the Hustings court. I do not think it would be proper to continue to arrest citizens each Sunday for such an offence as for selling newspapers, until I can have a decision from the Hustings court whether such sales are covered by the words 'works of necessity' in the statute. I shall, therefore, have no other citizen summoned to the police court for such an offense until the case now in the Hustings court shall be determined. But I warn all such citizens that a memorandum will be taken every Sunday of all persons keeping their stores open for the sale and selling of any book, newspapers or other merchandise except medicines, and if the decision of the case in the Hustings court shall be in favor of the commonwealth, I shall then have each offender summoned to the police court to show cause why he should not be fined for each offence of which I shall have a memorandum. I shall pursue the same course as to street cars, as to persons delivering ice cream on Sunday, and as to all persons keeping their stores open Sunday, except druggists. These latter I shall have reported if they sell anything but medicine on that day."

GIBBONS GOING TO IRELAND.

His Eminence Will Visit Dublin and Galway Next Month.

Baltimore, July 27.—Despatches received by private parties in this city state that Cardinal Gibbons will arrive in Dublin, Ireland, on Sunday, August 4, and will be the guest of Dr. Walsh, the patriotic archbishop of Dublin. The cardinal will officiate at the solemn high mass at St. Patrick's cathedral on that day and is expected to deliver an address during the service. From Dublin his eminence will go to Galway, which is the ancient home of the Gibbons family. He will visit the village of Tuam, near which was the ancient seat of the Irish hierarchy. At Tuam the cardinal will be the guest of Archbishop McCormick and will preach during his stay in the aged cathedral of the see. It is thought that the cardinal will visit the famous rock of Cashel where is located a great cathedral that was recently restored, which dates back almost to the time of the evangelization of Ireland by St. Patrick. A reception to his eminence is being arranged by the Catholics of Galway, which will include a procession and illumination of the town of Tuam.

MISTOOK IT FOR A CIGARETTE.

A Man Injured While Trying To Smoke a Dynamite Cartridge.

New York, July 27.—Joseph Pea, 31 years old, while walking along Water street saw what looked like a cigarette lying on the walk. He picked it up and placed it in his mouth and applied a light. A loud explosion followed. Pea felt a stinging sensation on both sides of his face and throat. Putting his hand to his face he found that blood was flowing freely. He hurried to the Hudson street hospital and the surgeon dressed twelve small wounds on his face and head. The police claim that the innocent looking cigarette was a dynamite cartridge.

OUTRAGE AND MURDER.

The Body of a Pretty 14-Year-Old Girl Found in the Charles River.

Boston, July 27.—The body of Alberta Stuart, a pretty 14-year-old girl, of Myrtle street, who had been missing from her home since Tuesday last, was found in the Charles river yesterday. An autopsy indicated that the girl had been criminally assaulted, and the police think the case one of assault and murder. The girl lived with an elder sister who keeps a lodging house, and when last seen alive went to post a letter in a street box.

AN INHUMAN MOTHER.

A Ten-Month-Old Babe Left To Die of Starvation.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 27.—The ten months babe of Mellissa Ray died yesterday at the orphan's home of starvation. The mother was wont to leave the child locked alone in the house for days and nights in succession. A humane officer found the little one lying helpless and emaciated from hunger. The society placed it in the orphan's home. The mother will be held for child murder.

CALIFORNIA FRUIT.

Prices in the London Market Fall Off One Half.

London, July 27.—Sixteen hundred cases of California fruit, which arrived at Southampton from New York by the steamer St. Louis, were sold at auction at Covent garden, fetching prices which were one-half below those of last week. The plums averaged 7s., 10d. per case, the peaches, 8s., and the pears 11s., 7d.

Counterfeited a Medicine Label.

New York, July 27.—Louis Spingarn, a druggist, and his clerk, C. T. Kuck, were held for trial in the Tombs police court on the charge of counterfeiting the label of a medicine company. The representative of the company said they had spent $3,000,000 in introducing the pills and they did not propose to be robbed.

Wheelmen's League Presidency.

New York, July 27.—The American Wheelman is in receipt of a letter from ex-Gov. Russell of Massachusetts, which states that his many engagements will prevent his considering the acceptance of the presidency of the league of American wheelmen, if it were offered him.

MASSACRED THEM ALL

Indians Slaughter Every Settler in Jacksons Hole.

Men, Women and Children Shared the Same Fate—Every Home and Cabin Fired and the Cattle Slaughtered—The Bloody Work Will Probably Be Repeated in Teton Basin, and Perhaps All Down the Teton River Valley in Idaho. Troops Reach Pocatillo.

Omaha, Neb., July 27.—The news of the massacre of settlers in Jacksons Hole is confirmed by the Union Pacific railroad officials. A telegram was received from the superintendent at Market lake that the Indians have killed every settler and that the stock was slaughtered.

A Courier Brings the News.

Pocatello, Idaho., July 27.—A courier who arrived at Market Lake, Idaho, at midnight, reports that all the settlers in Jackson's Hole have been murdered by Indians and all the houses burned. He could give no particulars of the alleged massacre, but said that a companion had attempted to reach the scene of the trouble and if he escaped the Indians he would undoubtedly reach Market Lane within 24 hours with details of the fight. Further news from Jackson's Hole is waited with some anxiety.

Believed To Be Authentic.

Pocatello, Idaho, July 27.—William Ross of the firm of Ross, Grey & Wyatt has arrived at Market Lake from St. Anthony and reports everybody at Jackson's Hole killed. It is considered authentic news and excitement is intense. He says the massacre occurred yesterday morning. The United States troops from Cheyenne arrived in this city this morning at 6 o'clock and left immediately for Market Lake. From there they will go by wagon road to the Fall River country. M. J. Gray, L. M. Hart, and Senator Hainer of Illinois, and T. R. Hainer of St. Anthony, all left St. Anthony Wednesday morning on a fishing trip to Jacksons Hole, taking no stock in the Indian war. To-day they are back and report every man, woman and child in Jacksons Hole murdered.

Teton Basin Settlers Doomed.

A courier just returned got far into Teton basin, which is the present point in danger of massacre, now that the Jacksons Hole citizens are all butchered. He reports that the smoke of a large fire can be seen several miles south of Grand Teton in the direction of Jacksons Hole. There is no doubt that the redskins have fired every home and cabin and by to-morrow will be repeating their work this side of the Teton range in Teton basin, and perhaps after that all down the Teton river valley in Idaho.

They Realize It Now.

Two hundred Utes were reported to have gone north to join the Indians in Hoback basin early this week. Small parties of Lemhi's have been slipping in daily across the Conant trail, something they have not ventured to do since the Yellowstone National park was enlarged in 1891. People in St. Anthony, Rexburg and other towns located in Idaho between the railway and Jacksons Hole have been all along placing no confidence in the "Indian scare" as they called it. Now they realize how truthful the warnings were.

Cause of the Trouble.

It is estimated that 3,000 head of elk have already been killed by the Indians this season. Bodies of elk are lying on the hillsides and in the timbered ravines, shorn of their hides only. Motherless calves follow the horses of the settlers as they passed through the country, their mothers having been killed by the Indians. This is the cause for the trouble between the Indians and white men of this county.

Scofield Takes the Matter in Hand.

Washington, July 27.—It is believed at the war department that trouble between the settlers in Wyoming and the Bannock Indians will soon be ended. The troops that were ordered to the scene of operations have been hurried forward as fast as possible and the delays that usually occur in such cases have been obviated to a large extent. Lieut.-Gen. Schofield arrived in the city at 8 o'clock last evening and will devote his attention from now on to the suppression of the Bannocks. Gen. Schofield had no news to communicate regarding the Indian troubles.

Movement of Cavalry.

Washington, July 27.—A telegram has been received at the war department from Gen. Coppinger stating that the cavalry from Fort Robinson would probably reach Market Lake, Idaho, the nearest station to and about 120 miles from the scene of the Indian trouble, at 8 o'clock this (Saturday) morning.

TWELVE PILGRIMS KILLED

And Twenty-four Injured in a Railroad Wreck in France.

Paris, July 27.—A railroad accident by which twelve persons lost their lives and twenty-four were more or less seriously injured occurred yesterday near St. Brieuc, department of Cotes du Nord. A train heavily laden with pilgrims who were returning from the shrine of Sainte Dauray was in some manner not yet explained thrown from the track, and several cars were wrecked.

Striking Miners Give In.

Altoona, Pa., July 27.—The strike of the coal miners at Frugality is over and the men have returned to work. They came to the conclusion that the company was fixed in its determination that the unjust check weighman must go, and they gave in.

To Visit New England Coast.

Philadelphia, July 27.—President Roberts of the Pennsylvania Railroad company will leave Philadelphia next week with his family for a trip to the New England coast.

New Jersey has plenty of Republican papers but very few have come out boldly to champion the canvass of any one man for the Gubernatorial nomination.

It is good news—that of the trolley extension from Elizabeth to Plainfield. But what Plainfield wants more than any thing else is extension of the local system.

Bloomers caused the discharge of a typewriter girl in Rochester a few days ago. But the meanness of the employer's act is somewhat mitigated when it is known that she is a Chicago girl.

Why was it that Mayor Gilbert's interview prepared for The World story was cut down to a half dozen lines? It looks very much as though the Great Iam Courier-News editor had used his blue pencil to escape the ridicule which the Mayor's statements would have held him up to.

Constable Brown, of Union Township, may not be a great detective, but he certainly had a great head when he conceived the idea of giving the captured horse of farm thieves the bit and letting him run down the culprits. The noble animal, it is said, went roundabout through highways, by-ways, etc., and finally brought up in a Newark stable where the keeper gave a description of the owner. And now the police are looking for the man. This sleuth-hound of a steed may fear not the inroads of the trolley. His domain is on the staff of Sheriff Tamsen, who would forthwith assign him to running down the escaped post office thieves.

In the August number of The Forum Justice H. B. Brown contributes an interesting article on "The Poor Not Growing Poorer." He takes an optomistic view and among other things says:

While it is entirely true that the business methods of the past thirty years have tended to increase enormously the fortunes of a few, and thus to widen the gulf between the very rich and the very poor, it is wholly untrue that the poor as a class are either absolutely or relatively poorer than before. Indeed, the number of small but comfortable homes in every part of the country, as well as the reports of savings-banks and building and insurance associations, prove incontestably that the poor have shared in the prosperity of the rich, and that the average standard of comfort was never higher than at present. Indeed the average workingman of today lives better and possesses more of the comforts of life than the average noble of six hundred years ago. The sins of wealth, though many and grievous, have not generally been aimed directly at the opposition of the poor.

Upon the complaints of members of other religious denominations, the police authorities have pounced upon a colony of Seventh Day Adventists at Calverton, Md. John Faust, a shoemaker, book agent and Adventist preacher, was arrested yesterday because he wanted to keep the day his church held and work on the Sabbath held by other churches. For this exercise of what he believes to be his duty, Mr. Faust will appear next Monday before the court. His will be a test case. In Maryland there are only two forms of labor a person may perform on the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday. They are works of necessity and charity. Mr. Faust works six days in the week and rests on the seventh. He begins his work on Sunday. Elder E. E. Franke, pastor of the Adventist church, and Mr. Faust say they are being persecuted by membess of other denominations.

THE POLITICAL HOROSCOPE.

Poignant Comments From Bound Brook About Somerset County.

The Bound Brook Democrat publishes a half column of political gossip and among other things says:

August is the month generally when the political pot in Somerset begins to boil, but July appears to be hot. So many persons in both parties want the "loaves and fishes." Then there are men, like our old friend Ad. Hummer, who have got a "loaf," and do nothing for their party afterward. In fact, never did anything before the "loaf" was received, only "bottom chairs" at the polls on election day and receive from $50 to $100 for their services. Fact!

It is not generally known that our old friend Austin Moore was after the same position. In other words he wasn't after it, but he "was in the hands of his friends!" Now, Austin is XCongressman Alvah's errand boy, and he often jumps off his watery band wagon to give some bit of political information he thinks. Perfectly boy-like! But then Moore should remember that the XCongressman is out of politics (influence gone) or was until he promised support to XProsecutor Steele for the judgeship. But promises are not often fulfilled by some people, and Judge Bartine is still in the field and gingersnaps to doughnuts XJudge Williamson and XSheriff Ross will support him. But in the other party Louis H. Schenck looms up. Lou is a black Republican—honest, capable of filling the position, and there are scores of Democrats who will vote for him, and if a Kilkenny cat affair occurs between the Judge and the XProsecutor, Lou will slip into the office with a big majority.

But hold on! James L. Griggs, the attorney, wants the office also. Some people think he is better off in a Sunday-school than in a judge's chair, but there was a Sunday-school lawyer elected Senator in Essex county to succeed Col. Barrett. Griggs is smart. He wants the barber shops closed on Sunday and the Italian soda water and ice cream establishments kept open—they are such good places for the Sunday-school children to spend their missionary money.

"Newt" Spencer will receive the Republican nomination for Clerk. This is given him to keep him out of the race for Surrogate. Billy Long is booked for that office again, and—the more a man has the more he wants.

Gus VanDerveer, George Corle and Frank Bowman are mentioned as the Democratic candidates, but if Matt VanDerveer gives up the notion of raising beets and carrots—he can have the nomination and be elected also.

RATS CAUSE A CAVEIN.

A Peculiar Accident Caused on North Avenue By the Rodents.

A rather peculiar accident occurred on North avenue opposite the railroad station yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock. It seems that a large number of rats have been living beneath the ground at that point and have succeeded in making large holes.

Yesterday afternoon John Emmons, the contractor, was driving past, and the ground gave way with the weight of the horse.

The animal was thrown down and luckily escaped without any broken limbs or injuries. James McFadden's son, who helps his father on the streets, was nearby and assisted Mr. Emmons in getting the animal to his feet. The hole was then filled in and repaired by McFadden.

A Camp of Bicycles.

Eighteen members of Company G, Second Regiment, National Guard of New Jersey, Lieutenant George E. Wells, it is believed were the first military company to make camp while traveling with bicycles. On their way from Hackensack to attend the state camp at Sea Girt they went into camp at Metuchen at seven o'clock last night. They were in full uniform and had been since 6 a. m. on the road. They carried Springfield rifles, weighing nine pounds each, fastened to their wheels and on their shoulders carried a new style knapsack weighing 20 pounds, containing blanket, clothing, etc.

Need a New Ordinance.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—It seems to be very important for bicyclists to carry lights after dark, in order to avoid collisions. At the same time sewer men can leave great holes in the middle of the street, such as that at Park avenue and Fifth street, large enough to sink a barrel in, without any kind of a danger signal. I wonder if the City Council has made enough off of my brother bicyclists for not carrying lights, to pay for my wheel. Bicyclist.

Narrow Escape From Lightning.

Mrs. J. P. Laire and daughter Miss Cora are at Berwick, Pa., visiting at the home of Mrs. Laire's sister. On Thursday afternoon lightning struck the house where they are visiting, entering the open front door and tearing out the rear of the house. Great consternation of course prevailed, and all seemed thankful that they were only frightened and not injured.

A Mecca for Plainfielders.

That Asbury Park is a mecca for Plainfield pilgrims is shown by the fact that, independent of the many thousands who go there on excursions, one-third of the recorded Plainfielders who leave town for change of air and scene, go to Asbury Park.

—The Swedish Social Club will hold a dance in Red Men's Hall, this evening. The committee in charge consists of Messrs. W. G. Pearson and Edward Smith.

—At the Muhlenberg Hospital it is thought that Augustus M. Frazee will not have to have his leg amputated.

AFTER A PLAINFIELD PROFESSOR.

A Former High School Principal Excites a Big Newspaper's Ire.

The Chicago Daily News gave editorial space in a recent issue to an attack on the son of Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, of this city, who was Miss Bulkley's assistant in the management of the Plainfield High School. The News says that Professor Lewis delivered an address on "Our English, Good and Bad," and among other things said:

When a trained newspaper writer is wordy it is usually because he is necessarily pot boiling. When he is vulgar and sensational it is often because the proprietor of his paper is greedy for money. I lay at the door of the American newspaper owner a burden of guilt that he cannot successfully disown. Eight owners out of every ten know nothing of the English language and care nothing for it. The ninth knows something of the language, but willingly prostitutes the sacred English tongue to the desire for sensation. The tenth was William Cullen Bryant.

The News then goes for Prof. Lewis in true Porkoplis style, and says some mean things, among them being:

When Dr. Lewis represents to his auditors that the newspaper writer is a gifted but unfortunate creature held in cruel bondage by the ignorant and brutal publisher he is merely galvanizing an old figure which has been used many times by persons who either knew nothing of the actual conditions of newspaper work or had experimented with them just enough to find out their own incapacity. Dr. Lewis was speaking without a knowledge of the facts. He was merely cutting a caper before the audience to astonish it.

THREE HUNDRED-MILE TRAMP.

Sangstad Will Take a Tour From Washington to Plainfield.

A tramp from Washington, D. C., to Plainfield is a novel form of outing, but that is what Olaf Sangstad, formerly connected with the Boys' Club is going to do. He left yesterday ane takes with him his camera, while a trunkful of plates goes in advance. Mr. Sangstad expects to get some very fine rural views.

While in Washington, Sangstad attended the photographic exhibition there but wrote home to his friends that the rooms were so dark that he could not see anything and therefore was not greatly impressed with it.

A Trusty Man Back Again.

The Plainfield Street Railway will again employ Harry Seymour as motorman on the electric cars. He goes on duty today. He was forced to leave his position sometime ago on account of illness and went to Muhlenberg Hospital where he had an operation successfuly performed upon him for appendicitis. He has now fully recovered.

SAVE THE BABY'S LIFE.

Babies Take Lactated Food With Evident Relish.

Safety for Pale, Weak, Sickly Babies in Hot Weather.

A Perfect Substitute for Healthy, Vigorous Mother's Milk.

To the thoughtful parent hot weather brings the consciousness of increased care and forethought regarding the diet of the little ones. It is appalling to anyone understanding the subject to see the carelessness of parents and nurses in the matter of infant feeding.

With cholera infantum raging as it is east and west this summer, these facts cannot be put to parents too plainly.

This mortality is not a necessary evil, for, as every single writer on the subject (from the eminent Dr. Routh, to whom every physician turns for advice, down to the honest medical student, whose opinions see light in the popular medical journals) agrees, it arises principally from the improper feeding of children.

Watch your baby's actions carefully, especially at this season of the year, so trying to little children. Is he cross, fretful or peevish? Is he troubled with constipation, colic or diarrhoea? Is his sleep short or easily broken? Then his food disagrees, and he is in serious danger of fatal disease.

"What can I do," we hear you ask. Change at once to lactated food, a pure and scientific food that makes the sick baby well and keeps the healthy child hearty and strong, even in summer's dangerous weather.

The best physicians prescribe it, intelligent mothers recommend it and use it, and babies living on it prove its worth by their healthy and happy faces. The worry and sadness that it keeps away is alone sufficient reason for using lactated food; but it is also very economical, costing less than five cents a quart, when prepared from the larger sizes. The small size costs only 25 cents, and will be mailed on receipt of price by the manufacturers, Wells, Richardson & Co., Burlington, Vt. If your druggist hasn't it in stock, do not let the sun go down before you have ordered some. It may save the baby's life.

The mother's milk in the summer is affected by the heat, and is often dangerous for the infant. It is much safer to wean the child and put it upon this reliable food that is always the same.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Councilman Vincent L. Frazee has purchased a new wheel and is learning to ride.

George Townley expects to take a run on his wheel down to Red Bank tomorrow.

An agent exhibiting the latest ideas in tires visited the bicycle agencies in town yesterday.

Edgar Sheppard and Webster Littell are planning to take a run to Flemington tomorrow.

Fred VanEps, of Park avenue, went to Somerville yesterday on his wheel to visit his old home.

Charles Rydell has purchased a new blue-rimmed Columbia from the Eldridge Bicycle Company.

Albert Butler and George Randolph, of Maynard's tonsorial parlors, went on their wheels to Boynton Beach yesterday. Yesterday was Salt Water day for the colored people at Boynton Beach.

George McIntyre and Frank Woodruff, both of the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company, had a match race at Maltby's track on Thursday. McIntyre won in a close finish in three minutes and fifteen seconds.

Will Townsend, of Myrtle, has just returned from Greenpoint, L. I., where he had a rather strange bicycle accident. He rode there on his wheel without any trouble, but one day, in starting out for a ride while there, he came to a small hill. He had hardly got started up when the large sprocket wheel broke into several pieces, and Townsend had to give up wheeling until his return to Plainfield when he had a new one put on.

Cyclists in and around the Oranges are much incensed at the actions of certain persons at present unknown who, it is alleged, have placed barbed wires in the streets with malicious intent. The spot where these pieces of barbed wire are placed is in South Orange, in Valley street, near Maplewood. A number of cyclists have had their tires punctured at this spot, and in each case a piece of barbed wire was the cause. The wheelmen of the Oranges have offered a reward for evidence that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the offenders.

—Those who want fine paper hanging, find it to their advantage to go to Edward Love, the interior decorator of North avenue. Mr. Love keeps a large and selected stock of wallpapers, paints, shades, glass, etc.

—The Swedish Lutherans held services last night in the German Lutheran church. Friends and supporters of the new movement are constantly increasing. Services will again be held on next Monday evening. Rev. E. Pihlbead will officiate.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

AN EVENING OF TABLEAUX.

A Social Gathering at the Home of Mrs. McClay.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mrs. A. C. McClay last night, when the Misses Lilly McClay, Flossie McClay, Edith Jarvis and Jennie Douglass, with a few of their friends, entertained the rest with tableaux. Music was rendered between each of the tableaux by Miss Josephine Walker and Miss Ethel Marsh, of Washington Heights.

After the tableaux came to end and the hearty applause had quieted down, ice-cream and cake were served. After a vocal solo by John E. Douglass, the rest of the evening was devoted to dancing and the singing of college songs. The gay party broke up about midnight and all were sorry that such a delightful evening had come to an end.

Photografhing and Fishing.

Echo Lake was the destination of a little cycling party yesterday afternoon which consisted of J. Hervey Doane, Richard Stevens and Dr. D. C. Adams. Perhaps a Sparrow Lynching.

A supposed evidence of judgment and punishment among birds or else an accident was supplied in a Philadelphia English sparrow which hung suspended by a string from the cornice of the great north doorway of the main building of Girard College. The string was about a yard long and appeared twisted about the neck of the bird. Just before the event came off a sort of sparrow convention was held, as any number of them swept and circled about the place, chattering and acting very noisily. This may have been the session of the court, for the noise was succeeded by a deep silence, and then the unlucky subject of attention was swung over the line. Prefect George W. Price, who is very much of a scientist in his way, said the sparrow had been hanged for some high crime known only to birds, while Mr. Danenhour believes it was a plain suiside.

YOUR SCALP! During the heats of summer does it become irritated and invite an occasional friendly scratch? To wash it is well, but not too often, lest your hair become "brash" and stiff. But treat it twice or thrice a week with our Petroleum Hair Tonic—a little rubbed in with your finger ends, and you will find the feeling of comfort and coolness truly delightful. Positively nothing equals it as a balm for the woes of your scalp. Sprinkler bottles 50c. Only at

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed in the spring, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. Only 50c per bottle at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freemyer House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for any kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

—Miss Fawcett's kindergarten and school will open for the coming year on Sept. 12th.

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the diseases for which it is intended and he knows it. It is for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

BRISK BUSINESS MAKERS.

You remember that lot of fine French satine draperies we sold so many of in the spring. We have secured another lot, about 2,000 yds, beautiful designs, just right for draperies and fancy work. Their actual value 30c; our price 15c.

5c. Pretty cottage window drapery, 40 inches wide, cost 10c to make, but you buy it for 5c.

7c. A better assortment of ducks than we had a month ago. Then you paid 12c for them. Now you buy for 7c.

8c. Those fine Irish lawns, 40 inches wide, an endless variety of them but all to your liking. Were 13c; Now 8c.

5c. For a towel sounds cheap, but they are good, and you get 10c worth of wear out of every one.

11c. You pay 12 and 15c for plain pillow case muslin, and we sell you a fine hemstitched muslin for 11c the yard.

18c. 500 pairs of those ladies' 30c stockings sold last week. (We say 30c ones because they are worth it,) and 1000 pairs to be sold this week.

$6.98. For a 100-piece decorated English porcelain dinner set. Three different colors. Would be a bargain at $10.

69c. Your choice of a line of fine lawn shirt waists that have been 98 cents.

25c. Not often you can buy such a towel for 25c. Real value 40 cents.

49c. for a ladies' night robe, full size, made of Lonesdale muslin and nicely trimmed.

15c. for corset covers and shaped neck.

12c. for silk Windsor ties; all colors.

37c. We offer a line of 40 inch fancy Mohair. So popular just now.

58c. We offer a 54 inch Storm Serge—just the thing for hard wear. Blue and black.

15c. Children's fine ribbed lisle hose, fast black.

25c. a dozen for large size tin-top jelly glasses.

13c. is all we ask for those German lawns.

10c. for Talcum Powder.

YOUNG GARFIELD.

SON OF THE LATE PRESIDENT TO ENTER POLITICS.

Young "Jim" Wants to Win on His Merits, Not by Reflected Glory. Has His Weather Eye on Congress. Coincidences with His Father's Public Career.

The nomination for State Senator of James R. Garfield, son of the murdered President, has aroused a great deal of political interest in Ohio. He is a candidate from the Portage Summitt District, comrpising the same counties which, in 1859, elected his father in the same position.

The late James A. Garfield was 28 years old when chosen, and had been married to Lucretta Rudolph but one year. James R. Garfield is nominated at the same age, and he, too, has been married but little more than a year.

Another coincidence is that the nomination came to the younger Garfield on July 2, anniversary of the date on which his father, fourteen years ago, was shot down by Guiteau. There is, however, no coincidence in the financial condition of the father and son at the time of their respective nominations. The "Jim" Garfield of 1859 was poor. His wife was poor also, but both were well educated, and both brave in the battle of life.

(the late President)

The "Jim" Garfield who is entering politics in 1895 is really a rich man. The generosity of the nation made his mother one of the richest women of the Western Reserve, and young "Jim" married the daughter of a millionaire. Garfield the elder and Garfield the younger were both graduated from Williams College. Young "Jim" is also a graduate of the Columbia Law School, though he was admitted, by examination, to practice before the Supreme Court of Ohio.

JAMES R. GARFIELD.
(the son)
As State Senator in 1895.

There will be no doubt of his election, and from now on there will be another "Jim" Garfield in the politics of Ohio. He is a young man of ambitious tendencies and is very proud of his father's name.

He wishes to stand on his own merits and not to be held up for popular esteem simply because he is the son of his father. It is no secret that his ambition is to acquire legislative experience in the Ohio Senate, and then to take his father's old place in Congress from the same old Nineteenth District that gave Giddings, Wade and Garfield to the nation.

Indeed She Would Marry.

When an Indian girl was asked about her idea of marriage the other day she said calmly:

"Well, I don't know if I would marry for money alone; but if a man had plenty of money, allied to a sweet disposition and a mustache that curled at both ends, and his father was rich and his mother and sisters aristocratic, and he wanted to marry me, and he would promise to let me have my own way in everything and keep me liberally supplied with money, was liberal about diamonds and other gems, also about the milliner, never grumbling, and I really and truly loved him, I shouldn't consider marriage a drawback."

A Modified Statement.

It is related as characteristic of a certain professor at Harvard that he was lecturing to a Radcliffe class not very long ago and happened to say in the midst of his lecture: "It is the duty of women to be beautiful;" then he paused, looked his audience over thoughtfully, and added, "at least decently good looking!"—Boston Transcript.

THE CAT AND THE KING.

BY STANLEY J. WEYMAN.

(Copyright, 1895, by Irving Bacheller.)

It was in the spring of the year 1600 that at the King's instance I had a suite of apartments fitted up for him at the Arsenal, that he might visit me, whenever it pleased him, without putting my family to inconvenience; in another place will be found an account of the six thousand crowns a year which he was so obliging as to allow me for this purpose. He honored me by using these rooms, which consisted of a hall, a chamber, a wardrobe, and a closet, two or three times in the course of that year, availing himself of my attendants and cook; and the free opportunities of consulting me on the Great Undertaking, which this plan afforded, led me to hope that notwithstanding the envy of my detractors, he would continue to adopt it. That he did not do so, nor ever visited me after the close of that year, was due not so much to the lamentable event, soon to be related, which within a few months deprived France of her greatest sovereign, as to a strange matter that attended his last stay with me. I have since had cause to think that this did not receive at the time as much attention as it deserved; and have even imagined that had I groped a little deeper into the mystery I might have found a clue to the future as well as the past, and averted one more, and the last, danger from my beloved master. But Providence would not have it so; a slight indisposition under which I was suffering at the time rendered me less able, both in mind and body; the result being that Henry, who was always averse to the publication of these ominous episodes, and held that being known they bred the like in mischievous minds, had his way, the case ending in no more than the punishment of a careless rascal.

On the occasion of this last visit—the third, I think, that he paid me—the King, who had been staying at Chantilly, came to me from Lusarche, where he lay the intervening night. My coaches went to meet him at the gates a little before noon, but he did not immediately arrive, and being at leisure and having assured myself that the dinner of twelve covers, which he had directed to be ready, was in course of preparation, I went with my wife to inspect his rooms and satisfy myself that everything was in order.

They were in charge of La Trape, a man of address and intelligence, whom I have had cause to mention more than once in the course of these memoirs. He met me at the door and conducted us through the rooms with an air of satisfaction; nor could I find the slightest fault, until my wife, looking about her with a woman's eye for minute things, paused by the bed in the chamber, and directed my attention to something on the floor.

She stooped over it. "What is this?" she asked. "Has something been——"

"WHAT IS THIS?" SHE ASKED.

"Upset here?" I said, looking also. There was a little pool of white liquid on the floor beside the bed.

La Trape uttered an exclamation of annoyance, and explained that he had not seen it before, that it had not been there five minutes earlier; and that he did not know how it came to be there now.

"What is it?" I said, looking about for some pitcher that might have overflowed; but finding none. "Is it milk?"

"I don't know, your excellency," he answered. "But it shall be removed at once."

"See that it is," I said. "Are the boughs in the fire-place fresh?" For the weather was still warm and we had not lit a fire.

"Yes, your excellency; quite fresh."

"Well, see to that, and remove it," I said, pointing to the mess. "It looks ill."

And with that the matter passed from my mind; the more completely as I heard at that moment the sound of the King's approach, and went into the court-yard to receive him. He brought with him Roquelaure, de Vic, Erard the engineer, and some others, but none whom he did not know that I should be glad to receive. He dined well, and after dinner amused himself with seeing the young men ride at the ring, and even rode a course himself with his usual skill; that being, if I remember rightly, the last occasion on which I ever saw him take a lance. Before supper he walked for a time in the hall, with Sillery, for whom he had sent; and after supper, pronouncing himself tired, he dismissed all, and retired with me to his chamber. Here we had some talk on a subject that I greatly dreaded—I mean his infatuation for Madame de Conde; but about 11 o'clock he yawned, and, after thanking me for a reception which he said was quite to his mind, he bade me go to bed.

I was half way to the door when he called me back. "Why, Grandmaster," he said, pointing to the little table by the head of the bed on which his night drinks stood, "you might be going to drown me. Do you expect me to drink all these in the night?"

"I think that there is only your posset, sire," I said, "and the lemon-water which you generally drink."

"And two or three other things?"

"Perhaps they have given your majesty some of the Arbois wine that you were good enough to——"

"Tut-tut!" he said, lifting the cover of one of the cups. "This is not wine. It may be a milk-posset."

"Yes, sire; very likely," I said drowsily.

"But it is not!" he answered, when he had smelled it. "It is plain milk! Come, my friend," he continued, looking drolly at me, "have you turned leech, or I babe in arms that you put such strong liquors before me? However, to show you that I have some childish tastes left, and am not so depraved as you have been trying to make me out for the last hour—I will drink your health in it. It would serve you right if I made you pledge me in the same liquor!"

The cup was at his lips when I sprang forward and, heedless of ceremony, caught his arm. "Pardon, sire!" I cried, in sudden agitation. "If that is milk, I gave no order that it should be placed here; and I know nothing of its origin. I beg that you will not drink it, until I have made some inquiry."

"They have all been tasted?" he asked, still holding the cup in his hand with the lid raised, but looking at it gravely.

"They should have been!" I answered. "But La Trape, whom I made answerable for that, is outside. I will go and question him. If you will wait, sire, a moment——"

"No," Henry said. "Have him here."

I gave the order to the pages who were waiting outside, and in a moment La Trape appeared, looking startled and uncomfortable. Naturally, his first glance was given to the King, who had taken his seat on the edge of the bed, but still held the cup in his hand. After asking the King's permission, I said: "What drinks did you place on the table, here, sirrah?"

He looked more uncomfortable at this, but he answered boldly enough that he had served a posset, some lemon water, and some milk.

"But orders were given only for the lemon-water and the posset," I said.

"True, your excellency," he answered. "But when I went to the pantry hatch, to see the under-butler carry up the tray, I found that the milk was on the tray; and I supposed that you had given another order."

"Possibly Madame de Sully," the King said, looking at me, "gave the order to add it?"

"She would not presume to do so, sire," I answered, sternly. "Nor do I in the least understand the matter. But at one thing we can easily arrive. You tasted all of these, man?"

La Trape said he had.

"You drank a quantity, a substantial quantity of each—according to the orders given to you?" I persisted.

"Yes, your excellency."

But I caught a guilty look in his eyes, and in a gust of rage I cried out that he lied. "The truth!" I thundered, in a terrible voice. "The truth, you villain; you did not taste all?"

"I did, your excellency; as God is above, I did!" he answered. But he had grown pale, and he looked at the King in a terrified way.

"You did?"

"Yes!"

Yet I did not believe him, and I was about to give him the lie again, when the King intervened. "Quite so," he said to La Trape, with a smile. "You drank, my good fellow, of the posset and the lemon water, and you tasted the milk, but you did not drink of it. Is not that the whole truth?"

"Yes, sire," he whimpered, breaking down. "But I—I gave some to a cat."

"And the cat is no worse?"

"No, sire."

"There, Grand Master," the King said, turning to me, "that is the truth, I think. What do you say to it?"

"That the rest is simple," I answered, grimly. "He did not drink it before; but he will drink it now, sire."

The King, sitting on the bed, laughed and looked at La Trape; as if his good-nature almost led him to interpose. But after a moment's hesitation he thought better of it, and handed me the cup. "Very well," he said; "he is your man. Have your way with him. After all, he should have drunk it."

"He shall drink it now, or be broken on the wheel!" I said. "Do you hear, you?" I continued, turning to him in a white heat of rage at the thought of his negligence, and the price it might have cost me. "Take it, and beware that you do not drop or spill it. For I swear that that shall not save you!"

He took the cup with a pale face, and hands that shook so much that he needed both to support the vessel. He hesitated, too, so long that, had I not possessed the best of reasons for believing in his fidelity, I should have suspected him of more than negligence. The shadow of his tall figure seemed to waver on the tapestry behind him; and with a little imagination I might have thought that the lights in the room had sunk. The soft whispering of the pages outside could be heard, and a stifled laugh; but inside there was not a sound. He carried the cup to his lips; then he lowered it again.

I took a step forward.

He recoiled a pace, his face ghastly. "Patience, excellency," he said, hoarsely. "I shall drink it. But I want to speak first."

"Speak!" the King answered.

"If there is death in it, I take God to witness that I know nothing, and knew nothing! There is some witch's work here—it is not the first time that I have come across this devil's milk to-day! But I take God to witness I know nothing! Now it is here I will drink it, and——"

He did not finish the sentence, but drawing a deep breath raised the cup to his lips. I saw the apple in his throat rise and fall with the effort he made to swallow, but he drank so slowly that it seemed to me that he would never drain the cup. Nor did he, for when he had swallowed, as far as I could judge from the tilting of the cup, about half of the milk, Henry rose suddenly and, seizing it, took it from him with his own hand.

"That will do," the King said. "Do you feel ill?"

La Trape drew a trembling hand across his brow, on which the sweat stood in beads; but instead of answering he remained silent, gazing fixedly before him. We waited and watched, and at length, when I should think three minutes had elapsed, he changed his position for one of greater ease, and I saw his face relax. The unnatural pallor faded, and the open lips closed. A minute later he spoke. "I feel nothing, sire," he said.

The King looked at me drolly. "Then take five minutes more," he said. "Go, and stare at Judith there, cutting off the head of Holofernes"—for that was the story of the tapestry—"and come when I call you."

La Trape went to the other end of the chamber. "Well," the King said, inviting me by a sign to sit down beside him, "is it a comedy or a tragedy, my friend? Or, tell me, what was it he meant when he said that about the other milk?"

I explained, the matter seeming so trivial now that I came to tell it—though it had doubtless contributed much to La Trape's fright—that I had to apologize.

"Still it is odd," the King said. "These drinks were not here, at that time, of course?"

"No, sire; they have been brought up within the hour."

"Well, your butler must explain it." And with that he raised his voice and called La Trape back; who came, looking red and sheepish.

"Not dead yet?" the King said.

"No, sire."

"Nor ill?"

"No, sire."

"Then begone. Or, stay!" Henry continued. "Throw the rest of this stuff into the fire-place. It may be harmless, but I have no mind to drink it by mistake."

La Trape emptied the cup among the green boughs that filled the hearth, and hastened to withdraw. It seemed to be too late to make further inquiries that night; so after listening to two or three explanations which the King hazarded, but which had all too fanciful an air in my eyes, I took my leave and retired.

Whether, however, the scene had raised too violent a commotion in my mind, or I was already sickening for the illness I have mentioned, I found it impossible to sleep; and spent the greater part of the night in a fever of fears and forebodings. The responsibility which the King's presence cast upon me lay so heavily upon my waking mind that I could not lie; and long before the King's usual hour of rising I was at his door inquiring how he did. No one knew, for the page whose turn it was to sleep at his feet had not come out; but while I stood questioning, the King's voice was heard, bidding me enter. I went in, and found him sitting up with a haggard face, which told me, before he spoke, that he had slept little better than I had. The shutters were thrown wide open, and the cold morning light poured into the room with an effect rather sombre than bright; the huge figures on the tapestry looming huger from a drab and melancholy background, and the chamber presenting all those features of disorder that in a sleeping-room lie hid at night, only to show themselves in a more vivid shape in the morning.

The King sent his page out, and bade me sit by him. "I have had a bad night," he said, with a shudder. "Grand Master, I doubt that astrologer was right, and I shall never see Germany, nor carry out my designs."

Seeing the state in which he was I could think of nothing better than to rally him, and even laugh at him. "You think so now, sire," I said. "It is the cold hour. By and by, when you have broken your fast, you will thing differently."

"But, it may be, less correctly," he answered; and as he sat looking before him with glooms eyes, he heaved a deep sigh. "My friend," he said, mournfully, "I want to live, and I am going to die."

"Of what?" I asked, gaily.

"I do not know; but I dreamed last night that a house fell on me in the Rue de la Ferronerie, and I cannot help thinking that I shall die in that way."

"Very well," I said. "It is well to know that."

He asked me peevishly what I meant.

"Only," I explained, "that, in that case, as your Majesty need never pass through that street, you have it in your hands to live forever."

"Perhaps it may not happen there—in that very street," he answered.

"And perhaps it may not happen yet," I rejoined. And then, more seriously, "Come, sire," I continued, "why this sudden weakness? I have known you face death a hundred times."

"But not after such a dream as I had last night," he said, with a grimace—yet I could see that he was already comforted. "I thought that I was passing along that street in my coach, and on a sudden, between St. Innocent's Church and the notary's—there is a notary's there?"

"Yes, sire," I said, somewhat surprised.

"I heard a great roar, and something struck me down, and I found myself pinned to the ground, in darkness, with my mouth full of dust, and an immense beam on my chest. I lay for a time in agony, fighting for breath, and then my brain seemed to burst in my head, and I awoke."

"I have had such a dream, sire," I said, dryly.

"Last night?"

"No," I said, "not last night."

LIFE IN LIBERIA.

Bishop Turner Tells About the Black Colony Whence He Has Just Come.

Bishop H. M. Turner, one of the leading advocates of negro emigration to Africa, arrived recently after an absence of five months in Europe and Africa, a month of which he spent in Liberia where he watched the progress of the 227 negro colonists who went to Liberia on the steamer Horsa, from Savannah, Ga., on March 12. In an interview Bishop Turner said:

"The Horsa reached Monrovia, the capital of Liberia, on March 29, after a smooth passage. The colonists stood the voyage splendidly. Only one death occurred in transit, and that was of a little child that died several hours before landing. After landing two old people died within ten days. It had been expected that one man would die during the voyage, but he prayed that his life might be spared until he reached Africa, and his prayer was granted.

"I reached Liberia eleven days after the Horsa had sailed on her homeward trip, and I remained there about a month. On landing, the colonists were divided into two settlements, one being sent to Johnsonville, about ten miles from Monrovia, and the other sent about fifteen miles from the coast. Each head of a family received twenty-five acres of good farming land from the government.

"The general health of the colonists was better than would have been expected, in consideration of their imprudence in eating the fruits of the country most lavishly, against the advice of the native Liberians, for newcomers should be very particular about eating African fruits until they become acclimated, as such indulgence brings on the fever prematurely, and in many instances makes it more severe than it would otherwise be.

"The natives welcomed the immigrants joyfully, and would welcome a million more. They have an abundance of territory and are anxious to build up a civilized country and spread intelligence and business thrift through their entire domain, which extends 370 miles along the seacoast and 200 miles interiorward. Those who have gone as colonists are much pleased with their situation because they are free, can aspire to any position, even the Presidency, and there are no papers in the land that are eternally berating the negro and charging upon him a thousand crimes of which he is not guilty. Immigrants are obliged to spend three years in the country before acquiring citizenship, but colored persons going from the United States have no naturalization process to go through. They are regarded as citizens the moment they land and say they have come to stay. They can vote or hold any position in the gift of the voters. This is not so with the West Indian or Brazilian black men.

"Immediately on their arrival the colonists began clearing their lands, building houses, planting garden vegetables, and setting out coffee trees, the chief article of commerce. Coffee is to Africa what cotton is to the South. Cotton will grow there to enormous proportions, as it needs to be planted but once in four years, instead of every year, as in this country. The Liberian coffee is regarded throughout Europe as the finest flavored and most nutritious of any in the world. Preparations are making for the raising of millions of tons of it.

"The Horsa did not bring back any cargo, for the reason that no one in Africa knew she was coming until she steamed into the harbor. She left in three days, before the farmers knew that she was there. The company alone would have sent 100,000 pounds of ginger over by her had it known she was coming in time to have had the ginger on the coast. The Liberians and Africans in general are anxious to do business with the United States, but they are not able to put steamships on the ocean, and the United States has none, nor will any of the business men establish a steamship line, but I think I have succeeded in getting a great steamship corporation in England to put a line between Boston and Africa. The ships will call at Charleston or Savannah for the benefit of such colored persons as desire to go to and fro and trade in African commerce.

"I think that it is to the best interests of the colored race to colonize Liberia, where they can exercise all their civil and political privileges without being regarded as a menace to the country. The native Africans want civilization and our missions are most prosperous. The kings hold the idea that the Christian God teaches how to make cannon, warships and guns, and they believe that by adopting the Christian religion they can overcome their enemies and add to their military strength. The white people of America are far more highly respected than the Europeans, and the missionaries of the former are not regarded with suspicion and distrust, as are those of the latter. It is thought by the natives that Europe wants to gobble up Africa, but they have no such feeling toward Americans. There are now a million negroes in this country ready and anxious to settle in Liberia, and the sentiment is growing stronger daily. I am not in favor of wholesale emigration to Africa on the part of the negroes.

"There are many American negroes who are not fit to go where they will have to assume personal responsibility. They are only fit to be waiters and scullions, or to move and to act at the bidding of others."

"What will you have, dear?"
"I don't know what I want."
"I do wish you would decide."
"What shall I do?"
"Why, do as I do, of course."
"I will do so."
"No, dear, suit yourself."
"Yes, I know, but which do you prefer?"
"Oh, I don't know; give me chocolate."
"Why, dear me, I don't see how you can."
"Well, if you insist, give me vanilla, please."
"Why, dear me!"

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with pneumonia succeeding la grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.

Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared, and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. Marlow, M. D., Tamaroa, Ill. CITY MADE A GOOD BARGAIN.

MAYOR GILBERT MAKES A PLAIN STATEMENT ON THE BOND ISSUE.

Those Who Are Opposed to the Action of the Council Do Not Understand the Conditions of the Money Market.

The following is an authorized interview with Mayor Gilbert on the proposed bond issue for the payment of the sewerage system now in course of construction. It is a plain statement, easily understood, which sets at rest all the erroneous and misleading statements made by the ignorance of Editor Runyon of the Courier-News:

"It is to be sincerely regretted," said the Mayor, "that the merchants of the city have not thoroughly understood the efforts the Financial Committee and myself have made to secure the best possible terms for the city, both in the matter of obtaining money on the city's notes, and in the future disposal of our bonds. The law passed in 1890, and amended in 1894, permits the Common Council to put in a system of sewerage when the owners of one half the assessed valuation of the city shall petition to that effect, but no bonds can be sold for such purpose until the sewers are completed and the assessments levied, the provisions of the law being that as soon as the sewers are installed and ready for work, commissioners shall be appointed to assess the benefits derived by each property holder, which must be paid by him. The balance of the cost including sums spent for the filtration beds and their preparation, for junctions, manholes, flush tanks, etc., must be paid for by the city, and it is for this only that we can issue bonds. You can see therefore that at present we have no bonds for sale and hence cannot advertise them; furthermore, until the Commissioners make their report, we do not know for how much bonds must be issued, although the sum estimated is between $60,000 and $70,000. Finally we cannot tell when the bonds can be issued, the time depending upon the assessment of benefits and the conclusion of any lawsuits which may result from the same.

"Possibly we may not be able to sell any bonds under eighteen months or two years, yet we must have money to carry on the work, and to pay the contractors. Not only that, we must provide as near as possible for the whole sum needed to complete the work. Recognizing this fact at the commencement of the work, we opened negotiations with the Plainfield banks. The City and the First National Banks offered to loan the city money on its notes at 5 per cent., but the Council deeming the rate of interest too high refusec to accept it. Then E. R. Pope, treasurer of the Dime Savings Institution offered us $25,000 at 4½ per cent., and this we did accept.

"Failing to obtain more money in Plainfield we approached a number of New York banks and financial institutions, but found none willing to loan on the city's notes under 4½ per cent., and only a few were willing to accept that rate. Noting the low rate of interest prevailing and being desirous of doing the best possible for the city, we were ambitious to obtain such money as we ne needed at 4 per cent. We also thought the present the best time to make arrangements for the future sale of a 4 per cent. bond. With these two aims in view, namely, obtaining money on notes at 4 per cent., and the future sale of an undetermined quantity of 4 per cent bonds, we again opened negotiation with New York banking houses. Under date of June 28th, the Mutual Life Insurance Company replied, stating that the company would loan the city $100,000 on its notes at 4½ per cent. on condition that an option was given them to take the 4 per cent. bonds at par when they were issued. Harvey Fisk & Sons wrote on July 1st, that they would loan the city money at 4 per cent., the notes to be redeemed with 4 per cent, gold bonds. These two propositions were submitted by me to the financial committee and by it to the Council at its meeting on July 8th. The bid of Harvey Fisk & Sons being the best for the city, it was adopted by resolution, six out of the nine members of the Council present voting in its favor."

In reply to the question as to whether it would have been better for the city to borrow the money needed now at 4½ per cent, leaving the bonds unsold until they could be issued, and also as to the claim that bonds should bring a premium, the Mayor said:

"I have doubt that if we had bonds for sale, a small premium could be obtained for them, but we do not know that a 4 per cent. bond could be sold at par one or two years hence. The rates for money are advancing, and one year from now it might be impossible to float our bonds at less than 4½ or 5 per cent. As I have already stated, the amount to be issued will be about $60,000. Would it be a good business transaction, in view of the possibility of being able to get a premium of from 3 to 5 per cent. on bonds to be issued a year or two hence, to take the risk of not being able to negotiate our bonds at a better rate than 4½ or 5 per cent., and thus subject the city to a possible loss of from three to five times as great as the premiums that might be obtained? Now, we have certainty; on the other hand there is nothing but uncertainty. New Jersey municipal bonds have not the fame of those of the New England states, as it is only within the last few years that a law has been passed relieving them from taxation, neither can we compare our bonds with those of the great cities of New York and Brooklyn which are bought for special reasons. Among recent sales of New Jersey municipal bonds I have noticed the following:

Bayonne, $48,000, 5 per cent, at 108; Atlantic City, $775,000, 5 per cent. at 104⅝; Belleville $65,000, 4 per cent. at par.

From this it will be seen that Plainfield has done better than Bayonne or Atlantic City, and as well as Belleville, which advertised extensively for bids, and whose entire bonded indebtness does not exceed $100,000. After thirty eight years experience in banks and banking, I do not hesitate in saying that our city has made a wonderfully good bargain."

Free Coinage of Words.

If Roswell G. Horr does not believe in the free coinage of silver, his debate with Harvey at Chicago shows that he believes in the free coinage of words. In his vigorous speech, he has the English language at command in a remarkale manner, and on Thursday he coined a word for the occasion. In reply to the question if the demonetization of gold would not greatly lower its price Mr. Horr said: "The questioner assumes that it is possible to demonetize gold, which is absolutely impossible. All the nations in existence could not demonetize gold. Do you think that all the laws of the world could 'debread' wheat?"

The Boston Rally.

The Boston rally of the Christian Endeavor of Trinity Reformed church will be held next Friday evening, instead of Tuesday, as first recorded. Among the speakers who will be present are: Rev. John Davis, of Nyack, N. Y.; Rev. T. E. Davis, of Bound Brook; Rev. L. B. Goodrich, of Bound Brook; Rev. A. I. Martine, of Dunellen. Mrs. Boland, of Bound Brook, will talk on junior work. There will also be several other speakers, whose names will be announced later.

The Fault of a Flaw.

Through a flaw in his velocipede little Carl Schroder, of Watchung avenue, sustained a serious injury Saturday afternoon. He was riding along the sidewalk near his home when the velocipede gave way and the lad fell, striking a sharp projection which was run several inches into the flesh. Dr. Hedges was called and the wound sewed up. He is doing very nicely now.

Rain Stopped Festivities.

The Sons of Veterans who went by stage to New Brunswick on Saturday to attend a picnic given by Camp 20, were disappointed for the rain put a stop to the festivities. It was adjourned for one week. The Plainfield boys were entertained very satisfactorily by the New Brunswick boys.

With Bells On.

Two young men in the borough hired a horse and carriage from Freeholder Andrew Lutkins, yesterday, and evidently put the horse through with bells on, for soon after they returned the animal was taken ill and died during the night. Mr. Lutkins feels the loss very much.

Came Out Ahead.

The final report of the committee having charge of the excursion of Trinity Reformed church was read at the session of the Sunday-school yesterday morning, showing a net profit of $2.73.

Don't Forget.

Tier had one buttercup sale the other day and will hold another today. They are delicious, so drop around there this afternoon or evening and try them. Don't forget your ice cream for tomorrow.

Good for the Painters.

Marsh, Ayers & Co., the painters and decorators, report the outlook for fall business very bright indeed. Mr. Ayers says from present orders received he will need a force of fifty men to do the work.

DEATH OF PATRICK DALEY.

TAKEN SUDDENLY ILL AND DIED IN A SHORT TIME.

Came to This Country When a Young Man and Soon Held Responsible Positions—Helped to Organize St. Mary's.

In the death of Patrick Daley which occurred at his home on Manning avenue, Saturday night, the community loses a valued and respected citizen. Mr. Daley had been in his usual good health and retired about nine o'clock. Shortly afterwards he complained of not feeling very well, but refused to have a physician, thinking he would be all right in a short time. He gradually grew worse until he expired. His son Charles went for a physician at a late hour, but life was extinct when he arrived. He gave the cause of death as apoplexy.

Patrick Daley was born in the County of Cork, Ireland, 68 years ago. At the age of eighteen, he came to this country and settled in New Haven, where he lived for two years, during which time he superintended the construction of one of the oldest railroads.

From there he came to Plainfield and secured the position as foreman of the construction of the old Central Railroad of New Jersey, which position he held for five years. At that time he met Miss Mary Harty, who lived in Plainfield, and was married to her in the Catholic church at Raritan, there being no church of that faith in Plainfield at that time. They lived at the corner of New and Second streets for several years. Mrs. Daley died about thirteen years ago.

Mr. Daley was actively engaged in business and was one of a few who assisted in organizing St. Mary's R. C. church.

He purchased a farm at Washington Valley about this time and remained there for nine years, after which he sold it and purchased a place on Chatham street, where he and his family lived for thirty years. Two years ago they moved to Manning avenue which is their present place of residence.

One sister living in New York, five sons and four daughters survive him. His mother came to this country several years ago and died in New York sometime later.

The funeral services will be held at St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, when there will be solemn high mass of requiem. Interment will be in St. Joseph's cemetery.

Real Estate Transfers.

The New Jersey Contractor reports the following transfers of property in Plainfield recorded in the Union county clerk's office from July 18 to July 24, inclusive:

Rachel E. Randolph, et ux. et al, Plainfield, to Samuel F. Randolph, lots Park avenue, Plainfield, $1.

Rachel F. Randolph, et ux. et al, Plainfield, to Eliza Ann Wooden, two tracts, Randolph road, $1.

Wm. H. Moore, et ux, Plainfield, to Charles E. Rocap, lots Front street, Plainfield, $1.

Wm. C. Smith to John Cashman, Plainfield, lots, $1,250.

Wm. C. Smith, North Plainfield, to Arthur Scott Jeffery, lots, $1,200.

Mary C. Claassen, et ux, Plainfield, to the Plainfield Building and Loan Association, lots C. R. R. and Liberty street, Plainfield, $2,400.

G. Albert Kenkin, et ux, Fanwood, to Michael Meehan, New York, lots, Jerusalem road, Fanwood, $1

Jos. F. Randolph, trustee, Morristown, to Mary J. Scott, Newark, lots, Plainfield, $1.

George Kyte, sheriff, to Mary C. Claasen, lots, Central Railroad and Liberty street, Plainfield, $2,803.50.

Arthur R. Parsons, New York, to Herbert L. Moody, tract, Third street, Plainfield, $6,000.

Kicked By a Cow.

Andrew Muir, of West Fourth street, who was badly kicked while milking a cow on Thursday night was able to go to work today, after being confined to his home in the meantime. Mr. Muir was struck in the ribs, and it was thought at first he was internally injured, but after an examination it was found that there were only a few bad bruises. His fellow-workmen in Potter Press Works will be glad to see him back again.

Contracts Filed.

The New Jersey Contractor reports the following contracts filed from Plainfield:

George A. Chapman, Plainfield, with the H. B. Smith Co., water heating apparatus, house, Plainfield, $1,035.

George Batchelor, Plainfield, with Wm. C. Smith, mason, grading, etc., dwelling, West Seventh street, Plainfield, $635.

Sidewalk Needed.

Many complaints were heard Saturday night about the condition of the sidewalk on Richmond street, between the railroad bridge and North avenue. The mud was ankle deep, and a substantial walk should be laid.

DOOLEY LEFT HIS IMPRINT.

CITY COURT IS KEPT BUSY WITH DELINQUENTS OF LAW.

Another Rider on the Sidewalk Caught—A Lively Time in the Lumber Yard on South Second Street—The Horse Case.

The city court was a lively place this morning and the station house was crowded with the prisoners, their witnesses and a few listeners.

The first charge was against Herbert Moore for riding a bicycle on the sidewalk on West Seventh street. He pleaded guilty and paid the fine of $5 that was imposed.

John Kneeland and Edward Bray were the next before the Judge and were charged with being disorderly on South Second street and with quarreling and fighting. Bray, who is an employe at the Pond Tool Company's Works, said that he was going to Philadelphia and went over to Kneeland's to leave an order for his last week's wages but that Kneeland would not believe that he was going, and chased and pounded him all over the lumber yard on South Second street. Witnesses corroborated his statement and Kneeland was given his choice between a fine of $10 or thirty days in the county jail. He paid his fine.

Bray pleaded guilty of being drunk and paid a fine of $5 in preference to going to jail for twenty days.

The pugilistic propensities of Thomas Humble, William Waldron and William Laine, colored, appeared to have been too much for them, and they were charged with fighting. William R. Codington appeared as their counsel and asked for an adjournment which was granted, and the prisoners put under $50 bail to appear in the city court next Monday morning at nine o'clock.

The last of the batch of charges was the one against James Dooley for fighting in the Metropolitan stables on Friday evening. George W. DeMeza acted as his counsel. The complaint was made by William M. Greenwood who, when asked what Dooley did, remarked: "He knocked me on the floor three times, and that is straight godds." But Dooley did not agree, and pleaded not guilty, although he owned up that he knocked Greenwood down once in self defence.

Greenwood's horse is slowly dying of the lockjaw at the Metropolitan stables, and Greenwood has been taking care of him most of the time. Friday he was there as usual, and another man were sitting in a carriage outside the stall. Some one asked Greenwood how his horse was, and he returned an insulting answer which brought on a war of words between Dooley and Greenwood. Then Greenwood stepped out and pulled Dooley out of the carriage and told him to get along. A row was imminent but a bystander separated the two, and Dooley started to leave when Greenwood struck him in the face. The peacemaker, having regard for his own face, got out of the way and told them to "go it if you want to" and they did, and Dooley left his opponent with a sorry looking face to remember the occasion by. As Dooley did not start the scrap, Judge Coddington discharged him.

Piece of Steel in the Eye.

W. P. Scriven, of the repair department of Rogers' bicycle store, went to New York this morning to have a small piece of steel removed from his eye by a New York specialist. The accident, which occured Friday while at work, has caused him much pain and badly inflamed the optic.

For Those That Finish.

The survivors of the century and a half run which leaves Plainfield on August 10th will receive a handsome gold medal. The run is to be under the auspices of the Crescent Wheelmen and the medals will have its emblem on them.

Col. Waring Likes Him.

J. B. Bovey, of Somerset street, who has been inspector of the street paving department of New York, received an appointment on Saturday, from Col. Waring, as foreman in that department. Mr. Bovey took charge of his new district this morning.

Before Justice Mosher.

In Justice Mosher's court the cases of McCurdy against Windham and Ralston, on contract, are returnable August 1st, and the case of McCurdy against Connett was adjourned until August 5th.

To Organize.

The Swedish Lutheran church will hold a business meeting tonight to form a regular organization.

No Ball During August.

The Monroe Avenue chapel baseball nine has disbanded for the month of August.

THE GAME WAS OUT OF SIGHT.

But the Rain Was Not and It Soaked the Players.

Even with eleven men the Y. M. C. A. baseball nine could not defeat the Giants of Scotch Plains Saturday afternoon, for the simple reason that the rain would not give them a chance.

It began to grow cloudy at noon, so that most of the team went up in the stage from Plainfield. When about half way there they had the fun of seeing their comrades, who rode their wheels, scatter for shelter from the beginning shower. It kept raining every few minutes all the way to the grounds and then stopped, but the slightest mention of starting to play brought down a deluge and so it continued until both captains, Corey and Hand, gave up in disgust, and ordered their men home and then of course another torrent came to celebrate the decision.

No more attempts will be made to play ball until September, when the regular players are all back again. It is hoped that a game can be scheduled with the old Crescents for some time that month.

OFF TO CAMP.

Two Parties of Plainfield Young Men Start on Their Vacations.

Two camping parties left this morning for their destinations. The Norwood Athletic Club party left at about two o'clock this morning for New Foundland, Passaic county. And the party of young men from the west end of town started on the three o'clock train for Seaside Park, near which, on the shores of Barnegat Bay, they will camp out. Those that started on the train this morning were Walter Manning, Charles Randolph, Milton Millington and Harry Pound. Allen Taylor will join the party at Avon and Wednesday Walter Arthur and Blanchard Randolph will leave here for the camp. Next Monday the tenting party will be increased by Chauncey Burt and Frank Richards. They remain for two weeks.

FROM THE CONVENTION.

Enthusiastic Reports From the Great Gathering at Boston.

A glimpse of the recent Christian Endeavor Convention at Boston was given to the members of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church last evening. Miss Alice Woodland, one of the delegates of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church, made a short address and told of her experiences at the convention and was very enthusiastic over the great event. An interesting letter from their own delegate, Miss Julia A. Butler, was read and also greatly enjoyed.

The meeting was conducted by Miss Julia Belknap, and closed with a short consecration service. The society does not meet again until the first Sunday in September on account of the closing of the church for repairs.

DISLOCATED HIS HAND.

A Glove Contest for the Championship of Plainfield.

Two well-known young men, one from the city and the other from the borough, held a boxing contest with gloves for the lightweight championship of this district this morning in a resort on this side of the brook. The Plainfield young man was knocked down in the second round but got up immediately and continued the round. At the close of the third round the North Plainfield boxer dislocated his hand and the referee called the contest a draw. It will be continued on some future date when the injured hand is able to be used again.

Their Ambition Too Much.

Charles Craig and Thomas Wiggins, two colored men employed by Honan & Sons on the sewers, imbibed too freely Saturday night and their ambition was too much for them. They were found by Marshal Doud at the corner of Linden avenue and Somererset street and were arrested. Honan & Sons gave bail for $15 for their appearance this morning, when Justice Crosley fined Craig $5 and Wiggins $10.

Another Block in Prospect.

Charles H. Hand, and George Demeza, who already own three shares of the property owned by the heirs of A. M. Frazee, corner Watchung avenue and Second street, this morning offered Mrs. Alex Sargeant $450.00 cash for her share, which she refused. Mr. Hand says he intends putting up a handsome brick block on the corner if he gets possession, which will be a credit to the street.

—VanEmburgh & Son will sell tomorrow one lot of fine china tea pot stands for seven cents each.

ENGLAND AND AMERICA WED

ENGLISH GIRL AND PATERSON LAWYER JOINED IN WEDLOCK.

Married at the Church of the Redeemer in This City—A Reception Followed at the Home of Emil Woltmann.

The pretty little Church of the Redeemer in North Plainfield was the scene of a charming wedding Saturday afternoon at three o'clock when Rev. Jocelyn Johnstone united in marriage Miss Minnie Harriett W. Coke, daughter of Major M. and Mrs. Coke, of Kensington, London, and David J. Berry, a prominent lawyer of Paterson.

The bride entered the church on the arm of Emil Woltmann, and wore an exquisite gown of white satin trimmed with old Honidan lace, which was a gift from her mother. She was attended by Miss Nellie Berry, daughter of the groom, as maid of honor, and was gowned in white.

The groom and best man, Henry W. Gledhill, of Paterson, entered from the front at the right of the church and met the bridal party. E. A. Embury, organist, gave a perfect rendition of Lohengrin's wedding march as they entered and Mendelssohn's while they were leaving the church.

A reception to only a few friends and relatives followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Woltmann on West Seventh street.

Miss Coke is a cousin of Mrs. Woltmann and met Mr. Berry in London sometime ago. They had planned to be married at the home of Miss Coke's parents in London, but owing to Mr. Berry's health it was not thought advisable for him to cross the ocean.

Mr. Coke is a retired Major in the British Army and both he and his wife were very much disappointed in not seeing their daughter married.

Mr. Berry's mother was also unable to be present, owing to an illness which had turned to typhoid fever.

During the day cablegrams were received from Major and Mrs. Coke, and replies were sent by Mr. Woltmann.

Those present at the reception were: The Misses Smith, Mrs. R. J. Crouter, Mrs. Isabella VanRiper, Messrs. VanRiper, J. J. Blauvelt, Frank Gledhill, Congressman J. F. Stewart of the Fifth District, John B. Humphreys, W. H. Beery, J. D. Donnell, of Paterson. All of the above-named gentlemen, except Mr. VanRiper, are prominent lawyers and very intimate with Mr. Berry.

The guests from Plainfield included Rev. Dr. Jocelyn Johnstone, Miss Schipper, Frank Richards, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Woltmann and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Berry left on the 5:30 train for New York, and will spend three months traveling through New York State and Canada. On their return they will live at Paterson, and when Mr. Berry's health improves they will visit Major and Mrs. Coke in London.

The ushers at the church were Albert Woltmann and Frank Richards.

Mr. and Mrs. Berry received a very large number of costly and useful wedding presents.

Max Wiertz was the caterer, and the wedding supper was served in a faultless manner.

Frank Hedden looked after the carriages in his usual efficient manner.

Pleasure at Asbury Park.

There is nothing which adds more to the pleasure of a trip to the seashore than good accommodations and first-class board at the hotel in which you are staying, and the Hotel Brandt, at 304 First avenue, Asbury Park, offers all those advantages besides being close to the beach. J. Wesley Cross, the energetic proprietor, has done all that he can for the comfort of his patrons and as a result has a first-class house.

A Narrow Escape.

There was a grand crash on Park avenue Saturday afternoon at about half-past two when a gust of wind brought down one of the large lights of glass in the window of the Common Council room. The falling glass, which is forty inches by forty-two inches, just missed a woman with a baby carriage that was passing below on the sidewalk.

Wedded in Elizabeth.

Rev. J. T. Kerr, pastor of the Third Presbyterian church, had the pleasure last Monday evening of joining in marriage two young people from Plainfield.

The groom gave the name of Wm. F. Hand, of 518 Park avenue, Plainfield, and the bride said she was Miss Maggie Dowd, of 511 South Second street, of the same city.

Mrs. Lulu Pope and E. R. Pope witnessed the ceremony.—Elizabeth Journal.

A CHAMBER OF HORRORS

Four People Cruelly Put To Death.

Unmistakable Evidence of Murder Discovered at Holmes' Castle—Skeletons of His Supposed Victims Found—One of the Bodies Traced to Philadelphia.

Chicago, July 29.—Another startling discovery reported by the police is the finding of a woman's footprint on the inside door of the blind vault on the third floor of the building. Although the vault had been carefully examined on previous occasions the footprint was not found until Saturday. Up to that time the police had been entirely at a loss to attribute any object for the construction of the vault arrangement other than that advanced by conjecture. Now it is believed by the police that Holmes' victims, or some of them, were inveigled into the vault between the two sets of doors and there they were smothered to death.

A Startling Discovery.

Unmistakable evidence of murder at the Holmes castle in Englewood has have been placed in the hands of Inspector Fitzpatrick. That at least four people have been cruelly murdered in this chamber of horrors is now a practical certainty. The skeleton of one of Holmes' victims, supposedly that Mrs Julia Connors, is now in the inspector's office in the city hall. Two other skeletons which came from the same place will be placed in his possession to-day. A fourth body has been traced to Philadelphia and its receipient there will be no doubt be discovered in the course of a few days. The man who produced this startling evidence was closeted with the inspector and detectives Norton and Fitzpatrick last night. The inspector declines to make his name known at present for the reason that it would handicap his further investigations.

Disappearance of Mrs. Lee.

Aurora, Ill., July 29.—Albert Phillips, of this city, father of Clarence Phillips who conducted a restaurant in Holmes' building on Sixty-third street during the World's fair is confident that Holmes is responsible for the disappearance of still another victim than those so far known. Her name was Mrs. Lee. Albert Phillips for several months assisted his son Clarence in conducting his restaurant and became well acquainted with Holmes during that time. Yesterday he said to a reporter: "The revelations in the case of Holmes make clear to me the mystery of the disappearance of Mrs. Lee while I was at the restaurant. She went out of sight as completely and mysteriously as though she had fallen off the earth, and my son and I were greatly puzzled over it at the time.

Displayed Much Money.

Mrs. Lee came to the place while I was there. She was a handsome brunette, tall and stately, and well dressed. She often displayed bank notes of large denominations, claimed to be worth $50,000 and said that her husband and two children had died two years before. I wondered why a woman of her means should be content with the accommodations of our plate, and finally made up my mind it was for the society of Holmes. I often spoce with her while serving her at the table and found her agreeable and intelligent. One day she was missing. We never knew where or how she went.

Helped Build the Holmes House.

Keokuk, Iowa, July 29.—George Bowman, a brick layer who resided in Keokuk for several years past, told the Keokuk police last night he was in Chicago in 1889 and helped build the Holmes house in which the recent finds were made. More trusted employes did the chief work on the basement. Holmes had a brother-in-law according to Bowman whom he wanted out of the way, and one day he said to Bowman: "Drop a stone on that man's head and I will give you $50." Bowman says near the house was a high sidewalk under which Holmes frequently dug holes in which he mysteriously buried stuff.

No Evidence in Cincinnati.

Cincinnati, July 29.—Detective Geier, who is handling the Philadelphia end of the Holmes murder mystery, telegraphed late Friday night to Chief of Police Deitson to search the house on Poplar street which Holmes occupied while here. Geier while in Cincinnati several weeks ago made a cursory examination, but found nothing. Yesterday Detectives Schnucks and Hulmer were sent to 305 Poplar street and thoroughly searched the building. The garden and cellar were dug up, closets examined, floors removed and chimneys looked into but nothing whatever was found.

ELECTIONS IN PERU.

Gen. Pierolo Chosen President—Lima Celebrating in National Fete.

New York, July 29.—A cable from Lima, Peru, says: The new elections have taken place without trouble. It is not questioned that General Pierolo is elected President; Senor Guillermo Billinghurst, first vice president and Senor Augusto Seminario second vice president. The principal square of the city was illuminated last night and to-day, and to-morrow the country will celebrate in national fete.

Respite for William Caesar.

Sing Sing, July 29.—William Caesar, the negro who brutally butchered Mary Martin at No. 148 West 27th street, New York, and then chopped up her remains, carried them downtown on a street car and left them in an areaway, was to have been placed in the electric chair to-day. Warden Sage, however, will not carry out the execution, as Caesar has a stay pending an appeal.

Short in His Accounts.

Willimantic, Conn., July 29.—Charles E. Prentham, recently confidential clerk for N. D. Barker & Co., of Lebanon, is short about $2,000 in his accounts. When asked to explain he said he could not account for the shortage. He has a wife and child.

Express Sorrow for Willis.

Buzzards Bay, Mass., July 29.—President Cleveland has been informed of the death of his faithful coachman Willis, of the white house stables. The president and his household express their sorrow at his sudden death.

PRINCETON STUDENTS BACK.

Three of Them Arrived in Baltimore Saturday Night.

Baltimore, July 29.—John W. Garrett, of this city; E. E. Otherman, of New York, and L. P. Pease, of Germantown, Pa., members of the Princeton college geological expedition that was thought to be annihilated by the Indians, arrived here Saturday night. Mr. Garrett says the expedition consisted of twelve Princeton men and seven drivers and attendants. "We left Dubois, Wyoming, just two weeks ago for Yellow lake," he said. "By the route we took the trip was expected to take five days, but it required nine, and provisions ran rather short. We named the route the Princeton trail, as it was heretofore unnamed. We crossed a recently traveled Indian trail, evidently made by the band of Lemhis who had gone to join the Bannocks. Later we came across a small party of Shoshones and camped with them one night. They seemed to be in a bad humor, but did not tell us that they were on the war path. We passed within sight of Jacksons Hole. From what we heard the Indians had more reason to be afraid of the settlers than the latter had to be afraid of the Indians. The impression prevailed that the white people were very anxious to fight the redskins.

DRINKS COULD BE HAD.

But Irrigation in New York Yesterday Was Not Universal.

New York, July 29.—There was more than one oasis in the desert that stretched its dry hand over the city yesterday, and in spite of Police Commissioner Rosevelt's threat that it would cost the recreant captain who allowed the cheering liquor to flow his place on the force, yet there were many back floors in active operation, but only to the initiated. It is true that it needed a lot of signs and pass words to get in, but it seemed also true that more people than formerly knew these signs, und consequently more than the usual number got their eye openers, and in many cases their eye shutters. There were, however, many arid districts. The irrigation was by no means universal; and these districts were notably the Bowery, the Tenderloin and lower Third Avenue. At the principal hotels matters went on much the same as usual. A meal had to be purchased before any liquid refreshment of the forbidden class would be served, and the restaurants were very careful.

THE PRESIDENT'S LAUNCH.

It Was Taken to Buzzard's Bay by E. C. Benedict's Oneida.

Buzzard,s Bay, Mass., July 29.—The steam yacht Oneida with her owner, E. C. Benedict, the intimate friend of President Cleveland, on board, arrived here late yesterday. She brought on her deck a pretty little naphtha launch, which has been built expressly for Mr. Cleveland's use about Buzzard's Bay. It is very neat and graceful, 35 feet long and 9 feet beam. The president, with other owners of sailing craft along the bay, has often been the victim of the weather on his numerous fishing trips. It has frequently happened that he has been becalmed down the bay and suffered much inconvenience and loss of patience on account of it. The naphtha launch is intended to replace the cat boat Ruth on more lengthy fishing trips.

DURRANT'S TRIAL.

Doubtful Whether He Will Testify in His Own Behalf.

San Francisco, July 29.—There is considerable speculation as to whether or not Durrant will take the stand in his own behalf. He will have to attempt to prove an alibi. He will find himself in a tight place, however, as he will have to be guided by the interview he gave the reporters on the night of his arrest. The statement he made at the time will embarrass him, and it is possible that rather than run the gauntlet of a cross examination he will decline to testify. The police are keeping very quiet regarding the young woman whom it is charged Durrant assaulted in the Emanuel church some weeks prior to his arrest. Judging by the actions and talk af the detectives they have either found her or know where she is.

AGAINST CONSOLIDATION.

Montana Fighting the G. N. and N. P. Systems.

Helena, Mont., July 29.—The proposed consolidation of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific systems, which have over 1,400 miles of railroad in Montana, has stirred up the people of this state to a degree that promises to result in an extra session of the legislature. Twenty members of that body and a number of prominent citizens have been in conference here during the past two days with Governor Richards relative to the propriety of calling an extra session, and the governor is inclined to issue the call to prevent the consolidation of the two roads.

Naval Exhibition at Kiel.

Washington, July 29.—Consul W. H. Robertson at Hamburg informs the department of stata from May 25 to September, 30, 1896, there is to be held at Keil an international naval exhibit, in connection with an industrial exhibition of the province of Schleswig-Holstein. The grounds chosen for the affair are situated along the bay of Kiel close to the eastern entrance of the newly opened canal.

Prominent Railroad Man Dead.

Vancouver, B. C., July 29.—Col. K. Sibley, a prominent Chicago railroad and mining man died yesterday in St Joseph's hospital of atrophy of the liver. He returned a few days ago from a trip to Alaska in company with General J. Magee and General Lathop of New York. He was so ill on reaching here that he had to go to the hospital at once.

Movements of War Vessels.

Washington, July 29.—The naval department has received information that the Newark of the South Atlantic squadon has arrived at Cape Town. The Charleston has gone to Port Arthur and the Atlanta has arrived at Quarantine at the Dry Tortugas.

Charged with Embezzlement.

Huntingdon, Pa., July 29.—Burton F. Wood, agent for the Singer Sewing Machine company, was arrested here and locked up on the charge of embezzling $1,200 from the company. He has a family here.

Dolphin Leaves Fort Monroe.

Fort Monroe, Va., July 29.—The Dophlin with Sectrary Herbert aboard paszed out to New York yesterday.

AID FOR THE SETTLERS

U. S. Troops Pushing to the Front.

Five Companies from Fort Russell Called Out and Two from Fort Robinson—Leander Citizens Volunteer—Settlers at Jacksons Hole Prepared To Fight.

Washington, July 29.—Telegrams received at the war department from the seat of the Indian troubles are of an encouraging nature. The denial of the reported massacre at Jacksons Hole is followed by reports of a pacific nature that is gratifying to the department. Under date of July 27 General Coppinger telegraphs Adjutant-General Vincent that he intends to accompany the troops from Market Laks to Jacksons Hole. The roads, the telegram states, are in good condition, save ten miles through the Teton pass. The commanding officers at Forts Washakie and Duschesne have telegraphed that the Indians on their respective reservations are not involved in the present difficulty. General Coppinger also says that Agent Teter of Fort Hall is to accompany him on this expedition.

Citizens Volunteer.

Cheyenne, Wyo., July 29.—Orders were received here Saturday calling out the five companies of the Fort Russell garrison for service in the Indian campaign. Trains were at once procured and the troops promptly loaded, leaving here over the Union Pacific. They will be pushed rapidly to the front. Reports were received here that two more companies of cavalry had been ordered to the front from Fort Robinson. A dispatch from Leander, Wyo., states that at a large public meeting held Saturday evening 100 citizens volunteers to go at once to the assistance of the settlers at Jacksons Hole. They are all ready prepared with horses, arms and necessary equipment. The feeling there is intense, that place being only about sixty-five miles from the scene of the trouble.

Settlers Prepared To Fight.

A letter received direct from Jacksons Hole written by a settler whose ranch is made the place for assembling the settlers families, reads as follows: "We are undergoing an awful state of affairs at present. We are banded here at my place, having fortified ourselves to make a desperate fight for our wives and our children, who are here from all parts of the valley, and I feel that we can stand off the whole Bannock tribe of Indians if they tackle us; but we are neglecting our homes, crops and stock to protect our families. There have been three parties of Indians arrested, two parties convicted, and the third party of nine bucks, while being escorted from Fall River basin to our valley, broke and ran and were fired upon by the guard, and one or more killed and some wounded, but they escaped. "This letter was dated July 19, and is confirmed by another letter from there to the same purport that the settlers had fortified and were well prepared for an Indian outbreak.

ENJOYED LINCOLN'S ESTEEM.

Judge Henry W. Hoffman of Maryland Passes Away.

Cumberland, Md., July 29.—Henry W. Hoffman, associate judge of the sixth judicial district of Maryland, died at his residence in this city yesterday in his sixty-ninth year. His health had been feeble for considerable time. Judge Hoffman was born in Cumberland and was widely distinguished as an orator as well as a lawyer. In early life he was connected with the American party, and was elected to represent this district in congress by that party in 1855, his competitor being ex-Governor William T. Hamilton. He enjoyed the personal esteem of President Lincoln.

DIED WITH HIS MOTHER.

Mrs. Pierce of Middleport, N. Y., and Son Drowned.

Ceredo, W. Va., July 29.—Mrs. William Pierce and her son Franklin were drowned at the public landing here yesterday afternoon. They were strangers in the city, having come a few days ago from Middleport, N. Y. Mrs. Pierce was walking on the guards of the wharf-boat when she fell overboard. Her son leaped into the river and was bringing her to shore when the current swept them under a fleet of barges. A stranger who also leaped into the water to render assistance barely escaped the same fate. The bodies have been recovered and will be shipped to New York for interment.

Soldiers for Atlanta's Fair.

Washington, July 29.—Major-General Miles, commanding the department of the east, has issued an order directing the establishment of a camp on the grounds of the Cotton States and International exposition by two companies from the Fifth infantry to be known as a sub-post of Fort McPherson. The camp will be in existence from about August 1, 1895, to January 1, 1896.

Ship and Cargo Destroyed.

Elizabeth City, N. C., July 29.—The men of the barkentine J. W. Dresser, bound from Cuba to New York, laden with sugar, which went ashore on Diamond shoal near Hatteras Monday, have arrived here. The ship and its cargo, consisting of 900 tons of sugar, were destroyed.

Poisoned by a Fertilizer.

Hartford, Conn., July 29.—John E. Bartlett, the Wapping farmer, who poisoned his foot with commercial fertilizer, while working barefooted in the fields a week ago, died from gangrene Saturday evening. He was 56 years old.

Puddlers Get an Advance.

Pottstown, Pa., July 29.—The puddlers of the Glasgow Iron company have been notified of an advance in their wages from $2.50 to $2.75 per ton, to go into effect to-morrow. This makes the second advance in a few weeks.

New Naval Apprentices To Cruise.

Newport, R. I., July 29.—United States training ship Essex arrived from Gardner's bay yesterday. She will take on board a new class of naval apprentices and will soon sail on another cruise.

12,000 Tailors on Strike.

New York, July 29.—Of the 15,000 tailors employed by contractors in this city, Brooklyn and Brownsville fully 12,000 are now out on a strike.

HER LETTER

TELLS A WOMAN'S STORY.

Written for Eyes of Other Women.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

There is inestimable pleasure in doing good to others, and joy in a grateful recognition of the act.

On the old York Road, Huntington Park, Philadelphia, dwells Miss M. Downs, whose portrait we give. She desires that her case may be stated as a means of benefiting others. She says: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of kidney trouble, painful menstruations, and headache. It is truly a wonderful medicine. I cannot describe my feelings before I took it. The pain in my back was dreadful, and during menstruations the agony I suffered [illegible] me wild; and then my head [illegible] for a week, and now this is all over, thanks to your good remedy. I trust my testimonial will lead others to take it and be cured. They can find it at any drug store. Our druggist says it sells the most, and for it is very large, it is helping so many sickly women."

LOOK IN THE CLOSET

SEE if you can't find some old clothes that you have put aside because of the worn-out look they have, or some clothes that are badly spotted.

We want you to bring any old clothes of that sort to us—or better yet—we'll send for them.

We propose to clean those clothes—or to dye them for you—either way to make them wearable. This is an economical suggestion.

We take out grease spots so they stay out, or we dye clothes with a color that wears. We charge as little as poasible for the work.

Just a dollar or two—and you'll have a lot of new clothes.

BALKAN STATES POLICY

Germany Holds Herself in Reserve.

Not Inclined To Follow the Lead of Austria—Ferdinand Becomes Despondent and Fears Death from Violence—May Retire in Favor of His Son Doris.

Berlin, July 29.—The report that an entente has been established between England and the driebund in regard to a concerted policy concerning the Balkan states, is generally discredited here. Count Goluchowski, the Austrian minister of foreign affairs, had a long conference with Emperor Francis Joseph at Ischl on Thursday and on Friday went to Altausse to see Prince von Hohenlohe, the German chancellor, who is sojourning there. It was the first meeting of these two statesmen as leading ministers of great powers, although they were personally acquainted with each other. Prince Hohenlohe was German ambassador to France during the time that Connt Goluchowski was secretary of the Austrian embassy in Paris and the two then met very often. The official press are unable to say whether the recent meeting of the two ministers was anything more than one of mere courtesy and handle the subject with a marked degree of reticence as to positive statements. Whatever may have passed between them the tone of the North German Gazette's article indicates that Germany is not committed to following the lead of Austria in Bulgaria. "Germany," says the Gazette, "though not indifferent to what may happen in Bulgaria will maintain an attitude of reserve." In regard to Russia's recognition of Prince Ferdinand the Pesther Lloyd, the Hungarian official organ, declares explicitly that such action on the part of Russia would by no possibility suffice to give him a statu• with the other powers, and calls attention to the fact that the treaty of Berlin debars Russia from exercising any preponderating influences in Bulgaria.

Ferdinand Fears a Violent Death.

Meanwhile Prince Ferdinand has left Carlsbad and joined his mother and his wife at Coburg, ostensibly to assist in the ceremonies in memory of his father, who died July 26, 1881. Prince August of Saxe-Coburg and other members of the Coburg and Bourbon-Orleans families joined the group on Friday and the meeting was as a matter of fact a family consultation upon the question of Ferdinand's retirement from the Bulgarian throne in favor of his son, who is now a year and a half old. Princess Clementine, Ferdinand's mother, whose money and pluck have persistently backed her son in his acquirement and retention of the throne, wants him to remain in Sofia at any risk, and apparently her counsel was heeded and her propositions accepted. According to telegraphic advices received from Coburg yesterday Prince Ferdinand will return to Carlsbad to complete his course of the waters after which he will go to Vienna and later to Schwarzau to join his wife and son, passing a few days with them before starting for Sofia. Princess Marie-Louise with the young Prince Boris will not venture to go to Sofia until things have quieted down, but will remain at Schwarzau until Ferdinand thinks it safe for them to go to Bulgaria. Carlsbad gossip has it that Ferdinand is very despondent and tells his intimates that he feels certain that he will meet an early and violent death.

The Feeling Against Ferdinand.

A story has been going the rounds of the Austrian papers which whether true or not gives a very clear idea of the feeling against Prince Ferdinand which pervades Austria. It is asserted that Prince Ferdinand recently sent a large order to the wine merchant in Pesth who has long supplied the prince's cellar with Hungarian wines, and requested that the shipment be made immediately. The merchant at once notified the Bulgarian master of the household, through whom the order was sent, that he refused to have any further dealings with the man who was most guilty of the murder of Stambuloff. Telegrams received here from Vienna say that Austria is about to initiate negotiations with the powers in regard to the election of a ruler of Bulgaria in the event that Prince Ferdinand is displaced.

SIGN OF OCEAN CURRENTS.

Kelp Weed Seen Below Martha's Vineyard for the First Time.

New York, July 29.—Capt. S. S. Hewitt of the schooner L. K. Baker, which arrived from Charleston on the 25th inst., reports having passed a spear of kelp weed on July 19 in latitude 36.40, longitude 74.35, and on a previous voyage he also sighted a spear of the weed in latitude 36.25, longitude 74.40. Kelp weed is only found on the New England coast, and in his long experience on the coast these are the only times he has seen any south of Martha's Vineyard. He thinks it might be an indication of ocean currents.

Death of Cellist Green.

Baltimore, July 29.—Prof. Rudolph Green, a violincellist without a peer in this city and well-known in all eastern musical centres, is dead here of internal cancers. For some years he was first cellist with Thomas's orchestra and subsequently with Seidel's. He was 54 years old.

125,000 People at Coney Island.

Coney Island, N. Y., July 29.—One hundred and twenty-five thousand persons visited Coney yesterday, and the crowd would no doubt have been much larger but for the cool weather. There was no scarcity of stimulants, the usual "weiss" beer being dispensed in all resorts.

5,000 Deaths from Cholera.

Tokio, July 29.—Since the outbreak of cholera in Japan there have been 9,000 cases of the disease and 5,000 deaths. The scourge is raging in Corea and on the Liao Tung peninsula.

Barber Closing Law at Troy.

Troy, N. Y., July 29.—The first arrest in violation of the barber closing law was made here yesterday. The case will be contested.

Spanish Troops Defeated.

London, July 29.—A dispatch received in this city gives the details of a serious defeat of Spanish troops at San Luis, Cuba.

MANY SOLDIERS PERISH.

Drowned in a Railroad Wreck in Japan.

Kobe, Japan, July 29.—A accident in which 140 soldiers perished has occured on the railroad running from this place to Osaka. A train of twenty-three cars was conveying to this city 400 Japanese soldiers who were returning from China, where they had taken part in the military operations. A heavy storm was raging and as the train was running along the seawall, on which tracks as they approach the city are laid, an immense sea leaped over the wall, separating the train and derailing the engine and eleven cars, which plunged off the wall into the bay. Most of the men in them were drowned like rats in a trap. The accident occured at about one o'clock in the morning, and the night was pitch dark. The sea was running so high that it was imposible to render any assistance to the men in the cars that had gone overboard, even had means been at hand to do so. Some of the men who managed to get out of the cars while they were in the water, were dashed to death against the wall.

WILL NOT VIOLATE THE LAW.

Sisters of St. Joseph Refuse To Test the Garb Bill.

Johnston, Pa., July 29.—The Sisters of St. Joseph, although urged by directors and patrons of the schools at Gallitzin and Lilly to accept positions as teachers in the schools and test the constitutionality of the "garb" bill, persistently decline to do so, giving as a reason that they will not violate a law of the state however unjust or unconstitutional they may regard it, and as a consequence the schools in these places will be filled by lay teachers. It will be remembered the Gallitzin schools case in which the American mechanics secured an injunction restraining the employment of the Sisters of St. Joseph as teachers led to the enactment of the garb bill in the last legislature.

DEFENDER AT GLEN COVE.

Will Participate in the Commodore Cup Races There.

New Rochelle, N. Y., July 29.—For some unexplained reason the Defender did not leave her anchorage off Premium point yesterday. The weather was well nigh perfect all day, with a good stiff southwest wind blowing at the rate of twelve miles an hour. The crew were put through their paces by Captain Terry and showed marked improvement both in setting and taking in sails. The Defender will leave here at an early hour to-day for Glen Cove, where she will participate in the race for the Commodore Cup. Captain Haff will meet the yacht at Glen Cove, and will take command and sail her in the race.

RUSSIAN OFFICERS ARRESTED.

They Were Supposed To Be Macedonian Refugees.

Vienna, July 29.—The Neues Wiener Tagblatt says that the Roumanian minister at Constantinople has telegraphed to his government that a number of the Macedonian refugees who have been arrested prove to be officers who have received their conge from the Russian army. Documents were found in their possession showing that Russian agents are concerned in the Macedonian movement. The paper declares that the Porte will send copies of these documents to the powers.

THESE DIVORCES DON'T GO.

Oklahoma Probate Judges Have No Power To Grant Them.

Guthrie, Okla., July 29.—The suit to test the divorces granted by the probate judges of Oklahoma has been decided by the supreme court adversely to the judges and the divorces, the court declaring all such divorces null and void and subsequent marriages of the parties illegal. Hundreds of eastern people who have secured Oklahoma divorces from probate courts will be compelled to have their cases tried in discrict courts.

REV. EDWARD BEECHER DEAD.

He Was a Brother of the Late Henry Ward Beecher.

New York, July 29.—The Rev. Dr. Edward Beecher, brother of the late Henry Ward Beecher, died at his home, 182 Macon street, Brooklyn, yesterday. The Rev. Dr. Beecher for some years had been in poor health due to injuries received in a railroad accident. Edward Beecher was the third son of the Rev. Dr. Lyman Beecher. He was born in East Hampton, L. I., August 27, 1803.

Catholic Summer School Services.

Plattsburg, N. Y., July 29.—Rt. Rev. Thomas Beavens, of Springfield, Mass., preached at the Catholic summer school yesterday on the "Hierarchy of the church." The evening sermon was by the Rev. J. H. McMahon of New York, on "the rights and duties of the pope." He dwelt especially on the obedience due to the pope in matters of rights and morals.

Commander Thomas Howe.

San Francisco, July 29.—Capt. Thomas, late in command of the United States cruiser Bennington, was one of the passengers on the Australio from Honolulu, having been relieved by Captain Higman. Capt. Thomas left for the east last night.

Carnegie Nail Mills Sold.

Chicago, July 29.—The Carnegie wire nail mills at Beaver Falls have been purchased by the Consolidated Steel and Wire company of this city. The purchase price is said to be in the neighborhood of $725,000.

Honors for Americans.

Paris, July 29.—Paul Wayland Bartlett, the sculptor, Julius Stewart, the artist, of Boston, and Henry Godet, a chemical manufacturer, of Philadelphia, have been created chevaliers of the Legion of Honor.

Yellow Fever at Porto Rico.

Madrid, July 29.—Advices from Porto Rico show that yellow fever of a virulent type exists among the Spanish garrison there. The mortality is 20 per cent of the number of cases.

The Futurity Stakes $67,000.

New York, July 29.—The Coney Island Jockey club announces that the value of the futurity stakes, to be run at Sheepshead Bay, August 24th, will be $67,860.

Fortifications Blown Up.

St. Petersburg, July 29.—The despatch further says that the Japanese have blown up the fortifications at Port Arthur.

SAILED IN A STORM

Valkyrie III. Gets a Rousing Send-Off.

No Previous Cup Challenger Received Such an Ovation from the Britishers—Lord Dunraven, and Her Designer and Builder on Board—Last Seen at 6:30 A. M.

Campbelltown, Scotland, July 29.—The yacht Valkyrie III. is now well out at sea, bearing eastward the hopes of British yachtmen and many others. She sailed Saturday for America, and was given an enthusiastic farewell. The representative of the United Press followed her well out to sea in a tug and is therefore able to furnish an exclusive story of her departure.

Sailed in a Rain Storm.

Saturday morning broke wet and cold, with a fresh wind from the east. There was quite a sea running in the upper Firth. No move was made on the Valkyrie until 11 o'clock, when her crew all in oilskins boarded her from the Selene, which had been acting as her tender. By this time the rain was felling heavily, softening the wind and causing the sea to begin to go down. As soon as the crew was aboard the work of adjusting the yacht's compasses commenced. The sun being invisible, shore marks were used for this purpose. At noon the blue peter was hoisted on the foremast, indicating that the yacht was about to sail.

Crowds Watch Her Depart.

This signal attracted crowds ashore, who stood in the rain watching the yacht as she swung around in circles adjusting the compasses. At 2 o'clock the compass adjuster went ashore, and the boats of the Valkyrie were taken on deck. No preparations for setting sail were made, it being the intention to tow the boat to sea. At quarter past two everything was in readiness, and the tug Vanguard took her position ahead of the Valkyrie and passed a tow-line to her. Half an hour later the yacht slipped her moorings and the Vanguard moved ahead, followed by the cup hunter.

Received an Ovation.

The crew of the cutter Samoena, which was lying near, were the first to cheer the departing yacht. The Valkyrie's crew responded heartily. For the next hour the boat experienced a continuous ovation that far surpassed anything given former cup challengers. Thousands of excursionists crowded the Gourock pier, cheering and waiving adieus. Crowds followed the yacht, going down the shore road. Every window in Ashton fronting the water was occupied by demonstrative spectators.

A Full Crew on Board.

Navigator Harrison was steering the boat, for which purpose a wheel gear had been temporarily substituted for the tiller. Captains Cranfield and Sycamore and the full crew, numbering forty-three men, were on deck. No stringers were aboard the yacht. Lord Dunraven, Mr. Watson, the designer of the boat, and Mr. Henderson, her builder, were on board. In addition to the United Press tug the steam yacht Madura was accompanying the Valkyrie. Captain Sycamore soon relieved Navigator Harrison at the wheel. As soon as the boat had got under way the blue peter was hauled down, and Lord Dunraven's blue and yellow flag that was at the masthead in stops was broken out.

Saluted by the Mohican.

As the yacht passed the Cloch light her forestaysail was set, but it was of no service as the wind had fallen almost to a zephyr. The steam yacht Mohican, owned by William Clark, of Newark, N. J., now steamed abreast of the Valkyrie on the starboard side, while the Madura was on the port side. They moved in these positions until the Skelmoclie buoy was reached, when the Madura set signals expressing her good wishes. She then ran alongside the Valkyrie and her crew cheered the challenger, after which she turned back. The Mohican shortly after followed suit, firing three guns and signalling her adieus. Navigator Harrison, signal book in hand, instructed one of his crew in the hoisting of suitable replies. The steam yacht Gertrude accompanied the Valkyrie to Gourock Head, being the last of the yachts to leave.

Last Seen About 6 A. M.

At 2 o'clock yesterday morning the weather was so thick that the signal gun was fired from Rathland island at intervals of fifteen minutes. The sky was brightening, the barometer rising, and everything portended a good voyage. A little after 6.30 nothing could be seen of the yacht, and her voyage had fairly commenced. Her signal letters in the commercial code are N. V. P. G. Her night signal is three blue lights in the main rigging, two above and one below, forming a letter V.

BULL FIGHTS AT ATLANTA.

Mexicans Pleased with the Decision of the Washington Authorities.

New York, July 29.—A City of Mexico dispatch says: The bull fighting fraternity here is greatly pleased with the decision of the Washington authorities not to entertain the protest of the Humane society against the admission of bulls and torreadors from this country for the fair at Atlanta. Bulls are being carefully selected and will be of the finest breed known here, requiring the highest order of bull fighting talent. It is still rumored here Guerrera, the renowned Spanish espada, will go to Atlanta. He is the most famous swordsman of Spain, and is idolized here.

Killed in a Duel.

Frankford, Ky., July 29.—Charles Enlow and Charlie Duffin, the sons of prominent farmers, met on the road near Marietta, in Crawford county, and in a duel that followed Enlow was killed and Duffin fatally wounded. Trouble over a girl that dates back some months brought on the difficulty.

Turks and Persians Fighting.

Paris, July 29.—A dispatch received here from Constantinople says that sanguinary conflicts have taken place between the Turks and Persians on the Persian frontier.

Poor Lo. Driven from post to post, what will he be in another century.

The Jersey City News thinks that the New York police force are suffering from a mania for arresting people without good causes.

A Chicago man has just been sent to the penitentiary for a year for striking a woman voter and breaking her nose. Chicago justice is not as bad as is pictured.

The words of Mayor Gilbert on the bond issue published in the news columns of The Daily Press are clear and explicit enough. They will be read with interest.

William H. Helm, who was elected president of the New Brunswick Common Council by a technicality, declares that he will not take the office by such means. It is said that he will have to resign and if he does the deadlock will continue. New Brunswick seems illfated. She suffers from good as well as bad men.

The trolley cars in Philadelphia have reduced taxable property to the extent of $1,000,000 worth of horses, but as the general net increase in the valuation for the year is $13,000,000 the city has no complaint to make. The figures are a fair illustration of the result of the introduction of improved machinery.—Paterson Press.

Frederick Green, who agreed to give the State a farm of 162 acres upon which to erect a home for the blind, has left the State but his generous offer still continues. The commission having charge of the feasibility of the matter will report to the Legislature next January. At present it costs the State $15,000 a year for the care of the blind in outside institutions.

A funny decision has just been rendered by the Treasury Depaptment at Washington. An old soldier went to Canada and procured a cork leg. When he attempted to return to the country where he lost his good leg the Custom House officials detained him, holding that the leg was dutiable for the sum of $15 as a manufactured article. The old soldier who lost a leg fighting for the country whose officer insisted on his paying a tax on an artifical member, appealed to Washington, with the result of a favorable decision.

Borough Players Defeated.

A friendly game of base ball was played Saturday at Stirling, Morris county, between a team from Gillette, and one from North Plainfield. W. White was captain of the Plainfielders and M. Callahan of the Gillette team. The score was 13 to 0, in favor of the Gillettes. Justice of the Peace James A. Havey, of Stirling, was umpire. A return game will be played at Mt. Bethel soon.

New York Policeman Dead.

The death of Michael McGinley, a roundsman of the Twentieth precinct, New York, occurred on Saturday after a short illness. The funeral will be held tomorrow from the residence of his mother on Terrill road at nine o'clock, and from St. Mary's church at ten o'clock a. m. Interment in St. Mary's cemetery. He was a brother of Rev. Father McGinley.

SHOT A PLAYMATE.

Two Somerville Boys Indulge in a Quarrel With Bad Results.

Thomas Hagan, nine years old, and Edward Noblock, eighteen years old, both of Somerville, engaged in a desperate quarrel yesterday afternoon over some trifling matter and the latter became so angered that he took a revolver from his pocket and shot Hagan in the forehead. Noblock then ran away leaving Hagan lying on the sidewalk. Friends came along and the injured boy explained the circumstances.

He was taken to Dr. Swinton's office where the wound was dressed. Though very painful the injury will not prove serious.

It is not known whether Noblock has been captured. The citizens of Somerville are very much aroused over the shooting and it is likely it will go hard with the boy who did the shooting.

A Select Affair.

Peter Thompson and Martha Berryman, both colored, were united in marriage last evening by Rev. Mr. Gibson, of the Mount Olive Baptist church, at the home of Maria Staton, the bride's sister, on Washington avenue. The wedding was a very quiet one, only the relatives and near friends being present. The newly-married couple will go to New York where they will spend some time.

An Elizabeth Fire.

A mysterious fire occurred on Catharine street in Elizabeth this morning, in a house occupied by James Drum and family. The fire broke out in four different places. It is understood that Drum and his wife had indulged in a quarrel last night. This fact may have a bearing on the origin of the fire. Arrests are liable to be made. The loss is $2,000.

A Summer Dance.

The Swedish Social Club gave an enjoyable dance in Red Men's hall, on West Front street Saturday evening, which was well attended by the members and their friends. As usual Prof. O'Reilly and his orchestra were there, which made the evening very pleasant. The committee consisted of W. Pearson and E. Smith.

Off on a Clam Bake.

Twenty-five young men of North Plainfield went yesterday by stage to Castle Dock, along the Passaic river, where they met a party from Morristown, and enjoyed a clam-bake. The afternoon was spent in a friendly ball match, in which the borough boys came out ahead by a score of 12 to 1.

Wants of the Hospital.

The Muhlenberg hospital is full of surgical cases, and any gifts of old linen or cotton would be gratefully appreciated by the officials. It can either be sent to the hospital or will be called for if the hospital attaches are notified.

Poisoned By a Spider's Bite.

William Hayes was bitten on the lip a few days ago at Roselle by a spider. The lip swelled to three times its natural size, and blood poisoning set in. The young man is delirious, and it is feared he will die.

No Greased Pig.

The games of the Crescent Wheelmen will not take place next Saturday as previously announced, for it has been decided not to hold them at all.

The Victor Wheelmen will meet Wednesday evening at the home of Captain Israel Jones. Business of importance will be transacted and all committees are requested to be present.

Miss Mary Kiley and Miss Banks were discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital today, having fully recovered.

Miss Ethel Marsh, of Washington Heights, is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Charles Smith of Willow avenue, where Miss Western, of Washington avenue, will remain with her.

—John Hand Camp, No. 28, S. of V., hold their regular meeting tomorrow evening.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness, caused by catarrh, that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

"Yield Not to Misfortune."

I was afflicted with catarrh last autumn. During the month of October I could neither taste or smell and could hear but little. Ely's Cream Balm cured it. Marcus Geo. Shautz, Rahway, N. J.

I suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since a boy, and I never hoped for cure, but Ely's Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many acquaintances have used it with excellent results. Oscar Ostrum, 45 Warren ave., Chicago, Ill. Cream Balm is agreeable.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Peter Simms, a colored rider, made a mile in 2:30 on Maltby's track, Friday evening. He rides a Stearns wheel.

John C. Whiting, of East Sixth street, rode over to New Brunswick Saturday and will remain there for several days.

Fred Hardgrave and George Hummer left Saturday morning on a cycling trip to the Catskills. They will return by boat.

John Rickert and George Babcock started on their wheels Saturday morning for Philadelphia and returned in the afternoon.

Mifford Giles, of VanSickle's market, is training every evening for the one-hundred mile road race which is to take place in September.

Fred Wharton and Donald McInnes, of the West End, rode their wheels to New Brunswick on Saturday afternoon. They were caught in the rain and received a thorough drenching.

About 200 cyclists from New York, including several women, passed through Plainfield yesterday morning on their way to New Brunswick. They returned about 2:30 in the afternoon. There were seventeen cycle runs to New Brunswick yesterday, and it is estimated there were 1,000 wheelmen in the city.

The Man with the Gold Dust.

A couple of roughly dressed men sauntered into a Kearney street saloon the other day and ordered drinks. The proprietor thought he recognized the one who was doing the treating as a notorious saloon beat, and he became positive of the man's face when he calmly filled his glass to the brim without depositing any cash on the bar.

"I'll fix him," soliloquized the saloon keeper, as he picked up a ciphon of soda and motioned to the bartender to do the same.

The men swallowed their liquor slowly and seemed to enjoy the whole length of the jolt. The one who ordered the drinks drew a dirty bandana handkerchief from his pocket and laid the rag on the bar, while his companions attacked the lunch counter.

"Give it to him!" shouted the saloon keeper, and two streams of fizz struck the man at the bar and drenched him from head to foot.

To the surprise of the saloon men neither of the visitors attempted to escape. The man who treated sputtered awhile and looked indignant. Then he commenced to grin.

"I reckon you thought I wasn't goin' ter pay fer the drinks," he calmly remarked, as he untied the knot in the old handkerchief he had left on the bar, and emptied out a handful of gold. "There's yer money," he added, "an' now you can pay me for the damage. Don't judge a man by his clothes, podner."—San Francisco Post.

Horses at Bed Rock Prices.

Jehu Switzler, of the Columbia River, who probably has more horses than any other man in the Northwest, has entered into a contract with the Portland Canning Company to deliver 3,000 head of horses on the north bank of the river at $2.90 per head.

If he takes them across the railroad he is to receive $3 per head. It is understood that the horses are to be slaughtered and packed for the Chinese trade, but they may find their way into the home market under the guise of choice corned beef.—Yakima Herald.

Food for Superstition.

The conversation turned upon the fatal number, Friday, salt spilling and other superstitions.

"It is not well to make too much fun of such matters," gravely remarked Brichantean. "For instance, I had an old uncle who, at the age of 77, committed the imprudence of making one of a dinner party of 13."

"And he died the next day?" Le Ribi inquired.

"No; but exactly thirteen years afterward."

A shudder ran through the audience. —Gaulois.

Woman's Economy.

Economy is such a coy, elusive thing. You may think that you have captured it and that you will be able to hold it fast and sure, when presto! it slips from your very fingers, and it's extravagance itself that you have grasped.

"I have often noticed," remarked a sagacious woman the other day, "that my most impressive fits of economy are invariably followed by far more impressive fits of extravagance. I save a penny or so on some dozen petty things and then suddenly rush into some rash expenditure costing ten times as much as all the money I've been saving. I always dread an economical fit, therefore, for I know that it merely precedes some outrageous expense."

This is true of most women.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.

The best salve in the world for cuts, bruises, sores, ulcers, salt rheum, fever sores, tetter, chapped hands, chilblains, corns and all skin eruptions, and positively cures piles or no pay required. It is guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. Price 25c per box. For sale by L. W. Randolph, druggist.

YOUR SCALP! During the heats of summer does it become irritated and invite an occasional friendly scratch? To wash it is well, but not too often, lest your hair become "brash" and stiff. But treat it twice or thrice a week with our Petroleum Hair Tonic—a little rubbed in with your finger ends, and you will find the feeling of comfort and coolness truly delightful. Positively nothing equals it as a balm for the woes of your scalp. Sprinkler bottles 50c. Only at

REYNOLDS'S PHARMACY, PARK AND NORTH AVENUES.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with pneumonia succeeding la grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed in the spring, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. Only 50c per bottle at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freemyer House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for any kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the diseases for which it is intended and he knows it. It is for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

Shiloh's Cure, the great cough and croup cough, is in great demand. Pocket size contains 25 doses, only 25c. Children love it. Sold by all druggists.

Captain Sweeney, U. S. A., San Diego, Cal., says: "Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy is the first medicine I have ever found that would do me any good." Price 50c. Sold by all druggists.

Karl's Clover Root will purify your blood, clear your complexion, regulate your bowels and make your head clear as a bell; 25c, 50c and $1. Sold by all druggists.

BRISK BUSINESS MAKERS.

You remember that lot of fine French satine draperies we sold so many of in the spring. We have secured another lot, about 2,000 yds, beautiful designs, just right for draperies and fancy work. Their actual value 30c; our price 15c.

5c. Pretty cottage window drapery, 40 inches wide, cost 10c to make, but you buy it for 5c.

7c. A better assortment of ducks than we had a month ago. Then you paid 12c for them. Now you buy for 7c.

8c. Those fine Irish lawns, 40 inches wide, an endless variety of them but all to your liking. Were 13c; Now 8c.

5c. For a towel sounds cheap, but they are good, and you get 10c worth of wear out of every one.

11c. You pay 12 and 15c for plain pillow case muslin, and we sell you a fine hemstitched muslin for 11c the yard.

18c. 500 pairs of those ladies' 30c stockings sold last week. (We say 30c ones because they are worth it,) and 1000 pairs to be sold this week.

$6.98. For a 100-piece decorated English porcelain dinner set. Three different colors. Would be a bargain at $10.

69c. Your choice of a line of fine lawn shirt waists that have been 98 cents.

25c. Not often you can buy such a towel for 25c. Real value 40 cents.

49c. for a ladies' night robe, full size, made of Lonesdale muslin and nicely trimmed.

15c. for corset covers and shaped neck.

12c. for silk Windsor ties; all colors.

37c. We offer a line of 40 inch fancy Mohair. So popular just now.

58c. We offer a 54 inch Storm Serge—just the thing for hard wear. Blue and black.

15c. Children's fine ribbed lisle hose, fast black.

25c. a dozen for large size tin-top jelly glasses.

13c. is all we ask for those German lawns.

10c. for Talcum Powder.

59c. buys a full size Mexican grass hammock.

19c. Men's and boys' white sweaters.

THE CAT AND THE KING.

BY STANLEY J. WEYMAN.

(Copyright, 1895, by Irving Bacheller.)

He saw what I meant, and laughed; and being by this time quite himself, left that and passed to discussing the strange affair of La Trape and the milk. "Have you found, as yet, who was good enough to supply it?" he asked.

"No, sire," I answered. "But I will see La Trape, and as soon as I have learned anything, your majesty shall know it."

"I suppose he is not far off now," he suggested. "Send for him. Ten to one he will have made inquiries, and it will amuse us."

I went to the door and, opening it a trifle, bade the page who waited send La Trape. He passed on the message to a crowd of sleepy attendants, and quickly, but not before I had gone back to the King's bedside, La Trape entered.

Having my eyes turned the other way, I did not at once remark anything. But the King did; and his look of astonishment, no less than the exclamation which accompanied it, arrested my attention. "St. Gris, man!" he cried. "What is the matter? Speak!"

La Trape, who had stopped just within the door, made an effort to do so, but no sound passed his lips; while his pallor and the fixed glare of his eyes filled me with the worst apprehensions. It was impossible to look at him and not share his fright, and I stepped forward and cried out to him to speak. "Answer the King, man," I said. "What is it?"

He made an effort, and with a ghastly grimace, "The cat is dead!" he said.

For a moment we were all silent. Then I looked at the King, and he at me, with gloomy meaning in our eyes. He was the first to speak. "The cat to whom you gave the milk?" he said.

"Yes, sire," La Trape answered, in a voice that seemed to come from his heart.

"But still, courage!" the King cried, "Courage, man! A dose that would kill a cat may not kill a man. Do you feel ill?"

"Oh, yes, sire," La Trape moaned.

"What do you feel?"

"I have a trembling in all my limbs, and ah—ah, my God, I am a dead man! I have a burning here—a pain like hot coals in my vitals!" And, leaning against the wall, the unfortunate man clasped his arms round his body and bent himself up and down in a paroxysm of suffering.

"A doctor! a doctor!" Henry cried, thrusting one leg out of bed. "Send for Du Laurens!" Then, as I went to the door to do so, "Can you be sick, man?" he asked. "Try!"

"No, no; it is impossible!"

"But try, try! When did the cat die?"

"It is outside," La Trape groaned. He could say no more.

I had opened the door by this time, and found the attendants, whom the man's cries had alarmed, in a cluster round it. Silencing them sternly, I bade one go for M. Du Laurens, the King's physician, while another brought me the cat that was dead.

The page who had spent the night in the King's chamber, fetched it. I told him to bring it in, and ordering the others to let the doctor pass when he arrived, I closed the door upon their curiosity, and went back to the King. He had left his bed and was standing near La Trape, endeavoring to hearten him; now telling him to tickle his throat with a feather, and now watching his sufferings in silence, with a face of gloom and despondency that sufficiently betrayed his reflections. At sight of the page, however, carrying the dead cat, he turned briskly, and we both examined the beast which, already rigid, with staring eyes and uncovered teeth, was not a sight to cheer anyone, much less the stricken man. La Trape, however, seemed to be scarcely aware of its presence. He had sunk upon a chest which stood against the wall, and, with his body strangely twisted, was muttering prayers, while he rocked himself to and fro unceasingly.

"It's stiff," the King said in a low voice. "It has been dead some hours."

"Since midnight," I muttered.

"Pardon, sire," the page, who was holding the cat, said; "I saw it after midnight. It was alive then."

"You saw it!" I exclaimed. "How? Where?"

"YOU SAW IT!" I EXCLAIMED.

"Here, your excellency," the boy answered, quailing a little.

"What? In this room?"

"Yes, excellency. I heard a noise about—I think about 2 o'clock—and his majesty breathing very heavily. It was a noise like a cat spitting. It frightened me, and I rose from my pallet and went round the bed. I was just in time to see the cat jump down."

"From the bed?"

"Yes, your excellency. From his majesty's chest, I think."

"Are you sure that it was this cat?"

"Yes, sire; for as soon as it was on the floor it began to writhe and roll and bite itself, with all its fur on end, like a mad cat. Then it flew to the door and tried to get out, and again began to spit furiously. I thought that it would awaken the King, and I let it out."

"And then the King did awake?"

"He was just awaking, your excellency."

"Well, sire," I said, smiling, "this accounts, I think, for your dream of the house that fell, and the beam that lay on your chest."

It would have been difficult to say whether at this the King looked more foolish or more relieved. Whichever the sentiment he entertained, however, it was quickly cut short by a lamentable cry that drove the blood from our cheeks. La Trape was in another paroxysm. "Oh, the poor man!" Henry cried.

"I suppose that the cat came in unseen," I said, "with him last night, and then stayed in the room?"

"Doubtless."

"And was seized with a paroxysm here?"

"Such as he has now!" Henry answered; for La Trape had fallen to the floor. "Such as he has now!" he repeated, his eyes flaming, his face pale. "Oh, my friend, this is too much. Those who do these things are devils, not men. Where is Du Laurens? Where is the doctor? He will perish before our eyes."

"Patience, sire," I said. "He will come."

"But in the meantime the man dies."

"No, no," I said, going to La Trape, and touching his hand. "Yet, he is very cold." And turning, I sent the page to hasten the doctor. Then I begged the King to allow me to have the man conveyed into another room. "His sufferings distress you, sire, and you do him no good," I said.

"No, he shall not go!" he answered. "Ventre Saint Gris! man, he is dying for me! He is dying in my place. He shall die here."

Still ill satisfied, I was about to press him farther, when La Trape raised his voice, and feebly asked for me. A page who had taken the other's place was supporting his head, and two or three of my gentlemen, who had come in unbidden, were looking on with scared faces. I went to the poor fellow's side, and asked what I could do for him.

"I am dying!" he muttered, turning up his eyes. "The doctor! the doctor!"

I feared that he was passing, but I bade him have courage. "In a moment he will be here," I said; while the King in distraction sent messenger on messenger.

"He will come too late," the sinking man answered. "Excellency?"

"Yes, my good fellow," I said, stooping that I might hear the better.

"I took ten pistoles yesterday from a man to get him a scullion's place; and there is none vacant."

"It is forgiven," I said, to soothe him.

"And your excellency's favorite hound, Diane," he gasped. "She had three puppies, not two. I sold the other."

"Well, it is forgiven, my friend. It is forgiven. Be easy," I said, kindly.

"Ah, I have been a villain," he groaned. "I have lived loosely. Only last night I kissed the butler's wench, and——"

"Be easy, be easy," I said. "Here is the doctor. He will save you yet."

I made way for M. Du Laurens, who, having saluted the King, knelt down by the sick man, and felt his pulse; while we all stood round, looking down on the two with grave faces. It seemed to me that the man's eyes were growing dim, and I had little hope. The King was the first to break the silence. "You have hope?" he said. "You can save him?"

"Pardon, sire, a moment," the physician answered, rising from his knees. "Where is the cat?"

Someone brought it, and M. Du Laurens, after looking at it, said curtly: "It has been poisoned."

La Trape uttered a groan of despair. "At what hour did it take the milk?" the physician asked.

"A little before ten last evening," I said, seeing that La Trape was too far gone for speech.

"Ah! And the man?"

"An hour later."

Du Laurens shook his head, and was preparing to lay down the cat which he had taken in his hands, when some appearance led him to examine it again and more closely. "Why what is this?" he exclaimed, in a tone of surprise, as he took the body to the window. "There is a large swelling under its chin."

No one answered.

"Give me a pair of scissors," he continued; and then after a minute, when they had been handed to him, and he had removed the fur, "Ha!" he said, gravely, "this is not so simple as I thought. The cat has been poisoned, but by a prick with some sharp instrument."

The King uttered an exclamation of incredulity. "But it drank the milk," he said. "Some milk that——"

"Pardon, sire," Du Laurens answered, positively. "A draught of milk, however drugged, does not produce an external swelling with a small blue puncture in the middle."

"What does?" the King asked, with something like a sneer.

"Ah, that is the question," the physician answered. "A ring, perhaps, with a poison-chamber and hollow dart."

"But there is no question of that here," I said. "Let us be clear. Do you say that the cat did not die of the milk?"

"I see no proof that it did," he answered. "And many things to show that it died of poison administered by puncture."

"But then," I answered, in no little confusion of thought, "what of La Trape?"

He turned, and with him all eyes, to the unfortunate equerry, who still lay seemingly moribund, with his head propped on some cushions. M. Du Laurens advanced to him and again felt his pulse, an operation which appeared to bring a slight tinge of color to the fading cheeks. "How much milk did he drink?" the physician asked after a pause.

"More than half a pint," I answered.

"And what besides?"

"A quantity of the King's posset, and a little lemonade."

"And for supper? What did you have?" the leech continued, addressing himself to his patient.

"I had some wine," he answered feebly. "And a little Frontignac with the butler, and some honey-mead that the gipsy wench gave me."

"The gipsy-wench?"

"The butler's girl, of whom I spoke."

M. Du Laurens rose slowly to his feet, and, to my amazement, dealt the prostrate man a hearty kick, bidding him at the death. He came to me hot-foot with the news, and found me with Du Laurens who was in the act of ordering me to bed.

I confess that I heard the story almost with apathy, so ill was I. Not so the physician. After examining the snake which by the King's orders had been brought for my inspection, he pronounced that it was not of French origin. "It has escaped from some snake-charmer," he said.

The King seemed to be incredulous.

"I assure you that I speak the truth, sire," Du Laurens persisted.

"But how then did it come in my room?"

"That is what I should like to know, sire," the physician answered, severely; "and yet I think that I can guess. It was put there, I fancy, by the person who sent up the milk to your chamber."

"Why do you say so?" Henry asked.

"Because, sire, all snakes are inordinately fond of milk."

"Ah!" the King said, slowly, with a change of countenance and a shudder which he could not repress; "and there was milk on the floor in the morning."

"Yes, sire; on the floor, and beside the head of your bed."

But at this stage I was attacked by a fit of illness so severe that I had to break in on the discussion, and beg the King to withdraw. The sickness increased on me during the day, and by noon I was prostrate, neither taking interest in anything

HE CAME TO ME HOT-FOOT WITH THE NEWS.

nor allowing others, who began to fear for my life, to divert their attention. After twenty-four hours I began to mend, but still several days elapsed before I was able to devote myself to business; and then I found that, the master-mind being absent, and the King, as always, inclined to rise. "Get up, rogue! Get up," he continued, harshly, yet with a ring of triumph in his voice, "all you have got is the colic, and it is no more than you deserve. Get up, I say, and beg his majesty's pardon!"

HE DEALT THE PROSTRATE A HEARTY KICK.

"But," the King remonstrated in a tone of anger, "the man is dying!"

"He is no more dying than you are, sire," the other answered. "Or, if he is, it is of fright. There, he can stand as well as you or I!"

And to be sure, as he spoke, La Trape scrambled to his feet, and with a mien between shame and doubt stood staring at us, the very picture of a simpleton. It was no wonder that his jaw fell and his impudent face burned; for the room shook with such a roar of laughter, at first low, and then as the King joined in it, swelling louder and louder, as few of us had ever heard. Though I was not a little mortified by the way in which we had deceived ourselves, I could not help joining in the laugh; particularly as the more closely we reviewed the scene in which we had taken part, the more absurd seemed the jest. It was long before silence could be obtained; but at length Henry, quite exhausted by the violence of his mirth held up his hand. I seized the opportunity.

"Why, you rascal!" I said, addressing La Trape, who did not know which way to look, "where are the ten crowns of which you defrauded the scullion?"

"To be sure," the King said, going off into another roar. "And the third puppy?"

"Yes," I said, "you scoundrel; and the third puppy?"

"Ay, and the gipsy girl?" the King continued. "The butler's wench, what of her? And of your evil living? Begone, begone, rascal!" he continued, falling into a fresh paroxysm, "or you will kill us in earnest. Would nothing else do for you but to die in my chamber? Begone!"

I took this as a hint to clear the room, not only of La Trape himself but of all; and presently only I and Du Laurens remained with the King. It then appeared that there was still a mystery, and one which it behoved us to clear up; inasmuch as Du Laurens took the cat's death very seriously, insisting that it had died of poison administered in a most sinister fashion, and one that could not fail to recall to our minds the Borgian popes. It needed no more than this to direct my suspicions to the Florentines who swarmed about the Queen, and against whom the King had let drop so many threats. But the indisposition which excitment had for a time kept at bay began to return upon me; and I was presently glad to drop the subject and retire to my own apartments, leaving the King to dress.

Consequently, I was not with him when the strange discovery which followed was made. In the ordinary course of dressing one of the servants going to the fire-place to throw away a piece of waste linen thought that he heard a rat stir among the boughs. He moved them, and in a moment a small snake crawled out, hissing and darting out its tongue. It was killed, and then it at once occurred to the King that he had the secret of the cat's warm in the pursuit, nothing had been done to detect and punish the criminal.

I could not rest easy, however, with so abominable a suspicion attaching to my house; and as soon as I could bend my mind to the matter I began an inquiry. At the first stage, however, I came to an impasse; the butler, who had been long in my service, cleared himself without difficulty, but a few questions discovered the fact that a person who had been in his department on the evening in question was now to seek, having indeed disappeared from that time. This was the gipsy-girl, whom La Trape had mentioned, and whose presence in my household seemed to need the more elucidation the farther I pushed the inquiry. In the end I had the butler punished, but though my agents sought the girl through Paris, and even traced her to Meaux, she was never discovered.

The affair, at the King's instance, was not made public; nevertheless, it gave him so strong a distaste for the Arsenal that he did not again visit me, nor use the rooms I had prepared. That later, when the first impression wore off, he would have done so, is probable; but, alas, within a few months the malice of his enemies prevailed over my utmost precautions, and robbed me of the best of masters; strangely enough, as all the world now knows, at the corner of that very Rue de la Feronnerie which he had seen in his dream.

FOR HOT WEATHER.

WHAT MY LADY SHOULD WEAR TO BE COMFORTABLE.

What Becomes Her Should Be Considered of Course. The Seductive Bargain Counter Loses Its Attraction for the Intelligent Buyer.

Skirts without trimming are the rule for all gowns except thin muslins. Some of these made recently are trimmed with two or three bands of insertion arranged in a deep point on either side like the model shown, which is carried out in Dresden shot silk. The full blouse waist and sleeves are like the skirt, and shoulder revers of lace over a collar, and satin ribbon rosettes are the only trimming. The insertion of the skirt is also over a band of colored ribbon.

The leading materials for gowns intended for midsummer wear are batiste, organdie, Swiss linen duck, and pique, and these are made up in all the varying degrees of simplicity and elaboration for both morning and evening wear. Plain white and figured pique is used for wide collars and cuffs of sheer ecru linen batiste.

Ribbon and lace are the usual trimmings for ecru batiste gowns when they are intended for afternoon wear, but the white duck and pique collar and band on the skirt give them that severe and stylish appearance so much desired for morning. Ecru batiste dotted with pink, yellow, or blue, and made with a plain skirt and blouse waist, open in front, over a tucked and lace trimmed vest of white mull, and finished with collar, belt and bows of blue, pink, or yellow and white striped ribbon forms a charmingly simple yet dressy gowns. Epaulet pieces of batiste trimmed round with a ruche or narrow lace are almost a necessity over the gigot sleeves, which to be cool are made without lining. The waist and skirt can be made over a white and colored lawn. White organdie dresses over colored silk or white lawn lining are trimmed with cream Valenciennes lace. Three or five rows of insertion set in above the hem, or two narrow ruffles of organdie edged with lace, trim the skirts. The waists are full, with lace yokes and frills of edging below, and either colored or plain white ribbons are used or collar and belt.

There are bargains and bargains. The taste for cheap things created by the earlier bargain counters has begotten the special manufacture of articles for the bargain trade.

Such articles counterfeit more or less crudely genuine goods worth from two to ten times the money. Every year some article not hitherto displayed on the bargain counter is produced to take its place there. Lawn mowers have been among the bargains of the last two years. You may get for less than $2 a lawn mower of the same size and general appearance as one that costs $7 or $8. Thousands of the cheap mowers have been sold to persons that never would have thought of buying one, as well as to persons who would otherwise have bought the costlier article.

Every woman whose income requires her to pause and ask the price of what she buys catches the bargain fever at some period of her life, but those who have enough to live on in reasonable comfort recover from it and thereafter immune. The intelligent shopper soon learns that the real bargains for persons who seek really good articles are in the main those things that are sold toward the end of the season to save the cost of storage, to make room for new goods and to avoid the disaster that attends a change of fashion.

How Ingalls Retired.

Ex-Senator Ingalls, speaking the other day of his defeat at Topeka in 1890, when he was a candidate for re-election, said:

"When the returns came in and I saw how overwhelming my defeat was and what it meant to me—the end of eighteen years' service in the American Senate, possibly the end of my public life—I confess that agony was in my soul. It was a beautiful day. Everybody was watching me to see how I was going to take it—all my family. It was a tragic hour. I went over to my pasture and walked through the withered wood. There in a little grassy glade, sheltered from the autumnal breeze, the sun shining coldly down, I opened the windows of my spirit and let that whole thing in on me, and commanded my fortitude. I sat there in that little dell until the struggle was over, until I was master of myself."

Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared, and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. Marlow, M. D., Tamaroa, Ill. VAN NESS WENT THIS TIME.

ACCUSED LAWYER CARRIED FROM HIS BED BY OFFICERS.

Taken from This City to New York, Where He Has Thrice Forfeited His Bonds—Wanted for Forgery.

Lawyer John K. VanNess, of East Front street, and also of 261 Broadway, New York, who for a long time has evaded examination and trial on a charge of forgery in the second degree, and whose bail has thrice been forfeited, was taken to New York under arrest last night from his home in this city and lodged as a prisoner in Hudson Street Hospital. The complainants against VanNess are the executors of the estate of Cornelia Waldron, of 241 West Forty-fifth street. They say that without authority he added to a check for $1,000 on the Union Trust Company, which originally read "Pay to the order of James A. Waldron," the words "or John K. VanNess, attorney;" that he had the check cashed, and that he appropriated the money to his own use.

Van Ness was originally arrested on February 7th, 1893. He was held at the Tombs Court in $2,000 bail for examination. He failed to appear when the case was called and his bail bond was forfeited. Subsequently he was arrested on an indictment for the same offence and released in $3,000 bail.

A short time ago he was arrested on another complaint, and arraigned in the Jefferson Market Police Court. He was bailed in $1,500 pending examination, but did not appear when summoned, and that bond was forfeited.

When the forgery case came up for trial before Recorder Goff on July 8th Van Ness was not present, so the $3,000 bond was forfeited. Mrs. Mary Jones, one of his clients, 80 years old, was his surety in the forgery case both times, and judgment for $5,000 has been taken against her.

Though apparently in good health previous to the time that his case was called before Recorder Goff, as soon as he was notified he was prostrated to his bed with sickness. Efforts were made to get him in New York but as he was in New Jersey the New York authorities were unable to get him without requisition papers. Steps were immediately taken in this direction, and pending its consummation a fugitive warrant was procured and served on him by Chief Grant. He was stil in bed and to avoid any possible chance of his being spirited away Constable Mattox was detailed to watch him, which he has faithful done night and day for the past two weeks. For the last few days it was thought that he was feigning illness. City Physician Simpson was called in and after an examination certified that he could be moved without injury to his health. When Detective Trainor served the requisition papers on him and insisted on taking him to New York he protested, together with his wife, that he was not in a condition to be moved. The detective and another officer were compelled to carry him from the house to a cab in order to get him to a train. His wife accompanied him. Constable Mattox also went along. On their arrival in New York an ambulance took him to the hospital.

Mr. Mattox declares that VanNest is a sick man or else he is the best actor he ever saw.

VanNess says that the charges against him are trumped up because he was about to proceed against Mr. Waldron's brothers on behalf of another brother.

Miss Demarest's Teaching.

In a private letter to a Plainfield resident, concerning Miss Eleanor Demarest as kindergartner, Mrs. Krans-Boelte says: "We are much interested in and have faith in her. She possesses all the prerequisites of her vocation." Mrs. Krans was a pupil of Mme. Froebel, and has been called Froebel's spiritual daughter. She is also the authoress of "The Kindergarten Guide," a valued book in the Public Library which has been translated into several languages.

Will Shoot at Plainfield.

The New Jersey State Trap Shooters' League will hold their August meeting in Plainfield. The place of meeting is chosen by lot among the eight cities in which clubs belonging to the League are located. The League includes the South Sides, of Newark, the Red Bank, New Brunswick, Hoboken, Jersey City, Springfield, Elizabeth and Plainfield clubs.

On the Banks of the Raritan.

Raritan Bay has been the location of a two-weeks camp of Plainfield boys who have just returned. The party consisted of Carroll Lord, Geo. Ball, William Bull, Llewellyn Bull, Charles Bull, Fred Crum and Harry B. Hart.

WHAT THE BILL ALLEGES.

Subpœnaed Somerset Bank Directors Have Until September 8th to Answer.

The subpœnas served on the defunct Somerset Bank officials are returnable on August 8th, and the defendants have until September 8th in which to make answer. When the answers are made it will probably be known definitely whether the ill feeling believed by some of the stockholders and citizens to exist between some of the directors, as well as between some stockholders and directors, does exist or not, for the answers will probably show whether some directors desire to throw the blame, if blame there be, off upon some of their fellows.

The bill sets forth that the business of the bank was in 1891-2-3 conducted in violation of the charter and by-laws, and that during 1891 notes given by irresponsible parties and aggregating $20,000 were discounted, and that similar notes to the amount of $30,000 in 1892 and $3,000 in 1893 were discounted. Notes to the amount of $12,000, discounted before 1891, remain unpaid. The notes are in the main those of Mr. Pidcock and of companies of which he was the head, and it is said that the certificates of incorporation of the companies heretofore named were never filed. The standing of these concerns is set forth, and it is alleged that an examination such as the directors of the bank were in law required to make would have demonstrated clearly that the advances to them should not have been made. The bill asks for an accounting and a decree that the moneys illegally advanced be returned for distribution among the creditors and stockholders of the bank.

The receiver has paid $150,000 to the depositors and $15,000 to the stockholders. The expenses of the receivership have been about $15,000 and there is $10,000 on hand, so the affairs of the bank since the failure have gone on pretty well.

HE CHASED A WOMAN.

Councilman Westphal Rescues a Westfield Lady From a Persuing Man.

West Front street was quite lively for a few moments yesterday afternoon when a man named James Ryan chased a woman from Westfield about the sidewalk in front of the Babcock building. Ryan was drunk and, of course, the woman was afraid of him. Councilman William A. Westphal happened to be around at the time and the terrified woman fled to him for protection. By this time Ryan had a pressing engagement over the brook and started to attend to it but Westphal thought his business was of more importance still and, as a result, Ryan was sadly led away to the station house by Chief of Police Grant. This morning the case came up before President William G. See of the City Council and sentence was suspended on the woman chaser.

More Talk for Elizabeth.

The Elizabeth Mutual Telephone Company filed articles of incorporation yesterday with the Clerk of Union County. The stockholders are 100 well-known citizens, including many of the leading business men, manufacturers and professional men of the city. The capital is $30,000, of which $10,000 has been subscribed. It is the intention of the company to begin at once the building of its telephone line here, and tomorrow night a meeting will be held at its rooms in Elizabeth to elect officers.

They Tried the Chute.

One of the most famous attractions at Coney Island is the water chute in which the boat slides down a sloping platform into the lake. Two Plainfield boys, Edward Kline and Joseph LaBoyteaux, went there one day recently and had quite an experience. Just as the boat struck the water Kline let go and sailed through the air on his own account, but he had scarcely reached the water when his comrade came to his aid and pulled him out.

Are They Waiting for Gen. Sewell.

Senator Voorhees was reported yesterday as saying that the sub-committee of his investigating committee could not make any progress in an inquiry into the affairs of the city of Newark until the "special counsel engaged" returned from Europe "early in August." No prominent Newark lawyers are expected home from Europe "early in August." Gen. Sewell is due about that time.

He Could Talk.

A man peddling patent carriage wrenches and jacks, stopped in front of the City Hotel, yesterday afternoon and attracted quite a crowd by his amusing speeches. He was equal to the far-famed medicine man in the cleverness of his tongue.

LAWYERS ARE HIS SUBJECTS.

SWEDE SHARPER TRIED TO GET MONEY IN ELIZABETH ALSO.

Told the Same Tale of Woe About the Death of His Wife and How He Had Money in a New England Bank.

It transpires that the sharper who gave his name as Charles Frank, Jr., and tried to work a Plainfield lawyer for a $15 loan, giving as security a bogus $50 check, exclusively reported in Saturday's Daily Press, also tried to work an Elizabeth lawyer the same afternoon. The Journal last night had the following about the sharper:

When the swindler reached this city, he changed his name to Charles Jones, and claimed that George Morris, the cabinet-maker, lived at Rahway. He also represented that he had money in the Lawrence, Mass., bank, and offered a check of $50 as a retaining fee.

He told the ssme sorrowful story of his wife's sudden death, and intimated that a loan of $7 would enable him to get to his home in order to bury her. He said he had tried to borrow this morning at one of the banks in this city, and that they had telegraphed to Lawrence, receiving answer that Charles Jones had money deposited there, but as he had no one to identify him the bank officials here refused to accept his check.

The lawyer was not so easily duped, however, and succeeded in getting rid of the sharper without parting with any cash. If he had known of the Plainfield incident, and it would have been possible at that time to find an officer, the lawyer would have turned the fellow over to the police.

The fellow is described as a large man, wearing light trousers, dark coat, straw hat, and had not been shaved in several days. He is a very smooth talker, and he cries well when he tells of the announcement of his wife's death.

A description of the sharper was promptly given to Chief Tenney when it became certain that the man was a swindler. It has been learned that there is no cabinet-maker neither in Rahway nor Somerville of the name of George Morris.

BIG RAIN DROPS FELL.

And a Small Sized Flood Was the Result.

One of the most severe rainfalls that Plainfield has experienced for some time took place this afternoon. Although not lasting very long, the amount of water that fell was something enormous. Park avenue from Second street to Front street was flooded from curb to curb, while at the corner of Second street and Park avenue the water came up on the sidewalks and there were regular mill ponds under the railroad bridges.

Somerset street was a roaring torrent while the storm lasted, the water covering the entire width of the street. Grove street was almost as bad and Washington avenue was, if anything, worse, as the sidewalk was covered with water to the depth of several inches and poured over the embankment at the side with a grand rush. The brook itself was greatly increased in volume.

The western end of the city was also badly flooded, the water in some places being two inches over the electric car track. The vast puddle under the Park avenue railroad bridge was twenty-four inches deep by exact measurement, while under the Washington street bridge it is said to have been three feet deep.

Grove street was completely flooded in some places, the water going over the curb.

J. J. Kenney, the Front street shoe dealer, has kept a record of how high the water comes on his sidewalk in previous storms. But this one, he says, has the record.

Want Stores to Close.

An effort is being made to have the local merchants close their stores on August 15th, the day of the J.O.U.A.M. excursion. A petition is now in circulation and several have promised to close.

Formerly of Plainfield.

James B. Heath, formerly in the employ of VanSickle, the butcher, and a member of the Gazelle Engine Company, is very ill in the City Hospital at Blackwell's Island, New York.

Belated Wedding Gift.

The residents of Elmwood place presented Letter-Carrier James Mullen and wife with a very handsome rocker chair yesterday afternoon.

More Sewage Bed Tests.

Expert Hazen, of Boston, was in town yesterday making additional tests and examination of the ground to be used for the sewage beds.

DEATH FROM PARALYSIS.

Brought On By a Fractured Hip Two Weeks Ago.

The death of Mrs. Nancy E. Parkhurst in her seventy-first year occurred last night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Musgrave, on Duer street.

About two weeks ago it will be remembered that Mrs. Parkhurst fell and fractured her hip and this accident brought on paralysis which was the cause of her death.

Mrs. Parkhurst was a thorough Christian woman and devoted to her religious duties. She will be greatly missed by those who knew her.

A short service will be held at the home on Duer street this evening at eight o'clock and tomorrow the body will be taken to her home at Brandon, N. Y., where the funeral service will be held. She leaves a husband and one daughter, Mrs. Musgrave.

Hurt His Knee.

While Bert Holly, of Netherwood, was riding his wheel along Park avenue, near Campbell's club house, early Sunday morning, he struck a very soft spot in the road. He was thrown off the wheel, injuring his right leg. He remained there for some time, as he was unable to move, and no one was around to assist him. A man happened along with a horse and wagon, and brought him to Dr. Endicott's office in this city. After an examination the doctor discovered that the fall had caused dropsy of the knee. It will be sometime before he will have the use of his leg again.

Funeral of Patrick Daley.

The funeral of the late Patrick Daley was held this morning at nine o'clock fdom St. Joseph's R. C., church, North Plainfield. Rev. Father Miller conducted the service and was assisted by Revs. Father Murphy and Freeman. The service was a very impressive one and was largely attended. The pall bearers were P. Nolan, M. Powers, J. Keegan, Joseph Blatz, W. McCann and E. P. Gavin. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery.

A Policeman Buried.

Roundsman M. J. McGinley, of the Twentieth precinct, New York, was buried in St. Mary's cemetery today. There was a large number of friends from New York city present. Mr. McGinley's mother resides at Fanwood. Officers Morris Fitzgerald, Lewis Powley, James Flood, John H. Cook, and several intimate friends paid their respects to their brother officer.

Duffy Saves a Life.

A small boy had a narrow escape from drowning yesterday afternoon in Green Brook near the Westervelt avenue bridge. He was leaning over the side of the bridge when he slipped and fell headlong into the water. He went down twice, but before the third time, a young man named Thomas Duffy jumped in and rescued the little fellow.

A Great Success.

The fair which recently took place in the German Reformed church for the benefit of the parsonage, proved very successful from a financial point of view. The young women who arranged the fair met at the home of Miss Nettie Krietling, of West Front street yesterday, when it was learned that the clear profits were about $26.

No Need to Worry.

The contractors who made deposits with their bids on the house connections with the sewers are somewhat disturbed about the return of their checks. It was understood that after the contract was signed with John Siddall they would be returned but they have so far failed to materialize.

Quarantine Removed.

The quarantine has been removed from the residence of Augustus VanDeventer, of Myrtle avenue, as his daughter, Miss Eleanor T. VanDeventer, has entirely recovered from the scarlet fever and is able to be out again.

Effects of Wind.

The heavy wind of Saturday afternoon played havoc with all the oat fields in Washington Valley. They have all been blown over and the farmers will have a good deal of trouble gathering them.

Taken to the Hospital.

John McKeon, living near Clinton avenue, was taken very ill last Sunday with cholera morbus, and his condition became so serious that it was found necessary to take him to the hospital today. The ambulance was used to convey him there.

On Richmond Street Now.

The work of laying sewer pipes on Richmon street was started today by Honan & Sons. Some needed material gave out which necessitated their doing the above work.

A DEPARTURE BY NIGHT.

Six Plainfield Boys Off For Camp on Hank's Lake.

These cool evenings are delightful for riding and now that the new moon is growing and lends its light to the scene, it is simply grand, and what could make it more romantic than to be starting out with a party of friends in a wagon for a grand camping spree. That is what the Norwood Athletic club boys did at half-past one yesterday morning. Just before they went Mrs. B. T. Barnes served them a supper or breakfast, which ever it was. The two wagons carried, beside the large load of camp equipage, the following young men: Burt Wyckoff, Clarence Thorne, Wyatt Barnes, Harry Fulper, Frank Smalley and Percy McVoy. Curtis M. Thorpe, of Norwood avenue, very kindly presented the campers with a hammock for which they were very grateful. Last, but not least, of the party was Jack, Percy McVoy's faithful dog. They camped on the road last night and expected to reach their camping grounds on the shores of Hank's Pond, near Newfoundland, at noon today, the distance being fifty-two miles from here. There will be two weeks of solid enjoyment spent in camp during which time they will not starve judging from the large quantity of provisions that were purchased at Fulper's. David Smalley, the butcher, loaned one the horses and Mrs. Albert Wyckoff supplied the cooking utensils.

NO SAFETY FOR THE CHICKEN.

Arthur Peck Has His Wheel Badly Damaged By a Collision.

A chicken was the innocent cause of a broken wheel and a sore boy yesterday afternoon, and Arthur Peck, of Myrtle avenue, was the boy. In company with several friends young Peck was riding home from New Market. When about half way between that place and Dunellen the unconscious cause of all the trouble appeared. Just as Peck's front wheel glided by the chicken woke up to the danger of the situation and fled for safety but it found the wrong kind of a safety and, getting caught between the spokes, brought the wheel to a sudden stop. Peck sailed over his handlebars while the chicken kicked his last. The front forks of the wheel were badly twisted and Peck was covered with sundry bruises.

The Big Six Talk Together.

An interesting meeting was held at Uncle Dan Roberts' livery stable this morning. Those present were ex-Councilmen Seymour G. Smith, Leonard Spangenberg, W. L. Hetfield and Dan Roberts, four members of the old-time "Big Six." J. B. Coward whe was clerk of the Council at that time was passing and he was called in. Ex-Councilmen E. D. Moffett and Arthur Gallup the other two members were missing, and could not be found.

The meeting was productive of much good, as several topics of a local nature were talked over.

Chief Doane's Son Hurt.

While Hervie, the thirteen-year-old son of Chief Doane, was playing in the rear of his home on West Fifth street this morning at eleven o'clock, he slipped and fell, with the result of fracturing his right arm. Dr. Lowrie was called and reduced the fracture.

Trolley Extension in Union.

The Elizabeth City Council next Thursday night will be petitioned to grant a franchise to construct an electric railway from Elizabeth through Union, Springfield and Short Hills to Summit.

He Found the Ground.

The reason for so many blows of the fire gong recently is that the wire was grounded. Manager C. W. Runyon worked almost all day yesterday, and finally discovered it at the electric light station.

For the Championship.

Thomas Smith and Henry Ryder will meet Carl Walz and Fred Fish at the Hillside Tennis grounds this afternoon at five o'clock, when the championship of Plainfield will be played.

Caught a Snapper.

John Sebring, of Green Brook, caught a fifteen-pound snapping turtle in Greenbrook Saturday. This is the second one of its kind that has been caught in that neighborhood for some time.

Gone for Repairs.

The dynamo belonging to Charles P. Sebring in Sebring's mills at Green Brook was injured by lightning Saturday night. Yesterday it was taken to Rahway for repairs.

Sharpening Their Tomahawks.

Paugh-Caugh-Naugh-Sinque Tribe of Red Men are preparing for wonderful happenings tomorrow night. Last evening the adoption team met for practice.

WORSE THAN THE BOWERY.

A HEBREW PEDDLER WILL NEVER GO TO THE BOROUGH AGAIN.

A Gang of Young Boys Make Miserable the Life of a Match Peddler—Danced for Their Pleasure.

Several weeks ago a Hebrew peddler named John Abrams called at a house on Somerset place occupied by a family named Keller, and sold a lot of matches. Yesterday afternoon he happened to be in North Plainfield and stopped at the same place. There were a number of boys around and among them was Charles Keller.

The Hebrew was told that his matches were no good. He said if they would return them he would refund their money, but they had been used and consequently the deal could not be made. The boys then began to torment the peddler. They took his package and played havoc with it. His hat was also taken and his coat torn. As a last resort they had the Hebrew dancing much to their own amusement.

The Hebrew was mad clean through and through, and after much difficulty succeeded in getting his goods together. He then went in search of a marshal, but not finding one proceeded on his journey, solemnly declaring that he would never go there any more.

State Pentathlon Contest.

The New Jersey Young Men's Christian Association State Pentathlon meet opened on the grounds of the Orange Association on Valley road on Saturday afternoon. Four associations were represented—Orange, Newark, Paterson and Rahway. Montclair and Plainfield had entered, but on account of the threatening weather their athletes did not appear. The winners cannot be determined till the completion of the programme, which will take place on the grounds of the Newark Association, at Roseville, on Tuesday afternoon.

Fares to Be Reduced.

It is currently reported that the Central railroad will reduce their passenger excursion fares from Elizabeth to New York from 40 to 25 cents, from Elizabeth to Newark from 25 to 15 cents. To meet this, the directors of the Consolidated Traction Company met Thursday night, and decided, it is said, to reduce their excursion rate to Newark from 20 to 10 cents.—Contractor.

Tested and Found Perfect.

The water test was put on L. B. Woolston's handsome residence in Fairview avenue yesterday for the first time and proved a perfect success. Not a leak was found on the entire job. The system of heating is by hot water which was put in by D. W. Littell, of the successful plumbing and heating firm of North avenue.

Want a Trolley Franchise.

The Elizabeth Council will meet Wednesday night, when a franchise will be asked for to operate a trolley line of cars up Morris avenue, through Sayre street, to Plainfield. It is also said that the Elizabeth Street Railway Company will ask for the right to change the motive power of their road from horses to electricity.

Two Loads of Excursionists.

Two excursion trains passed through Plainfield this morning and will return tonight. One was the joint Sunday-schools excursion from Bound Brook to Asbury Park, and filled eight cars. And the other was from Somerville, bound for Jersey City where they will be transferred to a boat.

A Chicken Coop on Wheels.

The novel sight of an immense chicken coop on wheels was presented to those who were at the North Avenue station this morning. The car looked like a large cage, divided into four or five stories, which were filled with the fowls.

Tramp Life Did Not Suit Him.

The 300-mile tramp that Olaf Sangstad planned to take has been given up, and Sangstad is back in Plainfield again. The pleasures of the trip were not equal to his expectations, while the accommodations along the route were very poor, so after giving it a trial he took the train for home.

Purer Ozone.

P. M. French put Thomas Rutledge and Wm. Gillies at work yesterday cleaning out the mill race that connects his mill with Tier's Lake. The raceway needed cleaning badly, and the atmosphere in that neighborhood is much purer than it has been for some time past.

A New Clock.

A new ten-pound boy now tells the hour of night at Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bock's Somerset street residence.

END OF THE BIG TALK

Horr-Harvey Debate Closed at Chicago.

Twenty-four Hours in All Have Been Consumed and 145,000 Words in All Spoken—Harvey Denies That He Was Financially Aided by the Silver Mine Owners.

Chicago, July 30.—The Horr-Harvey debate came to a close yesterday afternoon. Twenty-four hours in all have been consumed in this novel discussion, which ran through eight days and 145,000 words in all were spoken according to the original agreement. The two gentlemen still have 2,500 words in which to close. This is to be submitted in manuscript any time within seven days to be inserted in the book which is to be published. During the entire debate Mr. Harvey read from a manuscript. The audience was on every occasion composed mainly of free silver men and did not seem to weary of Mr. Harvey's reading, but cheered him at every opportunity.

Not Aided by Silver Mine Owners.

Mr. Harvey this morning denied that he had been furnished with money by silver mine owners to aid in the debate, and the tone in which he said "I was not hired to talk here" seemed to indicate that he thought his opponent was. Resolutions were passed thanking the Illinois club for the use of their house and expressed appreciation of all that had been done by various ladies and gentlemen to assist in the carrying on of the debate. A resolution was also passed thanking both Messrs. Horr and Harvey for the information which they have presented to the public since the debate began.

Both Metals To Be Free.

Mr. Harvey in closing maintained that there will be a commercial parity between gold and silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 if the law is passed putting both metals on an equal footing at that ratio. What he meant by an equal footing is that both shall have the right to enter the mints free to be coined into money with 23.22 grains of pure gold to a be a dollar and 371 3-4 grains of pure silver to be a dollar. The money made from both metals to be full legal tender money in the payment of all debts and the debtor to have the right to pay in either metal. The supply of silver is limited. When a great nation like this whose normal capacity for the absorption of money in the transaction of its normal business is not far from four thousand million dollars opens its mints to silver it fixes the price of silver the world over.

The Battle of Liberty.

Mr. Horr closed the debate with an eloquent preroration on the revival of business; of the appeal of Cuba against oppression; of the distressing situation of the South American republics and said: "We are fighting the battle of liberty for the world. [Applause.] The result of your verdict upon this momentous question will be world-wide. It will convey words of cheer and stimulate the nerves of free men in every land."

IS HE GEORGE CARSON?

Allentown Officials Beleive They Have the Postoffice Thief.

Allentown, Pa., July 30.—George Carson, one of the accomplices of Harry Russell, Joe Killoran and Charles Allen, the trio of postoffice thieves who escaped from the Ludlow street jail, New York city, three weeks ago, and for whose capture a reward of $4,000 is offered, is supposed to be in the Allentown jail. He is accoused of picking pockets. The man was arrested at the Saengerfest picnic last Wednesday while extracting a purse from a woman's pocket. He persistently refused to give his name until to-day, when he said he was James Moore. On Saturday Detective Haines came across a picture of Carson, the accomplice of the New York postoffice thieves, and at once reconized a striking resemblance between it and the pickpocket. Yesterday the prison authorities tried to take a picture of the prisoner, but the latter obstinately refused to be taken, and either concealed his face behind his hands or threw himself on the floor. He was questioned by the officers about his alleged connection with the Ludlow street jail delivery, but declined to talk on the subject.

RICH MARBLE QUARRY.

Adams, Mass., Capitalists Form a Company To Begin Work.

Adams, Mass., July 30.—A company has been organized at Adams with a capital of $25,000 to work a marble quarry in that town, which is believed to be richer than any in Vermont. The product is white and clear, takes a high polish and lies near the surface. The whole mountain is believed to be of the same formation. An order for $12,000 worth of quarrying machinery has been placed, and work will be begun with a a force of twenty-five men when the machinery arrives.

MISTAKEN FOR BURGLARS.

Two Men Shot While Trespassing in a Neighbor's Yard.

Springfield, Mass., July 30.—Richard Landers and Michael Clark were shot yesterday by William Freestone. The men were in Freestone's yard, and Mrs. Freestone was awakened by hearing them about the house. Freestone went out on the piazza and shot at both of them with a revolver as they were leaving the premises. Both were hit in the right thigh, and Clark, from whose body the bullet has not yet been extracted, may be crippled for life.

Will Probably Prove a Loss.

Halifax, July 30.—The American schooner Mary Fernald, seventy-six tons, of Gloucester, Mass., Capt. Robert Biggs, from the banks with 4,000 fish, went ashore on the eastern side of Top sland at 7 o'clock last evening. The vessel is in a dangerous position and will likely be a total loss.

Lucretia M. Perry Dead.

New London, Conn., July 30.—Lucretia Mumford Perry, widow of Nathaniel Hazard Perry of the United States navy, died at her home here yesterday, aged 86. Her son, General Alexander J. Perry and her grandson John A. Perry, were with her at her death.

HOLMES' CRIMES.

More Discoveries—Police Trying To Force Quinlan To Confess.

Chicago, July 30.—The huge brick vault underneath Holmes' charnel house was unearthed yesterday. The existence of this vault had been entirely theoretical before this. Many rumors of such a receptacle have been circulated, but it was not until the police discovered Machinist Cappell that they succeded in gaining any idea of the location of the vault. The police theory is that Holmes used this vault for quickliming his victims' bodies and getting them into such a condition that they could not possibly be identified and that Cappell, the articulator, would not suspect that the bodies were anything more than cadavers secured at some medical college, morgue or hospital. While the police are not hopeful of discovering bodies of murdered people in the vault they are at the same time hopeful of securing evidence to fully establish just what the vault was used for. There is on exhibition in Inspector Fitzpatrick's private office the skeleton and trunk that contained it which was found through the advice given the police by Cappell. The skeleton is that of a woman of about 25 years of age, and the police think it is all that remains of one of the Williams girls or Emeline Cigrand. Almost every new development lands Janitor Quinlan more fairly in the police net, much to their satisfaction. They know he is unwilling to tell all he knows and are anxious to secure evidence to force a confession from nim in order to fasten the crimes upon Holmes securely.

WORKING FOR MARIA.

An Appeal for Sympathy To Be Made in Boston To-night.

Boston, July 30.—Michael Barbella and the Countess Di Brazza Savorgnan, chairman of the committee to secure the pardon of Maria Barberi, have written a letter to the Italians in Boston, which is to be read at the meeting this evening in Faneuil hall. In this letter both unite in saying that no money is needed. All that is needed is sympathy and the sending in of petitions in the next five days showing that the interest in the fate of Maria Barberi is widespread, and that all over the country people are uniting in a request for her pardon. This letter was brought by Mrs. P. Tingley of New York, a coworker with Countess Di Brazza on the pardon committee.

Woman's Rescue League.

Boston, July 30.—The Woman's Rescue league has passed resolutions requesting Governor Morton of New York to commute to imprisonment the death sentence on Maria Barberi.

STRIKERS BECOME RIOTOUS.

A Number of Sweating Shops Wrecked—16,000 Men Out.

New York, July 30.—About 1,000 striking tailors made things very lively for a time yesterday in Brownsville, which is practically the home of the striking tailors in Brooklyn. The strikers congregated in Siegel street, where they wrecked several sweating shops. At 90 Siegel street, in the rear of which building is a sweat shop conducted by Emanuel Silverstein and his wife, about 100 strikers turned over all the machines and assulted the proprietor and his wife. The mob also wreeked shops at 22, 44, 52 ond 151 Siegel street, when the police ended the riot. It is estimated that fully 16,000 garment workers are out on strike in this city and vicinity.

YANG YU AT WATERTOWN.

The Chinese Minister and Party Entertained by Mr. Foster.

Watertown, N. Y., July 30.—His excellency Yang Yu, chinese minister to Washington, is in Watertown, accompanied by Mr. Hoo, first secretary of legation; Mr. Chung, the interpreter, and a servant. They arrived last evening. They were received by ex-secretary of state John W. Foster, who is sojourning at his cottage at Henderson Harbor, and last night they dined with Robert Lansing, Mr. Foster's son-in-law. To-day they will visit Henderson Harbor and to-morrow will go to the Thousand islands.

SURRENDERED BY NEW JERSEY

Lawyer Van Ness Taken from Plainfield to New York by an Officer.

New York, July 30.—Lawyer John K. Van Ness of Plainfield, N. J., was brought to this city last night by Detective Cramer of police headquarters on a requisition signed by Governor Morton. He was indicted here it is understood for embezzling about $50,000. After arriving at the Liberty street ferry he was conveyed thence in an ambulance to the Hudson street hospital. He is said to be suffering from acute rheumatism.

Coffron Arrested for Murder.

Bar Harbor, Me., July 30.—Royce Coffron, who shot Mrs. Lydia Hadley one week ago last night and was released without a hearing, was rearrested yesterday and placed in the lockup on the charge of murder. He will be given a hearing at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

HAVE THEY A WARSHIP?

Reported That Cubans Have Purchased One.

Friends in This Country of the Patriots Will Not Admit It—Spain Already Beaten, They Declare. Now Only Anxious for Recognition as Belligerents.

Philadelphia, July 30.—Cuban sympathizers were extremely cautious today in commenting on the report that a warship has been secured by the insurgents and is now on its way to the rebellious island, the expectation being that the ship will reach the forbidden waters by to-day or to-morrow. Sympathizers who were seen to-day professed total ignorance of the war vessel's purchase and mission. One man, who has partial access to the secrets of the leaders, declared he did not believe the ship had been sent to Cuba at all. "We would be foolish," said he, "to print in the newspapers the very facts that the Spanish spies are so anxious to learn. Of course it is possible such a vessel has been sent out, but I haven't heard of it." The speaker, in common with his compatriots here, professed the utmost confidence in the issue of the current endeavor to free the turbulent little island from Spain's domain.

Spain Beaten Already.

"In fact," he declared, "we've got Spain beaten already. Why, we've killed more Spaniards than you Americans killed among the English in your war for independence. All that we need to assert complete success is recognition of our belligerent rights. If we can capture and hold for forty-eight hours some large city in Cuba and establish there any sort of a government one at least of the South American governments will acknowledge us. And as soon as one South American state recognizes our standing the entire continent will be solid for us. Once possessing belligerent rights we will get all the men and money we require. We are not trying to win the great cities yet because the mountains furnish us with advantageous fighting ground, and every day adds to our strength. All that we can do for a time is to keep up the war and make the most of the advantages we have. When we are ready to extend our operations the world will be astonished."

WAR REPORTS DISCREDITED.

Japan Is Simply Arranging To Further Recruit Her Navy.

Washington, July 30.—At the Japanese legation here the report from Vladivostock via St. Petersburg that Japan is raising her army and navy to a war footing is given no credence. No immediate trouble with Russia is anticipated according to the advices received here, and the second or reserve army corps is being disbanded. Japan is said, however, to be broadening the basis for her possibilities in case of war in that she is arranging to further recruit her navy. No vessels have been purchased from Peru. The cruiser Esmeralda was purchased from Chili before the Chinese war ended. No credence is placed in the report that fortifications at Port Arthur have been blown up. Eventually, when the Liao Tung peninsula is surrendered to China in accordance with the terms of the treaty, the Japanese, of course, will dismantle the fortifications, but as Port Arthur is to be held as a hostage for the payment of the indemnity the report that it has been blown up at this time is considered absurd.

CORBETT AND FITZ.

Betting in New Orleans on Coming Prize Ring Contests.

New Orleans, La., July 30.—The betting to-day on the coming prize ring contests which are scheduled to take place in Dallas, Tex., in November is as follows: 4 to 6 on Corbett; 5 to 4 on Fitzsimmons; 6 to 7 on O'Donnell; 7 to 8 on Maher; 4 to 5 on Ryan; 5 to 6 on Smish; 4 to 5 the Corbett-Fitzsimmons contest does not last 20 rounds. No direct odds; 4 to 5 either man wins (take your pick), Fitzsimmons or Corbett. Combinations: 5 to 1 with Corbett in (to win; 8 to 1 with Fitzsimmons in (to win): 3 to 1 the contest takes place in Texas. The betting changes daily.

SPANISH TROOPS AMBUSHED.

Natives of the Phillipine Islands Severely Punished Therefor.

Madrid, July 30.—An official dispatch received here from Manila, the capital of the Phillippine islands, says that the natives of Cabagan, in the province of Cagayan, at the northern extremity of the island of Luzon, recently ambushed a party of Spanish troops, killing and wounding several of the soldiers. A Spanish punitive column was sent to Cabagan and attacked and burned that town after a fight in which 116 natives were killed, including their principal leader. The Spanish lost a captain and 16 soldiers killed, and has several men wounded.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM.

Panama Strike Watched Carefully and Is Practically Over.

Washington, July 30.—The following dispatch received yesterday by General Rengifo, charge d' affaires of Colombia, from Mr. Arango, governor of the department of Panama, shows that there appears to be no cause for alarm in connection with the Panama strike: "Strike virtually over Its course is watched carefully in order to suppress all lawlessness. Many people already working. Will keep you fully advised."

INSULTED IN BAVARIA

A New York Merchant Thrown into Prison.

He Refused To Take His Boy Out of the Kur Garden as the Boy's Age Permitted His Presence There—Released on Bail—Uncle Sam Will Take the Matter in Hand.

Kissingen, July 30.—The indignation here, particularly among the guests at the hotels, growing out of the arrest of Louis Stern of New York is increasing, and the action of Baron von Thuengen, deputy commissioner of the Spa, who caused the arrest, is strongly denounced as a high handed outrage. A committee of the friends of Mr. Stern, who is vice-president of the New York chamber of commerce and a member of the firm of Stern Bros., have forwarded to Munich a protest addressed to Baron von Crailsheim, president of the Bavarian council of ministers and minister of foreign affairs, explaining that Mr. Stern's son, whose presence at the Kur garden led to the dispute with Baron von Thuengen which resulted in the arrest, was present at two previous balls in the garden, dancing with his mother, when von Thuengen rudely intervened. Americans here claim that von Thuengen is so swelled up with his little authority as to render him offensive to visitors. His action in the case of Mr. Stern will result in no benefit to the resort, for several families threaten to leave the place rather than to lay themselves open to becoming victims of the insolence of an overbearing petty official.

Thuengen Was Insolvent.

As told in the United Press dispatches yesterday Mr. Stern and his son visited the Kur garden to listen to the music and see the special performances, which are the features of the place. It is against the rules of the garden for children under fifteen years of age to be present, but as young Stern was considerably over fiftern his father never dreamed of having trouble over his presence. Shortly after they were seated Mr. Stern was ordered to take the boy out of the garden, which he very naturally refused to do, pointing out that he did not come within the age limit. This appeared to make no difference and the order to remove the boy was repeated. Mr. Stern persisted in his refusal, whereupon Baron von Thuengen, who is general superintendent of the garden, was summoned. He insolently repeated the order, and when informed of the boy's age told Mr. Stern that he did not believe it. Mr. Stern stood upon his rights and so informed the baron, who summoned the police and had him arrested. Through the efforts of the American consul at Bamberg Mr. Stern was released from jail on bail, but he was practically held a prisoner at his hotel, not being allowed to go out to walk or drive.

The Matter Not To Be Dropped.

Every effort is being made to right the wrong done through the officiousness of Von Thuengen, and the American government will be called upon to take such action as will result in the dismissal of Von Thuengen, in order that other American visitors to the place, of whom there are many, may not suffer insult from him or be arrested for not obeying illegal orders from his high mightiness.

POISONED BY A SPIDER.

It Bit Hayes in the Lip and His Condition Is Serious.

Elizabeth, N. J., July 30.—William Hayes of Roselle, near this place, is in a critical condition at his home as the result of being bitten by a spider. Last Wednesday while walking on the street Hayes noticed a spider hanging from the limb of a tree. A sudden guest of wind blew the spider against Hayes' upper lip and when he attempted to brush it off the spider fastened its fangs into his flesh. After he had shaken the spider off his lip began to swell and the wound became painful. After delaying some time Hayes consulted a physician. The doctor did all he could for Hayes, but he continues to grow worse and the doctor is of the opinion that blood poisoning has set in and that Hayes has little chance of recovery.

MRS. CORBETT WINS.

Referee Jacobs Reports in Favor of Her Petition.

New York, July 30.—Referee Edward Jacobs has filed his report in the superior court in the suit brought by Mrs. Ollie Corbett against her husband, James J. Corbett, the pugilist, for an absolute divorce. Referee Jacobs finds that Corbett has been guilty of improper conduct with a woman named "Vera," and recommends that Mrs. Corbett be allowed $100 a week alimony during her natural life, as provided for in an agreement entered into between the plaintiff and defendant when they separated during the present year.

Army Post Inspection.

Washington, July 30.—It is General Schofield's purpose to continue his inspection of the army posts of the country next month. He will attend the meeting of the ordinance and fortification board in New York on August 6. He has been absent from the last conferences of this board, and regards it as important to be present at the August meeting. After this he will inspect the posts along the North Atlantic coast.

Killed by a Vicious Horse.

New York, July 30.—John Palmenhiro, 20 years old, of Williamsburg, was at work in a livery stable on 140th street near Lenox yesterday when he was kicked in the left side by a vicious mustang and died before the arrival of the ambulance.

George Tidden Is an Umpire Now.

New York, July 30.—George Tidden, the well-known baseball and sporting writer, has been appointed an umpire by Pat Powers, president of the Eastern League Baseball association. He will officiate in his first game at Providence this afternoon.

Convention of Colored Men.

Washington, July 30.—A national convention of colored men has been called by the executive committee of the National Republican Vigilant association, to be held at Baltimore, beginning October 9.

THE NEGROES IN MEXICO.

Steps To Relieve the Necessities of Returning Colonists.

Washington, July 30.—Thanks to the good offices of L. M. Johnson, general manager of the Mexican Central railroad, the unfortunate negroes of the Tlanuahila colony who are making their way home to the United States from Mexico have been saved from present starvation. United States Consul Sparks has telegraphed the state department from Piedras Negras, Mexico, that Mr. Johnson is feeding these negroes at his own expense, and that all is going well now. The Eagle pass officials have quarantined forty-six of the negroes at that point, where the consul landed them Friday night. Twenty-five of them are sick in Mexico with smallpox, eight seriously. The local Mexican authorities there have become alarmed and declare that they cannot take care of them longer. The remainder of the party who are not sick number 150 were expected to reach Piedras Negras yesterday. The president has also taken steps to relieve the distress of the colonists. Regarding the case as one of great emergency involving the lives of American citizens, has directed the war department to issue rations to them and instructions were telegraphed the military headquarters at San Antonio, Tex., to forward immediately 1,500 rations to United States Consul Sparks at Piedras Negras. It is believed that they have already reached him and are being distributed.

RESULT OF ENGLISH ELECTIONS

Conservatives Sure of a Majority Over Any Coalition.

London, July 30.—With the exception of the polls in three districts, the result of the general election is now known. The districts yet to be heard from are the east division of Donegal, the south division of Londonderry county and Orkney and Shetland. In 1892 east Donegal returned an anti-Parnellite by a majority of 863, the south division of Londonderry county returned a liberal unionist by a majority of 501, and Orkney and Shetland returned a liberal by a majority of 1,003. The results in these districts will make slight difference in the political complexion of the new house of commons. The election in Orkney and Shetland will not take place until August 6. The returns now at hand show the election of 338 conservatives, 72 unionists, 176 liberals, 69 anti-Parnellites and 12 Parnellities. Thus the conservative-liberal unionist majority, subject to the results in the three districts yet to be heard from, will be 153. The consevative majority over any coalition that can be made is 9. The unionists have gained 110 seats and the liberals 20.

NINE PASSENGERS DROWNED.

Result of a Panic Caused by Fire on an Irish Lugger.

Queenstown, July 30.—The lugger Zenith was burned off Baltimore, Cork county, at midnight last night. She had on board a crew of six men and twenty-one passengers who were on a pleasure trip from Glandore, to which place they were returning from Baltimore when flames burst through the hatchway. A panic followed, and a boat which was lowered was swamped by the crowd of people who clambered into it. During the confusion nine persons were drowned. The skipper of the Zenith then ran ashore, and the remainder of the passengers and crew were rescued by the coast guard.

TREASURY GOLD.

Big Increase in the Reserve in One Day.

Washington, July 30.—Between the close of business Saturday and yesterday the treasury gained almost all the gold it has lost during the past two weeks, the increase since Saturday being $1,869,868. This sudden accumulation of gold attracted considerable attention, and it was supposed that it was due to some action on the part of the bond syndicate. Secretary Curtis, however, said that this was not true, so far as the treasury was advised. The increase, he said, came about in the ordinary course of business and was due to an exchange of gold for bills, probably because of the settlement of accounts in New York. The incident was, he said, not infrequent. The reserve to-day amounts to to $107,321,679.

O'BRIEN'S TRIAL POSTPONED.

He Will Be Held for Extradition If Acquitted in France.

Paris, July 30.—The trial of Tom O'Brien, the American bunco steerer, for the murder of his partner Reed Waddell in this city in March last, has bern postponed. The police authorities hese have been requested by the American state department to hold O'Brien for extradition in the event of his being acquitted of the charge of murder, he being a fugitive from justice.

Big Mill To Shut Down.

Lawrence, Mass., July 30.—Notices were posted in the Everett mills yesterday that the mills would close Saturday next and remain closed during the month of August, reopening on September 3. Superintendent Milliken refused to give any reason for the extended shut down. Some 1,200 operatives will be affected.

Their First Fair.

Winnipeg, Man., July 30.—Lord Aberdeen, Lady Aberdeen and Premier Bowell are here en route to the Regina, N. W. T., Industrial fair, which opens today. The fair is the first ever held in the territories and bids fair to be a great sucess. Many distinguished people will participate in ths opening ceremonies.

An Incorporated School Now.

Princeton, N. J., July 30.—Articles of incorporation for the Princeton Preparatory school have been filed with the secretary of state at Trenton, and the school will henceforth be an incorporated institution, instead of a private school as heretofore.

Says This M. P. Is an American.

London, July 30.—Dr. E. C. Thompson, the defeated unionist candidate for Middle Tyrone, announces that he will petition against the return of Mr. Munnaghan to parliament on the ground that the latter is a naturalized American citizen.

John C. New's Health Better.

London, July 30.—John C. New, formerly United States consul-general in this city, has been suffering from rheumatism for two weeks past. He is now slightly better.

NO ACTUAL FIGHTING

Both Sides at Jacksons Hole Are Ready, However.

Settlers Entrenched and the Indians in the Hills and Canons—One Man Says He Experienced No Difficulty in Coming Out and That the Reds Seemed Peaceful.

Market Lake, Idaho, July 30 (by courier from Sergeant's Lodge).—The fires thought to be signal fires are in reality only camp fires which the rainy have now extinguished. The settlers are very greatly excited and many have deserted their homes fearing an outbreak. The first man actually known to have come through Jacksons Hole is J. S. Barry. He said that the Indians are not visible and that nobody has been harmed since the first shooting on the day of the Indian break for liberty. The settlers are, however, still entrenched, and the Indians in the hills and canons are behaving in such a way as to imply that they are ready to respond to every act. Barry saw no Indians on his way through the most dangerous part of the journey. He said, however, that the man who wanted an Indian fight could get it.

Believes There Is No Danger.

Last night several Jacksons Hole exiles came into camp from Cunningham's camp, twenty-six miles north of Marysvale and in the heart of the war country. Cunningham says the settlers have had a number of scouts out, three having reported numerous Indian camps, but that all seems to be peaceful. He experienced no difficulty in coming out, he having started at 6.30 Friday evening. Altogether his idea is that there is no violent danger. Several of Agent Teters' Indian police have joined the command.

Movements of Indians.

Salt Lake, Utah, July 30.—It is reported that a few Indians are returning to the Bannock reservation from Jacksons Hole, but much larger numbers are pouring in than leaving. Tourist parties have stopped at Teton basin because it is unsafe to enter the Jackson Hole country. At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon the special train bringing transportation facilities for the infantry in their march across the country arrived at Market Lake. Two hundred and fifty men of the Seventeenth infantry left Market Lake for Jackson's Hole last night, but owing to the roughness of the road it will take them longer than was expected to complete the march of over a hundred miles. Arrivals from Soda springs this morning report the Indians are leaving the Hole by the way of Gray's lake and Soda springs over the old Lander trail.

Whites Building Rifle Pits.

When the soldiers reach Jacksons Hole there will probably not be an Indian in sight. The Indians are watching all passes going in from the St. Anthony side. At least 200 Indians claiming to be Lemhi's have crossed the river seven miles above St. Anthony within the last week. No squaws were with the last parties, but they are taking many horses with them. Settlements are becoming alarmed and are making preparations to organize companies. A number of men are going in via Teton basin to assist the whites who are making rifle pits at different points.

May Hold Off the Reds.

Indians passing will give no information further than that they are going way up. One family of settlers came out of the Hole Friday evening and say no others will be able to get out without assistance, unless the soldiers arrive soon. The people in the Teton basin are reinforcing the settlers of the Hole and may hold off the reds until the arrival of the troops.

They Appeared in Bad Humor.

Philadelphia, July 30.—Lewis F. Pease, who passed within sight of Jacksons Hole a few days ago with the Princeton Geological expedition, of which he was a member, arrived home yesterday. The party left Dubois, Wyoming, two weeks ago for Yellow lake, and spent nine days on the journey. They crossed a recently trampled Indian trail on the way, which had evidently been made by the band of Lemhis who had gone to join the Bannocks. Further on they fell in with a party of Shoshones, and camped one night with them. These Indians did not make any threats against the settlers in Jackson's Hole or the surrounding country, but they appeared to be in a bad humor. George Washakie, a son of the chief of the Shoshones, was in the band.

Within Sight of Jacksons Hole.

The Indians did not molest the Princeton men and when morning came the pale-faces and the red men parted peacefully. Subsequently the geological expedition passed within sight of Jacksons Hole and on the ninth day of their journey arrived at Yellow lake. Last Wednesday Mr. Pease, John W. Garrett of Baltimore and E. R. Otheranan left the expedition which is now in Yellowstone park, and started home. Judging from what they heard them say the Indians have more reason to be afraid of the settlers that the latters have to fear the redskins. It seemed to be the general opinion that the white people were very anxious to fight the Indians. The party were well armed and prepared for a fight but they did not know of any danger until their arrival at Cooke City, where they received telegrams informing them of the Bannock trouble.

It Is a Wild Spot.

Regarding the Mary Mere ranch, to which troops have been sent for protection against the Indians, according to a dispatch from Market Lake, Idaho, Mr. Pease said: "The Mary Mere ranch is situated in a wild and mountainous region fifty miles south of the troops that are at present stationed in Yellowstone park, and is many miles from any other habitation. If the Indians are nearing this ranch, and it is threatened, it woul prove conclusively that they are rapidly moving northward, as fifty miles represents a great distance in that wild and almost impassable region. From former reports it was apparent that the marauding tribes had not moved far north of Jacksons Hole country."

At the New Brunswick Common Council meeting last night Alderman Miller, Republican, and Alderman Mulvey, Democrat, tossed pennies to decide the deadlock which has existed since May 1 last. Miller won the toss and Mulvey had to vote for William H. Helm for president of the Council. This gives the Republicans control of the Board for the first time in fifteen years.

Ex-Congressman John Kean is telling what he will do if nominated for Governor on the Republican ticket. He says that the taxation system in the State is wrong, and believes that taxes upon railroads and other corporations should go to the municipalities in which their property is located. If there is to be a State tax on corporations, which is not to go to the muncipalities, it should be devoted to the schools, and then the regular State expenditures would be assessed upon the taxpayers, and they would see to it that there was no extravagance, says Mr. Kean.

The Newark Advertiser amusingly claims for Essex the honor of setting an example to the other counties in the matter of road building. It patronizingly speaks of Union as being second in order of merit. There is nothing like impudence. We had thought the claims of Union both as to priority and quality of roads was undisputed. It certainly is, outside of a Newark newspaper. Essex has some fair roads and one or two good ones; but she has also some of the most atrocious mud lanes in the State.—Jersey City News.

A Verdict on Leonard's Death.

The jury called by County Physician O'Reilly to investigate the death of Theodore Leonard, of Rahway, two weeks ago, gave a verdict today that Leonard's death was caused by heart trouble and cholera morbus. Much comment has been excited by the delay in analyzing the heart and vital organs, which were placed in jars and turned over to the County Prosecutor for examination. The jury today decided that such an examination would entail an expense of $400 to $600 and would probably bring forth no new developments.

After riding a wheel the valve of the tire should be opened for an instant to lessen the tension on the tubes.

In mending punctures in hose-pipe tires, the plug should not be simply pushed in and allowed to remain unprotected, but a piece of tire tape should be wrapped about the plug and left for a day for the cement to become firmly set. If it is a double puncture—e. g., through both tubes—a washer of thin rubber, about double the size of the plug head, should be placed around the plug.

LAW FOR CYCLISTS.

Judge Gunster Declares That the Wheel Is Equal to the Wagon.

It may interest Plainfield byclists to know what is the legal status of the bicycle upon the road. The Philadelphia Press publishes the following:

Judge Gunster has defined in an elaborate opinion on the legal status of the bicycle in Pennsylvania. This opinion establishes the fact that the bicycle is a vehicle and has the same right on the highway as other vehicles. Its proper place is upon the street or driveway, and not on the sidewalk. If a bicycle rider has occasion to stop on his way he may leave his vehicle for a reasonable length of time on the side of the highway or street, placed in a proper manner so as not unduly to interfere with the rights of others while he is calling at the residence or place of business of an abutting owner or occupant, and the person who negligently injures a vehicle so left is liable for the full amount of the damages caused by negligence. This is national law, and when understood by the drivers of horses will relieve bicycle riders of much annoyance. The average driver considers the bicyclist as an intruder and a nuisance, having no rights to the road and no title to consideration. Many of them, so far from trying to avoid collision with a bicycle resting by the curb, will go out of their way to smash it. When they understand that fun of this character means the price of a new bicycle out of their own pockets, they will take a little pains to drive around and not over a resting bicycle. The bicyclemen and the horsemen have exactly the same rights on the street, and each must exercise these rights so as not to interfere with the others.

A BIG BUILDING FOR WESTFELD.

The Young Men's Christian Association to Occupy It.

Plans are being submitted to Dr. William G. Gale, of Westfield, for the erection of a three-story brick and stone building on Elm street, Westfield, to be occupied by the Young Men's Christian Association. The new structure will be erected on the site of the present home of the association, and will cost $15,000 or more. The building will have a commodious basement, be heated by steam, and lighted by gas and electricity. A large gymnasium and hall, with a seating capacity of 400 will be one the features of the building, with pool and smoking rooms. The entire house will be modern and up to date in all its appointments. W. E. Clum, of this city, is the architect.

At Keith's This Week.

Manager Keith offers a very strong vaudeville bill at his Union Square theatre in New York this week. Mabel Stillman, the "Whistling Patti," will make her first appearance on the variety stage, as will Walter Gale, the Happy Jack of "The Old Homestead." Others in the continuous show will be Clifford and Heath, in a new budget of negro melodies; O'Brien and Havel, in an acrobatic sketch; the Macons, in "A Touch of Nature;" Hughey Dougherty, on the burning question of "Reform;" the Burt sisters, Evans and Vidocq, Nellie Seymour, Fish and Quigg, and Charles A. Allen, parody singer. The Roscow midgets will appear here next week.

To Exterminate Carp in Jersey.

The New Jersey Fish Commission has discovered that carp live entirely on fish spawn and multiply rapidly. Since their introduction in local waters other food fish have gradually diminished. Fish Commissioner William G. Wise, of Burlington, has granted permission to a number of fishermen to seine for carp, other fish taken to be turned over to him for stocking purposes.

He Tore Down the Flag.

There was a picnic of the Summit Silk Mills on Saturday, which ended in one of the employes tearing down an American flag. It was early yesterday morning when the offense was committed. Several of the employes attacked the man, but he drew a revolver, and the men ran away. His name, or the reason for tearing down the flag could not be ascertained.

—Justice Newcorn has issued summons in the case of John H. Potter vs. William A. Clum, returnable on August 5th. Potter is the proprietor and publisher of the Cranford Chronicle.

The chain adjustment in wheels allows of play for the length of just one link, so that if a chain is worn or stretched, or a link broken, and the adjustment is well back, all that is necessary is to loosen the adjustment, pull the broken ends of the chain together, and lash them with wire.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness, caused by catarrh, that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

DIVORCES IN OKLAHOMA.

One Law Firm Who Expect to Collect $25,000 in Fees.

A man with a ticket to Atlantic City and a cosmopolitan air alighted from the train from the East, and after breakfast sauntered to the office of the ticket seller and asked for a ticket to Oklahoma. In reply to the question what particular part of the land of bandits and sand storms he desired to visit, he replied that it made no particular difference to him, and he then remarked to the ticket seller:

"I am from New York, seeking a divorce; one of the while-you-wait-and without-pain kind, so you will please ticket me to some quiet point where the divorce mill always grinds and never tires, and I will try and do the rest."

He was billed through to Oklahoma city, because that point would give the railroad the longest haul and the most money.

The journeyings of divorce seekers to Oklahoma is simply astonishing. On the through trains are to be found numerous passengers who are silent and indifferent to all local surroundings.

No valley with its beautiful landscape, no vast area of fine crops, no dreary stretch of parched prairie, not even the creeping caravan of Pottawatomies journeying from Topeka to their Territory reservation, or even the usually attractive prairie dog towns can interest them. Few of them are found in the condition of the one described above, as most of them take their bearings before they leave the East.

A member of a legal firm, having one member in each of the three largest towns in the territory, says that his firm would at the present rate collect $25,000 this year from divorce clients alone. In Guthrie there is a large hotel which makes a specialty of this class of patrons, and its guests are designated as the divorce colony.

Special hotel rates are secured by the lawyers for their clients for the four weeks necessary to the quick and painless operation of divorce. Many of these visitors are registered under assumed names, and are credited to almost any other city than the one in which they reside.

CYCLING COMMENT.

H. C. Runyon took a cycling trip to Readington Sunday.

A. H. Barnett is home from his western trip and training at the Crescent Oval again.

Miss Olive Newell, of East Fifth street, rode her wheel to Morristown and back on Saturday.

Burt Honeyman, of Duer street, and Harry Carey, of Prospect place, are planning a week's wheeling trip for the middle of August.

Mrs. George Lewis, of Mountain avenue, has purchased an improved Spalding lady's wheel. It only weighs twenty-two pound and it's a beauty.

Joseph Titsworth and family, with a party of friends, rode their wheels to Washington Rock Sunday and spent the day with Dr. Lewis and family.

Walter Martin and William Townley went on their wheels to New Brunswick Sunday and called there to see the new wagon of the Liberty Hose Company. They pronounce it a beauty.

H. H. Morrell, of the law firm of Green, Codding & Morrell, of Westfield, is confined to his home in this city from injuries he received by a fall from his wheel near Hamilton Station on his way to Trenton last week.

Omaha is a long distance, but two cyclists passed through Plainfield yesterday, bound from Connecticut to that city. They carried all their baggage on their wheels which were rather heavily loaded.

Ray Dunn, of Philadelphia, and George C. Miller, second lieutenant of the Penn Wheelmen of the same city, arrived here yesterday on their wheels, having ridden here from Philadelphia. They came to visit Mrs. Phillips, of Park avenue, who is an aunt of Mr. Dunn.

The Y. M. C. A. of Long Branch held their lantern parade last evening. Among the clubs which participated were: The Red Bank Wheelmen, Long Branch Wheelmen, Union County Roadsters, Atlanta Wheelmen, Hudson County Wheelmen, Plainfield Bicycle Club.

The Century Cycle Club is arranging for a 100-mile road race on September 21. A course has been selected through Elizabeth, Plainfield and Rahway, twenty-five miles, which the contestants will have to cover four times. Entries close on September 7, with J. S. Voegler, No. 48 Somerset street, Newark. This race takes the place of the annual 100-mile race of the Atlanta Wheelmen.

A rider named Libbey from Washington, D. C., rode through Plainfield yesterday afternoon on his return to Washington. He had wagered that he could ride from Washington to Boston and return in ten days. He had reached Boston and was due in Washington tonight. According to the way he had been riding he will reach his destination on time, unless some accident prevents.

EXPLAINED.

Confidence in Their Product Led the Shakers to Make an Unusual Offer.

People of this day and generation are not disposed to give things away. When therefore the Mount Lebanon Shakers recently stated that any one could get a bottle of Digestive Cordial by calling in person at their New York office, it excited a great deal of talk.

One of the leading dailies of the metropolis sent a reporter to find out what was meant. It developed that the preparation in question has proven beneficial in so large a majority of cases that nine-tenths of the people who are sufficiently anxious to call for a sample, find so much relief that they continue the product's use and tell their friends about it. As a result a very large demand has been created.

The Shakers have a long record of success at inventors and their various medicinal products have always enjoyed a high reputation. The Digestive Cordial is not only nourishing in itself but it digests other foods when taken as directed.

Sleepless nights, spots before the eyes and a sense of heaviness after eating, loss of weight and general weakness are among the common symptoms of indigestion which it promptly relieves, and it is gratifying to know that such a positive and harmless remedy as the Digestive Cordial should have at last been devised.

The common idea about consumption is that it is a lung trouble, but this is not all. Why is it the consumptive gets thinner and thinner until he has wasted to a skeleton? Because the food he eats does not nourish him. It is not digested.

The first sign of the appearance of consumption is growing thin, wasting. This is before the cough; before the expectoration. Stop the wasting and recovery will follow in the incipient stages, and the disease will be retarded in advanced cases.

"ONLY SKIN DEEP", yet freckles, sunburn and tan don't add to one's beauty! What then, aside from the dangerous and poisonous "skin cures" so freely advertised, can we use to clear and bleach a bad complexion? Well, why not try your grandmother's cure—lemon juice? It will surely do all that can be safely done to clear the skin. And try it in the pleasant form of REYNOLD'S LEMON JUICE AND GLYCERINE. The results will please you. Sprinkler bottles 25 cents at

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with pneumonia succeeding la grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed in the spring, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. Only 50c per bottle at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freemyer House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for any kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the diseases for which it is intended and he knows it. It is for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

Karl's Clover Root, the great blood purifier, gives freshness and clearness to the complexion and cures constipation: 25c, 50c, $1. Sold by all druggists.

Mrs. T. S. Hawkins, Chattanooga, Tenn., says: "Shiloh's Vitalizer saved my life; I consider it the best remedy for a debilitated system I ever used." For dyspepsia, liver or kidney trouble it excels; 75c. Sold by all druggists

Shiloh's cure is sold on a guarantee. It cures incipient consumption; it is the best cough cure, only 1c a dose; 25c, 50c, $1. Sold by all druggists.

"Yield Not to Misfortune."

I was afflicted with catarrh last autumn. During the month of October I could neither taste or smell and could hear but little. Ely's Cream Balm cured it. Marcus Geo. Shautz, Rahway, N. J.

I suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since a boy, and I never hoped for cure, but Ely's Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many acquaintances have used it with excellent results. Oscar Ostrum, 45 Warren ave., Chicago, Ill. Cream Balm is agreeable.

CHARMING FRIENDS.

Out of a confused medley of voices I heard in a half stifled whisper:

"Mother, look who is sitting behind you; it's Reggie Clive, I'm positive."

My curiosity outran my manners. I turned.

"Miss Endcot!" I exclaimed. "It's not three hours since I arrived in Nice, and my circle of acquaintance being very small, to meet a friend is a pleasant surprise."

Miss Endcot blushed, prettily, if forcedly.

"Now, Mr. Clive, you're chaffing me. Why, mother and I have not been here a week, yet we have made most charming friends upon the strength of your mutual acquaintance."

"Indeed!" I replied. "Are they still at Nice?"

"Oh, yes, but not at this hotel."

"Their names?"

"The Comtesse d'Angiere and her friend—Madame Fleuvre."

"The Comtesse d'Angiere!" I repeated. "Of course, I met her once or twice in London soon after her marriage to the Comte. A slim woman, with fair hair, acquiline nose and laughing blue eyes. Oh, yes, I remember her well."

Miss Endcot laughed merrily.

"Fashions change, Mr. Clive," she said, holding up one finger playfully, "and the color of women's hair and even the shape of women's noses are apt to change with them, aren't they, mother? But let me warn you, Mr. Clive, not to inquire after the Comte d'Angiere. He is dead. The Comtesse makes a most charming widow, don't she mother?"

As we left the hotel a telegram was put into my hand.

Bertha saw my surprise and began to chaff me. I opened the telegram and read:

"I. and A. are at Nice. Beware?"

I handed her the telegram.

"You're as puzzled as I was at first," I added, noting the contraction of her jebrows. "And as it is no secret, but only a story against myself, I will explain it.

I thought I heard a sigh of relief as she returned the telegram.

"This must come from my old friend Bob Pallant," I contiued, "since nobody but he—at least, nobody in London—knows my probable whereabouts. I have been wandering now for six months and all on account of the I. and A. he mentioned.

Bertha nodded, but did not interrupt.

"The I. stands for Iris—Miss Iris Maypel—and A. for Auntie. It happened a year ago. Bob Pallant and I were both in love with Iris, who was in London ostensibly for the benefit of the season and in charge of her aunt. Well, she gave the preference to Bob, who, after actually proposing to her, applied to a private detective agency, asking as to her character and the social position of her people.

"He got the character as rosy as one could be painted, and it was settled that he should ask her to marry him. It happened that I called—by invitation—at the flat occupied by Iris and her chaperone, and was shown into the conservatory by the servant.

"Then came the denouement. Iris in ignorance of my presence came into the conservatory with her chaperone and in a loud voice let me into their secrets, which may be summed up in a few words.

"Iris was an adventuress in search of a husband. The chaperone was no relation, but employed—paid—by Iris to introduce her to society and a likely husband. The detective to whom Bob had applied for the character was Iris's cousin, Norton Scrubbs; hence the rosiness of the character."

"And these two women are in this town!" exclaimed Bertha.

"Bob Pallant's information is usually correct, and I'm not disposed to doubt it. You see, he was so savage at having been done by those people that he vowed vengeance, and as he couldn't attack the women he swore he would be the undoing of that detective agent—Norton Scrubbs. And Bob Pallant is usually equal to his word.

"Suppose you meet those people here?"

"I shall cut them, of course."

"But, but you admitted that—that you loved—Iris—once?"

My heart gave a great leap of delight. Bertha's words, the suppresssd eagerness of her tone, the faltering in her sentence, all pointed to one end. Our long tete-a-tete of the previous evening, though it had chiefly been concerned about bygone incidents—the sort that grow dearer as they grow older—had left its mark. I glanced quickly in her direction, but her face was averted, and only a very flushed neck and a very red little ear was visible. They were enough.

"Look!" she said. "Here comes the Comtesse and Madam Fleuvre. How jolly! won't they be surprised to see you! oh, it is fun. I am so glad we came this way."

I looked in the direction indicated and saw——

I could scarcely believe I saw aright then, but now, when I recall the scene—the long, wooded avenue with its pinky-blossomed rose hedges, the waving palms, the bushy eucalyptus, the clumps of odorous orange trees with their pretty white blossoms intersprinkled with golden fruit—it is difficult to realize now that the prim little figure in widowed garb of Parisian daintiness quickly approaching us was Iris Maypel, and the elderly companion "Auntie" of London fame. But they were.

I had no time to plan an action. No sooner was I assured that my eyes were still in normal condition than we met and Bertha was saying in an ecstatic tone——

"My dear Comtesse, see who I have brought you!"

The Comtesse extended her hand, while the most dubious smile I ever beheld grew on her face. I obeyed my impulse.

"This is not an unexpected pleasure," I said politely, "since Miss Bertha has intimated your presence in Nice, Madame la Comtesse." I purposely emphasized the title. "Nevertheless, it is a pleasure to renew an acquaintance here so pleasantly matured in London. M. le Comte, I trust is well and ——"

It was said with intent. Having started with a lie I meant to act it out. I broke off suddenly, for two reasons. Bertha tugged vigorously at my coat-sleeve, and Iris, alias the Comtesse, burst into a most realistic fit of weeping. I expect the excitement of the moment aided her.

I apologized in tones so contrite that I startled myself with apparent sincerity, and Iris and her chaperone bade us adieu.

As we returned I listened for Bertha's merited rebuke for having forgotten her warning anent the Comte's death, but I listened in vain. In fact, so engrossed was she in thought that it was only when I had thrice asked a question that she replied.

"To what stage of intimacy have you and the Comtesse reached?" I asked for the third time.

"Why do you ask?" Bertha replied, evasively.

"Because I am more than anxious to know."

"Mother and I met her at Monaco."

"Yes?" I replied, encouragingly.

"I ought not to tell you anything more."

"Oh, then there is something more to tell? Did you visit the Casino at Monte Carlo?"

"Once."

"You resisted the temptation of a second visit?"

"Yes."

"The Comtesse gambles?"

"With the most consistent good luck. She takes mother's money and plays with it. There, I oughtn't to have let on about that, but I know you'll not give me away, Mr. Clive. You see, the Comtesse begged mother to trust her with a pound just to try her luck—for the Comtesse goes to the tables every day—and she won. Then mother trusted her with two pounds, then five, ten and twenty, always winning. Now——"

"Please go on," I said, as Bertha paused.

"There can be no harm in telling you the rest, Mr. Clive. Mother has raised every possible penny—pawned her jewels even—and to-morrow the Comtesse is going to play with the lot. There, don't look as if I were to blame. I've argued and protested, but where's the use? The Comtesse wins every time."

She had; but would she win this time? The stake was high. Would she play with it? That was the question. Was the whole thing a scheme—a common confidence trick—to get hold of the American dollars and bolt with them?

It goes against the grain to expose a woman, however deserving she may be. I concluded to give Iris a chance, and wrote a short letter stating that I would keep her identity a secret if she would return Mrs. Endcot her money and leave Nice early the next morning. Omitting either condition, I declared I would hold her up to ridicule and scorn.

I left the note with the porter at the hotel where Iris was staying, and then walked away to ponder alone upon fate, coincidences and the like. I found a solitary seat upon a stone boulder, with only the dreariness of some attempted excavations, which had ended in failure, to greet my eyes or impinge upon my thoughts.

I sat there and smoked, and mentally surveyed my entire world, from London to Nice, from Bob Pallant to Norton Scrubbs, from Iris to Bertha.

Suddenly, without warning, a figure stood beside me, and said, inquiringly:

"Reggie Clive?"

The silence of his approach and the aggressiveness of his bearing startled me. However, I admitted my name.

"You wrote a letter to-day to a friend of mine, the Comtesse d'Angiere," continued the man.

"You are mistaken," I replied.

"Mere cavilling!" he said, with a sneer. "You wrote, then, to Miss Iris Maypel."

"If that is more truly her name, yes."

"You threatened her."

I stood up. The man's bluntness of speech and scowling brow looked cominous.

"Call it that if you will," I replied. "I tried to do her a good turn and to save her from herself."

"Bah! Mere quibbling! You threatened to expose her if she failed to return certain money to that bumptious old American woman or to leave Nice in the morning. Isn't that a threat?"

"Call it so if you like," I returned.

"Coward!" he yelled.

"Thank you," I said. "If you will give me your card I shall know better to whom I am indebted for that pseudonym."

"Hound!" he said, "if you want to know, my name's Norton Scrubbs, which, until your villainous friend, Pallant—whom I'll be on level terms with yet—ruined it, was a flourishing name in London. Ah! you shrink, do you. Here's something that will make you shrink into a still narrower compass."

He pulled a revolver from his pocket, and cocked it. I showed as bold a face as I could muster.

"Don't forget that you'll have to answer for this," I said.

His hoarse laugh echoed all around, and intensified the utter desolation of the place.

"Answer!" he said. "To whom shall I answer? To these stones? To the night? To whom, I repeat? There's not a soul within ear shot, and not likely to be this side of morning."

I realized the truth of his bluster. The day had died suddenly, and the mists were growing uncomfortably dense.

"Come, continued Scrubbs, "we'll strike a bargain, you and I. Swear—and mind you stick to it—that you will leave Nice to-night and not return or communicate with any one in this town for three months from this moment! The alternative is——"

He explained the unfinished sentence with an emphasized movement of the pistol.

I am not a brave man, yet I am not an abject coward. I had a decided objection at that moment to be hurled into eternity and leave Bertha behind. In the few available seconds allowed me for consideration twenty methods of attack and defense presented themselves and were rejected. Then, all at once, my muscles acted involuntarily. I sprang at my opponent and gripped him somewhere in the region of the throat. The attack was sheer folly. He was twice my weight, possessed twice my strength, and learned in every art and trick connected with the free-fight and the knock-down blow.

I thought on my foolishness as I lay prone upon the dirt and blinked up timorously at Scrubb's revolver, which looked right down my throat as I gasped for breath.

"Now, you hound!" he said, "will you come to terms now or will you take a dose of lead?"

The reply startled me quite as much as did Scrubbs.

It was the pop of a pistol, the whirr of a shot and the cry of a wounded man as Scrubbs fell forward right across my legs.

I disengaged myself and sprang to my feet just as Bertha Endcot sprang from behind a pile of loose stones and stood before me.

"I winged him, didn't I?" she asked breathlessly. "The coward! Perhaps the next time he dubs my mother a bumptious old woman he'll remember that an American girl can shoot."

Bertha had put a bullet into his thigh, and the shot cost her mother a few thousand pounds, for Iris and her chaperone had left Nice—with Mrs. Endcot's money—before we managed to get the wounded man back to his hotel.—Illustrated Bits.

Interrupted the Witness.

Some time since, in southwest Georgia, a murder case was being tried before a certain judge. The State's attorneys had seen the shooting, and they had an old negro on the witness stand. The negro became intensely interested in the story he was telling. His big eyes were fixed upon the lawyer who was questioning him, and he seemed to think there was no other person in the room. He was trembling with excitement, so much so that he stammered, and he told his story as if he was having a strictly private and confidential conversation with the State's attorney.

"An' den, boss," he said in solemn and awe-struck tones, "j—j—jest ez I were comin' roun' de cornah, sah, I see him 'long o' de lampost. I——"

"What time was this?" asked the judge.

The witness paused just for a second, as if some thing had disturbed him; then without turning his head he went on:

"J—j—jest as I were comin' roun' de cornah, boss, I see him 'long o' de lampost. I——"

The judge rapped the desk before him smartly with his gavel.

"Stop!" he said. "The court is asking you a question. At what time did you come around the corner?"

Again the witness stopped and made a motion with his hands as if he was brushing away a fly from his ear, but he never turned around, and again started to tell his story:

"Ez I wuz a-sayin', boss, I rounded dat dah cornah, an' I see him 'long of de——"

The judge brought his mallet down with a noise which almost caused the witness to leap off the stand and roared out:

"What do you mean, sir? If you do not answer my question instantly I shall commit you?"

"L—l—look er yere, boss, doan't you see I'm talkin' to this gen'lman?"

The lawyers were almost convulsed with laughter, the judge bent his head and shook with merriment, and the witness was allowed to finish his story undisturbed.—Atlanta Constitution.

Newspaper Making of the Future.

Within a year or two there will be important changes in the mode and means of newspaper making. The reporter will send both description and picture by telautograph; and the reporter of the future is going to draw as well as to write.

The editor, whether in his office or temporarily residing at a distant point, will telautograph his orders and ideas, and, by an improvement now being perfected, he will receive telautographic proofs in return.

Writers on newspapers will become users of a machine in process of construction by which the present typewriter keyboard will not only set their ideas into print, but will also instantaneously put them into type, eliminating the machine typesetter as the machine itself has eliminated the hand compositor, and as the steam press eliminated the hand press.

These are only a few of the changes in the near future of journalism. These and others bound to come will not injure any one, but will divert to other profitable fields labor now occupied intermediately between the writer and the press. By cheapening the cost of producing a newspaper, these changes will improve the business and make it more beneficial to mankind.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Allentown, Pa., has been greatly pestered by tramps lately, and all the usual methods of dealing with them under the law have failed to abate the nuisance. The Warden of the prison thinks now, however, that he has hit on a scheme that will frighten every tramp from coming within sight of the town. He has bought two tons of pig iron, and any tramp brought to the jail—and the police have orders to bring them all in—will be set to work carrying the big billets from one end of the jail yard to the other for five hours a day. A strict and stern guard will be put over them, and there will be no let up in their hard and useless task.

SHE IS A POLITICIAN.

MISS BOSWELL WAS A DELEGATE TO THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION.

She Was the Only Woman From the East and Helped to Represent New York. Her Opinions About Woman's Proper Influence in Politics and Other Affairs.

Of the 149 delegates who represented New York State in the Convention of the National League of Republican clubs at Cleveland, 148 were men. The other one was a woman, a little woman, slight and fair, who wears a 1 1-2 slipper and a No. 2 shoe. There were other women among the 3,000 delegates, but Miss Helen Varick Boswell was the only woman to represent the East, and this is the first time that any political body in this section has chosen a woman as a delegate.

"I did not seek this office," said Miss Boswell. "It was a surprise to me that I was chosen; but I regard it rather as a recognition of the work done by the New York women last fall than as a compliment to myself. They call me the Tom Platt of the women, but I am not naturally arbitrary and not inclined to boss. Of course, if a woman is in earnest about anything she has to be aggressive sometimes."

Miss Boswell is of delicate physique, has the warm colored hair that artists love and the transparent complexion that accompanies it. Her eyes are brown and expressive and there is strength of character in her face. Although small and slight she gives the impression of being in perfect health.

"Why am I a Republican?" she repeated on being asked for her political views. "Perhaps this is the most eloquent answer I can make," and she placed in the questioner's hand a little, old-fashioned daguerreotype, showing a tiny baby girl in her black mammy's arms. The dark-browned old nurse holding the child's fair little head against her broad breast made a pleasing picture.

"I believe that every human being is born with equal rights," said the original of the baby girl, "and that when the law has conferred equal pr.vileges every one should have the right to exercise them. I am a Virginian by birth, but when very small my parents removed to Baltimore. Though Unionists during the war all my people are Democrats. I am a Republican entirely through conviction. I thought things out for mysef. When I travelled through the South I noticed that equal rights existed only in name and that knowledge jarred on me. I attributed that condition of things to Democratic influence. Another reason why I am a Republican is because the Republican party fosters progress and Democracy retards educational advancement."

"What do I think of the new woman? I don't think there is such a thing as a new woman. She is only the old woman with a better chance. A better chance for educating herself, for broadening her mind, and becoming familiar with things and topics that will tend to take her out of the myriad little pettinesses that hedge a woman's normal existence at present. In thus elevating herself she will be better prepared to teach her son what is right and to inspire him to noble purpose."

"You are an advocate of matrimony, then?" inquired the reporter.

"Yes, indeed. I think it is God's law and the highest sphere to which a woman may aspire. I don't believe in women going out to rule the world. Knowledge begins in the home. Women are always doing the little things forgotten by other people and they will do them in politics. True patriotism can best be taught at the fireside, and when the mothers are keenly alive to the most important issues of their day and generation, how can they fail to impress their sons with their enthusiasm! I should not desire to coerce men into voting the way I wanted them to, but I should want to influence them through my knowledge, if not my personality. I think a woman should master the political points of a situation so thoroughly and so logically that her arguments would convince, even where she failed to please.

"I don't want women to wear trousers. I myself would not even wear bloomers for anything. I recognize no necessity for any such radical change in women's attire."

"Your skirts have not inconvenienced you then in your work?" said her questioner.

"No, they have not, and I never expect to relinquish them. I think that in woman's femininity lies the germ of her political strength. The new woman, according to my conception of her, not only thinks and acts well, but looks well also, and I see no reason why she should neglect her personal appearance because of her advanced thought. I have worked hard and studied hard to accomplish what I have done, but I have never for a moment thought of relinquishing any of the little niceties and vanities peculiar to my sex. I like to dress as much as the prevailing fashion as is convenient, and I would frizz my hair all over if nature had not been accommodating enough to do it for me. As it is now, since it has become the style to brush back the smooth waves I spend much time in trying to get mine

Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared, and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. Marlow, M. D., Tamaroa, Ill. FAREWELL ONLY IN WORD.

For This Salvationists Keeps Right on With His Good Work.

There was not a large attendance at the farewell meeting held in honor of Adjutant Wood at the Salvation Army hall last night, but the right spirit and enthusiasm was there and a good time was the result.

Adjutant Wood for sometime has been the district secretary in this section and he now leaves to take the same position in the Atlantic coast division in the southern part of the State. He has been a faithful worker and will be greatly missed in Plainfield, where he often stopped. Major Evans was in charge of the service and he, together with the members of the local corps, made short addresses, which were interspersed with earnest prayers and excellent singing. After the service ice cream and cake was served to all present and a genuine social time was enjoyed.

TROLLEY COMPETITION FELT.

Central Reported to Cut Fares Between Newark and Elizabeth.

It is reported in Elizabeth that tomorrow the Central railroad will reduce its fare between Newark and Elizabeth to 15 cents for an excursion ticket, instead of 25 cents as at present. The cause of this cut is said to be the competition of the trolley line, which is carrying people between the two cities for 20 cents a round trip.

Women who go from Elizabeth to Newark for shopping purposes or pleasure are taking the trolley. The steam railroad takes them only to its station in Newark or Elizabeth, and then they often have to pay extra fare on a trolley car to reach their destination.

It is said the Central railroad will reduce the rate of excursion tickets between Elizabeth and New York to 25 cents.

New Market Man Hurt.

Abram Dunham, of New Market, had a serious mishap a few days ago. He lives about two blocks from the Seventh-Day Baptist church, and being anxious to see the church which is being renovated and repaired, thought he would attempt the walk, which was a long one for him as he is very feeble. He reached the church steps, when he felt ill and before he realized the trouble he fainted away, falling a considerable distance. Friends present picked him up and took him home. He was not seriously injured, though he is in a critical condition.

Kicked by a Horse.

The delivery wagon of Edsall's Commercial Palace is minus its driver for a short time. Andy Vanderbeek, the regular driver was kicked by a horse at his home on Duer street yesterday afternoon and severly injured.

Last evening he was unable to walk as a result of his injuries. A substitute was put in his place on the wagon.

A Little Fellow Sick.

The bright little son of C. T. Nightingale, of Sandford avenue, is very ill at Mrs. Nightingale's summer home in the Delaware Water Gap, Pa., where Dr. Davis has been summoned to prescribe for him. Mrs. Charles K. Moore, of New York, a warm friend of Mr. and Mrs. Nightingale, is also present at the little fellow's bedside.

Plainfield French Kindergarten.

Miss Scribner and Miss Newton announce that in order to introduce French into their Kindergarten, they have formed a partnership in that department with Miss Clara S. Hellwig. Miss Hellwig will spend an hour each day in the Kindergarten, conducting games and occupations in the French language.

To Storm the Convention.

The Union County Endeavorers are preparing for the Atlantic City convention in October. They will go with a cry "Plainfield in '96." From this city there will be nearly 200 delegates, and large delegations are expected from other sections of the county. Morristown will also make an effort to get the '96 convention.

A Neighborly Affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Peterson, of New York, who have been visiting their son, Rev. Mr. Peterson and wife at New Market will return home this week. Yesterday afternoon a few neighbors were invited to Mr. Peterson's home where a good social time was enjoyed.

Picnic at Washington Rock.

The annual picnic of the Sunday schools from Liberty Corner, Black River, Millington, Warrenville, Martinsville and Mt. Horeb will be held next Wednesday at Washington Rock. There will be a brass band present to discourse lively music.

TO SELL THE SECURITIES.

SOMERSET BANK DIRECTORS MAY HAVE TO PAY STOCKHOLDERS.

Securities of J. N. Pidcock to be Disposed of for the Benefit of Creditors—Affairs Getting Tangled Up.

Chancellor McGill at Jersey City yesterday morning signed an order in the case of William T. Johnson, receiver of the Somerset County Bank, and ex-Congressman James Nelson Pidcock, instructing United States Commissioner Linsley Rowe, of Jersey City, to sell $500,000 worth of securities belonging to Mr. Pidcock and to turn the money over to the First National Bank of Jersey City for advances made by the bank to Mr. Pidcock. Mr. Rowe will fix a day next week for the sale of the securities held by the bank and the proceeds of the sale will go toward satisfying judgments against the insolvent Somerset County Bank.

Another application to the Chancellor is to be made for the sale of other property belonging to Mr. Pidcock, and it is said that Receiver Johnson, who will prosecute J. N. Pidcock and other directors of the bank for mismanagement of the bank's affairs, promises to proceed against them in a civil manner and, if possible, make them disgorge for the benefit of the stockholders and creditors.

So far as Mr. Pidcock is concerned, the securities now to be sold will, it is said, cover all his indebtedness. They consist of railroad and corporation stock. Much of the railroad stock belonging to Mr. Pidcock was that of the Rockaway Valley Railroad Company. Mr. Rowe sold one section of that road, from White House to Peapack, a few days ago for $30,000. It was bought in by Messrs. J. N. and J. F. Pidcock, sons of the ex-Congressman. The remaining sections, from Peapack to Mendham and from Mendham to Morristown, will be sold in a few days.

Chancellor McGill's order relative to the bank stock and securities was handed to Colonel J. D. Bedle, counsel for the First National Bank, and a copy was sent to Linsley Rowe, who will proceed to advertise the sale at once.

VERDICT AFTER THREE TRIALS.

The Case of a Perth Amboy Saloon-Keeper Who Sold Liquor to a Child.

The case of the city of Perth Amboy against Geprge Kozusko, a saloon keeper, for alleged violation of the excise law in selling beer to a minor, came up yesterday in Perth Amboy for a third trial, the previous trials having resulted in disagreement of the jury. The jury, after having been out about fifteen minutes, returned a verdict of guilty. The fine is $100 and costs.

This decision gives general satisfaction in Perth Amboy, and will undoubtedly produce a wholesome effect upon law-breaking liquor dealers.

Good Work Being Done.

Street Commissioner R. A. Meeker with his men are now engaged in doing work which will be greatly appreciated by those who use wagons and bicycles. The continuation of North avenue, which extends from the pumping station of the Water Supply Company to the county road at Fanwood, is being opened, graded and rolled. When completed it will be one of the best thoroughfares in this part of the county. Mr. Meeker deserves credit for his efforts in this direction.

Central Sued for $10,000.

A suit for $10,000 damage was begun yesterday in the Union County Court, at Elizabeth, against the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey by the widow of Hiram W. Mott, an employee of the company, who was fatally hurt at Carteret about eight months ago. He made a statement before his death that the accident was due to the carelessness of the crew of the engine.

Policemen Having a Rest.

Policemen Frederickson and Mattox are enjoying their annual vacation, and Policeman Thomas McCue has returned from a week's outing. Special Policeman J. Totten is now doing night duty while the others are off duty.

Club House Reopened.

The Fanwood Club house, known as Wheelmen's Rest, will be opened tomorrow by C. C. Irby, who will keep soft drinks, sandwiches and ice cream. A bowling alley, pool and billiard room will be attached.

Afraid of Hydrophobia.

A valuable foxterrier belonging to Oscar TenEyck, of West Front street, was bitten and severely injured by a strange dog, last evening. As Mr. TenEyck is afraid that the stranger was mad, his dog will be shot today.

PLAINFIELD'S SUMMER RESORT.

Camping Life at Washington Rock Is Again Brought Forward.

Washington Rock promises to be quite a summer resort for Plainfield people in another year. Taylor's boarding house, near the Rock, started the fashion, and Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis brought its delights before the public by camping out there and inviting his friends to come and see him. N. W. French was the next victim to the project, and his frame cottage is being erected as fast as possible, and he will be able to take possession in a few days.

Richard Stevens has decided to go, and there are several others who are considering the question. There has been some talk of a regular camping club, but nothing definite has been done in that direction.

September will be a fine month for camping, and the present colony will probably be enlarged by a number of arrivals.

THE GRIM REAPER.

Adam Dealaman Dies After a Month of Suffering.

After a month's illness of terrible suffering Adam Dealaman, of North avenue, passed away this morning at 4:30 o'clock. He was born at Warrenville twenty five years ago, and when a boy came to Plainfield and worked for Mrs. Walker in the bakery store. He remained with her for many years, and finally purchased the business two years ago.

His father is still living at Warrenville. He leaves a wife.

Mr. Dealaman was a member of Perseverance Lodge, No. 44, K. of P., and they have been very attentive to their fellow member during his illness.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at three o'clock from the German Lutheran church in North Plainfield.

TRACK FOOT DEEP WITH SAND.

Locomotive Bumps One Hundred Yards Along the Ties.

Passengers on the down train of the D. L. and W. Railroad due at Morristown at 1:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon had a lively experience. Just before one o'clock there was a terrific rain storm. Sand over a foot deep was washed over the tracks in the cut opposite the residence of Eugene Higgins, just beyond the city limits. The train, when it came around the adjacent curve, dashed into it. The locomotive left the rails and bumped along on the ties for nearly one hundred yards. None of the cars left the rails. The train was delayed forty-five minutes while waiting for a wrecking crew to clear the track and get the locomotive back. No one was hurt.

Tried to Run Away.

He hadn't been reading about Nick Carter or Jesse James, but for some reason the ten-year-old son of Hugh H. Boyd, of Richmond street, wanted to run away. He left home at about eleven o'clock yesterday morning and nothing was seen of him until four o'clock this morning, when his father and his brother William, found him in a field the other side of Netherwood, headed straight for Scotch Plains. The would-be run away was taken home.

An Article of Worth.

The beef malt which Edsall has placed on the market is a meritorious article in every particular for those who want an invigorating and strengthening tonic. It is prepared by scientific people who know the wants of the physical system.

Duck Pond on Seventh Street.

People passing along West Seventh street below Spooner avenue, are much amused to see a duck pond in the middle of the street. The heavy rain yesterday replenished the pond and the ducks had a glorious time swiming around.

To Have Class A Events.

Already preparations are being made for the great meet of the Crescent Wheelmen on Labor Day. There will be several races to attract the professional racers. It will be a Class A meet.

John S. Johnson will not go abroad this fall, contrary to all predictions to that effect. He is under contract with the Barnes Cycle Co., and the latter concern cannot see how they will be directly benefited if Johnson crosses the water. When he signed with them Johnson stated that he would abide by their wishes, and he will certainly keep his word. At least this is what Arthur R. Peck, the general manager, says.—American Wheelman.

—A blue-stone flag walk has been substituted for a board walk in front of the home of D. Snediker on Grove street.

EVERYTHING WAS DELIGHTFUL.

A Pleasant Social Gathering Held at Rockview Farm.

The beautiful weather made last evening a delightful one to all, but it was one of still greater enjoyment to those who attended the social gathering given by the Misses Mattie and Sadie Barrett, at their home at the Rockview Farm in Dunellen, in honor of their friends, the Misses Maude and Edith McArthur, of Passaic Bridge. The evening passed very pleasantly with dancing, games and singing, and all were sorry when the setting moon told that the time of departure had arrived. Those who were present were the Misses Grace Langdon, Nellie Langdon, Nettie Langdon, Maude McArthur, Edith McArthur, Jane Churchill, Sadie Barrett, Mattie Barrett, and Mrs. E. D. Barrett, and U. S. Thomas, of Asbury Park, Edward Hardingham, Ivan Hardingham, J. Hazelwood Craig, Duer Randolph, Daniel Richardson, Charles Langdon, Ernest Barrett, and Thomas Barrett.

GOT OUT AND PUSHED.

The Camping Party that Left Plainfield Monday Came to Grief.

The camping party which started for Hank's pond early Monday morning have been having an exciting trip. When they reached Milburn a gray horse that they had hired in Plainfield to pull one of their wagons commenced to give out. The boys got out and pushed but the poor animal was not able to stand the strain and at Fairfield the expedition came to a halt. Another horse was hired from a man named Zeck who kept a livery stable in that town. The party proceeded on their journey, leaving the other horse at Fairfield, and succeeded in reaching their camping grounds safely.

America's Greatest.

A New York paper speaks as follows of the Plainfield boy who is with Bentley's old-fashioned one ring circus at Ninety-ninth street and Third avenue in New York:

Thomas Schafer, America's greatest and youngest club juggler and lightning baton manipulator, has made a hit and become an attractive part of the show.

Hat Trade Revival in the Oranges.

The McGall Brothers Hat Company has filed articles of incorporation and will soon begin manufacturing hats in Orange, utilizing the large plant formerly owned by the late firm of McGall Brothers. The capital stock is fixed at $78,000. Several New York capitalists are interested in the new firm.

Who Will Be Champion?

The tennis championship in doubles of Plainfield, which was to have been played off yesterday afternoon, was postponed until this afternoon at 4:30 on the Hillside Tennis Club courts. The match will be between Thomas Smith and Henry V. Ryder against Carl Walz and Fred K. Fish, Jr., and a close fight is expected.

Protect the Game and Fish.

Shoot or fish only in the proper season and escape the game warden by observing the laws. Many States have new game and fish laws this year, and if you don't know them, send five 2c. stamps for a copy of the Game Law issue of The American Field, 245 State street, Chicago.

Suing to Recover a Claim.

A suit for $1,000 was commenced yesterday in the Union County Circuit Court against William Cranstown, of Summit, by Isaac W. King, of the late firm of William King's Company. The suit is to recover a claim of $139.50, which has been due since June, 1890.

One Recruit.

One recruit was given the third degree at the meeting of John Hand Camp, No. 28, S. of V., last night, and an invitation was received from Camp No. 8, of Paterson, to attend the annual field day exercises at that place Labor Day. It will probably be accepted.

Excellent Minstrels.

The guests at Hotel Netherwood were pleasantly entertained last evening by the colored waiters of that hotel who gave a minstrel show in the hotel parlors. A fine programme of dancing and singing was provided.

Athletic Colors.

The suits for the Monroe Avenue Athletic team for their field day events will be white, with a diamond of Amherst purple and tiger yellow on the shirt.

Almost One-Half Finished.

Honan & Sons have thus far laid eight miles of sewer pipe, which is about one-half of their contract.

THE COUNT IN MORE TROUBLE

VAN NESS SAID TO BE ALSO MIXED UP IN A WILL CASE.

Dyckman Waldron Seeking to Establish a Lost Will, Which is Alleged to Have Been Drawn Up By the Sick Lawyer.

Count John K. VanNess, who was forcibly taken to New York Monday night by a detective, is in more trouble. It seems that a suit has been brought in the Supreme Court of New York by Dyckman Waldron, a brother of the late Alexander Waldron, against his brother James Waldron and his sister Mary B. Waldron, to recover part of the Waldron estate. Alexander Waldron died on June 30th, 1890, leaving valuable real estate. He had been a member of the firm of Bartholomeu & Co., manufacturers of plumbers' supplies in Marion street.

Dyckman Waldron seeks to establish a lost will, which it is alleged was drawn by VanNess, the Plainfield lawyer, now a prisoner on a charge of forgery made by the executors of the estate. In this lost will, it is alleged, Alexander Waldron, after providing that the income of his estate be given to his mother and his wife for life, directed that on their death the residue be equally divided among his brothers and sisters.

What became of this will is not known to the plaintiff, but it is said to have been in VanNess' possession. Justice O'Brien has appointed Frederick S. Wait referee to take testimony in the case.

CROP CONDITIONS.

The Weather Has Been Favorable for the Farmers.

Director E. W. McGann, of the New Jersey Weather Service, has the following crop report this week:

In the central counties the weather conditions have been favorable for the housing of upland hay, wheat and rye, and also for the growth and advancement of all field and garden crops. Corn has made a rapid growth and is coming into tassel. Lima beans, tomatoes, cucurbs and all garden vegetables never looked more promising. The second crop of clover is very promising and pasture plentiful. In the western portion of Monmouth county an all-day rain is needed, as grass is suffering for the want of it and pasture is getting short.

In the southern portion the general condition of all crops is fair, but rain is needed as the weather has been warm and dry. Oat crop all cut and housed and some threshed; the yield is very heavy both in grain and straw. Lice have infested the melon and tomato fields and are doing serious damage. During the week corn has made a remarkable growth and is now in a promising condition.

SOLD FOR WASTE PAPER.

Part of the Hundred Tons of Jersey State Reports Cost $6 a Volume.

The State reports, aggregating a hundred tons of pamphlets, which have been accumulating in the State House cellars, were sold yesterday by State House Custodian Bonnell to Nicholas Gebney, of Phillipsburg, who bid 5½ cents per hundred pounds for the lot. The State will thus realize over $1,000 for the rubbish which played so conspicuous a part in the work of the Senate investigating committee.

The committee had the pamphlets measured and weighed, and the revelation of their existence—some of which had been paid for by the State of $5 and $7 per volume—led more than anything else to the recent reform in the State printing law. The pamphlets embraced reports in German and Italian, as well as English.

A Pitiful Sight.

Some poor gray and white feline with one hind leg completely smashed formed a pitiful sight on North avenue this morning until Sergeant Kiely humanely killed the poor brute with his club. It is supposed that some one ran over it and then threw it in the vacant lot by Roberts' stable where it was for part of the morning.

The Ball Stuck.

The large wooden ball which was used in testing the sewer pipe on East Front street yesterday afternoon got fast in the pipe and the string attached to it broke. It was found necessary to flush the pipe from the other end so as to send it back and clear the pipe.

Struck by Lightning.

Amos Randolph, colored, thirty-five years old, while fishing yesterday afternoon at Cranford during the thunderstorm was struck by lightning and rendered unconscious. A physician restored Randolph to his senses. He will probably recover.

Chancellor McGill Off for Europe.

Chancellor Alexander T. McGill and wife sailed from Hoboken on the steamship Havel, of the North German Lloyd, for Europe yesterday morning. He will remain away a month. On the dock Chancellor McGill said to friends: "I am going abroad in search of rest, and I intend to take it. I shall not allow politics or anything else to disturb me while abroad." He thought that he would be home before the Democratic State Convention was held. He refused to state whether he would accept the Democratic nomination for Governor if it was tendered to him. "I will say nothing more about it," he said.

Plain Talk Very Soon.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The attack on Mayor Gilbert in The Courier-News last night was most brutal. The time is soon coming when the inside history of the last campaign will see daylight. The plan then was to break up the Republican admisistration by a third ticket. It did not work as the Democratic party refused to make nominations. The plan this fall seems to be again working in that direction. Plain talk will soon be in order.

Behind the Scenes.

Recovering From the Spider Bite.

William Hayes, the Roselle hack-driver who was bitten, as alleged, by a spider, has almost recovered. He was driving his hack as usual yesterday. Hayes is not certain he was bitten by a spider or stung by a wasp. He was asleep in a barn and was awakened by something crawling over his face. He undertook to brush off the insect and then felt a stinging sensation. For several days he suffered intense pain.

Death of a New Market Lady.

The death of Mrs. Nelson Giles, of New Market, occurred Monday afternoon at one o'clock at her home. She had been ill for sometime past and death resulted from consumption. She was well-known in this vicinity. The funeral will be held from the house tomorrow afternoon.

Coming Nearer and Nearer.

The Consolidated Traction Company will present a petition to the Township Committee of Westfield for an ordinance granting permission to lay tracks through the township for a trolley line from Elizabeth to Plainfield. The company will not ask to run their line over the county road.

Fishermen's Luck.

Clarence Teel, Charles C. Lister and William Stevenson are at Lake Hopatcong, where they will spend several days and try their luck at fishing.

OF SEVEN MURDERS

Chicago Officers Sure They Can Convict Holmes.

A Man Who Can Tell of All of Holmes' Doings Located—He Is a Convict and Is Willing To Testify If Granted a Pardon—Growing Very Dark for Holmes.

Little Rock, Ark., July 31.—There is now little doubt that the Chicago police will convict H. H. Holmes, alias Mudgett, alias Pratt, alias Gordon, now in the Philadelphia jail, of the murder of at least seven persons. They know the name of the man who can hang Holmes by giving his testimony, and that man is in their power. His name is Hatch, alias Bond, alias Mascot, and he is now serving a sentence of ten years in the penitentiary here for horse stealing. He is as close to Holmes through all his murder plots as Janitor Quinlan and is ready to tell all he knows, providing he is granted a pardon.

Evidence Continues To Pile Up.

Chicago, July 31.—A great deal of importance is attached by the police to the finding of parts of human skulls in the basement of Holmes' Castle by the workmen digging them. Lawyer William Capps, the Fort Worth attorney, who is here at the instance of the heirs of Minnie Williams, said this morning that he is prepared to prove the murder of Minnie and Annie Williams. He insists that it was done by Holmes, Quinlan, Pietzel and another man whose name he is not yet prepared to give. This man has been found by a detective whom the heirs engaged to work on the case eight months ago. It is said he has made a partial confession, and will make it complete on condition he is granted immunity from punishment. Mr. Capps also says that this man knows exactly where the bodies of the Williams girls are buried. Mrs. Strowers, who washed for Holmes, says he asked her at one time to take out a policy for $10,000 on her life and promised to give her $6,000 for the policy at once. At the advice of her friends, she says, she declined.

His Career in Clinton County, N. Y.

Plattsburg, N. Y., July 31.—It transpires that H. H. Holmes, who is accused of numerous murders and other crimes, was once a resident of this (Clinton) county. In 1883 he appeared at Moores under the name of Herman W. Mudgett, an agent for nursery stock, and created such a good impression that he was engaged to teach the village school. This occupation he found uncongenial. He left Moores and went to Massachusetts, but returned in a short time accompanied by a small boy, who disappeared shortly after arrival, Holmes saying he had gone home, but it is now believed that the boy was the murderer's first victim. After the boy's disappearance Mudgett, or Holmes, went to Mooers Forks, a hamlet three miles away, and began practice as a physician, and remained there about a year, taking while there an active part in politics.

Supported Blaine in '84.

He was an enthusiastic supporter of Blaine in 1884 and wagered every dollar he had and all he could secure by borrowing or otherwise on Mr. Blaine's success. On losing his wagers he became penniless, and then his true nature began so show itself in many dishonest practices. His misconduct culminated in a hurried departure for Chicago, leaving behind many unpaid bills. He returned again to this county in 1885, when he told Munchausen-like stories of his success in Chicago, where, so he claimed, he owned several stores. His last stay was a brief one. In his certificate, filed in the Clinton county clerk's office on October 11, 1884, Mudgett (Holmes) swears that his name is Herman W. Mudgett, that his birthplace was Gilmanton, N. H., and that he graduated at the University of Michigan (Ann Arbor).

Now a Boston Girl.

Boston, July 31.—An evening paper says that in July 1893, Holmes, the insurance swindler, was in Boston and induced Mable Barrett, an orphan girl 18 years old, to go to New York ostensibly to open a manicuring establishment and that the Boston friends of the girl have not since heard from her.

ELECTRIC STORM AT DENVER.

Lightning Strikes Several Buildings and Plays Havoc in General.

Denver, July 31.—An electrical storm of unusual severity terrorized the residents yesterday, lightning striking almost simultaneously in four places. The residence of Wolfs Londoner on Capitol hill was damaged $15,000 and the city hall narrowly escaped demolition. The fluid burned out all the police circuits, four fire alarm circuits and the switch board in the city hall. The Boston and Symes blocks were also struck and slightly damaged. In twenty-five minutes nearly one inch of rain fell, making the storm one of the severest for years.

AUSTRIAN EMIGRATION.

An Effort May Be Made to Divert It to Canada.

Vienna, July 31.—Professor Oleskow, of Calicia, is about to start for Canada to study the agricultural resources of that country. He will be accompanied by a practical farmer. He leaves for England on August 1 and will proceed thence to Canada. He goes on his own mission in behalf of various farmers' societies, and hopes, if the visit proves satisfactory, to be able to make arrangements to divert to Canada some of the Austrian agricultural emigration that has hitherto gone to Brazil.

Prefers the Title of Lord James.

London, July 31.—The Daily News to-day will announce that Sir Henry James, who was recently raised to the peerage, will take the title of Lord James and not that of Baron Aylestor of Hereford, as previously stated.

Wages Boosted Ten Per Cent.

Norristown, Pa., July 31.—The employes of the woolen mills of J. and S. Lees and H. C. Jones & Co., numbering 300 hands, have been notified of a 10 per cent. advance in wages.

Sir John Tomes Dead.

London, July 31.—Sir John Tomes, the well known dental surgeon, is dead at Caterham.

FESTIVAL FOR THE BLIND.

A Fashionable Gathering at Which the Bayards Were Present.

London, July 31.—The annual prize festival of the Royal Normal College and Academy of Music for the Blind at Nyrwood was largely attended by fashionable people. Mr. Bayard, the United States ambassador, was present and took a prominent part in the exercises. He was accompanied by Mrs. Bayard. After inspecting the methods, educational appliances and work of the institution Mr. Bayard presided at the prize-giving and made a speech in which he expressed the pleasure and honor he felt as representative of the United States in joining the people of Great Britain in such a beneficent work. He said that there were similar institutions in the United States, but none was superior to the Royal Normal college. His countrymen would be gratified that he should be the medium for expressing their sympathy on such an occasion. At the conclusion of the ambassador's address Mrs. Bayard presented the prizes and diplomas.

ASSAULTED AND ROBBED.

Mrs. McKenzie's Terrible Experience with a Fiend.

Simpson Grove, Pa., July 31.—Mrs. McKenzie, wife of Dr. McKenzie of Somerton, was brutally assaulted by a tramp on a bridge crossing the Bound Brook railroad yesterday and robbed of a considerable sum of money. Mrs. McKenzie in company with her ten-year-old daughter started to walk to Simpson Grove camp meeting, and when she reached the bridge over the railroad near Trevose station she was accosted by the tramp, who knocked her down, robbed her, and threw her over the bridge to an embankment below. She sustained severe injuries but managed to walk back to Somerton, where she informed the station agent. A posse started in pursuit of the fiend, but he made good his escape.

STORM AT CONEY ISLAND.

Considerable Damage to Tents, Bathing Houses and Hotel Windows.

Coney Island, N. Y., July 31.—A furious rain storm swept over Coney Island yesterday afternoon and caused considerable damage. Bathing houses, photograph galleries, tents and sheds were blown down, and cane boards, lemonade and bootblack stands were sent flying down Surf avenue at a lively rate. Along the beach small pavillions, platforms and walks were torn away from their foundations and several clam and oyster boats were carried out to sea. Nearly all the windows of the ocean side of the Sea Beach Palace hotel were blown in and broken, and the once Horticultural hall from the Centennial shook like a fall leaf while the storm raged.

FUNERAL OF WILLIAM WILLIS.

President and Mrs. Cleveland Send a Large Floral Offering.

Washington, July 31.—The funeral of William Willis, President Cleveland's coachman, took place yesterday afternoon. The services were conducted by the Masons after the body left the church. There was a very large attendance, including many of the officials and employes of the white house. Mr. Sinclair, the white house steward, came here from Gray Gables to attend the funeral. President and Mrs. Cleveland sent a large wreath of flowers and asparagus fern. Col. J. M. Wilson, in charge of public buildings and grounds, also sent a handsome floral offering.

PRIESTS CHASED BY A MOB.

They Were Accused at Lisbon of Stealing Children.

Lisbon, July 31.—A serious riot occurred here yesterday as the result of the circulation of a report that priests were stealing children. Several priests who appeared on the streets were chased by a mob and roughly handled, some of them being seriously hurt. The police finally scattered the mob and arrested the ringleaders.

Bids for Government Work.

Washington, July 31.—Bids were opened at the navy department for constructing a key wall for Whitney basin, Brooklyn navy yard. The lowest bidders were Benner & Opdyke, Philadelphia, at $86.22 per lineal foot. Bids were also opened for the rebuilding of the construction and machine shop same place. Thomas Dwyer of New York city was the lowest bidder at $36,700.

Buffalo Wants the Convention.

New York, July 31.—Ex-lieutenant-governor William F. Sheehan has expressed himself as in favor of holding the next Democratic National convention in Buffalo. Mr. Sheehan said there was a strong local sentiment in favor of that city as the place for the convention.

Church Struck by Lightning.

New Haven, Conn., July 31.—A heavy storm, accompanied by thunder and lightning, passed over this vicinity yesterday afternoon. The Episcopal church at Centerville was struck and the belfry destroyed. A horse in a shed near by was killed.

No Money To Pay Soldiers.

Washington, July 31.—Some of the officers and enlisted men of the army have not received their salaries for the month of June, owing to a deficiency in the army appropriation bill for the fiscal year ending June 30 last.

A Religious Menagerie.

Asheville, N. C., July 31.—Rev. J. L. White of Macon, Ga., before the meeting of the Southern Biblical society, branded the parliament of religions held at Chicago during the world's fair as a "religious menagerie."

Twelve Persons Perished.

Queenstown, July 31.—It has been ascertained that twelve persons lost their lives by the destruction by fire of the Manx lugger Zenith which was lost Sunday night near Baltimore, on the Irish coast.

Wages Advanced.

Somersworth, N. H., July 31.—The Great Falls Manufacturing company have notified their help of an 8 per cent. increase in wages to take effect August 1. The company employs about 2,000 hands.

Reunion of Brigham Family.

Boston, July 31.—The third annual reunion of the Brigham family will be held in Odd Fellows' building, Boston, Wednesday, October 9, 1895.

DESTITUTE IN AFRICA

Awful Condition of Colonists from Arkansas.

Simply Dumped Ashore by the Immigration Society—Some Have Died of Starvation—Flesh of Dead Animals and Snakes Seized Upon for Food—Three Get Back.

Philadelphia, July 31.—At the Wayfarers' lodge, Lombard street, homesick and destitute, are three negroes of Arkansas, who have just returned from Liberia, whither they went as colonists some months ago. Of nearly a hundred companions in the expedition some of them are said to have died of starvation, and others are eking out a wretched existence in Africa. The three men are Jefferson county, Ark., farmers. Frank Shelton has a wife and four children there; J. Q. Tucker has a family and Ebenezer Russell is unmarried. They say the International Immigration society at Birmingham, Ala., offered twenty-five acres of land to every colonist, and used as endorsement the name of bishop H. M. Turner of Atlanta, Ga. The subscribers were required to pay $41 in advance installments and their passage to Savannah. In return they were to be given their passage, food, and the land on arrival.

Died of Starvation.

The ship sailed in March for Moravia with ninety-seven colonists, who were in the care of the society's secretary. The men declare they were simply dumped ashore and allowed to shift for themselves. A score of their comrades died of climate fever and some, it is reported, perished by starvation. Work could not be secured, and the flesh of dead animals and snakes were seized upon with avidity for food. Shelton and his two neighbors saw no hope for them in the colony and succeeded in obtaining passage to Liverpool and thence to Philadelphia. They expect help from Arkansas which will enable them to return to their homes.

LORD KIMBERLY'S SON FINED.

He Broke up a Meeting Held in the Interest of Rider Haggard.

London, July 31.—In a magistrate's court in East Norfolk yesterday Lord John Wodehousa, eldest son and heir of the Earl of Kimberly, was fined £5 for disorderly conduct. His offence consisted in his having disturbed and practically broken up a political meeting in Walsham during the recent general elections. The complaint against him was that he went into a meeting held in the interest of H. Rider Haggard, the novelist, the conservative candidate for the east division of Norfolk, and seized the chairman, Mr. Gaymer, calling him all sorts of vile names, liar and coward being the mildest of the epithets he applied.

THE MACEDONIAN TROUBLES.

Further Assertions That They Are Fomented by Russians.

London, July 31.—A Vienna dispatch to the Daily News says that a telegram received there from Bucharest reports that the Russian Danube Navigation company's vessels are fully armed and equipped with disguised Russian soldiers and officers, who are landed on the Bulgarian shore near Lompalanka en route to Macedonia in the same way that the conveyance of Russian volunteers to Bulgaria began in 1876. It is also said that a wealthy Bulgarian deputy with Russian sympathies is assisting the Macedonian insurgents.

ON GOV. MORTON'S STAFF.

Robert Taylor Varnum Appointed Assistant Paymaster-General.

Albany, July 31.—It is announced at the adjutant-general's office that Robert Taylor Varnum has been appointed assistant paymaster-general, with the rank of major, on the staff of Gov. Morton, in place of col. E. L. Judson, resigned.

Large Seizure of Liquors.

Portland, Me., July 31.—The largest seizure of liquors in many years was made yesterday by police officers from the freight of the Boston boat. There were 130 barrels and six kegs of beer, and two barrels and two kegs of whiskey. The liquor was consigned to German, N. H., but is supposed to have been for Portland consumption.

Superintendent of Public Building.

Washington, July 31.—Chief engineer George W. Baird, U. S. N., has been by direction of President Cleveland assigned to the duties of superintendent of the state, war and navy building, relieving Chief Engineer Williamson, who will be placed on the retired list next week.

Fatal Race Riot in Alabama.

Birmingham, Ala., July 31.—Brookside, a mining camp 20 miles West of here, was the scene of a bloody race riot last night. Two deputy sheriffs are known to have been killed and it is said half a dozen negroes were shot, four or five fatally. The town is in a state of panic.

National League Games Yesterday.

At Philadelphia—Philadelphia, 10; Brooklyn, 5. At Pittsburg—Pittsburg, 3; Chicago, 2. At Washington—Washington, 5; New York, 17. At Louisville—Louisville, 18; St. Louis, 2. The Boston-Baltimore game at Boston postponed on account of rain.

Gov. Morton Goes to Bar Harbor.

Albany, July 31.—Governor Morton, after finishing up considerable routine business, left the capitol at 5 o'clock last evening to return to Ellerslie. To-morrow he leaves for Bar Harbor to remain with his family during the month of August.

A Steam Barge Goes Down.

Cleveland, O., July 31.—The steam barge Republic, built in Cleveland and owned by W. D. Rees of Republic, Mich., went down two miles off Lorain yesterday. The crew escaped in a yawl and were picked up.

Pearce and Falvey Matched.

Boston, July 31.—Leslie C. Pearce of Philadelphia has signed articles to box Jack Falvey of Providence twenty rounds at the Gladstone club, Lowell, Mass., on August 29.

ADAMS' CLOSE CALL.

Respited Within Two Hours of the Time Set for His Execution.

Columbus, O., July 31.—At 10 o'clock last night Governor McKinley granted a respite to Martin Adams of Cincinnati, who was to have been hanged at midnight, until September 27. This is done in order that facts may be gathered for a full presentation of the case with an application for clemency to the state board of pardons. Adams was convicted on purely circumstantial evidence, and it is generally believed that had he been more ably defended he would not have been convicted of murder in the first degree. He had an extremely close call, for when his friends went to the executive chamber at noon yesterday to plead with Governor McKinley for the respite they found the governor absent, and no one seemed to know where he was, and it was not until 9 o'clock in the evening that he was located.

THE OCCUPATION OF TRINIDAD.

A Statement by Amassador Bayard. Only a Cable Landing Wanted.

London, July 31.—United States Ambassador Bayard, referring to the reported seizure of the island of Trinidad by Great Britain and the agitation in Brazil on that subject, said in an interview to-day that the incident was a trifling one. The island, he added, was very small, only occupied by a few goats, and the British ships merely stopped there to lay a cable. Great Britain, he said, did not claim the island. In fact it was not worth claiming. Brazil, he said, is excited over nothing. This island is not to be confounded with the British island of Trinidad in the West Indies. Mr. Bayard has had no instructions from Washington regarding his course in the matter.

SIMON WORMSER FOUND DEAD.

His Body Discovered on a Stoop in Sixty-sixth Street, New York.

New York, July 31.—Simon Wormser, 70 years old, banker, of 836 Fifth avenue, was found dead on the stoop of 70 East 66th street at 9:40 last night. The body was discovered by a messenger boy, named Dennis Grew of 234 East 41st street and a citizen named Arthur Schloss, of 1303 Third avenue. It is supposed he was on his way home when he was stricken with heart disease. Policeman Michael Owens of the 67th street station sent for a Presbyterian hospital ambulance at once, and Dr. Cook responded, but Mr. Wormser was dead. The body was placed in the ambulance and taken to the East 67th street station house.

NEW YORK TAILORS' STRIKE.

Many of the Contractors Signing the New Agreement.

New York, July 31.—The backbone of the strike of the Brotherhood of Tailors is apparently broken. The settlement committee of the brotherhood are busy with the contractors, signing the new agreement which displaces the piecework system and in its place creates a weekly scale of wages. Nearly 2,000 tailors resumed work at their benches to-day.

Accused of Incendiarism.

Northampton, Mass., July 31.—As a result of Fire Marshal Shaw's inquest into the fire in the Bartley block, July 27, John C. Manning was arrested on the charge of arson. Manning had a printing office in the block, and this was the second fire there within a week. He has been suspected of incendiarism for some time, this being the sixth time that his property has been on fire.

Farmers Too Prosperous.

Washington, July 31.—Congressman Hepburn of Iowa has returned to Washington from his home. He was asked if the people in his state were much agitated over money. "Oh, no," he said, "there is no agitation out there. Our farmers are getting 100 bushels of corn to the acre, and they haven't got time to discuss economic questions."

A Brewer Assigns.

Reading, Pa., July 31.—George F. Lauer of the Lauer Brewing company has assigned. He says he is unable to pay his debts because Frank P. Lauer, his brother, treasurer of the company, has control of all his funds, profits, dividends and income of the company, and refused to pay him.

Miners' Demands To Be Acceded To.

Pittsburg, July 31.—The Pittsburg & Youghiogheny Gas Coal company has notified its miners that after Aug. 1 it will pay the 64 cents a ton rate demanded by the miners in this district. This company is one of the largest in the district.

Acquitted of Murder.

Montgomery, Ala., July 31.—Mrs. May Shivey, who has been on trial charged with poisoning her husband, has been acquitted.

Drowned While Bathing.

Eatavia, N. Y., July 31.—Estes Harkness of Elba, 21 years old, was drowned at Horseshoe lake yesterday while bathing.

INHUMANLY TREATED

A Frail Woman Tarred and Feathered.

Her Arm and Several Ribs Broken—Women in Male Attire Applied the Tar and Feathers While Men Held Their Victim to the Floor—All Concerned Are Known.

Watertown, N. Y., July 31.—Jayville, a village on the fringe of the Adirondack forest above Carthage, has been the scene of the punishment of a frail woman in a manner which has outraged decency and which will set the wheels of the law in motion to punish the offenders. Some time ago a man named John P. Kirch and Mrs. Bert Covey of Jayville eloped from that place. Neither were heard of until Saturday when Mrs. Covey suddenly returned. On Sunday two men called on her telling her that if she did not immediately leave the place she would be tarred and feathered. She went to Pitcairn on Monday and swore out a warrant for the arrest of the two men who had threatened her. In the evening she returned home.

Women Applied the Tar.

When the train stopped at Jayville and the woman stepped off she was suddenly surrounded by a crowd of men who seized her and took her into the railroad freight house, where they removed every vestment of her clothing. There was a crowd of women present dressed in men's clothes and with blackened faces. The men held the woman down on the floor while the women applied the tar and feathers with a paint brush, completely covering her with the stuff, after which they left her.

Arm and Several Ribs Broken.

She was taken to her mother's house where a physician was called who found that one arm and a number of ribs were broken. It is claimed that almost all of the party concerned in the case are known and warrants will immediately be sworn out for their arrest.

GIBBONS LEAVES PARIS.

The Cardinal Says the Pope Has Great Regard for Americans.

Paris, July 31.—Cardinal Gibbons will leave here to-day for London. In an interview yesterday with a representative of the United Press, the cardinal refused to speak of Mgr. Satolli, the papal delegate to the United States, or to discuss educational or other questions. He said, however, that the pope had expressed the warmest interest in the American republic, as well as his admiration of the material and intellectual enterprise that characterized its people. The pope, he said, had particularly commended the people of the United States for their love of law and order and the spirit of religion that was manifested in many phases of public life, especially the great respect shown by the people for the Lord's day.

FLOODS IN KANSAS.

Two Lives Lost and Great Destruction Wrought.

Fort Scott, Kans., July 31.—An unprecedented precipitation of rain in the southeast corner of Kansas yesterday has again flooded the streams and wreaked destruction to life and property. In seven hours 4.02 inches of water fell in the city and this morning the town is inundated. Many families have been driven from their homes. Sections of land which have not for years been submerged are now flooded. Walter Austin and Willis Gould were drowned in one of the principal streets and C. A. Austin, father of one of the boys, was carried 200 yards in the treacherous current and finally rescued from the top of a tree by a boatman. Railroad traffic is suspended.

ANOTHER BATTLESHIP.

The Texas To Go into Commission On August 13.

Washington, July 31.—A magnificent new vessel will be added to the already growing list of the new navy on August 13, when the second-class battleship, Texas, will go into commission under command of commander Henry Glass. She was built at the Norfolk navy yard and is one of the two vessels which the government decided to construct itself. The Maine, the other vessel, is still under construction at the Brooklyn navy yard and will hardly be finished for six months.

Gen. Harrison Climbs a Mountain.

Old Forge, N. Y., July 31.—General Harrison, Mrs. McKee, Mrs. Dimmick, Master Ben and Miss Mary McKee and Secretary Tibbett, with Guide Sperry, walked to the top of Bald mountain yesterday and took lunch there. The mountain is 800 feet above the lakes. When not fishing the general spends his time in cruising about the lakes.

Bannock Indian Situation.

Salt Lake City, Utah, July 31.—There is no change in the Bannock Indian situation. Everything is reported quiet in the Jacksons Hole region, but a fight is liable to occur at any moment. The settlers have now congregated and are ready for action, but there are no Indians in sight.

Seth W. Bishop Dead.

Hartford, Conn., July 31.—Seth W. Bishop is dead, aged 74 years. He was one of a party that went to California in 1878 and was successful in the gold mines. A few months ago he resigned the presidency of the Suffolk Gold Mining company of Colorado.

Another Big Rail Order.

Philadelphia, July 31.—The Pennsylvania Railroad company has just placed an additional order for 9,000 tons of steel rails at $24 per ton, which makes a total of 56,000 tons recently ordered. The order was divided among several firms.

No International Oil Dead Yet.

St. Petersburg, July 31.—The directors of the Russian Petroleum company announce that they have not arrived at an agreement with the American petroleum syndicate to partition the petroleum market.

Pioneer Mine Sold.

San Francisco, July 31.—The executors of the estate of James C. Fair have sold the Pioneer mine to a Boston syndicate.

The man who never praises his wife sometimes talks very nice in church.—Bam's Horn.

The woman suffragists will prabably establish national headquarters in Philadelphia.

A fine of $135,300 is the sum the law prescribes that an Illinois man can be mulcted for having game in his possession out of season.

The legal battle which the heavyweight champions of pugilistic inclinations wage in order to get a spot on which to fight is much bigger and harder than the real fistic fight.

Though the Common Council of New Brunswick has been organized by Republicans, assisted by luck in the turn of a penny, the Council will still be a tie on a party vote. That means more fun in the future.

The Courier-News editor just at present resembles the ostrich who stuck his head in a sand pile and thought to deceive his pursuers as to where he was. Mr. Runyon doubtless thinks that an attack on Mayor Gilbert under the garb of reform will deceive people as to his true motives of future personal glorification.

If the Courier-News editor really thinks that what Mayor Gilbert had to say on the proposed bond issue was "irrelevant and not pertinent to the actual matter under discussion," why doesn't he run the Mayor's interview and the interviews which appeared in The World in parallel columns. Put them side by side and let people judge about their being "irrelevant."

The man in the moon is a myth but the man who is an engineer on the Long Island railroad and took the moon for a headlight is not. That is the first time the moon was ever accused of holding up a train load of people. It is a good thing for the moon that it is so far away or the world might be groping in darkness, because holding up trains in this country is not tolerated.

In open court at Newark on Monday Vice-Chancellor Pitney hauled a Newark News reporter before the bar, seized his manuscript, ordered him out of court and threatened to judicially discipline him if the paper on which he was employed should print any report of the case which for some reason or other he did not wish to have made public. To say the least the action of the Vice-Chancellor is not what should have been expected from a man occupying his position. It is hardly necessary to state to those who are acquainted with the policy of The News that the paper contained a full report of the case in spite of the censorship of the official.

The Courier-News editor publishes some funny things in his paper, but about the most ludicrous of all his ranting perorations was the effort in yesterday's paper to answer in a way favorable to his own future political aspirations the plain statements of Mayor Gilbert on the proposed bond issue. Driven from the position which he first assumed, that of making the ignorant claim that the city could borrow money at one and a-half per cent., he now turns in a characteristic manner and throws mud. And why does he conduct this campaign of blackguardism and abuse against the officials of a city which is acknowledged, outside of a few rule-or-ruin people like himself, to be one of the best governed municipalities in the country? The reasons which prompt him to take this stand are rapidly becoming apparent.

A gentleman by the name of Sanford, of Wilbur, N. J., proposes that a law shall be enacted which shall authorize the setting apart of a strip of land five feet wide, through every township in this State, which strip shall be used as a track or highway for the exclusive benefit of bicyclists and pedestrians. The track is to be kept in condition by the wheelmen, without expense to the property-owners. It is estimated that this track can be built, graded, macadamized, etc., for $1,000 a mile. It is not unlikely that this proposal will meet with some favor, and it may cause much discussion. But the whole scheme is useless and impolitic. The quarrel between wheelmen and wagoners must soon cease, and after that is nothing better wanted or needed than good roads. If the expense attending the building and maintenance of the path were judiciously put upon the roads it would be vastly better for everybody.—Elizabeth Journal.

Frank Clarkson, of East Second street, the genial clerk in Laire's hardware store, has retured after a two weeks vacation spent amid the pleasures of Asbury Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis K. Hyde returned to their home at Titusville today, after visiting at the home of Mr. Hyde's parents, Mr. and Mrs Charles Hyde, of East Front street.

Miss Mary Thorn, of East Second street, returned from Orange yesterday, where she has been visiting. Her cousin, Miss Perrine, accompanied her to Plainfield for a visit.

Mrs. A. V. D. Honeyman, of Duer street, son Edward Maxwell and daughter Maude came home last evening, after a very delightful visit with relatives at Jamesburg.

The many friends of Mrs. VanWinkle, wife of Letter-Carrier Edward VanWinkle, who is in the Adirondacks with Mrs. E. H. Bird, will be pleased to know that her health is much improved.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sampson, with their children Lena and Walter, of East Fifth street, leave tomorrow to join their son, Albert Sampson, at Pine Bush, Orange county, N. Y., where he is spending his vacation.

John W. Murray, wife and son, J. W. Sandford, Jr., and wife, H. D. Brewster, wife and family, and A. Tilney and wife, returned to this city yesterday afternoon after a delightful stay at "Point Breeze Camp," Lake Wentworth, N. H.

BAR THE DOOR.

Cholera Infantum Now Knocks Loudly.

But One Way of Entrance for the Dread Disease.

Infant Mortality Result of Improper Food.

NO SUMMER DIARRHŒA WHEN DIET IS LACTATED FOOD.

A Scientific Substitute for Healthy Mother's Milk.

Emphatic advice to mothers of children, especially those under five:

Don't let cholera infantum gain entrance.

All diarrhœal diseases are caused by improper food and ill effects of hot weather. Without a specially nutritious diet the little ones are wasted from lack of nourishment, and the impairment of the nutritive process at this unfortunate season leaves the door open to cholera infantum and fatal diarrhœa attacks.

MARY ENGLISH.

Physicians, nurses, mothers, who have had experience in cholera infantum, have found that in every case where lactated food had been properly used, the disease was avoided and the child kept well and strong all through the summer.

Prevention is the better part of wisdom at all seasons and the child who lives upon this food will keep well and strong during the summer season and carry a good stock of vitality into the fall and winter.

The most skillful specialists in children's diseases have publicly advised mothers that to be on the safe side they should use lactated food until their children are old enough to come to the table. It strengthens the weak ones and keeps the well babies strong.

Lactated food is made to save children's lives. They take it greedily when other food is refused.

Mrs. Flora English of Alliance, O., whose bright baby is shown above, writes:

"I send you with this one of my baby's pictures. She was raised on lactated food and we found it just as recommended. She grew fat even while having whooping cough."

Civil Service Reform.

The fourth-class postmasterships were looted more rapidly under the administration of President Harrison than under that of President Cleveland, and the consular service more rapidly under President Cleveland than under President Harrison; but the final result was the same in both cases. Indeed, I think that the brutality which accompanied the greater speed was in some ways of service to the country, for it directed attention to the iniquity and folly of the system, and emphasized, in the minds of decent citizens, the fact that appointments and removals for political reasons in places where the duties are wholly non political cannot be defended by any man who looks at public affairs from the proper standpoint. —From "Six Years of Civil Service Reform," by Theodore Roosevelt, in the August (Fiction Number) of Scribner's.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

CYCLING COMMENT.

George Townley went to Asbury Park on his wheel Sunday and returned the same day.

Councilman Vincent L. Frazee has at last learned the mysteries of wheel riding, and almost every evening enjoys a short spin.

Dennis Bergen, of Jersey City, rode here on his wheel Monday to see his sister, Mrs. J. VanEps, of Park avenue. He spent the night at her home and was accompanied on his return journey yesterday as far as Elizabeth by Mr. and Mrs. VanEps.

If a wheel runs a trifle hard, the cause is usually found to be a cone that has run up or a tightened chain and should be attended to at once. A chain should never be so tight as to touch the tubing of the rear forks of a bicycle, and should always be well oiled, the latter especially, as it will make it much easier for a rider to run over the dust after a long ride.

Just before the heavy storm yesterday afternoon two cyclers, who have yet to learn how much space is required in passing each other on the road, collided on East Front street. One was a young man, the other much older. Both were thrown from their wheels, but the latter was hurled against the curb stone striking his face. It was at first thought that his nose was broken, but close examination proved it was all right. C. J. Keiderling, who lives near secured a bottle of witch hazel and in a little while the man was able to continue his journey. The young man was not injured and there was no other damage. Both refused to give their names.

The men seem to be having almost as much trouble over their bicycling costumes as the women. There are hotels, it seems, that will not entertain men in knickerbobkers, and they are by no means as welcome in all places in their bicycle clothes as with trousers that flap about their ankles and modish shirts. It is largely to the consideration of clothes that the far-seeing look for the preservation of the horse and the continuance of some of the old-fashioned methods of conveyance. If men could live and move and transact their business in golf stockings and knickerbockers, and women in bloomers or short skirts, the bicycle's progress might be as sure as it has been swift. But as it is: the formalities of life, such as they are, militate gently but firmly against the bicycle, and though they are not effectual to hold it back, they do make a little for its restraint.—Harpers Weekly.

WESTFIELD'S MISSION.

The Poor Women and Children of New York Enjoy Country Life.

There has been a movement among the good people of Westfield lately to make such arrangements that the poor mothers of New York and their babies might enjoy a brief spell of life in the clear air of the country. The plan progressed, and now there is a large tent where, under the charge of two city missionaries, the mothers and their babes are given a chance to breathe the fresh air. A number of Westfield people have been assisting at the work, and one of them will come to Plainfield Friday evening to speak to the Christian Endeavor society of the Park Avenue Baptist church and tell something of the work. The funds to carry on the plan were mostly supplied by Westfield people, but a chance will be given to Plainfielders who wish to aid. Miss Alice Spangenberg, of Netherwood, has been greatly interested in the work, and has visited the mission.

The rainy weather of the last week has caused some suffering among the mission people, as sleeping on the damp ground has brought on many severe colds. Five Westfield men came to the rescue and furnished enough funds to start the construction of a building; twenty-eight by forty feet as sleeping quarters.

The generous men who supplied the necessary money were Arthur T. Pierson, H. J. Mooney, Mr. Cross, Mr. Blackburn and Mr. Ham. It is expected that the building will be finished by tomorrow, and Sunday a grand jollification will be held when the rest of the funds necessary to complete the structure will be raised.

THE CATERPILLAR PEST.

A Remedy That Is Said to be Fairly Successful.

The caterpillar pest is getting to be not only a nuisance but a danger, and at this time the following remedy has been suggested:

The true remedy is to prevent the caterpillar from ascending the tree and to destroy eggs and cocoons where they ars corralled. I have seen attempts made to do this, but never saw it properly done. The tree should be circled by some material such as bird lime, which will remain sticky and actually prevent the ascent of the caterpillar. The circle should be about five feet from the ground. A tin trough filled with kerosene or tar, which would encircle the tree, would be better. The next step would be to handpick the caterpillars, cocoons and egg masses from the bark and burn them. Or if they are brushed from the tree a piece of canvas should be placed on the ground around the trunk, and the cocoons and egg masses brushed into the canvas with a stiff wire brush and the contents of the canvas burnt, or the result will be nil. The men who have charge of our squares could readily do this. I am sure two hours work each day in summer for a couple of seasons would exterminate these pests. The reason we have such things is owing to inattention and laziness and neglect of the authorities.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with pneumonia succeeding la grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed in the spring, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, indigestion, constipation, dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. Only 50c per bottle at L. W. Randolph's drug store.

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freemyer House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for any kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

Chamberlain's is the best of all. Vincent S. Barkl, of Danbury, Iowa, has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy whenever in need of a medicine for coughs and colds, for the past five years and says: "It always helps me out. If anyone asks me what kind of cough medicine I use, I reply, Chamberlain's, that is the best of all. 25 and 50c. bottles for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the diseases for which it is intended and he knows it. It is for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues. T. You remember that lot of fine French satine draperies we sold so many of in the spring. We have secured another lot, about 2,000 yds, beautiful designs, just right for draperies and fancy work. Their actual value 30c; our price 15c.

5c. Pretty cottage window drapery, 40 inches wide, cost 10c to make, but you buy it for 5c.

7c. A better assortment of ducks than we had a month ago. Then you paid 12c for them. Now you buy for 7c.

8c. Those fine Irish lawns, 40 inches wide, an endless variety of them but all to your liking. Were 13c; Now 8c.

5c. For a towel sounds cheap, but they are good, and you get 10c worth of wear out of every one.

11c. You pay 12 and 15c for plain pillow case muslin, and we sell you a fine hemstitched muslin for 11c the yard.

18c. 500 pairs of those ladies' 30c stockings sold last week. (We say 30c ones because they are worth it) and 1000 pairs to be sold this week.

$6.98. For a 100-piece decorated English porcelain dinner set. Three different colors. Would be a bargain at $10.

69c. Your choice of a line of fine lawn shirt waists that have been 98 cents.

25c. Not often you can buy such a towel for 25c. Real value 40 cents.

49c. for a ladies' night robe, full size, made of Lonesdale muslin and nicely trimmed.

15c. for corset covers and shaped neck.

12c. for silk Windsor ties; all colors.

37c. We offer a line of 40 inch fancy Mohair. So popular just now.

58c. We offer a 54 inch Storm Serge—just the thing for hard wear. Blue and black.

15c. Children's fine ribbed lisle hose, fast black.

25c. a dozen for large size tin-top jelly glasses.

13c. is all we ask for those German lawns.

10c. for Talcum Powder.

Two Large Expeditions Successfully Landed.

Three Hundred and Fifty Old-Time Fighters, Two Cannons, 700,000 Rounds of Ammunition, Dynamite and Hundreds of Repeating Rifles and Revolvers Taken In.

New York, July 31.—Information has been received in this city of the successful landing in Cuba last Thursday of two large bodies of insurgents who brought with them two cannons, 700,000 rounds of ammunition, 500 pounds of dynamite, and hundreds of repeating rifles and revolvers. One expedition consists, it is said, of 278 men, and the other of 75 men, almost all of them veterans of the last revolutionary war in Cuba. Letters announcing the safe landing of the two expeditions on the South coast of Santa Clara Province, Cuba, last Thursday were received at the headquarters of the Cuban revolutionary party in this city and their contents were instantly communicated to the patriots in New York by Thomas Estrada Palma, the newly elected president of the party.

Started from Bahama Islands.

The expedition, Mr. Reubens stated, started from two bays in the Bahama Islands and were taken in small boats to several sailing craft, which conveyed the whole party to Cuba. The members of the two expeditions were taken aboard some of the sailing vessels while on the others were placed the arms and ammunition, thus avoiding danger from capture. The two expeditions landed simultaneously last Thursday on the South coast of Santa Clara Province, and, according to Mr. Reubens, this spot was chosen as the most desirable to enter Cuba for the reason that Gen. Maximo Campos had withdrawn his troops from that portion of Cuba to aid him in the operations he was pursuing in the eastern part of the island.

New and Secret Explosive.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 31.—Thomas Corroll of this city has gone to Cuba under contract with the insurgents to furnish a large supply of a high explosive which he has the secret formula for making. It is cheaper and better for the revolutionists to make the explosive on the spot than to ship it from this country and all the necessary ingredients can be found in Cuba. Mr. Carroll said: "I am to be there six weeks. With 50 men we can blow up 1,000,000 of the best drilled soldiers in the world. We can put torpedoes under water and blow up ships and destroy cables. Water or dampness does not interfere."

TWO MYSTERIOUS $1,000 BILLS.

Found in the Attic of An Office Building.

Washington, July 31.—The treasury department has come into possession of two $1,000 bills to which much mystery is attached. They have been torn in two, and the pieces pasted together. By some means they found their way into the attic of an office building of this city, where they were found among the rubbish by Mrs. Robert Ford, wife of the janitor. A gentleman to whom they were submitted for an opinion, as to their genuiness, turned them over to the officials. It is believed at the treasury department that the bills were stolen, but no particulars are given. Mr. and Mrs. Ford will endeavor to recover possession of the bills from the treasury officials by legal proceedings if necessary.

EFFORTS TO SAVE MARIA.

Mass Meeting of Sympathizers Held in Fanueil Hall at Boston.

Boston, July 31.—A mass meeting to show sympathy with Maria Barberi was held in Fanueil hall last night under the auspices of the Italian Society of George Washington. Antonio Martorana, president of the society, presided. Several letters were read including one from Maria Barberi's father, one from Mrs. Mary C. Livermore and one from Countess Di Brazza. Speeches were made and a telegram was sent Governor Morton of New York imploring his clemency; asking for commutation of Maria Barberi's sentence to imprisonment for life, and requesting his influence in obtaining a new trial.

Grand Event for Newport.

Newport, R. I., July 31.—It is announced that Cornelius Vanderbilt will throw open "The Breakers," his new mansion, some time about the middle of August, giving a ball in honor of his daughter Gertrude. This will probably be the grandest event of the season.

Struck by a Train.

Lebanon, Pa., July 31.—While driving across the tracks of the Cornwall railroad here Harry C. Uhler and Miss Emma Ristenbatt were struck by a train and badly injured. Both were terribly cut and bruised and it is feared the young woman will die.

Religion and Public Schools.

Brussels, July 31.—The chamber of representatives by a vote of 59 to 50 rejected a motion made by the left to postpone to the next session the discussion of article 4 of the school bill, which makes religious teaching compulsory in the communal schools.

Insurgents Routed and Killed.

Madrid, July 31.—A dispatch from Havana to the Imparcial says that the Spanish troops routed a force of insurgents in the Baracoa district, killing sixteen and wounding many of the rebels. The Spaniards lost thirty-one wounded.

Gov. Mortons' Daughters Escape.

Bar Harbor, Me., July 31—On Main street yesterday a team collided with a carriage containing Gov. Morton's two daughters and another young lady, throwing them out and smashing the carriage. No one was hurt.

Turret Plates for the Puritan.

Bethlehem, Pa., July 31.—The Bethlehem Iron company has just shipped the turret plates for the new battleship Puritan.

New Bicycle Record.

Bordeaux, July 31.—In a 24-hour bicycle contest which ended yesterday Riviere scored 523 miles and 129 yards making a new record.

A TRAGEDY OF DUTY

She was a perfectly unromantic figure, with a broad, good humored face, a thick waist, dressed in a purple gown, with red flowers in her hat. Presently, at the sound of a footstep brushing through the furze, she got up, and turned to meet a young man who a moment after came in view.

They shook hands awkwardly by way of greeting, and the young man said:

"I'm sorry, my lass; I'm afraid that I'm a bit late."

"Don't name it," said the girl. "I knew it was a chance if you'd get off."

"Well, Mary," he said, clearing his throat, "has your father anything different to say to-day?"

"No, Jack, it's just the same—it's all no use," returned the girl. "I suppose we must grin and abide."

"You told him about the place of Binghampton and all?" said the young man.

"Yes," the girl, sadly, "I put the best face on it I could, but he wouldn't let me say much. He's that mad to think I should want to have you at all, and when he's like that you can't change father, not if you were to crown him with gold."

"You told him we didn't mind waiting?" persisted the young man. "I dare say he'd think he couldn't do without you in the shop first off, but we're not to a few months, eh, Mary?"

"I never had the chance to tell him that," was Mary's reply. "He commenced calling me for what I'd done, and said I wanted to disgrace him. He says I needn't think to go to the choir any more; he puts it all down to that. I shan't mind that much, when you are gone."

"Mary," said the young man, suddenly and earnestly, "will you come in spite of your father? I don't see but what we should think of ourselves as well as of him. I'll go to Binghampton and get things already for you, and I'll put up the banns, and you can come there to be married."

"Oh!" cried the girl in great distress, "I couldn't go against father like that. Why, he'd never hold his head up again! You see, he's only got me, now mother's gone, and I don't know what he'd do in the shop. I thought we could get one of my cousins and we could show her about things, but to leave on a sudden like that"——

Jack was not easy to be turned from his point; he was slow witted, as was the girl, but the pain of this had pricked him to a keener insight than hers. Mary was aware of nothing but the dull pain of parting; Jack had a forecast of the years to come. He put it to her bluntly, with the unconscious brutality of his class; they were young, they were poor, her father was old—was he to spoil their lives in this way? A few years and he would be dead, and it would concern him no more, but they had two-thirds of their lives to live, and was it right they should be spoiled for an old man's whim?

Mary had no logic wherewith to meet this cogent reasoning; she had only a blind sense of duty to guide her. It had never come in her way to question her obedience to her father, and the idea now only frightened her.

"Doesn't it stand to sense?" cried Jack, in a last despairing appeal.

"Well, yes, it stands to sense," the girl allowed; "I don't know as I can rightly say all I want. There's sense and sense, Jack. When father talks it's sense, and when you talk it's sense; and it's as if I'd like to do one thing and my conscience tells me to do another. I can't go against father, Jack—I can't, indeed!"

There was little more said between the two as they took their way homeward. Outside the village they paused by common consent.

"Then I suppose it's good-by, Mary?"

"I suppose it is Jack."

They shook hands again awkwardly and separated.

Jack left for Binghampton early next morning without having seen Mary again.

Simon Micklethwaite was a person of consequence in Daignton. He was the owner of a small piece of land, on which were half a dozen cottages and the shop he himself occupied, the only piece of freehold not attached to the manor for miles around. There was no other shop in the village, and, besides being a thriving drapery and grocery business, "Micklethwaite's" possessed the only spirit license, and was the district post-office. Simon himself was a hard-headed business man, much respected by his neighbors.

After Jack had gone, Mary went back to her old life uncomplainingly. It never occurred to her to neglect her duties, or to be "saucy with her meals," as a protest against the hardness of her lot; there was no shadow on her broad and kindly face to touch her father's compassion.

Micklethwaite, for his part, was pleased with his daughter's obedience in his own hard way, and was at no trouble to consider moods and feelings.

Ten years had passed since Jack Saunders had gone to work at Birghampton, and many changes had come about. Jack was a good workman, and, after being foreman for three years, had been taken into partnership by his master. The firm was at work on some cottages they had built outside the town as a speculation, and one of these Jack was finishing, for he was about to be married. He had only been home once in the ten years, on a five-days' trip in Whitsun week, and then he had not seen Mary, who was away visiting some cousins. Since then his parents had died and his connection with Daignton had ceased.

Jack hardly knew himself how his marriage had come about; it was not altogether through his own volition. He had been lodging for some three years with a widow about ten years older than himself. She had been from the first almost embarrassingly kind to him, and Jack had resented many of her ways with the impatience of a man who likes to be independent. Fate had at last given him helpless into her hands with an attack of typhoid, and only her unremitting care had pulled him through.

Jack awoke one morning to realize that it was his wedding day. There was a flower in the glass on the table which he was to wear in his coat, and his new clothes were ready on a chair, laid there by the careful hands of the widow. A loud, cheerful voice hailed him from below; it was the foreman of the works, who was to be the best man, calling him to get up.

Downstairs the parlor was already being set out with the wedding breakfast, and Jack had the kitchen to himself for his hasty meal. There was a letter on the table, which had been brought from his works; the hand was unfamiliar; and he left it there until he poured out some tea and helped himself to some rashers of bacon from the oven. Then he opened the letter and propped it up against the teapot, while he read:

"Dear Jack, I write to tell you about father, for I suppose you won't have heard. He had the influenza very bad, and was buried three weeks ago come Friday. I would have wrote before, but my time has been put up with the lawyers. It all comes to me—there is very near ten thousand invested and three hundred in the bank. If you are of the same mind, as I hope and believe there is nothing in the way now, you can come and help me manage; I can't go on without. I wouldn't have wrote in such a hurry only they keep telling me I must have a man. Father says nothing about it in his will—about marrying, I mean. I think he maybe thought better of it. Your ever constant

"MARY MICKLETHWAITE."

The widow had donned her wedding-gown, and the party was ready to start for church. She came bustling into the kitchen, and cried out in dismay when she saw Jack's untouched breakfast.

"Why, deary me! What ails the man? It might be his own funeral he was going to!" she said, in real concern, when she saw how pale he looked. Jack pulled himself together and protested he was all right, but he did not feel a bit hungry; and as it was too late to make any further delay the widow had to be content with thinking she would make him have a substantial meal afterward.

Toward evening, when the wedding-party had dispersed, and the newly-married couple were left in possession of their new home, Jack had half an hour to himself, while Mrs. Saunders helped the little maid to prepare tea. It was then he answered Mary's letter. This is what he wrote:

"Dear Mary—Your letter came too late. It came on my wedding day. God help us both! I cannot say any more.

A DOMINIE ON WHEELING.

No Harm in Sunday Wheeling, He Says, if Church Be Not Neglected.

The First Baptist Church, of New Brunswick, has for its pastor the Rev. L. E. Wheeler, an enthusiastic wheelman, who was called to his present charge within the past year from Waverly, N. Y.

Mr. Wheeler preached a sermon on "The Etiquette and Ethics of the Wheel," and, as the subject had been previously announced, there was a large congregation to hear him.

"All classes and conditions of people," he said, "are becoming ardent devotees of the bicycle. To me my wheel has become a business institution. This being so, there should be rules of etiquette to govern wheelmen. Cyclists should always raise their hats to the gentler sex. I admit this is sometimes a difficult feat to accomplish, but no man has a right to consider himself a wheelman until he can do it. The wheelman has no right to monopolize the street crossings. He has not had locomotive privileges granted to him to run down whoever may not hear his alarm bell. He should always slow up or turn out for pedestrians. Beside this, he ought never to ride close to persons and terrify them with a sudden bell ringing. Bicyclists at nights should carry lights. Their machines are noiseless; collisions with other wheels are imminent, and some people cannot see very well in the dark. The 'turn to the right' law should be enforced.

"There is also an ethical side to this question of wheeling. Health is often endangered by some over-exertion while riding the bicycle. To abuse one's body in this way is to do a moral wrong. Such is the case also when some people deform themselves by doubling up on their wheels. Why is it they do this? Merely because some 'cracks' do it to cut the wind more easily, and so gain half a second per mile, and these foolish cyclists imagine it is, of course, the proper thing for them. This practice is silly and immoral.

"Now, regarding Sunday cycling, I see no more harm in a spin up the avenue on Sunday afternoon than I do in a walk up the avenue. It is gentle and refreshing exercise, and is far better than to drive a tired horse who has been working hard all the week. When I was at home I was accustomed to take Sunday spins at pleasure, feeling just as religious while riding as I would had I been walking. But I haven't done this here yet, for I don't know how Brunswickers would regard the dominie on his wheel.

"But there are some grown-up little children in this world who, as soon as they get their wheels, must stay away from divine service to play with their toys. Here is where the harm of Sunday wheeling comes in."

THE CITY OF THE SEA.

BY JEROME K. JEROME.

(Copyright, 1895, by Bacheller, Johnson & Bacheller.)

THEY say, the chroniclers who have written the history of that low-lying, windswept coast, that years ago the foam fringe of the ocean lay further to the east; so that where now the North Sea creeps among the treacherous sandreefs, it was once dry land. In those days, between the Abbey and the sea, there stood a town of seven towers and four rich churches, surrounded by a wall of twelve stones' thickness, making it, as men reckoned then, a place of strength and much import; and the monks, glancing their eyes downward from the Abbey garden on the hill, saw beneath their feet its narrow streets, gay with the ever passing of rich merchandise, saw its many wharves and waterways, ever noisy with the babel of strange tongues; saw its many painted masts, wagging their grave heads above the dormer roofs and quaintly-carved oak gables.

Thus the town prospered till there came a night when it did evil in the sight of God and man. Those were troublous times to Saxon dwellers by the sea, for the Danish water-rats swarmed round each river mouth, scenting treasure from afar; and by none was the white flash of their sharp, strong teeth more often seen than by the men of Eastern Anglia, and by none in Eastern Anglia more often than by the watchers on the walls of the town of seven towers that once stood upon the dry land, but which now lies twenty fathom deep below the waters. Many a bloody fight raged now without and now within its walls of twelve stones' thickness. Many a groan of dying man, many a shriek of murdered woman, many a wail of mangled child, knocked at the Abbey door upon its way to heaven, calling the trembling monks from their beds, to pray for the souls that were passing by.

But at length peace came to the long-troubled land; Dane and Saxon agreeing to dwell in friendship side by side, East Anglia being wide, and there being room for both. And all men rejoiced greatly, for all were weary of a strife in which little had been gained on either side beyond hard blows, and their thoughts were of the ingle-nook. So the long-bearded Danes, their thirsty axes harmless on their backs, passed to-and-fro in straggling bands, seeking where undisturbed and undisturbing they might build their homes; and thus it came about that Haarfager and his company, as the sun was going down, drew near to the town of seven towers, that in those days stood on dry land between the Abbey and the sea.

And the men of the town, seeing the Danes, opened wide their gates, saying: "We have fought, but now there is peace. Enter, and make merry with us, and to-morrow go your way."

But Haarfager made answer, "I am an old man; I pray you do not take my words amiss. There is peace between us, as you say; and we thank you for your courtesy, but the stains are still fresh upon our swords. Let us camp here without your walls; and a little later, when the grass has grown upon the fields where we have striven, and our young men have had time to forget, we will make merry together, as men should who dwell side by side in the same land."

But the men of the town still urged Haarfager, calling his people neighbors; and the Abbot, who had hastened down fearing there might be strife, added his word to theirs, saying:

"Pass in, my children. Let there, indeed, be peace between you, that the blessing of God may be upon the land, and upon both Dane and Saxon;" for the Abbot saw that the townsmen were well disposed towards the Danes, and knew that men, when they had feasted and drunk together, think kinder of one another.

Then answered Haarfager, who knew the Abbot for a holy man: "Hold up your staff, my father, that the shadow of the cross your people worship may fall upon our path, so we will pass into the town and there shall be peace between us; for though your gods are not our gods, faith between man and man is of all temples."

And the Abbot held his staff aloft between Haarfager's people and the sun, it being fashioned in the form of a cross, and under its shadow the Danes passed by into the town of seven towers, there being of them, with the women and the little children, nearly two thousand souls, and the gates were made fast behind them.

So they who had fought face to face, feasted side by side, pledging one another in the wine cup, as was the custom; and Haarfager's men, knowing themselves among friends, had cast aside their arms; and when the feast was done, being weary, they lay down to sleep.

Then an evil voice arose in the town, and said: "Who are these that have come among us to share our land? Are not the stones of our streets red with the blood of wife and child that they have slain? Do men let the wolf go free when they have trapped him with meat? Let us fall upon them now that they are heavy with food and wine, so that not one among them shall escape. Thus no further harm shall come to us from them nor from their children."

And the voice of evil prevailed; and the men of the town of seven towers fell upon the Danes with whom they had broken meat, even to the women and the little children; and the blood of the people of Haarfager cried with a loud voice at the Abbey door; through the long night it cried, saying:

"I trusted in your spoken word. I broke meat with you. I put my faith in you and your God. I passed beneath the shadow of your cross to enter your doors. Let your God make answer!" Nor was there silence till the dawn.

Then the Abbot rose from where he knelt and called to God, saying: "Thou hast heard, oh, God. Make answer."

And there came a great sound from the sea as though a tongue had been given to the deep, so that the monks fell upon their knees in fear; but the Abbot answered, "It is the voice of God, speaking through the waters. He hath made answer."

And that winter a mighty storm arose, the like of which no man had known before; for the sea was piled upon the dry land until the highest tower of the town of seven towers was not more high; and the waters moved forward over the dry land. And the men of the town of seven towers fled from the oncoming of the waters, but the waters overtook them so that not one of them escaped. And the town of the seven towers, and of the four churches, and of the many streets and quays, was buried underneath the waters; and the feet of the waters still moved till they came to the hill whereon the Abey stood. Then the Abbot prayed to God that the waters might be stayed, and God heard, and the sea come no farther.

And that this tale is true, and not a fable made by the weavers of words, he who doubts may know from the fisher-folk, who to-day ply their calling among the reefs and sandbanks of that lonely coast. For there are those among them who, peering from the bows of their small craft, have seen far down beneath their keels, a city of strange streets and many quays. But as to this, I, who repeat these things to you, cannot speak of my own knowledge, for this city of the sea is only visible when a rare wind, blowing from the north, sweeps the shadows from the waves; and though on many a sunny day I have drifted where its seven towers should once have stood, yet for me that wind has never blown, pushing back the curtains of the sea, and, therefore, I have strained my eyes in vain.

But this I do know, that the crumbling stones of that ancient Abbey, between which and the foam fringe of the ocean the town of seven towers once lay, now stands upon a wave-washed cliff, and that he who looks forth from its shattered mullions to-day sees only the marshland and the wrinkled waters; hears only the plaint of the circling gulls, and the weary crying of the sea.

And that God's anger is not everlasting, and that the evil that there is in me shall be blotted out, he who doubts may also learn from the wisdom of the simple fisher-folk, who dwell about the border of the marshland; for they will tell him that on stormy nights, there speaks a deep voice from the sea, calling the dead monks to rise from their forgotten graves, and chant a mass for the souls of the men of the town of seven towers. Clothed in long glittering white, they move with slowly pacing feet around the Abbey's grass-grown aisles, and the music of their prayers is heard above the screaming of the storm. And to this I also can bear witness, for I have seen the passing of their shrouded forms behind the blackness of the shattered shafts; I have heard their sweet, sad singing above the wailing of the wind.

Thus for many ages have the dead monks prayed that the men of the town of seven towers may be forgiven. Thus, for many ages yet shall they so pray till the day come when of their once fair Abbey not a single stone shall stand upon its fellow; and in that day it shall be known that the anger of God against the men of the town of seven towers has passed away; and in that day the feet of the waters shall move back, and the town of seven towers shall stand again upon the dry land.

There be some, I know, who say that this is but a legend; who will tell you that the shadowy shapes that you see with your own eyes on stormy nights, waving their gleaming arms behind the ruined buttresses, are but of phosphorescent foam, tossed by the raging waves above the cliffs; and that the sweet, sad harmony, cleaving the trouble of the night, is but the aeolian music of the wind.

But such are of the blind, who see only with their eyes. For myself I see the white-robed monks, and hear the chanting of their mass for the souls of the sinful men of the town of seven towers. For it has been said that when an evil deed is done, a prayer is born to follow it through time into eternity, and plead for it. Thus is the whole world clasped around with folded hands both of the dead and of the living, as with a shield, lest the shafts of God's anger should consume it.

Therefore, I know that the good monks of this nameless Abbey still are praying that the sin of those they loved may be forgiven. God grant good men may say a mass for us.

A FAMOUS DABOLL.

DEATH OF A PUBLISHER KNOWN ALL OVER NEW ENGLAND.

David A. Daboll, the Third in the Line of the Famous Almanac Publishers. His Arithmetic was One of the First Text Books Used in American Schools.

David A. Daboll, publisher of Daboll's Almanac, was 82 years old when he died of general debility, at New London, Conn. The almanac has been issued by the Dabolls since 1773, and it will probably remain in the family for several generations longer.

David A. Daboll was of the third generation that published the "Farmer's Friend." His grandfather, Nathan Daboll, conceived the idea and produced the first number in 1772. He was professor of mathematics at Plainfield Academy, and the author of the famous old Daboll Arithmetic and Schoolmaster's Assistant, and a work on navigation.

Nathan Daboll made the calculations for the almanac until 1818. From then until 1864 his son, also named Nathan, was the almanac maker; and since that time David A., one of the six sons of Nathan II., has figured out the astronomical problems. Every one of David's brothers was capable to do the work at a moment's notice. All of them were mathematicans. One of them invented the foghorn which warns mariners of danger when the weather on the coast is thick, and keeps the seaside boarders awake on foggy nights.

David A. Daboll leaves four sons, all mathematicans. David A. Daboll, Jr., has been living with his father, and expects to succeed him as publisher of the almanac. The house where the almanac maker has been living was built by old Nathan Daboll more than a century ago, and it has been the home of the Dabolls always. It is at Center Groton, four miles from New London, on the old Providence turnpike.

The first number of the almanac was prepared under the low oaken roof of the Daboll house, and each succeeding number has been prepared there since. It was in this house that Nathan arranged his Schoolmaster's Assistant, and prepared the book on navigation. Afterward the little house was used for a nautical school, although it was four miles from the water; and for years father and son taught navigation.

Boys came from many towns in New England to receive instruction. More than 200 were prepared as midshipmen for the navy. Some of the best known captains of the present day received their instructions in navigation in Center Groton.

The New England Almanac and Farmer's Friend was one of the first in the field. Every farmer throughout New England has an almanac, which hangs at the side of the old-fashioned fireplace in the kitchen. It is the recognized authority on the weather and the workings of the sun, moon and stars.

Steamships and sailing vessels that cruise from New England seaport towns invariably have the Farmer's Friend hanging in their cabin also. To many of the farmers this almanac furnishes food reading the year round. It has been said that no farmer in that region would think of doing any work on his place without first consulting his almanac.

If he contemplates planting on a certain day and the prognostications in the little book should declare that meteorological conditions, he won't not plant, and no one could induce him to alter the circumstances.

In addition to a good deal of valuable information, the almanac furnishes jokes for the recreation of the reader. They are good old jokes that have stood the test of time, and they are none the less appreciated for that fact.

The almanac office is in the wing of the Daboll house. Its furniture now is unique, and there for many years Mr. Daboll has worked out his calculation by the glow of the kerosene lamp. Until almost his last days his eye was bright, his brain active and his memory excellent.

He made his calculations from the Nautical Almanac, a work issued by the Royal Observatory of Greenwich, several years in advance, for the special use of astronomers and navigators. To the astronomer it furnishes a great mass of valuable information. Mr. Dabell gave in his almanac a daily forecast of the weather for an entire year. These forecasts represent the almanac maker's personal opinion, but to the farmers they were worth a good deal, for Mr. Daboll's long practice in almanac making made him a good guesser.

When he desired to know what the weather a year in advance would be he figured out the exact position of the sun and the moon, and then searched his journal until he found them in similar positions. If frost or rain or snow prevailed on that day, he calculated that there would be frost or rain or snow on the day in question.

He Felt It Deeply.

"Can you trust me to a glass of beer until day after to-morrow, at half past 7?" he asked, as he came over from the free lunch counter.

"No, sir," said the bartender with speeless emphasis.

"I'm sorry. It seems kinder small for a man to eat a lot of lunch an' then not buy anything to drink."

And he went slowly out with a halo of intense mortification hovering over him. Puck.

Was He Right?

After listening to the woman suffrage orator from Maine a Yankee shuffled easily up to her, murmuring:

"I understand ye're a Maineac, an' livin' from that State meself thought I—"

But here he was interrupted. The woman from Maine designed no reply; coldly shook the extended hand and left him.—Judge.

MODERN GOTHIC HOUSES.

Old Trinity Church Was the First Gothic Structure in the United States.

(Copyright 1895 by the Co-operative Building Plan Association, N. Y.)

During mediaval times in Europe the vast mass of the people, the peasantry, lived in rude hovels, while the aristocracy built itself castles, and the Church, sharing the power and the riches of the State, and levying contributions alike on noble and peasant, reared monasteries and cathedrals that are still regarded as triumphs of architecture. But with the breaking of feudal fetters and the great growth in power of the people, the dwellings of the private citizens, the homes of the land, became the object of architectural care and consideration.

The Gothic, or pointed and Grecian, or horizontal, are really the foundations of all styles of architecture; when we speak of buildings being Swiss, Italian or Gothic, or any of the numerous well known styles, we mean that the spirit of a particular class has been seized upon, and not that there has been a slavish imitation of distinguishing peculiarities. One of the most interesting of all of the styles is the Gothic.

Appropriately enough, the first Gothic building erected in the United States was a church—famous Trinity Church, New York—built in 1840. Since then it has been the prevalent style for church architecture.

The design illustrating this article is a modified Gothic and a detailed description of it is as follows:

General dimensions: Width, exclusive of veranda, 37 ft. 2 in.; depth, not including veranda and parlor bay, 54 ft. 2 in.

FIRST FLOOR.

Height of stories: Cellar, 7 ft.; first story, 10 ft.; second story, 9 ft.; attic, 8 ft. 6 in.

Exterior materials: Foundation, first and second stories and gables, brick. Roofs, slate. Balcony floors covered with leaded tin.

Interior finish: Three coats plaster, hard-white finish; soft wood flooring and trim. Main staircase, oak. Kitchen and bath-room wainscoted. Picture molding in principal rooms and hall of first story. Panel backs under windows in parlor and dining-room. All interior woodwork grain filled, stained to suit owner and finished in hard oil varnish.

Colors: Trim, including cornices, casings, veranda and balcony posts, rail, etc., dark green. Sashes red. Brick work painted buff and pencilled and speckled to imitate mottled brick. Veranda, floors and ceiling and outside doors, oiled.

SECOND FLOOR.

Accommodations: The principal rooms and their sizes, closets, etc., are shown by the floor plans. Cellar under whole house, with inside and outside entrances and concrete floor. Two rooms and hall finished off in attic; remainder of space floored for storage purposes. Inside Venetian blinds to all windows of first and second stories. Bath-room, with full plumbing, in second story. Brick-set range, sink and boiler in kitchen. Large bay window and open fireplace in parlor and bedroom over same.

Cost: $6,200, not including mantels, range or heater. The estimate is based on New York prices for materials and labor. In many sections of the country the cost should be less.

It is as well to take warning from the silly as counsel from the wise.—Ram's Horn.
